THE Epistle read in the Mass celebrated on the First Sunday of Advent, last week, read: "Brethren: knowing that it is now the hour for us to rise from sleep, For now our salvation is nearer than when we believed. For night is passed and the day is at hand. Let us therefore cast off the works of darkness, and put on the armor of light. Let us walk honestly, as in the day, not in rioting and drunkenness, not in chambering and impurities, not in contention and envy: but put ye on the Lord Jesus Christ."

The Catholic student is aware of the coming of the Christ Child. He knows that He who is our salvation is here.

The Catholic student now occupies himself with a period of searching his heart. He wants to root out the sins which blot out the vision of God. He wants to prepare himself as best as he can so that the Grace of God can flow into his heart. He wants to be ready to respond to the call of the priest: "Sursum Corda."

This is the season of Advent. Prepare yourself. Prepare yourself to be renewed with the Spirit of Christ.

WHERE ARE THEY NOW?

UP until a few years ago Villanova College numbered among her numerous extra-curricular activities a Symphony Orchestra and a dramatic club known as the "Turf and Tinsel." Both organizations enjoyed widespread popularity both among students and friends of the college.

The Symphony Orchestra gave many concerts in and about the Quaker City and was highly appreciated wherever it played. What happened to it no-one seems to know. After a lapse of several years it appears to us that it is time for a resurrection of this praiseworthy activity. With so much interest being shown in the Villanova Music Club it seems to us that it would not be hard to rebuild the Villanova Symphony and bring it back to the place it once enjoyed in Philadelphia and collegiate music circles.

"Turf and Tinsel" in its day was an organization somewhat similar to the "Mask and Wig" of the University of Pennsylvania. For several years the group was discontinued because of lack of interest and talent here at the college. But times have changed. The interest and talent brought out in the Amateur Night last year and the excellent results shown by the recent Belle Masque productions show that both these necessary characteristics have returned to the campus. It seems to us that the time is ripe for a rebirth of these organizations.

A man is in better frame of mind when he has a good dinner upon his table than when his wife talks Greek.

ODDS and ENDS

TO REALLY understand this story it is necessary to know Harold. You know, a heart of gold and such. Well, Harold, or "Buzz" as he is familiarly termed on the campus because of his speed at the table, learned that a certain Miss X, of Rosemont, was having trouble with a theme concerning Shakespeare: His Private Life. Harold immediately volunteered to take this unpleasant chore from her hands, and write it himself, guaranteeing an "A." But now Harold is stuck. He's written enough for a "B," but lacks the finishing touches to make it an "A." And, besides, Harold wants very badly to attend the next Rosemont dance. It IS an awful world, Harold.

Our friends and colleagues of the Daily Pensylvanian deserve Villanova thanks for their statement decrying the seeming discrimination against Eastern football teams in general, and Villanova in particular, in the little matter of invitations to Bowl games this year. ONE last tribute to Villanova's greatest football team—"Clipper" Smith has carved for you in the records of your college—you have carried the Notre Dame System to greater fame—would that Knute Rockne could have seen your game —for—

Oft when "Saturday's" Stadiums are darkened,
And twilight's silence hovers o'er empty seats
Some solitary figure studies the torn turf;
Thankful in victory, or bitter in defeats.
Like a soldier who turns to his captain;
This teacher-coach, come to be taught.
Again a pupil, he asks wisdom from that fund
Of football psychology, a genius has wrought.
And as a general, who takes critical roll-call,
Counting the fallen after victory or defeat is known
Knute Rockne returns, checking each pupil left behind
Cultivating the seeds, in his system long sown.

We met Fr. John Vrana bouncing over the campus the other morning. Under his arm was a large box of victrola records. It seems that the good Father has just acquired a few dozen new records for the music club.

This music club has become a most important part of campus life. Started only a year ago, with a small group meeting in Father Vrana's office, it has now grown into a weekly institution. At times, more than 50 boys meet to hear recordings of the classics of all musical compositions.

The music club is an excellent institution. Fr. Vrana, we know, has won a warm spot in the hearts of dozens of the boys. May God bless his work.

PRESIDENT SUGGESTS EVALUATION METHOD

Rev. Edward V. Stanford Offers Scheme for 'Living Endowment' Evaluation

A proposal for a uniform method of evaluation of contributed services and a living endowment, was unanimously accepted at a meeting of the Eastern Regional Catholic Colleges. The proposal was made by Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O. S. A., president of Villanova, who has made a thorough study of this matter. Father Stanford presided as chairman of the convention, which was held in Atlantic City on November 26 and 27, bringing together prominent representatives of many Catholic colleges to discuss numerous questions relative to secondary Catholic education.

Suggested By President

The matter of evaluation of ("living endowment") was first suggested by Father Stanford in his article under the same title in the Catholic Educational Review. It is primarily a proposal to show monetary evaluations for contributed services, both in the statement of income and in the statements of expenditures in a financial report of a college. In other words, each member of a Religious Community serving a college without remuneration should be credited on the books with a salary.

Up until this time however, all knowledge of the situation has been rather vague; although the idea has been in use for some time in many Catholic colleges, there has been no attempt at uniformity in methods of evaluating these contributed services.

The North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools recognizes ("Contributed Services") in so far as saying ("that service contributed by faculty members or administrative officers without remuneration should be considered in computing the financial data of a college.") But as Father Stanford points out, this is not entirely satisfactory, it does not provide for the services of Religious holding domestic positions in a college. It is for these reasons that Father Stanford wrote and proposed a uniform method of evaluations.

Commission Appointed

Upon acceptance of the proposal a Commission of three was appointed to take charge, with Father Stanford as chairman of said group. He was also re-elected as representative of Eastern group on the National committee.

Three new officers were elected to head the Eastern group, namely: President, Rev. William T. Dillon, St. Joseph's College of Brooklyn, vice president, Rev. Charles J. Deane, S. J., of Fordham, secretary, Brother Emilion of LaSalle.

WISCONSIN ENCOURAGES AMATEUR PHOTOGRAPHY

Camera Club of University To Hold Fifth Annual Contest

The University of Wisconsin's Camera Club is at present announcing their fifth annual National Intercollegiate Salon of Pictorial Photography. This salon is for the purpose of encouraging either student or faculty amateur photographers to submit prints in competition to prints submitted by other institutions.

It is the club's opinion that amateur photography can be worthy of a place in the rapidly growing world of camera art, so after sponsoring this contest which will be judged by several competent judges, the prints will be exhibited from March 19 to April 8. Any student or faculty member having any prints which he considers worthy of competition should submit them to this club in Wisconsin before February 19.

VINCENT LABRASCA CHOSEN ART EDITOR OF COLLEGE ANNUAL

Newly Appointed Belle Air Official Asks for More Snapshots

Vincent Labrasca, senior in the Commerce and Finance school, has recently been appointed Art Editor of the Belle Air, the college yearbook. He has requested that more snapshots of the candid type be taken, since only 100 have been handed in for the contest and most of these are too formal to be useful.

Almost One-Third Ready

This year's yearbook, it has been announced by Charles O'Connor, editor, is well on its way to completion. By December 21, it is expected to be one-third finished, because of the wonderful co-operation given him by the staff.

Work has been piling up in the offices of the yearly due to a death of typists. All Freshmen able to type are requested to come to the office in Room 51, Mendel Hall, any time they are free.

Senior pictures that have been ordered will be available Monday, December 13, in the reception room of Austin Hall. The remainder of the meeting was devoted to fraternity business and during this session, President Dowling announced that the prospective new members would be interviewed, initiated, and accepted before the Christmas vacation starts.

An Acceptance Committee was appointed at this meeting to interview the prospective members. The committee includes: Robert Howe, Andrew McKane, Leonard Flinkman, Joseph Toland, Harry Taylor, John Urie and Benjamin Cusani. GLEE CLUB SINGS AT ANNUAL BANQUET

College Choral Group to Entertain Gathering With Several Selections

Villanova College Glee Club will make its first pubic appearance of the year when it entertains the guests of the annual Philadelphia Club football Banquet this evening.

The Glee Club's progress this season has been just short of phenomenal and many plans have been made for the group to give several concerts throughout the Winter and Spring months. One certain engagement is when the choristers travel into the depths of South Philadelphia to sing at the annual St. Patrick's evening social of St. Rita's parish.

Chief among the numbers the Glee Club will use on Tuesday evening are; "Stout Hearted Men" from the score of "The Vagabond King" by Friml; "The Villanova Alma Mater" by Burke and Dubin; with a choral arrangement by Paul Teel; and "Joshua" famous Negro spiritual, and the ever popular "Duna."

FROSH DEBATERS CONTACT RIVALS

Penn and St. Johns of Brooklyn Challenge Yearling Wranglers

Secretary James Donovan recently stated that the Freshman Debating Society has received challenges for debates from St. John's of Brooklyn and the University of Pennsylvania. Specific information on these contests will be released in the near future.

Murray Zealor, president of the society, has arranged for a series of lectures on topics dealing with the debate topic chosen by the society. The first of these was given by Dr. Harold Hartmann on the political aspects of unicameral legislature.

Membership in the club is hoped to increase and the group will endeavor to introduce the new members to the fine cultural and intellectual value of a society of this type.

Other schools are being contacted and it is expected that the first-year debating squad will have several contests with their traditional opponents. The fine material in the society and the interest shown by those candidates who have reported has greatly encouraged the Rev. Mahoney, Moderator of club.

search as well as for manifold practical applications.

One of Mendel's chief contributions to genetic discipline was the reduction of the phenomena of inheritance to a measurable basis by the application of exact quantitative procedures. The important discoveries of Mendel were largely a result of his careful genetic research and his concentrated method of attack. Using the culinary pea for his experiments he constructed a working hypothesis regarding the manner in which true breeding varieties within the species are related.

The dramatic rediscovery of Mendel's work in 1900 led to an eager study by many scientific investigators, and as a result thousands of successful breedings have been performed raising modern science to a far better position to formulate definite laws of inheritance.

Gregor Mendel was born in 1822 and died in 1884 at the same Augustinian Monastery in Brunn where he had conducted his experiments which led to his world-wide recognition as an outstanding scientist of the age.

DRAMATIC SOCIETY LIMITS SELECTION OF COMING PLAYS

'Winterset,' 'The Last Mile,' 'The Petrified Forest' Chosen for Presentation

Belle Masque in its selection of dramas for its annual hit play has narrowed the possibilities to three. Those announced by Mr. Frayne, moderator, are "Winterset," "The Last Mile," and "The Petrified Forest."

Ready in February

The scripts being considered for the February production are not edited by an ordinary publishing house but by an association of producers and authors who are interested in maintaining the standards of their creations so that the playwright's reputation will not be injured. Thus if Belle Masque is allowed to stage any of these mentioned, the association will recognize the high standing of the campus society.

Each of the plays presents difficulties in regards to sets required, royalties to be paid, type of characters called for in the cast, female characters to be filled, besides timeliness, popularity, and dramatic value.

"Winterset" Wins Award

Winterset, written by Maxwell Anderson, won the award of the Critic's Circle, an organization of the leading professional critics of dramatic presentations.

Whichever is selected will require a close analysis of the characters in the light of performances of the three one-act plays shown recently.

DEBATERS NEAR ESTABLISHED GOAL

Suffering a setback at the hands of the Misericordia College the Villanova debating group redeemed itself in the forensic contest with Mt. St. Vincent, held in the amphitheatre yesterday afternoon.

For the first time in many a debate the team drew the audience which its efforts seem to entitle it. Before an amphitheatre well filled with members of the Villanova and Rosemont student bodies, Vincent Corkhill, Joseph Alessandroni and John Stahlmann showed their mettle as debaters.

The question was, Resolved: That women should be excluded from juries of murder cases. Villanova debated the affirmative; Mt. St. Vincent the negative.

Though not receiving the enthusiasm which is justly due to it, the debating teams have slowly been forging their way along the road to a successful season. A debating group which already has among the highlights of its career two victories over the University of Pennsylvania evening school should certainly go far. In both these contests Villanova put her best foot forward and achieved great success.

Introducing

By ROSS ARNOLD

A roaring motor, a '35 Chrysler and into view came four Villanova students, namely Louis Centralla, David Gold, Donald Carter and the proud driver, Vincent Ciacci. The latter is the subject of interest and worthy of a little thought since his high school and college life would be the envy of the most popular of students.

While attending Olney High School, Vince was a member of the student council, which in itself is a singular honor. Not content with his selection to the highest honor available in high school, he was a ranking member of the Honor Society, Theatre Club and to top a perfect extra-curricular program was a member of the French Club.

Following his graduation from Olney High, Vince made a wise selection of his Alma Mater to be . . . Villanova. Upon his admittance in September to the college, Vince became the type of student that the faculty finds a pleasure to imbue with knowledge. His membership in the Lambda Kappa Delta, science fraternity, has been continuous since his freshman year. As a student, Vince is far superior to the ordinary run of the mill. His scholastic achievements have been recorded in the upper percentages since his enrollment at Villanova. Interest among his professors is aroused by his senior thesis which has been in formation for the past three years. If it is anything like his scholastic record, it should be worth while to the Pre-Med Department.

For extra-curricular activities Vince can boast of the chairmanship of the Mendel Bulletin. The pressing needs of the Bulletin necessitated his resignation from the VILLANOVAN staff. For his awards in college, Vince can boast of the John B. Ford Award. The award is a gold medal given each year to the student who excels in embryology, and last year was won by Vincent.

For a hobby, fishing comes to the fore and claims the attention of a prize winner. None other than Vince claims a casting prize of which he may be proud. For the arts, interest in dancing is the main key-note. The Wagner Institute of Dancing had a little to do with this interest. Gratitude is extended to the institute since it, without doubt, has had a great deal to do with Vince's attendance at the social whirls in which he seems to shine. After the ball is over, the gentleman in the limelight steps to one of two well-known entertainment spas, the Arcadia or Benny the Bum's. All in all, Vince can be named the type of student whom one would gladly change places with provided one were not already of such calibre.

BLUE COURTMEN OVERPOWER RIDER

Sportorial

By BILL BOWKER

Sports Editor

VILLANOVA'S best gridiron season in the history of the school goes unrewarded with the total neglect of the Wildcats by the powers that govern the Bowl selections. Naturally we are disappointed at the lack of Bowl consideration for what we think is the best team in the country, but we also think that California would have done better to pick someone other than Alabama, since the game was practically a sellout before the Eastern team was announced, and new faces should be welcome out on the West Coast.

—V—

John Mellus is beginning to get some of the credit he deserves in the later All-America teams being selected throughout the country. The earlier selections totally ignored "Curly," but the New York Sun and New World-Telegram have recognized his ability by placing him on the first and second teams, respectively. Our prediction is that John will be in there when Grantland Rice's Collier's All-America comes out this Friday.

—V—

There is still some talk of a post-season game for the Wildcats, but to us it is pretty certain that the boys can hang up their suits until next year. It's a shame that such an aggregation must go unheralded with a post-season contest against an outstanding team such as Pitt Fordham or California. Attestation of the greatness of the team is given by the California sports scribes who voiced the opinions that the 'Cats were the best club to hit the coast this year, bar none. Despite the fact that one should believe only half of what one reads and less of what one hears, we agree most heartily with the sun-kissed writers.

Novelty was introduced to Villanova court fans by means of red lights on baskets down in the Main Line Field House. These are a distinct improvement over the former hoops, and no doubt is left in the mind of the spectators as to whether the ball went through. The electric score board is also most enlightening and another boon to the court fan.

Swimming stole the intramural spotlight from the basketeers last Thursday when the splashers dove and swam for dear life. "Doc" Daniello, diminutive Austinite, almost took the faculty moderator's advice to "die for dear old Austin" by floundering around in the 50-yard sprint until a few of the boys dragged him out. "Doc's" inability to finish was due, no doubt, to a lack of training. This business of training has always been insisted upon for the mural ringmen, and we think it should be insisted upon for swimming and track. The exercises performed preceding the meets need not be too strenuous, but just enough to enable the boys to participate without having that very unpleasant and nauseous feeling after giving one's best for the honor of old Siwash.

—V—

The basketeers showed up well in defeating Rider by that large score, but we think a little more practice on fouls would come in handy. An excellent example of the importance of foul shooting was given by the losers, who stayed in the game for quite a while due to their ability to sink their free throws.

GRIDDERS CONCLUDE SUCCESSFUL SEASON BY BEATING LIONS

Trounce Loyolans 25 - 0, Raimo, Stopper, Earle and Mellus Scoring

ENTIRE SQUAD IN ACTION

When the final whistle had been sounded to designate the end of the Loyola game a great Villanova football team had not only emerged victorious from the fracas by the decisive score of 25 to 0; but had also extended its winning streak to seven straight to climax the greatest and most successful football season in Villanova history.

Shooting the works in this contest, so that their combined efforts would be rewarded by a "bowl" invitation, "Clipper" Smith's boys showed real offensive power in rolling up twenty-five points in less than three quarters against a ball club which lost to Baylor by two touchdowns and to St. Mary's and Santa Clara by seven points.

Play Aggressive

Displaying that type of aggressive and inspiring brand of football that has become characteristic of the "Wildcats," the outcome of the fray was obvious from the outset. Johnny Mellus, playing his usual brand of football, recovered a Lion fumble on Loyola's 24-yard-line early in the first period. Andy Stopper, versatile halfback, then lugged the pigskin over for the first six-pointer of the day.

A seventy yard offensive seige was climaxed by a seven yard off-tackle thrust by Art Raimo to account for the second tally of the game.

Jackie Earle plunged over from the one yardline to score the third touchdown after officials called interference on a pass intended for Alex Bell in the end zone.

Soon after the second half started, the Villanova machine again crossed that last white stripe in covering eighty yards on two plays. Art Raimo picked up eight yards advancing the oval to Villa-

Villanova Scores At Will To Trounce Foe By 68-39

Duzminski, Montgomery and Lazorchek Pace Scorers; Entire Squad Sees Action in Initial Contest of 1937-38 Court Season

NEW BASKETS DELIGHT LARGE CROWD

By JOE McDADE

Accompanied by flashing red lights, the Villanova band, and the latest set of rules, the Villanova courtmen submerged a fighting but weak Rider College quintet on the local floor-boards last Friday night by the score of 68-39. In racking up a victory at the start of the 1937-38 campaign, the charges of Coach Al Severance showed great offensive potentialities but did not evidence any great defensive play.

Red Lights Indicate Basket

Red lights atop of the backboard of each basket, wired so as to illuminate whenever the ball passes through the net, were flashing almost continuously as the rivals chalked up a total of 107 points between them.

The game, played under basketball's latest set of rules, left a near-capacity crowd of fans wondering whether or not the rule-makers haven't stepped up the action too much. Devoid of any centre-jumps with the exception of the start of each half, the fray was so swiftly played that the spectators found the action at times hard to follow. As far as the players are concerned, the new rules appear to place a premium on reserve strength, no five regulars being physically able to stand the 40-minute pace unless they are supermen.

FROSH BASKETEERS WIN INITIAL FRAY

Shade Philadelphia Business College Five by 26-21 Count in Fast Game

Overcoming a 13-10 halftime deficit, the Frosh basketball aggregation opened the 1937-38 season with a 26-21 win over the fast Philadelphia Business College five in the preliminary to the Villanova-Rider engagement in the Main Line Field House Friday night.

Start Slowly

Starting slowly, the Severance coached yearlings found themselves gradually losing ground until the whistle blew for halftime, when the visitors led by three points, mainly through the efforts of Longedorf, the evening's high scorer.

At the opening of the second half, the Blue youngsters, paced by the stellar floorwork of Johnny Murphy, former John Adams High luminary, and the sharpshooting of Charlie Yund, ex-LaSalle guard, the winners took the lead and never relinquished it. The Business men did not drop out of the running at any time, furnishing the victors with plenty of exercise until the final game.

Standouts for the Blue five were Frankie Morris, Tony Vinci and Murphy, who showed good defensive play, and Charlie Yund, the gangling center, who led the Main Liners in the scoring department with four twin pointers for eight points. Morris, All-Catholic forward from Massachusetts, was next in line with two field goals

GLEE CLUB SINGS AT ANNUAL BANQUET

College Choral Group to Entertain Gathering With Several Selections

Villanova College Glee Club will make its first public appearance of the year when it entertains the guests of the annual Philadelphia Club football Banquet this evening.

The Glee Club's progress this season has been just short of phenomenal and many plans have been made for the group to give several concerts throughout the Winter and Spring months. One certain engagement is when the choristers travel into the depths of South Philadelphia to sing at the annual St. Patrick's evening social of St. Rita's parish.

Chief among the numbers the Glee Club will use on Tuesday evening are; "Stout Hearted Men" from the score of "The Vagabond King" by Friml; "The Villanova Alma Mater" by Burke and Dubin; with a choral arrangement by Paul Teel; and "Joshua" famous Negro spiritual, and the ever popular "Duna."

Secretary James Donovan recently stated that the Freshman Debating Society has received challenges for debates from St. John's of Brooklyn and the University of Pennsylvania. Specific information on these contests will be released in the near future.

Murray Zealor, president of the society, has arranged for a series of lectures on topics dealing with the debate topic chosen by the society. The first of these was given by Dr. Harold Hartmann on the political aspects of unicameral legislature.

Membership in the club is hoped to increase and the group will endeavor to introduce the new members to the fine cultural and intellectual value of a society of this type.

Other schools are being contacted and it is expected that the first-year debating squad will have several contests with their traditional opponents. The fine material in the society and the interest shown by those candidates who have reported has greatly encouraged the Rev. Mahoney, Moderator of club.

search as well as for manifold practical applications.

One of Mendel's chief contributions to genetic discipline was the reduction of the phenomena of inheritance to a measurable basis by the application of exact quantitative procedures. The important discoveries of Mendel were largely a result of his careful genetic research and his concentrated method of attack. Using the culinary pea for his experiments he constructed a working hypothesis regarding the manner in which true breeding varieties within the species are related.

The dramatic rediscovery of Mendel's work in 1900 led to an eager study by many scientific investigators, and as a result thousands of successful breedings have been performed raising modern science to a far better position to formulate definite laws of inheritance.

Gregor Mendel was born in 1822 and died in 1884 at the same Augustinian Monastery in Brunn where he had conducted his experiments which led to his world-wide recognition as an outstanding scientist of the age.

DRAMATIC SOCIETY LIMITS SELECTION OF COMING PLAYS

'Winterset,' 'The Last Mile,' 'The Petrified Forest' Chosen for Presentation

Belle Masque in its selection of dramas for its annual hit play has narrowed the possibilities to three. Those announced by Mr. Frayne, moderator, are "Winterset," "The Last Mile," and "The Petrified Forest."

Ready in February

The scripts being considered for the February production are not edited by an ordinary publishing house but by an association of producers and authors who are interested in maintaining the standards of their creations so that the playwright's reputation will not be injured. Thus if Belle Masque is allowed to stage any of these mentioned, the association will recognize the high standing of the campus society.

Each of the plays presents difficulties in regards to sets required, royalties to be paid, type of characters called for in the cast, female characters to be filled, besides timeliness, popularity, and dramatic value.

"Winterset" Wins Award

Winterset, written by Maxwell Anderson, won the award of the Critic's Circle, an organization of the leading professional critics of dramatic presentations.

Whichever is selected will require a close analysis of the characters in the light of performances of the three one-act plays shown recently.

DEBATERS NEAR ESTABLISHED GOAL

Suffering a setback at the hands of the Misericordia College the Villanova debating group redeemed itself in the forensic contest with Mt. St. Vincent, held in the amphitheatre yesterday afternoon.

For the first time in many a debate the team drew the audience which its efforts seem to entitle it. Before an amphitheatre well filled with members of the Villanova and Rosemont student bodies, Vincent Corkhill, Joseph Alessandroni and John Stahlmann showed their mettle as debaters.

The question was, Resolved: That women should be excluded from juries of murder cases. Villanova debated the affirmative; Mt. St. Vincent the negative.

Though not receiving the enthusiasm which is justly due to it, the debating teams have slowly been forging their way along the road to a successful season. A debating group which already has among the highlights of its career two victories over the University of Pennsylvania evening school should certainly go far. In both these contests Villanova put her best foot forward and achieved great success.

Introducing

By ROSS ARNOLD

VINCENT CIACCI

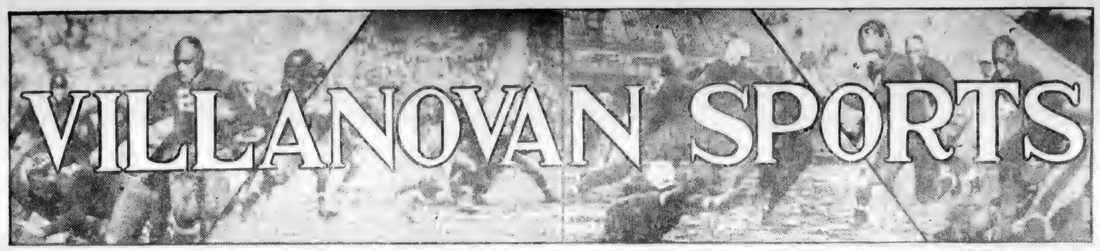
A touring motor, a '35 Chrysler Airflow now come from Villanova to Broadway Louis Contralto, to Rosalinda Cantor and the Metropolitan Opera Chorus. There is a sheet of interest and novelty of a little round since his high school and college life would be the envy of the most popular co-eds.

While attending Olney High School, Vince was a member of the student council, which in itself is a singular honor. Not content with his selection to the highest honor available in high school, he was a leading member of the Dramatic Society, Theatre Club and to top a perfect extra-curricular program was a member of the Fencing Club.

Following his graduation from Olney High, Vince made a wise selection of his Alma Mater to be a Villanovan. Upon his admittance as a Sophomore to the college, Vince became the type of student that the faculty finds a pleasure to imbue with knowledge. His membership in the Lambda Kappa Delta, science fraternity, has been continuous since his freshman year. As a student, Vince is far superior to the ordinary run of the mill. His scholastic achievements have been recorded in the upper percentages since his enrollment at Villanova. Interest among his professors is aroused by his senior thesis which has been in formation for the past three years. If it is anything like his scholastic record, it should be worth while to the Pre-Med Department.

For extra-curricular activities Vince can boast of the chairmanship of the Mendel Bulletin. The pressing needs of the Bulletin necessitated his resignation from the VILLANOVAN staff. For his awards in college, Vince can boast of the John B. Ford Award. The award is a gold medal given each year to the student who excels in embryology, and last year was won by Vincent.

For a hobby, fishing comes to the fore and claims the attention of a prize winner. None other than Vince claims a casting prize of which he may be proud. For the arts, interest in dancing is the main key-note. The Wagner Institute of Dancing had a little to do with this interest. Gratitude is extended to the institute since it, without doubt, has had a great deal to do with Vince's attendance at the social which in which he seems to shine. After the ball is over, the gentleman in the limelight steps to one of two well-known entertainment spas, the Arcadia or Benny the Bum's. All in all, Vince can be named the type of student whom one would gladly change places with provided one were not already of such calibre.



BLUE COURTMEN OVERPOWER RIDER

Sportorial

By BILL BOWKER

Sports Editor

VILLANOVA'S best gridiron season in the history of the school goes unrewarded with the total neglect of the Wildcats by the powers that govern the Bowl selections. Naturally we are disappointed at the lack of Bowl consideration for what we think is the best team in the country, but we also think that California would have done better to pick someone other than Alabama, since the game was practically a sellout before the Eastern team was announced, and new faces should be welcome out on the West Coast.

—V—

John Mellus is beginning to get some of the credit he deserves in the later All-America teams being selected throughout the country. The earlier selections totally ignored "Curly," but the New York Sun and New World-Telegram have recognized his ability by placing him on the first and second teams, respectively. Our prediction is that John will be in there when Grantland Rice's Collier's All-America comes out this Friday.

—V—

There is still some talk of a post-season game for the Wildcats, but to us it is pretty certain that the boys can hang up their suits until next year. It's a shame that such an aggregation must go unheralded with a post-season contest against an outstanding team such as Pitt Fordham or California. Attestation of the greatness of the team is given by the California sports scribes who voiced the opinions that the 'Cats were the best club to hit the coast this year, bar none. Despite the fact that one should believe only half of what one reads and less of what one hears, we agree most heartily with the sun-kissed writers.

—V—

Novelty was introduced to Villanova court fans by means of red lights on baskets down in the Main Line Field House. These are a distinct improvement over the former hoops, and no doubt is left in the mind of the spectators as to whether the ball went through. The electric score board is also most enlightening and another boon to the court fan.

V

Swimming stole the intramural spotlight from the basketeers last Thursday when the splashers dove and swam for dear life. "Doc" Daniello, diminutive Austinite, almost took the faculty moderator's advice to "die for dear old Austin" by floundering around in the 50-yard sprint until a few of the boys dragged him out. Swimming Meet Captured By Mendel Day Hop Squad

MOORE, OF VICTORS, LEADS SCORERS

Old King Neptune ruled the campus last Thursday evening when intramural swimming made its debut. Fifty or more prospective champs turned out to give their all for their respective halls. In a true sense of the word the majority of boys did give everything they had for their dorms, for they entered the water with little training, and only a prayer and a great amount of intestinal fortitude to carry them through. A few reached the heights, but most of them returned to their rooms with tired muscles and a nauseating feeling in their stomachs.

Seven Events Run Off

There were seven events run off in the course of the evening. Due to the lack of time there were no heats. The one turning in the best time was adjudged the winner.

The 50 yard free style, first on the program, attracted the largest number of entrants of any event of the evening. Very good times were turned in in the running of the five heats. FitzMaurice, of Austin, put the proteges of Father McKee out to a early lead when he annexed the short sprint in very fast time for the intramurals, covering the distance in 27.1 seconds. Bud Riley carried off the runner-up title. This fast start proved to be a flash in the pan, for Austin was only able to garner one more first place the remainder of the evening. They did, however, place in enough events to carry off second honors. This other coveted first was scored by Riley who was not satisfied with a second place, came back to prove he had the making of a champ by outsprinting the rest of the field in the century.

Three Enter 200

There were only three mermen who dared line up on the edge of the pool to struggle for 200 yards. A little lad by the name of Burns, who resides in Merdel, put the big boys to shame when he showed fine form in winning rather easily in 2:34.6. It seems that fellows with the name of Burns have a monopoly on the 200 yards, as last year another Burns, likewise a resident of Mendel Hall, carried off the laurels. Steiert, formerly of West Catholic fame, placed in the second spot with Paul Kerrigan earning one point for Austin.

Next, the swimmers turned their attention to diving. Tom Moore, last year's North Catholic swimming captain, showed the spectators a few tricks on the spring board and by reason of his fine exhibition chalked up the initial first for the Mendel Dayhops. This was the spark that started the commuters on a scoring spree that enabled them to annex the swimming title for the second consecutive year. Martin, another Mendel Dayhop, pressed Moore, but had to be content with a second. The train and trolley boys continued their winning ways when Paul Farnsworth won rather handily in the back stroke. Martin proved he can swim as well as dive by finishing second. In the 100 yard breast stroke, Tom Moore used to butterfly to advantage in beating Callahan, of Alumni.

Before the relays were run off, the spectators were given a little entertainment in the form of a skit satirizing life-guards. Toby Greco, varsity swimming captain, and Bill Bailey, varsity distance man, brought down the house with their imitation of a couple of drunks who almost drown. Bill Booth, varsity backstroker, and Walt Kelley, Frosh sprint star, left little doubt in anyone's mind of how they spend their Summers for their interpretation of energy saving life-guards was perfect.

In the final event of the evening, Mendel Residents eked out a victory over the Mendel Dayhops' relay team. Alumni finished a close third.

Tom Moore was the individual high scorer of the meet. It was mainly through his efforts that the Dayhops were able to annex the crown. He amassed a grand total of 14¾ points. His nearest competitors were both Austinites, Riley with 8 and FitzMaurice with 7.

In the final hall standing, Mendel Residents finished in the show position with Alumni, Fedigan and C & F Dayhops following in that order.

nova's 28. On the next play Ray Stoviak faded back and heaved a pass which was neatly gathered in by Walt Nowak in midfield; Nowak in turn flipped a lateral to alert Johnny Mellus who galloped the remaining distance to conclude the scoring for the afternoon.

At this point "Clipper," satisfied with the performance of his varsity, inserted a new eleven and saw to it that everyone making the trip saw action.

The Lions threatened in the final period on several occasions but in the pinch the Wildcats rose to great heights to subdue the enemy's attack.

"Clipper" Smith has found a new quarterback in Harry Maxzel, whose exhibition against Temple and Loyola is worthy of such attention as to make him a strong contender for that position next season. Twelve seniors wore the Villanova colors for the last time in this game; their performance was of such caliber that we are positive that when they stop to reflect upon their football career, they will consider it as a job well done, and well appreciated.

MERMEN HAVE MEET

Villanova's varsity swimming team will have an informal swim meet with Penn A. C., Thursday evening, at the latter's tank.

AUSTINITES UPSET MENDEL COURTMEN

Tighten Mural Basketball Race by Handing Leaders First Defeat

Paced by the sharp-shooting of Walt Sheftic, Austin Hall's basketeers threw the intramural court campaign into a muddle when they defeated the high-flying Mendel Dayhop quintet last Tuesday evening. The smooth team play of the Austinites was responsible in large measure for this upsetting 35-30 win.

Sheftic, usually a competent point gatherer, emerged from a slump to score ten markers, making him high man for the victors. Dan O'Connor was outstanding for the losing cause, playing his usual brilliant floor game in addition to garnering the game's scoring laurels with 12 points.

Fedigan Keeps Pace

In the meantime, the Fedigan Hall club kept moving merrily along. Although extended by Alumni, the Gigolos beat their freshman opponents by a 37-35 count. This victory gave Fedigan a tie with the Mendel Commuters for the league lead, which deadlock was played off late last night.

Mike Totin had an "on" night at the expense of the Alumni lads. During the course of the fray he threw in eight baskets for 16 points. These counters moved him up to second place in the individual scoring race, just seven points behind Joe Beittenmiller, of the Mendel Dayhops.

The hapless Mendel Resident five suffered its ninth and tenth consecutive defeats in the past week. First the C&F aggregation took them into camp in no uncertain fashion, almost doubling the score in administering a sound 40-23 thumping. McGurk, battling for the league scoring lead, and Shank led the Fianceers' attack.

Mendel Drops Another

The Mendel's Penthousers ran into more trouble when they met Austin, fresh from the triumph over the Dayhops. The Austinites had little opposition, scoring almost at will to take the disorganized frosh 41-18.

In the remaining games of the past week Alumni defeated C&F, and Mendel Dayhops beat the same team. The Alumni-C&F fray was a corker, the dormitory team winning out finally by a 39-34 count, helped no little by Nolkman's 16 points. The Mendel team had easy sailing against its Dayhop rival, coasting along to a 48-23 decision.

Bowl Moguls Ignore Eastern Teams In Selecting Participating Elevens

Unbeaten Colgate, Fordham and Villanova Overlooked in Recent Years; Comparative Unknowns Chosen for Classics in Some Instances

By THOMAS O'MAHONEY

To paraphrase Andy Kerr's bitter words, "undefeated, untied, unscored upon and uninvited", we can say that we wuz robbed. While this Villanova team has been scored on, and has been tied, it nevertheless is deserving of far more honors than it received. Only the 1932 Colgate team has ever suffered more from bowl game selectors. The Red Raiders of that year knocked off all their opponents by box car numbered scores, and held them scoreless as well. But, as is the case here on the Main Line, no bids to sunnier climes reached the frigid Chenango Valley. That represented the first snub given Eastern football powers by their intersectional rivals, and it has continued for the past five years with various martyrs in the "out in the cold" role. Fordham is the other Atlantic seaboard outfit to be consistently ignored by the powers that be in Pasadena and New Orleans.

Columbia An Exception

One exception to this strange series of events, and only one, has been made in recent years. In 1933, Columbia, a team that was soundly whipped by Princeton, made the trek to the Arroyo Seco to play Stanford. This sub - average Eastern squad, given little chance for a win by the experts, surprised the Palo Alto Indians by taking them 7-0, when Al Barabas tallied the only score of the game on old K49, a simple reverse around the weak side end. And then, to prove that it was no fluke the Morningside Heights Lions played Stanford twice after that, winning in New York, 7-0 last November, and holding the Californians, 0-0, this year. Basing a rough comparison of Far West and Eastern football on these results, it is readily apparent that there is no basis for the belief of Pacific Coast fans that the pigskin sun rises and set on the western edge of the Rocky Mountains.

Villanova's unbeaten Wildcats share the dubious honor of "undefeated, uninvited," etc., with Fordham in this, the year 1937. Both teams have gone through strenuous schedules undefeated and with only one scoreless tie each to mar their records. The Associated Press rated the Rams third nationally, and the Blue sixth. Yet neither were invited to either of the major bowls—Eastern fans are justified in wondering why. Fordham, at third, deserved a crack at the Rose Bowl since Pittsburgh refused to play a post-season game. This would have left Alabama, fourth ranking in the country, to defend the Sugar Bowl in their capacity of Southeastern Conference champions, and since fifth ranking Minnesota is bound by the rule of the Big Ten which prohibits its members from playing post-season games, Villanova, accredited sixth, should logically be chosen to oppose the Crimson Tide at New Orleans.

But with the snub given Fordham, Alabama was in line for the Rose Bowl, and their acceptance gave Louisiana State the job of holding the Sugar Bowl against the outlanders from the North—or West, as it developed. L. S. U. has nourished a deep felling of resentment at Santa Clara for the latter's surprising defeat of the Bayou Tigers last year in the same bowl, and are anxious to see if something can be done about it. That, however, hardly seems a fair motive for inviting a team that at least reports was rated 22d in the country. On the admittedly flimsy basis of comparative scores, the 'Cats figure to be two or three touchdowns better than the Broncos. And on the not so flimsy basis of impartial outside ranking, the Blue figures to be far better to the Santa Clarans. Again, why?

Good Teams Invited

To be fair, it must be said that neither major bowl has invited a team that is not representative of the best football played in its sector. Alabama, while not believed by this observer the best of the South, is admittedly strong, as is Santa Clara. Again, that old bugaboo of modern college athletics, the drawing power of the participants must be considered. Alabama has traveled to Pasadena four times and has never yet come out on the short end — an angle which can't help but increase the gate. As for Santa Clara, its record this year stamps it as being among the upper three on the Coast.

When we reach a consideration of the Cotton Bowl we cannot be quite so charitable. Colorado, with Whizzer White, the widely publi-

By JOHN L. SIMONS

Villanova's football team, it seems, has always had at least one boy from the town of Lawrence, Massachusetts, in its ranks. The season just completed saw no deviation from this tradition, as one John McKenna represented Lawrence and did so very ably. Johnny qualifies on every count, since he was born and has lived in that town all his life.

Just 23 years and 25 days ago, which should make it November 12, 1914, John was born. He went to school in the normal course of affairs, but after reaching the end of his first year in high school, he decided to become a man of the world. And after a single 12-month of this existence he heeded once again the call of the classroom and once more became a student.

His athletic tendencies came to light during this, his second turn at the routine of school life. Unfortunately, he was ineligible for competition the year he returned, thus delaying the real start of his athletic career for a time.

The following Fall John was a candidate for a halfback post on the Lawrence High School team, and it didn't take him long to gain a regular position. He was for the next two seasons a fixture in the Lawrence starting line-up, and was particularly noted for his ability to toss the pigskin and for his prowess as a defensive man.

Worked On the Railroad

In June, 1933, John once again became a man of the world, with the accent on the man. After working as a truck driver for a few months, he built the Boston and Maine Railroad. At least he felt from all the back-breaking work he did on that road that he built it himself. He swung a pick, toted rails, pulled ties, fixed the roadbed, and did various other very delightful chores for 57 hours a week. And that, my friends, is a man's job.

When September of 1934 rolled around, Mac left his railroad-building to come to Villanova. It was through the influence of Bill Christopher, who graduated from Villanova last year and who was a teammate of John's at Lawrence, that he came here. Harry Stuhldreher, the football coach at the time, had never seen Johnny and took him wholly on Bill's recommendation. Results have proven that the recommendation more good fruit.

Stuhlie immediately made John over into a center, and he has been at that position ever since. It was his ability on defense that prompted the coach to make the change.

As a sophomore Mac played his first game of varsity football. All that year he alternated at the pivot position with Bunny Galazin, who at the present time is playing with the New York Giants in the National Pro League. This pair waged battle with approximately the same results. Mac wound this campaign up in fine style down in Havana, Cuba, on New Year's Day. Against the Auburn team John played the finest game of his career and was one of the biggest reasons the 'Cats were able to deadlock the high-flying Plainsmen.

This year of course John held undisputed possession of the regular center position and played capable football throughout. As usual he went great guns in the final game, turning in a grand performance in his Swan Song against Loyola, two weeks ago. Strangely enough our Mr. McKenna seems to play his best ball away from home, as witnessed by the aforementioned games and also the Boston and Detroit games this year.

In addition to being a stellar football man John has distinguished himself here at Villanova as a scholar and a campus leader. In his freshman year he was high man scholastically in the Arts School. Last year he served a very successful term as vice president of the Class of 1938.

Longsdorf of the visitors, in addition to leading the scorers for the fray also played a stellar defensive game. It was principally through his efforts, and those of his team mate, Kolanko, that the losers were in the contest until the end ton, N. J., started out as if ready to spring a sensational upset. Paul Peluso sank a foul shot to be the first player to blink the lights, but Johnny Krutulis retaliated with a one pointer. Abel, of the visitors, sank two double-deckers before Duzminski countered with the first two pointer of his varsity career. A beautiful one-hand shot by Capt. Howie Benyon of the Riders gave the invaders an 8 to 3 margin. With eight minutes of play remaining in the initial half the Trenton lads held a four-point advantage but Duzminski came through with two pretty shots to deadlock the count at 15-15. Lanky Jim Montgomery then dropped in a nice lay-up shot to put the Cats in the van once and for all.

'Cats Start Rolling

Once clicking, the minions of Coach Severance picked up momentum as the game progressed; running the opposition ragged on the spacious floor, they scored almost at will thereafter. "Duke" Duzminski, one of the two sophomores in the starting lineup, was the flashiest player on the floor, scoring 14 points in the first canto and seven more in the second. Mike Lazorchek, the other sophomore, contributed 14 points to the rout. Montgomery, a veteran of last year's court wars, played a stellar game, netting 15 markers.

Captain Benyon, of Coach Donlon's team, was the outstanding performer; he scored nine points besides playing a splendid defensive game. Abel, handicapped by a twisted ankle, played well despite that fact. Before tiring, his shots gave the Rough Riders an early advantage although they were not able to maintain it.

cized Phi Beta Kappa and potential Rhodes Scholar as well as All-American back, has played no one but Mountain Conference teams—a league which is definitely not class "A" in caliber. The Buffalos may be a good team, but a bowl invader should be one of known ability. Colorado, despite its undefeated and untied record, is not such a team. Again, it is hard to imagine what the good burghers of Miami could have been thinking of when they invited Michigan State to their Orange Bowl set-to. The Spartans have been defeated once, that loss inflicted by Manhattan's Jaspers to the tune of 3-0. New York and Philadelphia fans remember that the Blue smothered the New Yorkers, 20-0.

However, Villanova cannot count this season as a lost one. National recognition reached the Main Line for the first time, with the 'Cats going through undefeated and with several of the Wildcat stars either selected All - Americas or mentioned on the "All" teams. Johnny Wysocki, play-busting end, and his mate at tackle, Johnny Mellus, are most prominent in the race for national honors.

Walt Nowak set a new record for mailing postcards by sending approximately 1000 per stop, making a total of some 10,000 or more . . . Will Cochrane and Dave DiFilippo rendered vocal selections with such feeling that the boys assured them that by the time they arrived on the coast they would be well on their way to displacing Rudy Vallee and Bing Crosby from the hearts of their admirers . . . Sam Monaco proved the fact that all cats land on their feet by failing out of an upper berth feet first . . . Asleep all the while, too . . . Wysocki came through with some sensational acts, wearing out the mike in the rubber-neck bus in San Francisco with his line of hot air . . . He also ran into a 409-pound Negro friend of his who was out there teaching the coast inhabitants the Big Apple . . . Ray Stoviak proved such an able trencherman that we all started calling him "Gouger" . . . In direct contrast, John McKenna proved himself not to be one of those, but just a slow, deliberate eater.

Tony Periera is the spit image of Joe E. Brown . . . At least that's what Californians think . . . Andy Chisick was sick with disappointment when he saw all those cowboys without six-guns . . . It took three days to console him . . . Tough going, Chis, but life is full of such disillusionments . . . There's a rumor going around that it had sweetheart engraved or tattooed on it . . . Don't blame me for that one, Pat . . . Andy Stopper just disappeared somewhere, but he was around for a couple of hours on the 28th, so everybody was happy . . . Alex Bell sat up very late on the way out, hoping to see his beloved Pittsburgh, but it was too smokey to distinguish anything—he should have expected that—and he was blue for a long time.

Artie Raimo was quite impressed with Judy Garland, aged fourteen and requested that she move up to Everett, Mass., about five years hence . . . Johnny Mellus was quiet, as usual, and confined himself to giving imitations of "Scoop" Keating and others . . . Val Rizzo's new name, "John Silver" . . . Art Murphy joined Buzz Howlett and "Booko" Bukofski as the great lovers of the trip . . . Their ability in this phase of life made John Barrymore tremble in his boots

STRONG AND QUINN ADDRESS A. I. E. E.

Robert F. Strong and Paul H. Quinn, seniors in the Electrical Engineering School, addressed the members of the Villanova Branch of the A. I. E. E. yesterday in Room 18, Mendel Hall.

Strong chose for his subject "Railway Electrification" and supplemented his talk with pictures and diagrams. The chief source of interest was the history and development of the Pennsylvania Railroad Electrification system.

"A Review of Radio Interference" was presented by Quinn, who also spoke on the above.

Chemical Engineers Hear Lecture By Simons and Rhoads At Meeting

John L. Simons, and John B. Rhoads, senior chemical engineers, yesterday entertained the regular bi-weekly meeting of the Villanova Chemical Society with a lecture combined with a motion picture supplied by the Dow Chemical Company on the extraction of bromine from sea water, as done by the Dow Plant in Wilmington, Virginia.

Mr. Rhoads detailed the difficulties encountered and the consequent solution in the selection of the most desirable location for the plant. This proved to be very interesting. First of all Rhoads pointed out the plant necessarily had to be located at a point where the sea water was continuously changing, that is, where the water would not become stagnant, in which case the refuse water after the extraction would remain in the same locality and thus decrease the average supply of bromine. The location decided upon was on the shore of Virginia near a river whose waters flowed south and where the sea water also flowed south, effecting a continuous supply of fresh sea water. After this preliminary discussion, Rhoads detailed the layout of the plant, including a description of the equipment employed in the operation.

Mr. Simons followed Rhoads and devoted his discussion to the chemical aspect of the process. Simultaneously with the discussion of both men was shown the motion picture. The lecture as a whole was exceptionally interesting and was well received.

The meeting was brought to a close by President Joseph W. Beittenmiller who thanked the men and asked for volunteers to continue this practice of meeting-lectures. A further appeal was made by Beittenmiller for the payment of dues.

ALUMNI LAXITY BLAMED FOR POOR LOCAL SUPPORT

Team, Players, Coaches Congratulated for 'Best Team Ever Seen'

Mr. Thomas Lovett, ace sports writer for the Philadelphia Ledger and ardent Villanova supporter and fan, was the guest speaker of the Villanova Holy Name Society at its monthly Communion breakfast last Sunday in the college dining room.

Congratulates Team

After his introduction by President William Bowker, the sports scribe began his talk by congratulating the Villanova team as being the finest team he has ever seen. "It has been my pleasure," he said, "to have covered the team in all its games. Never have I seen a team which possessed so much poise and spirit. Several times during the season they gave indications of being the best team the Philadelphia area has seen for years."

The correspondent then went on to explain that the team made a fine impression on the road, especially on its long trek out to the coast. Railroad and hotel officials were more than pleased by the gentlemanly actions of the Villanova squad.

DARTMOUTH GUESTS OF LOCAL DEBATERS

New England Team on Nation-Wide Tour; U. of P. Also Engaged

Forensic exponents of Dartmouth University were guests of the Beta Gamma debating society last Friday evening in the Villanova amphitheatre. The teams debated before a large audience on the topic "Resolved that the National Labor Relations Board should be empowered to enforce compulsory arbitration in all industrial disputes."

Dartmouth On Tour

The Dartmouth team is on the final leg of a debating tour which has carried it through the various Southern States where many universities and colleges in that locality were engaged. In the debate Friday night Villanova was allotted the affirmative side of the proposition, while Dartmouth contested the negative argument.

Beta Gamma engaged its traditional and local rival, when it met the University of Pennsylvania in a radio debate over Station WIP yesterday. The topic of debate was the intercollegiate proposition regarding the question of the Supreme Court Proposal as defeated by Congress.

Have Had 10 Debates

Thus far in the season Beta Gamma has participated in ten contests and before the mid-years the number will have swelled to twenty. Forensic contests have been planned tentatively with Manhattan, Yale, St. John's University, Bucknell, Immaculata, Johns Hopkins University and a long distance debate over the radio with

Seniors Hope To Select Orchestra At Next Meeting

Kemp, Kayser and Kaye Under Consideration By Dance Committee

Louis J. Biester, Chairman of the Senior Dance Committee, announced today that the selection of an orchestra for the Senior Prom will be made sometime after the fifteenth of this month, possibly at Thursday's committee meeting, to be held in Room 104, Mendell Hall, at one o'clock.

This announcement was made coincident with the reception of a notice from the New York Orchestral Bureau, booking agents for most of the better known bands, to the effect that on December 15th the Bureau would publish the coming winter engagements of these orchestras.

When the committee receives this information, lack of which has so far held up any definite action, it will be able to first, determine which bands will be in this part of the country during the latter part of February, and then those which have open dates on the evening of the twenty-fifth, the date selected for the Belle Air Ball.

At present Hal Kemp, Kay Keyser, and Sammy Kaye rank high in the estimation of many committee members.

Vacation Begins Saturday

The Christmas vacation period will officially go into effect for Villanova students this Saturday, December 18, at 12:30 P.M. Resident students are requested to return to their respective dormatories at 8:30 o'clock, Sunday evening, January 2. Classes will begin for all students at the regular first-period session on Monday morning at 8:55 A. M.

LAMBDA KAPPA DELTA FRATERNITY ACCEPTS NEOPHYTES

Pre-Med Group Initiates Nineteen in Old Gymnasium

Lambda Kappa Delta, pre-med fraternity of the college, last evening held its annual initiation of candidates in the gymnasium of Alumni Hall. Nineteen neophytes went through the traditional ceremony of initiation of the organization and were admitted to membership.

Climax Of Week

This initiation was the climax of a week of preparations during which the neophytes were forced to make applications and present themselves for interviews before the Acceptance committee which held its meetings during the lunch hour of Thursday and Friday of last week. Each candidate had a personal interview in which he was questioned as to his plans for post graduate work and as to his reasons for wanting to join the fraternity. The candidates answers together with his personal appearance and general attitude gave the committee an insight as to his acceptability. Scholastic standing was also taken into consideration.

The Lambda Kappa Delta initiation which is held annually in the Alumni gymnasium was, as usual, a colorful affair. The neophytes dressed in pajamas and blindfolded produced a comical and quite undignified appearance as they were

Sanctuary Society Holds Contest For Valuable Member

Many Factors to be Taken Into Consideration to Decide Winner

It has been announced by the Rev. Charles P. Brown, O.S.A., chaplain of the Villanova Sanctuary Society, that a prize will be awarded at the end of the year to the most valuable member. The society is one of the most noteworthy on the campus and is worthy of all support given it.

Several points will decide the winner. Attendance at assignments, monthly meetings, and monthly Mass, together with the best average in the monthly tests given by Fr. Brown on the matter discussed at the previous meeting will decide the victor and owner of the prize. The matter in the tests concerns serving Mass, Benediction and a general knowledge of vestments and ceremonies of the Church.

All members of the club are eligible to participate in the contest. The Sanctuary Society members are of considerable help in the Masses and are of valuable aid during the Lenten season. It is one of the most important clubs on the college campus.

DONALD MACKOWSKI SELECTS ENGINEER FOR CHAIRMANSHIP

MEMBERS' CO-OPERATION PRESAGES HUGE SUCCESS

Other Committees Will Be Announced After Christmas Holidays

By WILLIAM J. WARD

Following a precedent established in its first year at Villanova, of getting at things early, the Class of 1939 has already begun plans for a Junior Promenade to be held May 6. Although the Prom is not to be held until the early days of Spring, Donald Mackowski, class president, has recently announced that the much coveted position of Junior Prom Chairman has been given to Thomas J. Furey of the School of Technology.

Work for Precedent

Last year's Junior Promenade set a new high in entertainment value due to the excellence of the decorative appointments and the calibre of the music furnished by Tommy Dorsey and his orchestra. If the previous activities of the present Junior Class are any criterion, it will experience little or no difficulty in presenting a dance that will reach heights never before anticipated.

Chairman Non-Committal

Furey, exhibiting his usual reticence in such matters, refused to be quoted on his various activities since his enrollment here at Villanova. The only information he seemed willing to give was that he

DRAMATIC SOCIETY BACKS ART CONTEST

Prizes Offered by Phila. Art Alliance for Model Theatrical Sets

Anthony J. Frayne, moderator of the Belle Masque society yesterday announced the opening of a contest for students capable of building a theatrical model set. This contest will be explained to interested students if they will call on Mr. Frayne at his office in Room 120 Mendel.

Enter In Contest

The feature of the contest is that the sets accepted will be entered in another contest sponsored by the Philadelphia Art Alliance. Prizes are offered by the Alliance and start at 50 dollars for first prize, 25 dollars for the second prize and a third prize of 15 dollars. The sets accepted will also be used as working models for the group of students who are being organized as stage hands and technicians by Joseph J. Quinn, Engineering student.

The next play selected will need two new sets, and although indefinite, "Winterset" by Maxwell Anderson will undoubtedly be chosen. Affirmation by Mr. Frayne will be made before the Christmas vacation begins so that the characters may be assembled and selected for their roles.

Vincent Labrasca, recently appointed Art Editor to the Belle Air, is organizing the business staff of the Belle Masque while William Bailey, publicity director for the thespians is getting a committee together for an unusually large campaign.

By RENE CAILLIET

A black-robed figure can be seen racing from hall to hall, tearing his hair, and having hasty discussions in the corridors with varied members of every class and school. This bustling person is Father McKee, moderator of intramural sports who in spite of seriousness has a smug smile of satisfaction as the program for the coming "Villanova Varieties of 1937" scheduled for Wednesday night, December 15, is rapidly nearing completion. Even at this point it includes every form of talent within a 20-mile radius.

Every student having an active part in the program has been busy for the last few weeks rehearsing his dance or song and now is ready to threaten the supremacy of the Mask and Wig production in Philadelphia annals of entertainment. A form of entertainment has been planned that will include humor, individual and group dancing, and music; in fact, a program that is more varied than any that has ever been presented on the campus.

Hobson Heads Day-Hops

Last week in a preview of this coming event, a list of students having charge of the various halls was presented but at that stage was incomplete. The name of Abe Hobson was added to this distinguished group as the one in charge of the Mendel Day Hops. Hobson has been active in practically every activity on the campus in his three years of school and has made a name for himself especially with his "hot licks" on the trumpet. Abe's reputation is only equalled by such names as "Dobby" Dobrowlski of Fedigan, Clem Lavin of Austin, Tim Brosman of Mendel, and Ed Cogan of Alumni, who comprise the remainder of the board of strategy.

Besides just a means of entertainment this amateur night has resolved into a decided competition among the different halls and, as the individual factors are limited to a certain time, the winner will be decided after the show. The judge and jury will be placed entirely in the hands of the audience and the winner will receive an adequate prize in the form of intramural points.

Russian Out for Blood

Just as the spirit or competition was high in hall decorations before the Temple game so is this prevalent spirit high. The Mad Russian of Fedigan, none other than "Dobby" the man of the hour, not satisfied with his recent victory of pre-game decorations, has again taxed his brain and promises something rare for Wednesday night. A quotation for "Dobby" is impossible here, as this typewriter cannot write with a Russian accent. It is even rumored that Louie will lead his Pie Shop crew in a Big Apple dance but this is very doubtful due to Louie's stage fright in front of a crowd.

Once again the gymnasium will be the scene of this musical comedy and although there will be no entrance fee the audience this year will be limited to the student body and faculty only. So with

TURF AND TINSEL

LAST week we made a suggestion concerning the resurrection of the old comic-dramatic club, the "Turf and Tinsel." During our time here this organization has been non-existent, but from reports given us by alumni and friends we know that it held a very high place in the extra-curricular activities of the college.

Last year's amateur night display of dramatic and comic talent showed that the time is now ripe for the revival of the "Turf and Tinsel." Villanova has long been challenging other colleges in the locality for sport, scholastic, and extra-curricular supremacy. In sport and in most outside actions the colors of the Blue and White have often been raised to the highest pinacle of success. In only a few instances has Villanova been forced to give way to any of the local colleges.

The University of Pennsylvania has long been one of the foremost colleges in the country in dramatic activity. This has been due chiefly to the spirit and self-sacrifice given to most of the annual Mask and Wig productions, which are among the best amateur productions in the land.

Villanova is fast gaining national recognition in many fields. If the Turf and Tinsel club is brought back to the place it once held on the campus we feel sure that in a very short time we shall begin to approach the productions of other local college comic-drama productions. It is for this reason that we ask you to join with us in asking that this noteworthy group be restored to the campus. Join with us in our cry for a revival of the Turf and Tinsel, and we feel sure that the Villanova campus will again be able to support an activity of which you students and friends of the college may be justly proud.

Little minds mistake little objects for great ones, and lavish upon the former that time and devotion which only the latter deserve.

PRINCE OF PEACE

THE Infant Jesus was born into a world which, singularly, was a peaceful world. It was a world united under the imperial eagle of the Roman Empire. Certainly it is significant that God chose a period of world peace to send into the world His only Begotten Son.

Not only was the world of that time a peaceful world, but the Three Kings who sought out the Christ child to render unto Him their homage gave the world a lesson which the rulers of this day too often fail to appreciate, much less understand. Those Three Kings put aside the things of this world to hasten to the bedside of Him who is the representative of the things of the other world. They valued the glory of the living God above the transitory glory of the nations of this world.

Today men do not seem to have any sense of values. They cannot put first things first. Gold and silver are valued above human life. The "honor" of the nation is considered far more important than the glory of God. Men give up their lives to ensure the enhancement of national "prestige" . . . and whole nations rule aside the gentle Christ.

We live in a topsy-turvy world. War, materialism, hunger, poverty, intellectual bolshevism: they are the characteristics of a world which has not learned to put first things first.

"Seek ye first the kingdom of Heaven, and all things shall be added unto ye," Christ, our King, tells the world.

Can we learn? Or must we wait for the tortures of a Spain or a Germany to awaken us?

"HELPING" BUSINESS

THE papers recently have been filled with the cries of the business leaders of the country asking that business be allowed to proceed with "recovery" by having the Federal Government remove the undistributed profits tax.

The secular press is amusing for the amount of intellectual material which it does not present. But when our newspapers print such nonsense as is the idea that the undistributed profits tax is holding business back, all we can think is that either the press is being paid by big business to suppress the facts or that the press is hopelessly ignorant of the principles of this tax.

Industrial savants and overstuffed Congressmen are long and loud in their denunciations of the undistributed profits tax. Yet we have failed to find one intelligent criticism of the tax. Indeed, were we to use the newspapers as our sole source of information, we would not even know the nature of the tax.

The undistributed profits tax was designed by the Administration to tap those huge amounts of money which, at the end of every year, are not distributed to the stockholders. These monies, the undistributed profits, are kept in reserve or are used for reinvesting in business.

If the depression taught us anything, it taught us that the need of the day is increased purchasing power of the masses, not increased capital expenditures. Big business is howling because the government is rightly taxing money which should be paid out either as dividends or as wages. Big business, selfishly, has seized a large part of the profits of the corporations, and has refused to share it with either the workers or the community.

The question at issue is not that of helping big business. It is a question of elementary distributive justice. If anything, the undistributed profits tax should be increased, not decreased.

ODDS and ENDS

By Tom O'Mahoney

APHILADELPHIAN of our acquaintance told us this one the other day. It all happened while he was riding home from Villanova one afternoon on the "L" when he chanced to overhear the following conversation between two very attractive young ladies. Following a short discussion of the more prominent movie heroes, one remarked absently, "But really, you ought to meet Vic Sandor—" and the rest, our friend reported, was lost in the roar as the train dipped into the subway. We were impressed—but we're still wondering if it was all a publicity stunt. If it had been Dwyer, we could understand it; but Vic, well, you know how it is.

Stan "Bunny" Galazin, '37, visiting the campus over the week-end, took quite a beating from the boys about that 49-14 lacing the Giants absorbed from the Washington Redskins of the National Football League. It got so bad that he claimed to be willing to attempt to stop Messrs. Baugh, Battles and Co. alone rather than face the Pie Shop wolves. Incidentally, "Bunny" picks the Bears as the best team in the league.

Death Takes A Holiday: Fuhrman C. Kane, man of many nicknames, is getting tired of it all. Although he refuses to complain, he considers, and rightly, too, that "Cozy" and "Smiley" are annoying, to say the least. Are you listening, Reilly? What Ever Happened To It?: The late lamented "Turf and Tinsel Club," which produced several fine musicomedies in the past. After Dinner Entertainment: Watching Joe Calandriello, Fair Haven (N. J.) and Fedigan Hall (Somewhere on the Main Line) eating pigs knuckles (pickled). And Don't Miss: Bill Burke's account of the Loyola trip. That brogue really hits the spot, so Bowker says. What They're Usually Saying: Joe McHugh — "Watch Out," or, occasionally, "Who's In Town?" Walt Sheftic—"You Should Have Had It!" Ed Tirrell—"Let's Make A Deal" Joe Weber—"Hit Don't Make No Difference" Frank Feron—"How Are You?" Dobby—Anything at all.

COMMUNITY NOTES

Christmas is coming. You can get sore at your girl anytime now.

College Chatter

By Joe Alessandroni

CHRISTMAS PEACE permeates the palaces of the mighty; heartens the hovels of the our lowly poor.

It is one time in the year, when all are happy; giving not getting, works heavenly cure.

Christmas bridges the void to haunting yester-year, when as toddling tots, there were boundless gifts.

Of hob-goblins bounding from boxes, and tiny tin soldiers battling in bloodless rifts.

They were dreamy dutiless days, soon distintegrated, in a world of adult bitterness and hate.

Where each man looks to the future, forgetting the present, waiting too long for things to create.

Christmas, then, brings home fa:-off forgotten things, broken pledges, and sophisticated souls.

Which harken, if only for a day, to that spirit of charity and peace, which our Saviour unfolds.

The "Higgins Nickel-Snatching Tomato Juice Co. Limited" has just made an appearance on the campus. Its first large scale operation has been to try to scab on Pie Shop prices. The manipulations of Joe "Make-The-Indian-Howl" Higgins are like this. The innocent victim enters the Pie Shop. Up steps "Make-The-Indian-Howl" Higgins.

Glancing around to see if Cliff is looking, he whispers, "Would you be interested in purchasing a few shares in some Class A Higgins Tomato Juice? As you are my personal friend, I'll give you a share for say, a nickel."

Joe, clutching the nickel, then asks Cliff: 'Here, my good fellow lend me two cups."

"Andy, open this can!"

Pouring one-sixth of his eight oent can of A & P tomato juice into the victim's cup, he struts off to negotiate another business "deal."

THE OBSERVER SAYS: That is how "Make-The-Indian-Howl" is enabled to squander great sums in purchasing bubble gum for his Rosemont entourage.

MR. BASIL VAN DEE, the "Mad Russian" to you and me, persuaded his cohorts to invest in some fire-crackers and aerial bombs. In the confusion and excitement, his fellow revolutionists liquidated nineteenths of their "welcome home" investment before the team arrived. It is a shame the team couldn't enjoy the celebration of their arrival.

We begin to suspect that the celebration was mainly for Basil, and if the team happened to arrive at the right time, they could listen in without any serious reprimands from our "friend."

ROSEMONT! IMMACULATA! MT. ST. JOSEPH; MORAVIAN! VASSAR! Girls, attention! Among our brave Villanovans there is one whose heart bleeds for you. A noble heart. A kind heart. A heart which beats beneath the breast of our friend and your friend, Charles "Crisco" Cooke.

This is how it all came about. One of the fair sex of Vassar, beset with the care of this world of complicated love affairs, sought the ministrations of "Crisco." His reply to this multi-loved, fair one was so satisfactory that instantly "Crisco's" mail increased, and his popularity spread. It is rather by popular demands rather than by personal choice that the eminent Senator Cooke, "Aunty Caroline," has assumed the burden of the assuaging the grief of hearts that palpitate in thousands of distant four-walled rooms.

Oh noble Charles!

Oh generous Crisco!

Girls: address your friend—CHARLES J. COOKE, Villanova College, Villanova, Pa. Thus sallies forth Charles Galahad Cooke.

Wech risten thee Aunty Caroline!

The Observer is always talking about everyone else. No one ever talks about the Observer. But, at last, our first piece of fan mail arrived. Dated December 2, posted from the Moravian Seminary and College for Women, and signed by Mary Dorothy B . . ., it reads as follows:

Dear Observer, who-writes-a-darn-good-column:

Here's a fan letter for you. The consensus of opinion among us Moravianites is that the Observer is tops among columns, second only to our beloved Stoolpigeon in the Moravian Bellfry (Cheers, applause, and graceful acknowledgments).

In your issue of November 23, one item especially held my delighted attention—"When two old foos meet plenty of goo is slung."

Bravo!

I love that word foo. So much and yet to little . . . But, if I might make a suggestion—(Sure, sure, go right ahead, Mary!)—the phrase would be a bit more apt this way: "—plenty of woo is slung." Judging from my sage observations of foos in general, a real, dyed-in-the-wool foo is an expert at slinging woo. Oh, well, it was just a thought.

I am very grateful for my weekly Villanovan, although I haven't the slightest idea what kind soul is responsible for sending it to me. Perhaps the Observer could help me? I do not know anyone connected with Villanova in any way, so naturally my weekly VILLANOVAN is a pleasant surprise. Incidentally, delivery might be a bit more prompt if the paper were addressed to Bethlehem instead of Easton. But thanks to an unknown benefactor, anyway.

Just one more point: the gals are all gaga over the photo of one John Donahue printed not long ago. Is he really as smooth as said picture indicates?

Yours in Admiration,
M. D. B.

P. S. Huzzah for the Wildcats.

There you have it, the first fan mail yet to come to the Observer. We'll be glad to receive more (provided it is as pleasant!).

Christmas is almost here, all of which reminds us that the first lap of the school year comes to an end within the week.

A lot of things have happened this year, things which never happened at Villanova. First and foremost was the success of the Football team. But don't let that blind you to the fact that other things have also been happening. Slowly, but surely, the extra-curricular life of the students has been more and more enriched. Study clubs in science and in the humanities have made their appearance. The Freshmen, after all the scolding we've done, are after all not a bad collection of lads.

The first third of the school year has passed into eternity. The crowded days of the Fall have returned to their Maker, God. As He gave those days to us, so did He take them from us. When we return, after New Year's Day, God is going to give us many more days.

Accept our apologies for the "cute" little cut which Editor Joe Toland put at the head of our column last week. We have, of course, protested. Maybe it is still there. If it is, double apologies.

Had we known that the Observer was to be found peering through a telescope (with Rosemont just across the tracks), we'd never have written the column.

CHRISTMAS at VILLANOVA

This Being the Result of Santa's Visit to College

By JAMES P. TOFANI

With the Christmas holidays rapidly approaching, the campus gives every indication of the Yuletide spirit as the students scurry back and forth seeking their loaned ties and other paraphernalia which were accidentally (?) picked up by fellow-students. Vacation time is on the way.

It seems very strange to this correspondent that everyone around the campus is in a friendly and jovial mood. Could it, by any chance, be due to the impending Christmas Day and the inevitable gifts which are given at this time.

Your writer gets sentimenital at this time of the year and I wish to extend greetings and here are some of the gifts I believe good old Santa Claus should leave here at Villanova:

Rev. Fr. Stanford—Continued success in the many lines of endeavor in which he is the pursuant.

Fr. Boyle—A bigger and better band to keep step with the upward surge of our football team.

Fr. Mahoney—May he never cease recounting his amusing incidences and humorous jokes.

Fr. McKee—A winning Intra-Mural team. (No offense, Father.)

Prof. Dougherty—Hoping he continues his enlightening stories on his many experiences while with the marines.

"Clipper" Smith—Two tackles and a better team, if it is humanly possible, despite no "bowl" bids this year.

"Al" Severance—May Kris Kringle drop two good officials in his stocking, so as to ease his mind. Also, good luck on the toughest schedule in basketball history.

To the Seniors—Good luck on their last social function, the Belle Air Ball.

To the Juniors—The best Junior Prom the college has ever witnessed. (We know you can do it.)

To the Sophomores—Trusting Saint Nick forgets easily your difference with the Frosh this year.

To the Freshmen—Patience.

Tom Kennedy—A few additions to the circulation staff in your stocking. You really need them.

Andy Conte—More subscripitions to the VILLANOVAN.

Harry McGlade—A large notebook for the addresses of his many acquaintances, particularly Helen.

Jack Tole—A little red book for Mary's address.

Varieties

XMAS: From the spires of Manhattan to the shores of Honolulu, dance bands and merrymakers will be heard heralding the New Year over the networks in gala programs broadcast on New Year's Eve, from 11 P. M. to 4 A. M. Crowds will carry their welcome of another year over the microphone as midnight rolls across the country. At midnight in New York, Paul Douglass will resume his post in the Paramount Theatre at Times Square and describe the throng pushing its way through the heart of the theatrical district. After the midtown horn-blowing the next hour will be filled by the music of Benny Goodman, Cab Calloway and Eddie Duchin from various night spots. As midnight reaches Chicago, microphones will pick up celebrating tunes in the Loop district of Frankie Masters and Orrin Tucker. A shift back to New York will pick up the music of Richard Himber and George Hall. Then out to Rocky Mountain section, thence to Hollywood Blvd. and Vine Sts., and a windup in Honolulu. This itinerary is through the courtesy of CBS. Personally, if tradition means anything, I won't hear these ozonations. The vapor about that time is pretty thick, I mean the vapor of the ethyl nature. You get what I mean.

ATMOSPHERE: Are you broke and poverty stricken? Fine. Then let's all attend the "Poverty Dance" at Rosemont College (for girls) on January 7, 1938. It's the first Friday after the holiday. All you need is some old clothes, an old date and a jit pack of dopesticks, and then you're all set. Make it a bum's rush for tickets. They can be had in the VILLANOVAN office.

RETURN: "The King of Jazz," the world-renqwned Paul Whiteman will return to the Columbia network on Friday, December 31, for an extended series of popular music programs under the sponsorship of Chesterfield cigarettes. Maestro Whiteman will replace Alice Faye's songs and Hal Kemp's orchestra.

ICE CREAM CONE PROM: It's a little early to be thinking of Proms here at Villanova, but we take this opportunity to give Villanova a real idea of what a real prom can be like . . . if you have the dough. Elsa Maxwell promised Princeton she'd put on a prom that they wouldn't forget in ten years. And it isn't likely that they will forget it. For staid, swanky Princeton never saw anything like it before, and the chances are no other university or college town in the nation had ever been treated to the kind of party that the celebrated Miss Maxwell threw when she arrived in Princeton Friday, Nov. 19 to put on the Tiger's annual college prom. Try to picture a college prom, especially at Princeton, where there wasn't so much as a drop of liquor and where the desire for it had suddenly vanished into thin air. And try again to picture President Harold Willis Dodds and some 1,000 college boys and their very best girls eating ice cream cones and coming back for more—then you have a pretty good idea of what Elsa did at "Old Nassau." It was not only the "soberes:" prom in college memory but the most frolicsome and star-studded spectacle as well. And if that isn't showmanship then Elsa's willing to step down and try her hand at housecleaning and selling dresses. Miss Maxwell began the party with a dinner at the beautifully appointed Nassau Tavern, traditional Princeton eating place. About 11 P. M. everybody assembled in the College Gymnasium where, in a festive setting of orange and black, the night was dedicated to the "Big Apple." Count Basie and his colored orchestra and the Princeton Tiger undergraduate band alternately provided music. Then, at 4 A. M., Richard Himber took over the music assignments. Fifteen Big Appiers, led by Arthur Murray in person, gave an exhibition of modern dancing in cowboy attire. Sheila Barrett mimicked a lot of famous people and Cliff Webb did a few turns. And all thru it everybody kept eating ice cream cones and li(c)king them.

UNCERTAIN FATE: Camel's Cigarettes hasn't decided whether it wants to pick up its option on "Jack Oakie's College." The present contract expires on January 4. They are inclined to retain the Benny Goodman half of the Tuesday night hour but would like to get away from having the Packard show as opposition. If our memory serves us correctly this is Jack's second year on the radio with his college. We noticed from the very beginning of the program that there was a lack of rapid fire speech on the part of the faculty and the guest students. It seems a pity to lose such a swell comedian as Oakie, especially since he is noted for his ability to ad lib. At the present time R. J. Reynolds is conducting a popularity survey to determine their next move. And if it proves to be favorable the Oakie half will be moved to the NBC network with a program similar to the Lucky Strike setup of "Your Hit Parade."

POLL: The Senior Prom will be held this year some time in February. In an effort to get a census of opinion as to just what the best orchestras are in the estimation of the student body, this column is conducting an orchestra poll. The ballots will be placed in convenient places over the campus to make the voting a simple matter. All you have to do is to give the three highest ranking orchestras in your judgment, sign your name and school and return to the ballot box or the VILLANOVAN office. We're serious about this poll and we want you to be serious, too. Voting begins immediately after the vacation.

This column takes this occasion to apologize for the remark made concerning Horace Heidt's rendition of our "Hail Villanova." We did not mean the remark the way most readers interpreted it. Sorry, Horace.

Introducing—

By JOE SANBORN

WE have a bone to pick with our editor. For about two months now we have been asking him to let us run off a biography about a campus celeb—and then he goes and gives us this guy to write about. We wouldn't mind at all but this carrot top has about six million achievements to his credit — and, incidentally, it took us about two weeks of running around the grounds to find them out. Well, we might as well get started.

J. PAUL SKELLY

James Paul Skelly, and we all call him Paul, or, if you wish, J. P., and we never put an "e" before the "y," was born in Lima (of all places), Pa., in the month of September, 1916. Isn't that the beginning of the Indian Summer? If it is it explains that inimitable war whoop. Look, we're getting all mixed up—well, if you prefer, you can call it his verbal variation of the Harlem pastime. So, to go back a couple of words, getting out the slide rule we find in a jiffy that Paul is about one and 20 years of age—you see, the slide rule says 210, and being wary of decimals we just hazard the guess that it comes after the one. That's about all we can say about the circumstances of his birth, except that he had that red hair when he came. After two years of elementary schooling our Paul decided to be an immigrant, whence the journey from Lima to Philadelphia, you know, one country to another.

Product of West Catholic

Being a bit cautious of foxy feminine fancies even at the tender age of 14, the kid matriculated at the West Philadelphia Catholic High School for Boys, where he consistently starred in dramatics and the like while pursuing a science course. It seems that on Lincoln's buffday, one year, Paul thrilled the morning assembly to tears with a heart-breaking rendition of that gentleman's Gettysburg Address — can't you just picture him expressively tossing his lanky limbs to and fro? We can't either, to tell the truth, but you get the point.

Well, now's it's time for college Paul — and what college in these United States do you think best for higher learning? Why, Paul! Isn't that awful! And he went to Notre Dame. But, my dear chums, time will tell. And now Paul goes to Villanova. Goody, Goody. This was way back in his sophomore year that Paul traded horses in the middle of the stream — and when he first came into our class we didn't know what to make of him — strangely enough, we still don't know. But that reminds us of his favorite hobby.

Now Paul is a full - fledged college boy — naturally we all want to know what he does. Paul's first love, and this didn't really begin in college, was a young lady of ebony complexion whom he affectionately called Dolly. Many times the two of them cantered o'er the fields carrying all the trophies in their class. To this day he remembers her as the best little mare that ever trotted under his saddle. That was smart, J. P. is an excellent horseman, with enough ribbons and trophies on the hall table to start a yacht club.

Phi Kappa Pi President

As the copesetic president of Villanova's Phi Kappa Pi, James (the same guy — we just don't want to get monotonous) is an astute elbow-bender (what's that?), politician of the usual type, party-tosser deluxe, loyal Villanova Booster, anti-C. I. O., and deeply interested in improving the national highway situation.

The last - mentioned item is his pet topic when it comes to writing for the "Engineer," and, incidentally, the only topic . . . etc. And then that party - tosser - deluxe statement up above — well, once upon a time Paul and company decided that the boys should sort of celebrate a football game victory. To make a long story short, everything went very well until near the end of the evening's festivities — when lo and behold! something broke! Anyway, he still goes around trying to collect donations for the broken bowl. Umm, we're all curious.

Last year Paul chairmaned the Junior Dinner Dance, and, as usual, brought it through admirably. He's on almost every committee we ever heard tell of—and as we glance over at his Roman features we notice he's getting tired of looking at us—and that is our cue—so we'll sign off now—and if you ever need a good civil engineer just give J. P. a call.

ENGINEERING FRAT APPOINTS CARROLL BANQUET CHAIRMAN

William Burns Chosen to Head Initiation Group; Committees Selected

James Paul Skelly, president of Phi Kappa Pi, yesterday announced the several appointments to the committees for the initiation and banquet of the fraternity at the meeting held at 11:5 A. M. in the amphitheatre of Mendel Hall.

The initiation committee will be headed by William Burns, senior electrical engineer. His committee is composed of John Parker, Robert Strong, Edward Ritti, John Kurek and William Kunberger.

Edward Carroll was appointed chairman of the banquet committee by Skelly, and will be assisted by Charles Barrett, John Sherman and John Scelaus.

Simons Leads Membership

Under John L. Simons, senior chemical engineer, the membership committee will attempt to lay aside precedent and install new and more rigid requirements for applicants. Each applicant, as a part of Simons' tentative plans, will be subjected to a private audience before the fraternity. This interview, as it were, will decide the eligibility of every prospective member. Simons will have Joseph Rosbert, John Linsley, James Carroll, and John Hallihan to assist him.

The final committee appointed by President Skelly is the Decoration committee. This group will take charge of decorating the dining hall appropriately for the occasion. Senior chemical engineer John B. Rhoads will head this phase of the annual ceremonies. Rhoads will have as his assistants William Maritz, Fred Welty, Frank O'Connell and Ferdinand Stackel.

The discussion which held major prominence last week, that concerning the purchase of pins, again came up when the members chosen to take a census of opinion voiced their results.

Holy Name Hears Tommy Lovett

lanova's mighty team and the consequent lack of support by the Faculty and football-mad fans, Mr. Lovett pointed out the comparative lack of spirit on the part of the Villanova Alumni. He remarked that time and time again letters have come to him criticising the lax graduates. "It is their fault," he claimed, "that Villanova does not have a better crowd at games. When you graduate remember that your school and football team are still important to you and are dependent upon your support."

As an example of the perfect alumnus "Tommy" cited Bill Connelly who can be remembered as the alumnus who dedicated the Pre-Temple game program to the college.

In closing the speaker praised "Clipper" Smith and "Vince" McNally for the treatment accorded the sports writers by the coaches.

"Danger—do not touch" was a warning marked on a small metal container shipped by Railway Express. It was unusual in appearance, but more unusual to the Railway Expressman. The container had to be handled with the utmost care. It contained five healthy electric eels being shipped from the New York Aquarium to Philadelphia capable of generating a current up to 300 volts. No matter what material would be used for the container, a jolt would be given to the one who touched it.

Number C-5818 Predicts Season In June Letter

Eastern Pen Inmate Says "Undefeated" in Epistle to Father Farley

Prisoner C-5818, serving 70 to 140 years in the Eastern State Penitentiary, predicted Villanova's undefeated football season last June 16. This was learned in a letter addressed to the Very Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O.S.A., president of the college, by Rev. Bernard C. Farley, chaplain of the penitentiary.

Addressing the letter to Fr. Farley with the admonition, "Do not open until October the 1st, 1937," the prisoner declared that the Wildcats would go through the season undefeated and added he would not offer any alibis if his opinion proved incorrect.

The letter follows:

June 16th, 1937
Tuesday Morning
10 A. M.

Dear Father:

A little reminder—

Villanova's football team to go thru the 1937 season undefeated. And I may add that "Clipper" Smith's boys from out the Main Line face one of the hardest schedules in its school's history.

Respectfully,
C-5818.

P.S.—Will not offer any alibis.

SEMINAR ENDS THIS THURSDAY EVENING

The final program of the Music Seminar for the present year will be concluded on this Thursday evening. The program will contain two masterpieces of classical music: Dance Macabre by Saint Saens, and the Firebird by Strawvinsky.

These two pieces are of unusual merit, and will be enjoyed by all those who enjoy music of the lighter vein. The Dance Macabre possesses a very light trend and the musical rhythm trips along as a fairy dance. Firebird has a simular rhythm, but is as the name depicts, a spirited piece.

WITH THE APPOINTMENT of Ruggerio Flocco as swimming coach, Villanova's chances for a successful season became much brighter. Up until last week, when Flocco assumed the duties of swim mentor, the boys had been practicing among themselves for a schedule that has some of the strongest teams in the country. Tomorrow afternoon the Penn splashers are met in Hutchinson Pool. It is sincerely hoped by the student body and all interested in Villanova sports that the boys co-operate with their new mentor and bring home a victory over the Quakers. Success, Coach Flocco, in your endeavors throughout the coming season. The student body of Villanova is with you.

Extremely anxious to put on an Intraumral Show that will surpass all past boxing exhibitions, Coach Ray Gadsby issues an urgent call for more candidates to turn out to participate in this annual boxing carnival. The fact is well known that there are many good athletes on the campus who can engage in athletic competition and whose contributions would be greatly appreciated.

Reasons for the apparent lack of interest are not known but it is hoped that a sudden change will manifest itself so that Villanova College may enhance its Intercollegiate status in fistic fandom. Men affiliated with the administration of the Intramural program are doing their part and their efforts should be rewarded by the subsequent response of activity and effort on the part of those individuals who are capable of making an event of this sort a success.

Facilities are provided for those wishing to work out and Gadsby, with the aid of various ring veterans, is willing to spend time with these aspirants to improve their art of self defense, so that the Intramural spectacle will be one indicator of the method in which the Wildcats carry out their events.

—V—

John McKenna and Artie Raimo were mentioned on the Collier's honor list for All-America selections. This is the first recognition that these boys have received outside the school, and it is to be deplored that they, along with some of the other members of the team, have not been given the credit they deserve. Especially lacking in the matter of recognizing the ability of Villanova players is Coach Andy Kerr, of Colgate, who has much to do concerning the choosing of the Eastern team which plays New Year's Day at Kezar Stadium in San Francisco. Kerr also neglected Johnny Wysocki in selecting his All-Eastern team. After Wysocki had made several All-American teams, sly Andy considers him unworthy of mention for sectional honors. However, the students and friends of Villanova can reward the seniors who have given their best for three years by voting for them in the choosing of the All-Star game who will play the professional team next September. Remember them when the ballots come out.

THREE 1937 RIVALS CERTAIN OPPONENTS ON 1938 GRID CARD

Auburn and Manhattan Games Definite; Temple Meeting a Fixture

MAY FACE TIGERS IN N. Y.

By TOM O'MAHONEY

Although the 1938 football schedule has not yet been completed, Coach "Clipper" Smith today revealed that at least two of Villanova's '37 foes would be repeaters on the Main Line grid menu. The Main Line Head Man stated that both Auburn and Manhattan will be met next year—and that there is a team named Temple whom the Blue will probably play again.

Sites and Dates Indefinite

While the dates and sites of the games with the Tigers and the Kelly Green have not yet been definitely decided, Mr. Smith indicated that Auburn has expressed willingness to hold the tilt in Montgomery, Alabama, in that city's recently completed Civic Stadium. Auburn has faced an almost similar problem to that encountered by Villanova in the matter of local fan interest. The University of Alabama monopolized the state's football following in past years, forcing the Plainsmen from the tiny village of Auburn to take to the road in order to build up athletic prestige. But apparently all this has changed now, and, Southern fans having become interested in seeing the Tigers perform. The school's authorities now wish to schedule ranking teams for games in Montgomery. If, however, the parties cannot agree to play in the South, there is a

FLOCCO SELECTED TO COACH TANKMEN

Holds Many Diving Honors; Will Assume Duties at Once for Penn Meet

With the announcement of the appointment of Ruggerio Flocco as new swimming coach, Villanova's hopes for a successful season sky-rocketed.

Not only has Villanova secured a man who has made quite a name for himself in the realm of aquatic sports, but who also has proved himself an instructor by his competent work the last two summers at Manhattan Beach in teaching the fundamentals of diving. His ability as a coach, coupled with fine material, should make for a powerful team.

West Philadelphia High Alumnus

The new coach first won fame while he attended West Philadelphia High when he won the Public High diving championship. He is a graduate of West Chester State Teachers College and at the present time is a senior at the Philadelphia College of Osteopathy. His greatest heights were reached while representing the Penn A. Passing And Fumbling Of Buck Add To Mirthful Side Of Grid Banquet

Olivar to Mellus to Nye Play Thrown For Big Loss When Latter Fails to Come Through In the Pinch

By JOHN L. SIMONS

Passing of the buck by John Mellus and Jordan Olivar and fumbling of said buck by Franny Nye highlighted the annual football dinner given last Tuesday night for Clipper Smith and his valiant warriors. The occasion of the buck passing came about when the award for service to the team was jointly given to Mellus and Olivar.

Roar For Speech

That started the fun. Everybody in the place immediately roared for a speech. The boys both shied away, but finally silent John pushed Ollie up to the mike. No sooner was Ollie there, when he called John and passed the buck to him. And John as usual was reluctant to speak and after a very few words he tried to get Frannie Nye to talk. But the reliable Mr. Nye fumbled at this point, and the festivities came to an end.

The evening was replete with varied entertainment of high class supplied by the Villanova Glee Club and some good night club stuff by 20th Century, Benny the Bum's and De Gorgue's Cafe, and a great number of humorous anecdotes.

To Vince McNally, goes the palm for the best crack of the evening. As he got up to talk, Vince took a look around at the assembled multitude, then turned to the Clipper and remarked, "This is the biggest crowd we've had all year, isn't it, Clipper?"

Then there was Ross Irwin, emcee from Benny the Bum's, who couldn't find the stage. Finally Marty Gill sent out an S. O. S. for the lad, and through the combined efforts of the Bellevue management and the alumni he was located. But he wasn't the only one who got lost. Several members of the Glee Club started wandering through the hotel's stately halls and blundered into a room where a group of society damsels were practicing for the recent Assembly. That almost wrecked the singers' performance, as their manager had an awful time getting them back to the ballroom.

The autograph hounds were out in great numbers, and the footballers had great difficulty digesting their victuals so persistent were these hero worshippers. John Wysocki especially had a rough evening of it, though nobody was far behind.

"Hurrah For Villanova"

The inevitable inebriated gentleman was around. This particular gent saved his coup de grace till the end of Clipper's talk. Clipper had been introducing the squad members and was getting down to the bottom of the list, when he was rudely interrupted by loud

Baltimore Coach Provides Excitement by Smashing Time Clock in Rage

MONTGOMERY A STANDOUT

By JOSEPH McDADE

Overcoming its first half lethargy, a sluggish Villanova quintet, by virtue of several quick scoring sprees, outclassed a highly touted Baltimore University team to the tune of 39-22, last Wednesday in the Main Line Field House. Winning their second game in as many starts, the Blue showed sporadic flashes of brilliance but more often lapsed into sub-par play due to poor passing and worse shooting.

Game Slow and Rough

Starting slowly, the game assumed touch football tactics with much bodily contact on both sides. "Duke" Duzminski, duplicating his feat of scoring the first field goal in the Rider fray, put the 'Cats in the lead after several minutes of play with a nice lay-up shot. Johnny Krutulis augmented this with a free shot that gave them a 3-0 lead. Ed Palvino, of the invaders, then sank a long shot to put his team in the scoring column and his tally from the penalty stripe evened the count.

Jim Montgomery sank the first of six field goals with one of his patent "screw-ball" shots while diminutive Mike Lazorchak dropped in a beautiful set shot to raise the 'Cats lead to 8-3. The game continued in slow fashion with the referees quick to whistle, invoking the jeers of a near capacity crowd. A late spurt by the Maroon and White which netted them two field goals and a foul brought them up

DUFFY APPOINTED LEADER OF BOXERS

Selected as Captain of 1938 Squad, Oliver Volpe to Manage Ringmen

Coupled up with the daily workouts of the fistic squad comes word that Bill Duffy, sensational 145-pounder, has been appointed to captain the Wildcats throughout the coming intercollegiate schedule.

This appointment was warranted in every respect for Duffy attracted much attention in last year's bouts not only because of his display of fine pugilistic ability, but also because of his ring generalship and top-notch sportsmanship.

Natural Leader

Well-liked by all members on the squad and on the campus, Duffy possesses all those characteristics which insure Villanova fans of an inspiring and courageous leader. Duffy has set the example for a leader ever since he reported for the squad last season. Bill is most energetic in his workouts and has been willing to devote his time to teammates to give them pointers concerning their troubles in practice.

Along with this announcement, Coach Ray Gadsby also stated that Oliver Volpe, a senior and a leading student in the School of Education, has been appointed to the position of senior manager. Volpe has been affiliated with the box-

William Burns Chosen to Head Initiation Group; Committees Selected

James Paul Skelly, president of Phi Kappa Pi, yesterday announced the several appointments to the committees for the initiation and banquet of the fraternity at the meeting held at 11: 5 A. M. in the amphitheatre of Mendel Hall.

The initiation committee will be headed by William Burns, senior electrical engineer. His committee is composed of John Parker, Robert Strong, Edward Ritti, John Kurek and William Kunburger.

Edward Carroll was appointed chairman of the banquet committee by Skelly, and will be assisted by Charles Barrett, John Sherman and John Scelaus.

Simons Leads Membership

Under John L. Simons, senior chemical engineer, the membership committee will attempt to lay aside precedent and install new and more rigid requirements for applicants. Each applicant, as a part of Simons' tentative plans, will be subjected to a private audience before the fraternity. This interview, as it were, will decide the eligibility of every prospective member. Simons will have Joseph Rosbert, John Linsley, James Carroll, and John Hallihan to assist him.

The final committee appointed by President Skelly is the Decoration committee. This group will take charge of decorating the dining hall appropriately for the occasion. Senior chemical engineer John B. Rhoads will head this phase of the annual ceremonies. Rhoads will have as his assistants William Martz, Fred Welty, Frank O'Connell and Ferdinand Stackel.

The discussion which held major prominence last week, that concerning the purchase of pins, again came up when the members chosen to take a census of opinion voiced their results.

Jim Montgomery sank the first of six field goals with one of his patent "screw-ball" shots while diminutive Mike Lazorchak dropped in a beautiful set shot to raise the 'Cats lead to 8-3. The game continued in slow fashion with the referees quick to whistle, invoking the jeers of a near capacity crowd. A late spurt by the Maroon and White which netted them two field goals and a foul brought them up

Coupled up with the daily workouts of the fistic squad comes word that Bill Duffy, sensational 145-pounder, has been appointed to captain the Wildcats throughout the coming intercollegiate schedule.

This appointment was warranted in every respect for Duffy attracted much attention in last year's bouts not only because of his display of fine pugilistic ability, but also because of his ring generalship and top-notch sportsmanship.

Natural Leader

Well-liked by all members on the squad and on the campus, Duffy possesses all those characteristics which insure Villanova fans of an inspiring and courageous leader. Duffy has set the example for a leader ever since he reported for the squad last season. Bill is most energetic in his workouts and has been willing to devote his time to teammates to give them pointers concerning the r troubles in practice.

Along with this announcement, Coach Ray Gadsby also stated that Oliver Volpe, a senior and a leading student in the School of Education, has been appointed to the position of [illegible] manager. Volpe has been affiliated with the box-

Fedigan Takes First Half Court Diadem

GOUMY AND TOTIN STAR AS GIGOLOS BEAT MENDEL FIVE

Former's Basket in Last Twenty Seconds Decides Mural Contest

Exhibiting a devastating attack led by Ted Goumy, the Fedigan Gigolos captured the first half Intramural Basketball crown by defeating the Mendel Day - Hops, 29-27, last Monday night at the Alumni Hall gymnasium. The contest was not decided until the last two seconds of play when Goumy drilled the ball through the net from mid-court.

Title at Stake

When the two teams took the court, it was with the full knowledge that the winners would capture the coveted gonfalon. The Day-Hops, because of a surprise beating received from Father McKee's Austinites, had been relegated to a first place tie with the Fedigan tossers, who had been beaten by the Travelers in their only previous encounter.

Scoring was at a premium during the first half and after the lead see-sawed back and forth for the greater part of the time, the Gigolos went out in front shortly before the half and held it for the remainder of the period. Thorne was the only Mendel performer able to puncture the cords with any regularity, but his markers were more than offset by the brilliant Goumy, who chalked up seven points in this half. Conte and O'Connell also contributed double deckers to the Gigolos' cause in this half. As a result of this rather curtailed scoring, Fedigan led 11-8 going into the last half.

Day-Hops Rally

Then the fireworks broke loose with the triumvirate of Day-Hop stars, Joe Beittenmiller, Dan O'Connor, and Dan Keating, turning on the pressure and taking the lead. Among them they rolled up seven baskets and three fouls, which was almost enough to bring them victory. However, the Gigolos, after being momentarily stunned by this sudden outburst of point-making, rallied and regained the lead as a result of Mike Totin's sensational shots. This was short-lived, for the Train and Trolley boys came back to score several more times and knot the score. At this juncture, Goumy made his telling shot and the first half championship rested in Fedigan Hall.

Play was at fever heat all through the contest and especially in the second half. Several times play was halted to separate pugilistically inclined basketeers. . . . For Father Vrana's boys Ted Goumy was the whole show. Last year's Austinite rustled the cords for no less than 13 counters, most of them coming at crucial times. . . . Beittenmiller led the Day-Hop scoring with eight digits, while Keating and Thorne each grabbed themselves seven. . . . Austin's representatives finished in third place. Rather a sorry showing for a quintet with their potentialities.

possibility that the game may be shifted to New York City.

Since the time that Chick Meehan left the Hall of Fame campus of New York University for the verdant pastures and impressive Gothic architecture of Manhattan's acres in Riverdale, the Jasper mentor has been trying to engage a nearby stadium for the Green's home games. To date he has been forced to use Ebbets Field in Brooklyn, which, though a fine stadium, is far, far from Manhattan College, and equally far from the majority of Jasper followers. To remedy this situation, Meehan has tried using Randall's Island Stadium, but his ultimate goal seems to be Yankee Stadium. It is here that he hopes to hold the Villanova game on the Saturday after Thanksgiving, if an agreement with N. Y. U., which holds an option on the field, can be reached. Such a move would do much to improve attendance at Manhattan games, in the opinion of Gotham observers.

The remainder of the schedule is still in the tentative stage, but according to the customary rumors floating about the campus the coming season will see many new teams on the Wildcat card. In fact, if these rumors are true, Temple will be the only other '37 opponent to return to the Main Liners' diet. Mr. Smith, however, refused to name any of the 'Cats' possible 1938 foes at this time, although promising to keep the VILLANOVAN informed of developments as they occur.

FROSH COURTMEN BEAT NORRISTOWN IN ONE-SIDED FRAY

Conquer Visiting Y. M. C. A. Club by 36-19 for Second Victory

Keeping pace with their varsity brethren, the Villanova frosh made it two in a row at the expense of Ray Boyson's Norristown Y. M. C. A. five, 36-19, in the preliminary tussle last Wednesday evening.

Blue Takes Lead

Holding their opponents to 13 points in the first half, the Blue yearlings leaped out in front and were never headed, and finished the initial canto with a nine point advantage. Frank Morris, who totaled 12 points for the entire game, led the scoring throughout the initial canto.

The second period saw the Main Line youngsters assert themselves more thoroughly by limiting the losers to a mere six markers while adding 14 to their already commanding lead. As in the first half, Morris showed the way in scoring, being pressed closely by Charlie Yund and Mike Zionkevicz. "Reds" Murphy played a good floor game, as did Tim Brosnan and Tony Vinci.

Leading scorer for the victors was Morris, followed by Zionkevicz with eight points and Yund with six. Murphy tallied four points by means of free throws, accounting for all the winners' points in that department.

For the Norristown club, Bob Strimel, plucky one-armed athlete, starred, being second in scoring and playing a fine floor game. Kinghinger led the visitors with two field goals and a free throw for five points. The victory augurs well for the freshmen, as the Y club is composed of many former collegiate and scholastic stars.

ing team for the past two years and is well informed concerning the managerial duties of the squad.

Volpe will be well assisted by Bill Romanowski, sophomore student in the School of Education, and varsity football member, whose appointment was likewise released by the boxing mentor. Bill was of considerable value last season and his presence will be well appreciated by squad members this year.

Aspirants for the team have been working out for the last week under the careful eye of Gadsby and several of the newcomers look as promising candidates. Among the boys shaping up and showing promise are Francis Hiney and John Nujunis. Hiney is a candidate for the 125-pound division, and Nujunis, freshman football halfback, is a strong contender for the 165 class.

HERE and THERE

By TOM CARBINE

"Red" Smith, of the Philadelphia Record, must be psychic. We don't care though, because he has saved us a lot of work. It was our intention, too, to summarize all the selections for All-American and find out what men were most generally picked.

Quoting now from Smith: "This department has explored the flies and sifted the choices of the Associated Press, United Press, International News, Colliers, New York Sun and World-Telegram, the Andy Kerr—Frank Thomas—Gus Dorais—Jimmy Phelan group of coaches, the Pop Warner—Howard Jones—Frank Thomas — Bob Zuppke board, and the Newspaper Enterprise Association.

It adds up to this:

Ends: Wysocki, Villanova; Bershak, North Carolina.

Tackles: Matisi, Pittsburgh; Franco, Fordham.

Guards: Routt, Texas A. & M.; Monsky, Alabama.

Center: Wojciehowicz, Fordham. Backs: Frank, Yale; Goldberg, Pitt; White, Colorado; Chapman, California.

Villanova's principle interest is in the end selection. In this connection we would also like to mention that Wysocki was picked by the Paramount News and Fox Movietone News, which helps all the more to reflect on the alibi proffered by one of the leading national weeklies, that its selections were often based on two or three years performance in picking the 1937 All-American team.

Now that swimming has proved itself at Villanova we learn that a coach has been procured. For the last few years the direction of swimming teams has been in the hands of men who either lack practical experience, or, more important, interest. In the case of the new mentor we know from personal experience that both of the above names are present. As a diver, Ruggerio Flocco had only a few in this section of the country who were more adept than he. Furthermore his long experience around pools and champion swimmers has given him a thorough knowledge of speed swimming.

With the material at his disposal we feel certain that Coach Flocco will make a good showing in this first professional job.

With the rule change regarding the center jump after each field goal the basketball players have had to run up and down the floor so much that there is some talk of taking up marathon running in the off-season. If this would prove too strenuous we would suggest a job as a floor walker. Just the psychological effect of having boards passing under foot seems like a good idea.

An opinion expressed by Russell C. "Jing" Johnson, president of the Middle Atlantic States Collegiate Athletic Conference to the effect that collegiate football games lose much of their color when transferred to the atmosphere of a bleak ball park, seems to strike a sympathetic chord. As a Wildcat fan who has witnessed Villanova football games for the last ten years expresses it, "When you can't see the disappointment in the other stand after Villanova has scored another touchdown, half the fun is gone. And what's the use of getting all excited over a long run when the people next to you are left in gloom by the same feat that thrills you." With this in mind perhaps the athletic authorities will see a way to rekindle the spirit and increase the gate receipts of next season's few home games in a football stadium even if they have to rent Franklin field, which wouldn't be a bad idea.

Editor's Note: Lest we be accused of forgetting some of the gridders on the Los Angeles trip, we are continuing Mr. Burke's column of last week, and presenting that part of it which was necessarily cut because of the limitations of space.

Upon seeing the sunny lands of California, Mike Sabrinsky stated that it compared favorably with the coal regions . . . Will Rogers smoked a loaded cigar to its fullest extent, reaping the benefits to be gained from such practice, and when Harv Buck heard of it he laughed uproariously until he had reached the potent part of the explosive cigaret which he had grubbed from Matt Kuber (believe it or not) . . . Mr. Missar was a bit of a hero, saving one of the conductors from being left out in the wilds of the Western United States by opening one of the Pullman doors which had been inadvertently locked, leaving said conductor with no way of entering the train . . . The people out there compared his son Joe's legs to the redwood trees.

Charlie Loughlin, Villanova's oneman cheering section, announced some of the cheers over the P. A. system . . . Jordan Olivar found the trip profitable in more ways than one . . . The boys thought the Ambassador Hotel was quite the thing, some staying up until quite late in the Cocoanut Grove looking for movie stars . . . A watched kettle never boils, so they were disappointed, of course . . . That crowd of twenty-five thousand looked a bit lost in the 105,000 capacity Coliseum . . . The Loyola band, a huge affair, played swing music throughout the game and rendered, quite appropriately, "The Basin Street Blues" when we were 19 points ahead . . .. If you think the drum major from Bucknell was nice, you should have seen Loyola's . . . blonde, lissom, terrific . . . Ask "Charlie Chan" Guckenberger . . . Jack Earle claimed he did nothing on the trip, but we know better . . . The boys had Tommy Lovett, the sportswriter, traveling around in a pair of bedroom slippers for a few days while out on the coast . . . They hid his regular brogans on the train . . . The hotfoot was one of the main forms of recreation and amusement on the journey . . . Ask any of the boys . . . Incidentally, one of those making the trip went all the way out and back using adhesive tape as a shoe sole. A good advertisement for the tape company . . . "Six thousand miles across the U. S. and back on our tape" . . . "The Gay Divorcee" . . . A good picture . . . Ask some of the boys . . . 'Nuff said.

handclapping and shouting from the balcony. Clipper was knocked a bit off stride but got going again, only to have "Hurrah for Villanova" come rolling down in that same barroom baritone voice. Wide awake, Villanova's coach, with a wide grin on his face, cracked, "Hold it a minute, Buddy. I've only got two more." That held the old boy, and Clipper went on to finish.

The occasion wouldn't have been complete without a cheer from Charlie Loughlin, incomparable leatherlung. And Charlie, always willing to oblige, let loose a thunderous roar for the team to ring down the curtain on a time of grand entertainment.

BLUE FIVE TO MEET THREE FOES IN GYM

Albright, Moravian and St. John's Invade 'Cats' Field House This Week

Coach Al Severance's undefeated basketballers face three opponents this week, as Albright, Moravian and St. John's, of Annapolis, take turns putting their names under the "Visitors" column on the Field House scoreboard. Albright plays here tonight, Moravian on Thursday, and St. John's, Friday. The Varsity games start at 8:30 P. M.

All Hard-fighting Clubs

Albright, beaten by the 'Cats last year, comes to the Main Line gym with every intention of gaining revenge for that setback. Moravian, a team new to the Blue schedule, is an unknown quantity in these parts, although they are reputed to be a very good little club.

St. John's, of Annapolis, coached by "Dutch" Letz, opens their 1937-'38 season at Villanova, as the Johnnies bring up a team well grounded in fundamentals and eager for a crack at the Wildcats. Their last year's record stamped them as a team to be feared, for, after losing the first six games, the Marylanders went on to win eleven out of the next 12 to finish second in the Collegiate League.

After playing the Blue, St. John's go on to Philadelphia to meet Temple, Saturday night, and will probably have their fill of Quaker City basketball when the week-end is over. Outstanding on the Annapolis squad are Johnny Lambros, All - Maryland forward and high scorer of the team; Len DeLisio, All-Maryland guard; Jim Rowe, six - foot center; and fast Bill Ross, described as being one of the best ball handlers and play makers seen in Maryland in years, at forward. A man who had never played basketball before entering college, Nelson Shawn, will probably be seen at the other guard.

A possible starting line-up for the 'Cats will include Jim Montgomery, Johnny Krutulis, Art Vigilante, "Duke" Duzminski and Mike Lazorchak, with Lou Dubino, Bill Sinnott, and Lloyd Rice slated to see plenty of action.

prove a blessing to the Wildcat tankmen, for in the past the team has been handicapped by poor performance on the spring board. Not that the squad was devoid of material, but the courageous boys were sadly in need of expert advice in the finer points of diving.

Confines Self To Coaching

The new mentor is the first coach not a member of the faculty. Both of his predecessors, Marty Gill and Arthur Mathieu, imparted intellectual as well as swimming knowledge.

Coach Flocco was on hand to witness the informal meet with Penn A. C., last Thursday night, and was very favorably impressed with the performance of Charlie Barrett, sophomore sprint man, who has the making of a star tankman with a little coaching and a great amount of hard work.

The new coach has his work cut out for him. Tomorrow afternoon the 'Cats will meet the powerful natators of the University of Pennsylvania. It will mark the first time the two schools have ever met in swimming. In order that the team, as well as the coach may make a successful debut, Flocco is determined to leave no stone unturned.

Villanova Quintet Beats Baltimore to within four points of the home team as the first half ended.

The second half started out as a repetition of the first, but after a time out to collect their faces, the Villanova lads performed as a unit for the first time in the game. Successive baskets by Montgomery, Lazorchek and Krutulis, and a foul by Vigilante, doubled the Blue's lead over the invaders at 22-11. A rally by Baltimore netted them only three points.

Play was temporarily halted when Coach Jimmy Ogden, in a fit of anger over the referee's decision, hurled the timepiece to the floor. The play in question was a goal by Mike Lazorchek from a spot where Odgen thought was outside. After the temperamental outburst, play became very sloppy.

Paced by Montgomery and Lazorchek, Severance's men ran up a 31-15 advantage when an entirely new team went into action. Their inexperience was evident from the start as the Baltimore lads proceeded to rack up six points while holding the seconds to a pair of free throws, to boost the score to 33-21. Afraid of losing the game in the last few minutes, Coach Severance rushed the starting five back into the fray. They stopped the visitors with one point while Vigilante, Lazorchek, and the irrespressible Montgomery racked up two pointers. The game ended with the Blue raining shots at the Maroon backboard.

Jim Montgomery was outstanding with his classy ball-handling and topped all scorers with his 13 points. Mike Lazorchek was second with eight counters, and also played a good defensive game. Duzmineki, forced out early via the personal foul route, was held to five points. Captain Art Vigilante not only had two double headers and a singleton, but also exhibited a splendid brand of defensive play. Johnny Krutulis provided the most spectacular play of the game when he dribbled through the entire opposition and dropped in a beautiful one hand shot with plenty of "English" on it. The team as a whole lacked coordination as a defensive and offensive unit and showed a lack of experience on the part of the reserves.

For the losers, Ed Pulvino was high with six points while Harv Shillingford, a former Lower Merion luminary, was next with five. Pellino and Reisinger were in the spotlight defensively.

WYSOCKI, MELLUS ON CATHOLIC TEAM

Board Also Honors Stopper, Stoviak, Missar and Raimo

Amid the conglomeration of "All-America" teams which annually clutter up the sports pages comes this one which ought to be of some interest to Catholic fans. This "All-Catholic All-America" was picked by Coach Paddy Driscoll, of Marquette, in conjunction with the coaches of Catholic colleges and universities through America.

Gain Recognition

Two Villanova players who are attaining national recognition in other "Alls" were picked on the first team—John Wysocki and his mate, John Mellus. Andy Stopper was picked as halfback on the second team, while Joe Missar, Ray Stoviak and "Jeep" Raimo came in for honorable mention.

Seven men from the East dominate the first string team with Fordham and Villanova having two apiece. The remaining five men are representative of schools spread all over the country. This fact seems to attest to the supremacy of the East in this season's football.

would begin negotiations in the very near future.

This is the earliest date that a Junior Promenade chairman has been selected at Villanova. President Mackowski stated that this irregular course of action was adopted by the officers of the Class of 1939 to enable the chairman ample time to contact the various bands that will be eligible for the dance on May 6. A committee to assist him with the greater part of the work will be appointed immediately after the Christmas holidays.

Success Predicted

Contrary to the usual procedure, the Prom Chairman and his committee will not be left to shoulder all the burden of the presentation of this highlighting event of the extensive Junior Week program planned for May this year. Plans have been under way since the election of the present officers of the class last Spring. Each member of the class has taken it upon himself to turn in at various times to the class officers any and all ides on the object of presenting successful social activities.

President Mackowski when asked to express his sentiments in regard to the outcome of this social affair stated, "With such co-operation as has been shown by class members in the past, it is impossible to conceive of the Junior Promenade being anything but the success it is hoped to be." The Class of 1939 enjoyed tremendous success at its presentation of the Sophomore Cotillion in 1936.

An announcement emanating from William Leahy, chairman of the Junior Ring Committee, states that Junior rings will be distributed in Room 215 at 1 o'clock during the remainder of the week. Further orders and negotiations in this regard will be made through the Ring Committee.

ORCHESTRA SECURED FOR POVERTY DANCE

Bob Boutilier's Kenmore Band Signed to Supply Rhythms

"The Christian Front" advances its preparations for the Poverty Dance, which it is holding on January 14, 1938, in the Rosemont College gymnasium. This novelty dance will be one important event before January examinations.

"The Kenmore Orchestra," under the direction of Bob Boutillier, has been obtained to furnish the music for the evening. This popular orchestra has played at various colleges in the nearby district; University of Pennsylvania, Penn State, Princeton and Jefferson Medical College.

The orchestra contains 12 members; ten pieces, a leader and female vocalist. They have several novelty arrangements and should prove highly entertaining.

Catholic Colleges of the surrounding districts have extended their efforts in making the Poverty Dance a success. Rosemont, Immaculata, Mt. St. Joseph, St. Joseph Colleges have co-operated with the various committees in selling tickets and advertising the dance.

Originality is the keynote of the affair. Novel customs, dances and songs will be climaxed with the giving of a prize to the best "poverty stricken custom."

Adopted studious thoughts and ways,
He crammed his Turret Top with fact,
But never learned how one should act.

GM GOOD WEATHER

It's simple arithmetic that the more cars General Motors sells the greater this organization grows. And the solid fact back of that growth is this: General Motors cars must continually offer more in terms of extra value to win those sales. Preparations Concluded For First Poverty Dance

Rosemont College Gymnasium Scene of Unique Event Friday Night; Kenmore Orchestra to Furnish Melodies at Function

MANY ATTRACTIONS WILL BE FEATURED

By MURRAY ZEALOR

Rosemont College gymnasium Friday evening, January 14, 1938, will be the scene of one of the most unique dances to have its origin on the Villanova College campus. At that time "The Christian Front" will present its "Poverty Dance."

Lacking the brilliance of evening attire, neatly pressed suits, and highly polished shoes, everyone is to attend in his or her most "poverty stricken" costume.

Girls' Colleges "Excited"

The idea has been sensational, and has been greeted by the surrounding girls' colleges as something "tremendously exciting."

Rosemont College girls have purchased 150 subscriptions.

All of the Catholic girls colleges have co-operated in an almost equal capacity. Mt. Saint Joseph and Immaculata College have assured the dance committee that they shall be well represented.

The music is to be furnished by the Kenmore Orchestra which enjoys much popularity in college circles. Its 12 members, ten pieces, a leader, and a female vocalist assure an enjoyable evening of dancing and pleasant recreation.

Not without importance are the prizes to be awarded to that couple who wear the most wretched poverty stricken costume. There will also be many other attractions and surprises.

The dance is being held under the auspices of the Christian Front, a local organization for the propagation of social justice. Tickets may be obtained at the VILLANOVAN office.

TICKETS ON SALE

Tickets to the Christian Front Poverty Dance are obtainable at the VILLANOVAN office, 119 Mendel Hall. Anyone intending to secure tickets are urged to purchase them at their earliest convenience.

Tickets may also be purchased in the Christian Front Office or from Joseph O'Loughlin, Chairman.

BLAZER CHAIRMAN

MARTIN B. KASSELL

Martin B. Kassell Chosen Junior Blazer Chairman

Science Student Selected by President Donald Mackowski; Committee Members to Supplement Head Will Be Named Next Week

COMMITTEE MEETS

There will be a very important meeting of the entire Belle Air Ball Committee today in Room 104, Mendel Hall at 1 P. M. Chairman Louis Biester requests that all members attend this gathering as it is most likely that the selection of the orchestra for the ball will be made.

EARLY SELECTION PRESAGES SUCCESS

By JAMES COLLINS

Martin B. Kassell, student in the Science School, was appointed Chairman of the Blazer Committee, it was announced today by Donald Mackowski, Junior Class President. Although an early start of class activities was promised by Mackowski, such an early appointment was not generally foreseen. This is however, an invaluable advantage and speaks highly of the spirit of co-operation prevailing among members of the Junior Class. Although the other appointees of the committee will not be selected until a little later, many of the preliminary details can be handled by the chairman.

Chose Blazer Style

The purpose of the committee will be to make arrangements for the continuance of one of Villanova's many traditions, the purchasing of Blazers by the third year men. These are either dark blue or white in color and bear on the breast pocket the class numerals, above which is the official insignia of the college. Besides being desirable for their attractiveness as fitting attire for informal occasions, these sport coats serve as distinguishing characteristics of the members of the Class of 1939. That they are of no little importance is quite clear in that they are featured at a special dance—The Blazer Ball. Aside from a social standpoint, the purpose of this event is to give to the Juniors an opportunity of formally displaying their blazers to the student body.

It is readily seen that the various duties of the Blazer Committee — to determine the style and material of the coats as desired by the majority of the class, to secure bids from different companies, and to

ROSEMONT COMBINES WITH BELLE MASQUE FOR 'WINTERSET'

Girls' College Agrees to Take Feminine Parts in Spring Show

"Winterset," by Maxwell Anderson, called by "Stage" magazine the best play of the year 35-36, has been definitely chosen as the Belle Masque annual Spring production Books containing the script have been distributed and are being studied by about forty aspirants. Tryouts will be held at the end of this month.

Rosemont Will Participate

Arrangements have been completed between authorities of Villanova and Rosemont Colleges so that the female roles in the cast will be taken by students of Rosemont College. Miss Ruth Haskell, a debating and dramatic coach, and Mies Rita Wolfington, president of the Rosemont Dramatic Society, have received books and interested Rosemont students are preparing the parts.

Here on the campus committees to take care of important phases of the production are now being formed. Anyone interested in the business end, promotion, technical work, make-up, scenery manufacture, or any point in the production should drop in at Room 120, Mendel Hall.

Vincent J. La Braska is entering a miniature model of the scene for the play in the contest at the Art Alliance.

This play is based on the Sacco-Vanzetti case. It is the story of an unjustly condemned man struggling against the bitter realization that nothing can be done to right it; yet if he cannot prove his father's innocence, his soul will never rest.

College Year Book Inaugurates Plan To Secure Patrons

Belle Aire Changes Former Policies to Insure Increased Circulation

Recent plans for the Belle Aire, Villanova annual year book, as formulated by the Circulation Staff of that publication center about a desire to increase the circulation over that of former years.

Additional Copies Available

Heretofore, one copy has been distributed to each student enrolled at the college, and also to a small number of patrons. It is the purpose of the current staff to innovate a method by which the members of the student body may secure more than a single copy if so desired. Also, many alumni and other individuals interested in the college have expressed a desire to obtain copies of the Belle Aire.

Patron System Instituted

A patron system will be instituted this year to enable such persons desiring more than one copy to do so. Any individual, either a member of the student body, faculty, or otherwise interested in the college, by becoming a patron of the Belle Aire will receive either an additional or single copy of that annual.

Patronage may be obtained with the subscription of a sum of $5.00 or more to the year book. A special list of whose names will be published in the annual.

This method will indirectly increase the circulation of the Belle Aire. It will also enable the staff to prepare and publish a larger and finer year-book. Subscriptions

REV. JOSEPH BOYLE ORIGINATES NEW SYMPHONIC BAND

Proposed Musical Novelty Group Will Entertain at Immaculata

Interest of regular college band members has resulted in the formation of a symphonic band, the first at Villanova. Under the capable directorship of Paul G. Teel, who was responsible for the fine performances of the Football Band, the new musical venture should prove interesting and popular. Rev. Joseph I. Boyle, O.S.A., band moderator, is arranging for the music to be selected and played.

Herbert Medley Planned

Victor Herbert will be the first composer to have his works interpreted by the Symphonic Band. The selections will be arranged in a medley of Victor Herbert's most popular numbers and will be worthwhile hearing especially since the late Mr. Herbert lived in a generation so close to the present generation. As the season gets in full swing, other popular classics and selections from operas and operettas will be offered. A joint addition to the Symphonic Band will be the added services of the Glee Club, which will have several numbers ready for the coming season. Mr. Teel is also directing the Glee Club.

To Play at Immaculata

During the early part of Lenten, the first performance will be given. Following the Premiere of the band, there will be an outside engagement which will be at Immaculata. This is a request from the students and faculty who had heard about the successful football band.

As a whole, the band is slightly smaller, but the best musicians have forwarded their talents and with the interest already displayed should produce a top-notch group of musicians able to bring out the beauty to be found in the classics.

Announcements regarding the dates for the concert nights and engagements will be found in future editions of the VILLANOVAN.

Honor Ratings In Commerce School For First Quarter Released By Dean

Belated Standings Reveal Robert Connolly as Ranking Senior; Klein, Lind and O'Leary Lead Other Classes

According to the recent announcement by Rev. Joseph Bartley, O. S. A., Dean, the ranking senior in the Commerce and Finance school for the first quarter is Robert Connolly. He is followed by Francis McGarrity, Louis Biester, William Slaughter and William Bowker in that order.

In the Junior Class, A. Norman Klein leads the field for the first quarter, but he is closely pressed by Hugh L. McGlincy and Donald Mackowski who rank second and third respectively. After the leaders come George Bishop in fourth position followed by Thomas De Rosa.

John Lind heads the list of the 73 sophomores, and John Bader is in the runner-up position. Frank Pimpinella and Joseph Desmond are tied for third place, while Ronnie Tornwall is fifth.

O'Leary Leads Frosh

Cornelius O'Leary is the leader of the 108 freshmen who are enrolled in the C & F school, and he is followed by the football-playing Steven Chisick. In third place Harold Kunsman and Raymond Valentine are deadlocked, while Anthony Vinci, Walter Brown and John Webster complete the honor list with a triple tie for fifth place.

The ratings were made according to honor points. For every "A" that a student receives he is given four honor points. For a "B" he is given one point, while a "C" adds nothing to the score. On the negative side of the ledger, a "D" results in one point being subtracted from the score, and an "F" deprives the student of four honor points.

TSK! DOWN EASTERNERS EVEN PRINT 'VILLANOVER'

Word Written On Launching Program As New Englanders Pronounce It

The launching of the "M. S. Villanova" at the Bath Shipyards in Maine some time ago was attended by singing of many patriotic, popular and college songs. For the event the O'Hara and Sons Company had special programs printed with the Villanova "Wildcat March" and "Hail Villanova" on the back page.

Believing in euphonic excellence the New Englanders, knowing the many weaknesses of the Massachusetts and Maine lingo, had the song printed not as "Hail Villanova" but "Hail VillanovER" so that the Down Easterners could pronounce it as written.

LUDLOW PLAN TOPIC AT RELATIONS CLUB

International Group Discusses Paper Read by Joseph Bongiovanni

In keeping with its practice of discussing subjects of current interest, the International Relations Club of the college had as its topic the recent Ludlow Amendment to the United States Constitution which a few weeks ago President Roosevelt stated was not in accord with democratic principles of this nation.

Discusses Question

Joseph N. Bongiovanni, sophomore in the school of Arts, who presented a summary of the merits of this amendment, took exception to President Roosevelt's statement, pointing out that according to the popular conception of democratic government the sovereignty is vested in the people governed, and that in matters of national concern the people should be allowed to express their desire directly as was demonstrated in the repeal of the 18th Amendment.

It was pointed out that since the people now vote on practically all other matters of policy this further power given to them would be but a step in the application of the problems in practice.

Following reading of the paper a lively discussion was held with Rev. William J. Lanney, O. S. A. and Mr. Bongiovanni taking the lead.

In the discussion the leading arguments of exponents of dictatorship that American standards being what they are, such inefficient form of government as Democracy is satisfactory, but in a na-would begin negotiations in the very near future.

This is the earliest date that a Junior Promenade chairman has been selected at Villanova. President Mackowski stated that this special course of action was adopted by the Directors of the Club in order to enable the chairman ample time to contact the talent best that will be engaged for the dance on May 6. A committee to assist him with the general plans this week will be appointed immediately after the Christmas holidays.

Success Predicted

Contrary to the usual procedure the Prom Chairman and his committee will not be left to shoulder all the burden of the present duties of the highlighting event of the season. Junior Week program started for May this year. Since we have under way some of the duties of the Chairman of the Last Spring Ball event, it is the class has elected to assist in such a manner since in the class officers are vested the object of presenting successful social activities.

President Mackowski stated he felt to express his sentiments regard to the outcome of this social year stated, "With such co-operation as has been shown by class members in the past it is impossible to conceive of the Junior Prom result being anything but the success it is hoped to be." The Class of 1939 enjoyed tremendous success at its presentation of the Sophomore Cotillion in 1936.

An announcement concerning from William Leahy, chairman of the Junior Ring Committee, states that Junior rings will be distributed in Room 215 at 1 o'clock during the remainder of the week. Further orders and negotiations in this regard will be made through the Ring Committee.

ORCHESTRA SECURED FOR POVERTY DANCE

Bob Boutilier's Kenmore Band Signed to Supply Rhythms

"The Christian Front" advances its preparations for the Poverty Dance, which it is holding on January 14, 1938, in the Rosemont College gymnasium. This novelty dance will be one important event before January examinations.

"The Kenmore Orchestra," under the direction of Bob Boutillier, has been obtained to furnish the music for the evening. This popular orchestra has played at various colleges in the nearby district; University of Pennsylvania, Penn State, Princeton and Jefferson Medical College.

The orchestra contains 12 members; ten pieces, a leader and female vocalist. They have several novelty arrangements and should prove highly entertaining.

Catholic Colleges of the surrounding districts have extended their efforts in making the Poverty Dance a success. Rosemont, Immaculata, Mt. St. Joseph, St. Joseph Colleges have co-operated with the various committees in selling tickets and advertising the dance.

Originality is the keynote of the affair. Novel customs, dances and songs will be climaxed with the giving of a prize to the best "poverty stricken custom."

This poor old grad, in his freshman daze,
Adopted studious thoughts and ways,
He crammed his Turret Top with fact,
But never learned how one should act.

BALDWIN TRIP MADE BY A. S. C. E. GROUP

Civil Engineers Visit Locomotive Works; Additional Tours Contemplated by Society

The American Society of Civil Engineers of Villanova College took a trip through the Baldwin Locomotive Works recently under the guidance of Professor T. J. McCormick.

The members witnessed the production of the locomotive from the earliest stage to the finished product. The group also viewed ten locomotives which were built for China, but which haven't left the plant yet because of the difficulties over there.

An interesting and instructive speech was delivered by Mr. Monroe, efficiency expert of the plant, after the tour through the plant. He brought out many technical features which proved beneficial to the society members.

Due to the many members in attendance, the group was divided into three parties. Each party was guided by an official of the plant. In this manner, the guide had more time to devote to each division and the members could grasp more readily the topic under discussion.

More Trips Considered

A great deal of the credit for the success of the tour is attributable to Cyril Daly, junior student, who is chairman of the trip committee. Though this is the first trip this year by this group, there are many under consideration for the near future.

These various trips which are to be taken will greatly enhance the technical knowledge of the students if the first trip can be taken as a criterion. Much benefit will be derived by the members from these trips.

LUDLOW PLAN TOPIC AT RELATIONS CLUB

International Group Discusses Paper Read by Joseph Bongiovanni

In keeping with its practice of discussing subjects of current interest, the International Relations Club of the college had as its topic the recent Ludlow Amendment to the United States Constitution which a few weeks ago President Roosevelt stated was not in accord with democratic principles of this nation.

Discusses Question

Joseph N. Bongiovanni, sophomore in the school of Arts, who presented a summary of the merits of this amendment, took exception to President Roosevelt's statement, pointing out that according to the popular conception of democratic government the sovereignty is vested in the people governed, and that in matters of national concern the people should be allowed to express their desire directly as was demonstrated in the repeal of the 18th Amendment.

Following reading of the paper a lively discussion was held with Rev. William J. Lunney, O. S. A. and Mr. Bongiovanni taking the lead.

READING!

A MAN is largely a product of his environment. The ideas and concepts which inhabit a man's mind are not there at birth. They come to the intellect through the senses. That is, a man, by experience, builds up a storehouse of information, ideas, and concepts through his senses. He travels and observes, he reads, he studies, he attends lectures, he experiments in the laboratory, and so forth.

"Choose your company carefully" runs an ancient maxim. And by that is meant not only the women and men you pick for company, but also the books you read, the magazines you buy, the moving pictures you attend, and the school that you attend. "Choose your company carefully."

A wise man leaves nothing to chance. He knows that he has a certain amount of time to spend studying. He knows that the hours, the days, and the weeks pass into eternity all too fast. A wise man therefore plans to befriend only those persons who will make him a better man, spiritually or intellectually or physically. A wise man plans to read books and magazines which will enrich his life. A wise man allows not an idle moment in his life.

To many, such an existence is a boring manner of life. On the contrary, it is the most thrilling of all lives. For the wise man is an intellectual and spiritual adventurer. He wrestles with the problems of the world. He is a man, and as a man he wrestles with the problems of men.

Light conversation is necessary for sane mental health, certainly! But unless you also read and talk about serious, vital problems, you are missing the greatest part of life.

Scholars are not made over night. Catholic scholars are the product of long training, arduous labor, painful research. The Catholic student in a Catholic college who does not want to be a Catholic scholar is a liar. He is trying to pose as a Catholic scholar and remain an intellectual nit-wit.

To many Catholic students, education in a Catholic college consists in taking a number of required courses, passing a number of examinations, and then receiving in return a pretty diploma.

What a horrible misconception!

The man who conceives of education in that light is wasting his time, for the twenty or so textbooks which he uses during his college course could be just as well read at home. The real Catholic student does his necessary work, but he plans to do much more than that. He explores the world about him. He deepens his knowledge of his Faith by a careful examination of the best authorities. He is interested enough in his Church to discover what Catholic Action is, to learn what he should do about it. He even is man enough to plan a few hours of profitable reading for every week of the year.

A CHALLENGE

BELLE MASQUE is to be congratulated on its choice of the play announced in this issue's news columns. "Winterset," a drama of the twistings of human justice and the unconquerable soul of man, offers a real challenge to Villanova. It is a truly worthy successor to R. C. Sheriff's "Journey's End," highly praised by Philadelphia critics. Belle Masque has a big job on its hands. The only way to get the work done is to organize now and let the committees go to work. This Belle Masque is wisely doing.

Present requests for a revival of the Turf and Tinsel musical comedy aggregation is a worthy desire, but let us first put the Spring play on a firm footing. With the wonderful beginning made last year we are well on the way toward this objective.

Participation in or attendance at such dramas as Journey's End or Winterset is part of a college education. The efforts on the part of Belle Masque are an endeavor to raise the cultural level of the younger generation. Villanovans, do your part in this production so that you will enjoy the satisfaction that comes from a success that is the greater because of your efforts.

A production of this nature has a part for every student in the college. It will not take too much time, either. Choose some part in the work which fits the time at your disposal. Besides the actors there are committees for make-up, business, promotion, scenery making, stage work, and so on. There is a place in the work for you to co-operate. You are wanted.

THOUGHTFULNESS

MUCH of the evil existing in the world is not caused by wilful individuals, but by individuals who do not think of other people. We have many examples right here at Villanova: the fellow who throws the bowl of soup . . . and incidentally ruins Tom Jones' best suit. The fellow who leaves his room and slams his door with enough strength to make a 150-yard forward pass; the chap who insists on turning his radio on full blast at 11:20 P.M. . . . and then leaves the door open in order to prevent everyone else in his hall from going to sleep.

There are many little discomforts which the residents of the halls have to endure just because most of us refuse to think of the other fellow.

We could organize a "Think-of-the-other-fellow" week around here. But why do that? Let us all, each one of us, just try to be a little less noisy. Let us think of the fellow next door who is trying to study. Next time we pick up the old horn to give her a blast, think that for the one who wants to hear it, ninety-nine will tear their hair out during the poor performance of some piece of music which no one wants to hear.

What about it? Let's give the other fellows a break for a change. You can do it, you know, if you try.

ODDS and ENDS

By Tom O'Mahoney

Just to prove that we're no different than anyone else, we've made some, too. New Year's resolutions, of course. So you'll never again see mentioned in this column anything about Bucky Kane's gleaming smile; Jimmy Dwyer, even though he does pay us for notices; the Observer—he's an amateur, anyway —; Bob O'Brien and his Ugly Group; and, finally, we'll not keep up the pretense that Bud Lawrence hasn't taken a shower all year. Because it isn't true. We saw his bath towel.

Then, of course, there was the account of a Villanovan's ingenuity told us recently. It appears that a New York junior C & F answering to the interesting name "Moon" found himself in somewhat of a dilemma one week-end. In order to get out of a date he told the young lady that he had to return to school early and nearly fell over when the miss proposed to drive him to Penn Station. For he was due uptown to meet still another girl at the time the train left New York. Yes, readers, it was a case of two-timing. Upon being let out at one entrance of the station, our hero, bag in hand, made an authentic-looking dash for the train, only to deftly weave through the crowd out onto the street and into the Eighth Ave. subway to freedom. And the other date.

College Chatter

By Joe Alessandroni

EACH tick of the clock brings us closer to another year, marking at measured intervals the heights of success for some and the depths of defeat for others, as we foster each second as a symbol to be captured, or a meaningless moment of wasted endeavor to be recorded in the never aging diary of Father Time. Thus, time, the great American obsession has captured us again, and as culprits waiting for trial, we come before you seeking anew your judgment on our columns of wit (half), wisdom, news, and nonsense.

A college student was assigned a composition. Being a typical college student, and finding the press of social affairs did not allow time for the completion of this composition, he decided to borrow one left by obliging fraternity brothers of the past. The composition borrowed rated a "B," but after the student had recopied the work and turned it in, he received a mark of "A" with a notation by the professor which read: "It was always my opinion that this paper deserved an 'A' when I wrote it ten years ago."

"BUT my dear Mr. Marquette, my dear Doctor Marquette, my dear Judge Marquette, can't you see that the opinion rendered by the court in Hammer v. Dagenhart is substantially correspondent with that in P. D. Q. R. R. v. U. S.?" questioned Dr. Hartmann in class one day.

"Well, yes and no, Doctor Hartmann," replied the burly Marquette, "I disagree with the Court I think they made an error."

"Your authority, Mr. Marquette?" questioned the professor.

"Well, in the recent opinion of Chief Justice Marquette it was pointed out that the Court was in error when it held that the Federal government went beyond its powers in regulating intrastate commerce.

"Interesting, Judge Marquette. What is your reference?"

"Oh, that's easy. 27 Marquette 318. 1937. You can find it in any public library."

Oh, yes: We have an intellectual amongst us. It seemed that just before you-all went home on Christmas Tom O'Mahoney, our venerable colleague, received a book. It was discovered when one of the Observer G-Men heard about it down in the Post Office. Now that Tom has a book, he can get a bookcase. He might even read it, for that matter.

While we are speaking about Tom O'Mahoney, we might mention that Bill Way, Freshman day hop, just heard about the O. and E. column. We'll bet he isn't the only one who has had his happiness ruined.

Hail, a new milkman. Starting Monday last, one of Mendel Hall's residents (one of the lads up in the garret—or should we say pent house?) was seen stalking around the campus at 5 A. M. in the morning. He said that he could hitch hike better at that time. . . .

So Danny O'Mahony is going out with 14 year old high school youngsters? Well, well . . . and they say he has two hairs on his chest. My, oh, my, oh, my!

Bill Sianott and Ray Manahan, No. 1 boosters of the North Jersey Club Christmas Dance, put the dance over in magnificent style. Every one had a swell time, a huge crowd attended, and every one said that they had never had a better time. Strangely, Bill and Manahan, No. 1 boosters of the dance as we said, blessed the dance with their absence.

Did their car freeze because, of lack of alcohol? But why bring that up. It's 1938 now!

You should have seen the load of PIC, LIFE, ESQUIRE and such that the porters in the various halls had to throw away during the holidays. Boy, they sure support the Catholic press around here!

Is everyone all set for the Poverty Dance at Rosemont this coming Friday evening. We hear that Joe Weber is wearing overalls. Alex G-Man Bell is wearing a painter's cap and a painter's suit, and we even hear that Tiny Malcolm is going in disguise. What a yolk.

We sure hope that the dance is going to be a big success, because THE CHRISTIAN FRONT is badly in need of funds. Things are so bad that Deverall has forced himself down to ten La Carona's a day now. Tough when the old editor has to go on starvation rations.

Anyhow, let's support the dance. From what we hear, unique decorations and rather novel refreshments are planned. Speaking of refreshments, any change is always welcome.

Examinations are only two weeks away. Now are the boys who wasted hours and hours of time last semester going to weep and wail. Now are the lads who said "tomorrow" going to start burning midnight oil.

The Observer wants to go "serious" for a spell, and make a few observations. It has always seemed to the Observer that most men, especially Freshmen, waste a great amount of time. They study, but because they never organize and plan their work, there is a tremendous amount of battling around every day. For those who have slipped since coming to Villanova, the Observer recommends that they sit down, tonight, and review the past few months. Draw up a schedule, a daily plan. Plan lessons ahead of time. Do your reading before, not after recitation. Plan to read an outside book every week. Plan to go to morning Mass and Communion. Plan a walk or two a week. Assign definite hours every day and night for study—and let nothing interfere with your studies.

Don't be like the fool who said: "If studies interfere with play, drop the studies." If you came to college to play, you made a mistake. It is an expensive way to play, and it is not being fair to the other fellows, to your professors, or to your parents.

Play square! Play ball! Buckle down today, outline your program for the next months, and then follow through. You'll be surprised to find that you not only work better, but your marks will improve considerably. The Observer speaks from experience, for the Observer has seen Freshmen of D rating pull themselves up to B and A averages only because they organized and planned their work. If business corporations and railroads ran their work the way you fellows run your studies, they wouldn't be working very long. What do you say?

We are glad to see that Joe Hines can lose our little game with such graciousness. Too bad some of our sports are so expensive, eh Joe?

Art Raimo is no slouch when it comes to that sort of thing.

ENGINEERS PREPARE FOR INITIATION OF INCOMING MEMBERS

Approaching Ceremony to Surpass All Previous Efforts of Group

Phi Kappa Pi held its first meeting after the holidays yesterday in Mendel Hall amphitheatre at 11:45 A. M. The most important item that came before the assembly was the date for the distribution of keys among the senior members of the fraternity. Unfortunately, thirty minutes of arguing pro and con between the two possible dates of the initiation and banquet as one and the dinner-dance as the other affected no definite decision. The next meeting of the fraternity will in all probability feature a continuance of these arguments.

It was announced by the sports department that the senior engineers defeated the juniors by a decisive margin, 46 to 37. O'Connor and Murphy were the vitalizing factors in the seniors' win.

Initiation Plans Made

Chairman of the Initiation William Burns announced that extensive plans have been formulated for the approaching ceremony. He and his committee will inaugurate several innovations in the line of procedure. By all reports this year's initiation promises to be one of humorous interest.

John L. Simons, chairman of the Membership Committee, also made an announcement, this to the effect that the blanks will be distributed among the freshmen and prospective members during this week. It was stated that the blanks must be filled in completely by the individual applicant and handed in to a member of the reception committee.

Varieties

GUSSER: With early predictions, the year 1938 promises to be a huge success as far as the show business is concerned. At present the public has shown a definite trend toward comedy and it suits the movie colony perfectly. Costs of productions of this type offer a low expense sheet and a big box office take. As to why the public's fancy has turned to comedy it can almost be definitely traced to Carole Lombard in the cinema "My Man Godfrey." Since then the desire of most stars has been to portray a comedy role. Now we find that Irene Dunn, Leslie Howard, Bette Davis, and others who specialized in serious characterizations have been cast in that category. We have even noticed that Greta Garbo has demanded a comedy for her next picture. But Miss Lombard reigns supreme and maintains her supremacy in her recent picture, "True Confession." In it Helen Bartlett (Miss Carole) had to tell lies. She did not always gain by lying; she often lost, but she had to tell lies because her way of seeing things made them so fascinating, so endlessly fecund in rich if fanciful possibilities.

Of "True Confession's" three leading stars, John Barrymore as the half maudlin, crazily cunning pariah has far the smallest part but handles it with such swagger that it threatens to eclipse his colleagues. Fred MacMurray is her husband. About Carole. She rode to her first real fame on Barrymore's shiny coattails in 1934 in "Twentieth Century." A later discovery besides being photogenic, that she was also a prime commedienne, pushed her into the big money brackets. Her present vogue starting with "My Man Godfrey" has elevated her to the biggest salary per picture ($150,000) of any female star. Her workmanlike interpretations of drunk scenes, as in "Nothing Sacred" are merely acting; she drinks nothing but beer. A good tennis player, she often plays with Alice Marble, ranked No. 1 in U. S. tennis and one of her best friends. On the set Carole Lombard is a hard worker, but is regarded as a "caution."

Because of the scar on her cheek she refuses to work with any cameraman except Ted Tetzlaff who can hide it. She frequently muffs her lines in the middle of a scene and throws one of the violently vituperative tantrums which have earned her the name of Hollywood's most efficient female cusser. Current Hollywood tattle tells the tale that she broke down in the middle of a scene in "True Confession," while there was a covey of Missouri sightseers on the set. She outdid herself in expressing her annoyance. A distraught assistant director scurried up waving his arms: "Please, Miss Lombard please! Remember there are ladies present."

PIE SHOPPE: Script makes most stars in comedy, originality very few. It has been my contention for the past three years that Villanova should reorganize its Turf and Tinsel Club and produce an annual comedy. Talent for acting and writing here is in ever plentiful supply as was evidenced by those who attended the "Amateur Night" before the Christmas holiday. For success in ad libbing a medal should be presented to Ross Arnold, '41. The Alumni Hall swing band was the most striking innovation ever to hit the campus, and the "Big Apple" act produced by Austin Hall was a riotous riot in hilarity. Why can't these little bits be produced into a show and call them if you will, "Pie Shoppe Brevities." For crisp humor in the Pie Shoppe that borders slightly on insanity I suggest that you join the sessions with such comedians as "Ming Toy" Ward, "Frozen Face" Urie, "Wit" Kryzwicki, "Koky" Caillet, "Schlepperman" Schwartz, and other half wits. Your ticket of admission is just your cup of coffee, and over nineteen.

WITHOUT THOUGHT: That time of the year when the telephone operators "hellos" are sweeter . . . her "wrong numbers" so delightful that you don't want the right ones. Understand that Metro is making a deal to produce "The Road to Mandalay." Why not write a detour to the thing make a short out of it? . . . We don't understand what all the fuss is about the Mae West broadcast. Personally, we found it just as bad as other programs.

ECONOMY: Don't clean your old clothes at least for another few days. They will come in handy at the "Poverty Dance" to be held at the Rosemont Gym this Friday nite. A choice is offered you — bring your date or join the stag line. Tickets may be obtained at Villanovan office. By yourself, one buck, with milady, two.

JITTERS: The only performers who apparently do not get jittery before the mike are non-professionals. They find themselves in a radio studio through some flickering circumstance, usually making their first and last radio performance. Guests on such programs as "We the People" come under that category, and their calmness constantly amazes those for whom movie and air entertainment is a business. Strange and nervous mannerisms afflict the stars as a rule shortly after they start their careers, and remain with the majority until they quit. An accomplished and unperturbed actress on the stage, Kitty Carlisle is one of the most nervous before the microphone, and tugs upon the petals of her evening gown's flowers until nothing is left except stems. Rudy Vallee keeps running his hand, like a knitting needle, through his hair; Phil Baker consistently hitches his trousers. Many actresses will tear a handkerchief to shreds during the broadcast, and Edward G. Robinson got so jumpy at the first rehearsal of "Big Town" program that he pulled the mike right off its stand, stood with it in his hands and looked wildly for help.

By JOE TOLAND

JOHN L. SIMONS

THE cool Summer night of August 27, 1918 was no different from any other Summer night in Washington, Pa., until a baby was born on a neighborhood farm. Little did the world know at that time that this chubby infant would someday become the pride of the little town of Lawndale in Philadelphia, the erstwhile pride of Northeast Catholic High School and finally the pride of the Villanova Class of '38. That squalling baby has been squalling ever since, and has been unquestionably chosen the noisiest and best natured individual of the Villanova campus. Yes, we mean our own John L. "Jake" Simons.

Although John was born while his parents were on a vacation, the young man lost no time in idleness. He moved immediately to the aforementioned Lawndale where he grew contentedly fat and chubby, until it was time for him to enroll as a first grader in Saint William's parochial school. Perhaps John's remaining robust is due in part to the fact that he had only to cross the street to go to school.

Skipped Two Grades

Being somewhat of an impetuous youth, our John soon tired of school and decided that he would finish St. William's before his time. Consequently he got down to work and put himself two years ahead by skipping two grades. Finding studying a bit boring, our hero turned his efforts to the assistance of the parish by enrolling as one of its altar boys. Those who know of Jake's propensity for smashing every reachable fragile article often wonder how he became chief altar boy without causing St. William's serious property damage. Perhaps this failure to destroy things can be explained by his activities on the baseball field where he excelled both at the bat and in making unusual noises behind the plate for the local Benner Athletic Club. What hindered Jake from becoming a big leaguer is beyond us for it was at the tender age of 14 that he performed with this quite excellent sandlot aggregation.

Finally Saint Williams' could contain our John no longer. In September, 1930 he enrolled together with some 600 other lads as a Freshman at Northeast High School in Philadelphia. For the first two years Jake was contented to keep his light under a bushel, only coming out upon the occasion of having his name on the school bulletin board four times a year for special excellence in scholastic achievement and upon the occasion of his being one of the singing cherubs in the Christmas plays of the school.

In the third year, however, Jake became more daring and added a few more extra-curricular activities to his list. Most any afternoon in Autumn, John could be seen out with the cross country team. No, no! Don't be alarmed. Our John was not running with the team but was taking care of its necessities in the capacity of manager.

Was Debater, Journalist

When not doing this his well known voice could be heard coming from the classroom used by the Brinson Debating society, or his gentle laugh would be audible to anyone near the office of the "Good News" magazine of the high school.

In the classroom Jake had no peer. Take it from your correspondent who spent the last two years in high school with him, that John was one of the smartest students he has ever seen. Every morning during these last two years Jake was swamped with requests to "see" his Latin and French and other homeworks. Jake's intelligence gained for him the Religion and Chemistry prizes of the school and the four year scholastic scholarship to Villanova.

Possibly the only thing that got Jake in trouble during his stay at North Catholic was his infectious laugh, now so familiar to Villanova students. Time and time again instructors ejected him from the class room because of his noisy expression of inexhaustible good humor.

Most Active Student

While only 16 Jake enrolled at Villanova in September of 1934. Finding that the Arts department offered nothing practical and discovering that there were already enough sane men on the campus Jake lost no time in enrolling in the School of Technology. Since then he has been one of the leaders in the field of his choice, Chemistry. Besides studying and winning his way into the hearts of all who meet him, our "carrot-topped" friend is the most active man on the campus. Besides participating in intra-murals Jake is an all-around Associate editor, filling that position on the VILLANOVAN and Engineer, as well as serving as College Editor on the Belle Air. To his credit Jake also has membership in the Glee Club, Sanctuary Society, Study Club, Music Club, Phi Kappa Pi and Chemistry Club. In his Sophomore year he was the class representative on the Student Council, and so well filled this position that he was elected to the presidency of the Junior Class.

Socially our John is also in the foreground. Perhaps that blonde Venus from Hallahan has something to do with it. Nevertheless, Jake is one of the best liked fellows on the campus and will always be remembered by those who know him as the most genial of companions, the smartest of students, and a very good friend, overlooking his unquestionable aptitude for breaking things—especially teacups and chandeliers.

What about it? Let's give the other fellows a break for a change. You can do it, you know, if you try.

By Tom O'Mahoney

Just to prove that we're no different than anyone else, we've made some, too. New Year's resolutions, of course. So you'll never again see mentioned in this column anything about Bucky Kane's gleaming smile; Jimmy Dwyer, even though he does pay us for notices; the Observer—he's an amateur, anyway —; Bob O'Brien and his Ugly Group; and, finally, we'll not keep up the pretense that Bud Lawrence hasn't taken a shower all year. Because it isn't true. We saw his bath towel.

Then, of course, there was the account of a Villanovan's ingenuity told us recently. It appears that a New York junior C & F answering to the interesting name "Moon" found himself in somewhat of a dilemma one week-end. In order to get out of a date he told the young lady that he had to return to school early and nearly fell over when the miss proposed to drive him to Penn Station. For he was due uptown to meet still another girl at the time the train left New York. Yes, readers, it was a case of two-timing. Upon being let out at one entrance of the station, our hero, bag in hand, made an authentic-looking dash for the train, only to deftly weave through the crowd out onto the street and into the Eighth Ave. subway to freedom. And the other date.

College Chatter

By Joe Alessandroni

EACH tick of the clock brings us closer to another year, marking at measured intervals the heights of success for some and the depths of defeat for others, as we foster each second as a symbol to be captured, or a meaningless moment of wasted endeavor to be recorded in the never aging diary of Father Time. Thus, time, the great American obsession has captured us again, and as culprits waiting for trial, we come before you seeking anew your judgment on our columns of wit (half), wisdom, news, and nonsense.

A college student was assigned a composition. Being a typical college student, and finding the press of social affairs did not allow time for the completion of this composition, he decided to borrow one left by obliging fraternity brothers of the past. The composition borrowed rated a "B," but after the student had recopied the work and turned it in, he received a mark of "A" with a notation by the professor which read: "It was always my opinion that this paper deserved an 'A' when I wrote it ten years ago."

"BUT my dear Mr. Marquette, my dear Doctor Marquette, my dear Judge Marquette, can't you see that the opinion rendered by the court in Hammer v. Dagenhart is substantially correspondent with that in P. D. Q. R. R. v. U. S.?" questioned Dr. Hartmann in class one day.

"Well, yes and no, Doctor Hartmann," replied the burly Marquette, "I disagree with the Court I think they made an error."

"Your authority, Mr. Marquette?" questioned the professor.

"Well, in the recent opinion of Chief Justice Marquette it was pointed out that the Court was in error when it held that the Federal government went beyond its powers in regulating intrastate commerce.

"Interesting. Judge Marquette. What is your reference?"

"Oh, that's easy. 27 Marquette 318. 1937. You can find it in any public library."

Oh, yes: We have an intellectual amongst us. It seemed that just before you-all went home on Christmas Tom O'Mahoney, our venerable colleague, received a book. It was discovered when one of the Observer G-Men heard about it down in the Post Office. Now that Tom has a book, he can get a bookcase. He might even read it, for that matter.

While we are speaking about Tom O'Mahoney, we might mention that Bill Way, Freshman day hop, just heard about the O. and E. column. We'll bet he isn't the only one who has had his happiness ruined.

Hail, a new milkman. Starting Monday last, one of Mendel Hall's residents (one of the lads up in the garret—or should we say pent house?) was seen stalking around the campus at 5 A. M. in the morning. He said that he could hitch hike better at that time. . . .

So Danny O'Mahony is going out with 14 year old high school youngsters? Well, well . . . and they say he has two hairs on his chest. My, oh, my, oh, my!

Bill Sinnott and Ray Manahan, No. 1 boosters of the North Jersey Club Christmas Dance, put the dance over in magnificent style. Every one had a swell time, a huge crowd attended, and every one said that they had never had a better time. Strangely, Bill and Manahan, No. 1 boosters of the dance as we said, blessed the dance with their absence.

Did their car freeze because, of lack of alcohol? But why bring that up. It's 1938 now!

You should have seen the load of PIC, LIFE, ESQUIRE and such that the porters in the various halls had to throw away during the holidays. Boy, they sure support the Catholic press around here!

Is everyone all set for the Poverty Dance at Rosemont this coming Friday evening. We hear that Joe Weber is wearing overalls. Alex G-Man Bell is wearing a painter's cap and a painter's suit, and we even hear that Tiny Malcolm is going in disguise. What a yolk.

We sure hope that the dance is going to be a big success, because THE CHRISTIAN FRONT is badly in need of funds. Things are so bad that Deverall has forced himself down to ten La Carona's a day now. Tough when the old editor has to go on starvation rations.

Anyhow, let's support the dance. From what we hear, unique decorations and rather novel refreshments are planned. Speaking of refreshments, any change is always welcome.

The Observer wants to go "serious" for a spell, and make a few observations. It has always seemed to the Observer that most men, especially Freshmen, waste a great amount of time. They study, but because they never organize and plan their work, there is a tremendous amount of battling around every day. For those who have slipped since coming to Villanova, the Observer recommends that they sit down, tonight, and review the past few months. Draw up a schedule, a daily plan. Plan lessons ahead of time. Do your reading before, not after recitation. Plan to read an outside book every week. Plan to go to morning Mass and Communion. Plan a walk or two a week. Assign definite hours every day and night for study—and let nothing interfere with your studies.

Don't be like the fool who said: "If studies interfere with play, drop the studies." If you came to college to play, you made a mistake. It is an expensive way to play, and it is not being fair to the other fellows, to your professors, or to your parents.

Play square! Play ball! Buckle down today, outline your program for the next months, and then follow through. You'll be surprised to find that you not only work better, but your marks will improve considerably. The Observer speaks from experience, for the Observer has seen Freshmen of D rating pull themselves up to B and A averages only because they organized and planned their work. If business corporations and railroads ran their work the way you fellows run your studies, they wouldn't be working very long. What do you say?

ENGINEERS PREPARE FOR INITIATION OF INCOMING MEMBERS

Phi Kappa Pi held its first meeting after the holidays yesterday in Mendel Hall amphitheatre at 11:45 A. M. The most important item that came before the assembly was the date for the distribution of keys among the senior members of the fraternity. Unfortunately, thirty minutes of arguing pro and con between the two possible dates of the initiation and banquet as one and the dinner-dance as the other affected no definite decision. The next meeting of the fraternity will in all probability feature a continuance of these arguments.

It was announced by the sports department that the senior engineers defeated the juniors by a decisive margin, 46 to 37. O'Connor and Murphy were the vitalizing factors in the seniors' win.

Initiation Plans Made

Chairman of the Initiation William Burns announced that extensive plans have been formulated for the approaching ceremony. He and his committee will inaugurate several innovations in the line of procedure. By all reports this year's initiation promises to be one of humorous interest.

John L. Simons, chairman of the Membership Committee, also made an announcement, this to the effect that the blanks will be distributed among the freshmen and prospective members during this week. It was stated that the blanks must be filled in completely by the individual applicant and handed in to a member of the reception committee.

Varieties

CUSSER: With early predictions, the year 1938 promises to be a huge success as far as the show business is concerned. At present the public has shown a definite trend toward comedy and it suits the movie colony perfectly. Costs of productions of this type offer a low expense sheet and a big box office take. As to why the public's fancy has turned to comedy it can almost be definitely traced to Carole Lombard in the cinema "My Man Godfrey." Since then the desire of most stars has been to portray a comedy role. Now we find that Irene Dunn, Leslie Howard, Bette Davis, and others who specialized in serious characterizations have been cast in that category. We have even noticed that Greta Garbo has demanded a comedy for her next picture. But Miss Lombard reigns supreme and maintains her supremacy in her recent picture, "True Confession." In it Helen Bartlett (Miss Carole) had to tell lies. She did not always gain by lying; she often lost, but she had to tell lies because her way of seeing things made them so fascinating, so endlessly fecund in rich if fanciful possibilities.

Of "True Confession's" three leading stars, John Barrymore as the half maudlin, crazily cunning pariah has far the smallest part but handles it with such swagger that it threatens to eclipse his colleagues. Fred MacMurray is her husband. About Carole. She rode to her first real fame on Barrymore's shiny coattails in 1934 in "Twentieth Century." A later discovery besides being photogenic, that she was also a prime commedienne, pushed her into the big money brackets. Her present vogue starting with "My Man Godfrey" has elevated her to the biggest salary per picture ($150,000) of any female star. Her workmanlike interpretations of drunk scenes, as in "Nothing Sacred" are merely acting; she drinks nothing but beer. A good tennis player, she often plays with Alice Marble, ranked No. 1 in U. S. tennis and one of her best friends. On the set Carole Lombard is a hard worker, but is regarded as a "caution."

Because of the scar on her cheek she refuses to work with any cameraman except Ted Tetzlaff who can hide it. She frequently muffs her lines in the middle of a scene and throws one of the violently vituperative tantrums which have earned her the name of Hollywood's most efficient female cusser. Current Hollywood tattle tells the tale that she broke down in the middle of a scene in "True Confession," while there was a covey of Missouri sightseers on the set. She outdid herself in expressing her annoyance. A distraught assistant director scurried up waving his arms: "Please, Miss Lombard please! Remember there are ladie present."

PIE SHOPPE: Script makes most stars in comedy, originality very few. It has been my contention for the past three years that Villanova should reorganize its Turf and Tinsel Club and produce an annual comedy. Talent for acting and writing here is ever plentiful as was evidenced by those who attended the "Amateur Night" before the Christmas holiday. For success in ad libbing a medal should be presented to Ross Arnold, '41. The Alumni Hall swing band was the most striking innovation ever to hit the campus, and the "Big Apple" act produced by Austin Hall was a riotous riot in hilarity. Why can't these little bits be produced into a show and call them if you will, "Pie Shoppe Brevities." For crisp humor in the Pie Shoppe that borders slightly on insanity I suggest that you join the sessions with such comedians as "Ming Toy" Ward, "Frozen Face" Urie, "Wit" Kryzwicki, "Koky" Gallifet, "Schlepperman" Schwartz, and other half wits. Your ticket of admission is just your cup of coffee, and over nineteen.

WITHOUT THOUGHT: That time of the year when the telephone operators "hellos" are sweeter . . . her "wrong numbers" so delightful that you don't want the right ones. Understand that Metro is making a deal to produce "The Road to Mandalay." Why not write a detour to the thing make a short out of it? . . . We don't understand what all the fuss is about the Mae West broadcast. Personally, we found it just as bad as other programs.

ECONOMY: Don't clean your old clothes at least for another few days. They will come in handy at the "Poverty Dance" to be held at the Rosemont Gym this Friday nite. A choice is offered you — bring your date or join the stag line. Tickets may be obtained at Villanovan office. By yourself, one buck, with milady, two.

JITTERS: The only performers who apparently do not get jittery before the mike are non-professionals. They find themselves in a radio studio through some flickering circumstance, usually making their first and last radio performance. Guests on such programs as "We the People" come under that category, and their calmness constantly amazes those for whom movie and air entertainment is a business. Strange and nervous mannerisms afflict the stars as a rule shortly after they start their careers, and remain with the majority until they quit. An accomplished and unperturbed actress on the stage, Kitty Carlisle is one of the most nervous before the microphone, and tugs upon the petals of her evening gown's flowers until nothing is left except stems. Rudy Vallee keeps running his hand, like a knitting needle, through his hair; Phil Baker consistently hitches his trousers. Many actresses will tear a handkerchief to shreds during the broadcast, and Edward G. Robinson got so jumpy at the first rehearsal of "Big Town" program that he pulled the mike right off its stand, stood with it in his hands and looked wildly for help.

JOHN L. SIMONS

By JOE TOLAND

THE cool Summer night of August 27, 1918 was no different from any other Summer night in Washington, Pa., until a baby was born on a neighborhood farm. Little did the world know at that time that this chubby infant would someday become the pride of the little town of Lawndale in Philadelphia, the erstwhile pride of Northeast Catholic High School and finally the pride of the Villanova Class of '38. That squalling baby has been squalling ever since, and has been unquestionably chosen the noisiest and best natured individual of the Villanova campus. Yes, we mean our own John L. "Jake" Simons.

Although John was born while his parents were on a vacation, the young man lost no time in idleness. He moved immediately to the aforementioned Lawndale where he grew contentedly fat and chubby, until it was time for him to enroll as a first grader in Saint William's parochial school. Perhaps John's remaining robust is due in part to the fact that he had only to cross the street to go to school.

Skipped Two Grades

Being somewhat of an impetuous youth, our John soon tired of school and decided that he would finish St. William's before his time. Consequently he got down to work and put himself two years ahead by skipping two grades. Finding studying a bit boring, our hero turned his efforts to the assistance of the parish by enrolling as one of its altar boys. Those who know of Jake's propensity for smashing every reachable fragile article often wonder how he became chief altar boy without causing St. William's serious property damage. Perhaps this failure to destroy things can be explained by his activities on the baseball field where he excelled both at the bat and in making unusual noises behind the plate for the local Benner Athletic Club. What hindered Jake from becoming a big leaguer is beyond us for it was at the tender age of 14 that he performed with this quite excellent sandlot aggregation.

Finally Saint Williams' could contain our John no longer. In September, 1930 he enrolled together with some 600 other lads as a Freshman at Northeast High School in Philadelphia. For the first two years Jake was contented to keep his light under a bushel, only coming out upon the occasion of having his name on the school bulletin board four times a year for special excellence in scholastic achievement and upon the occasion of his being one of the singing cherubs in the Christmas plays of the school.

In the third year, however, Jake became more daring and added a few more extra-curricular activities to his list. Most any afternoon in Autumn, John could be seen out with the cross country team. No, no! Don't be alarmed. Our John was not running with the team but was taking care of its necessities in the capacity of manager.

Was Debater, Journalist

When not doing this his well known voice could be heard coming from the classroom used by the Brisson Debating society, or his gentle laugh would be audible to anyone near the office of the "Good News" magazine of the high school.

In the classroom Jake had no peer. Take it from your correspondent who spent the last two years in high school with him, that John was one of the smartest students he has ever seen. Every morning during these last two years Jake was swamped with requests to "see" his Latin and French and other homeworks. Jake's intelligence gained for him the Religion and Chemistry prizes of the school and the four year scholastic scholarship to Villanova.

Possibly the only thing that got Jake in trouble during his stay at North Catholic was his infectious laugh, now so familiar to Villanova students. Time and time again instructors ejected him from the class room because of his noisy expression of inexhaustible good humor.

Most Active Student

While only 16 Jake enrolled at Villanova in September of 1934. Finding that the Arts department offered nothing practical and discovering that there were already enough sane men on the campus Jake lost no time in enrolling in the School of Technology. Since then he has been one of the leaders in the field of his choice, Chemistry. Besides studying and winning his way into the hearts of all who meet him, our "carrot-topped" friend is the most active man on the campus. Besides participating in intra-murals Jake is an all-around Associate editor, filling that position on the VILLANOVAN and Engineer, as well as serving as College Editor on the Belle Air. To his credit Jake also has membership in the Glee Club, Sanctuary Society, Study Club, Music Club, Phi Kappa Pi and Chemistry Club. In his Sophomore year he was the class representative on the Student Council, and so well filled this position that he was elected to the presidency of the Junior Class.

Socially our John is also in the foreground. Perhaps that blonde Venus from Hallahan has something to do with it. Nevertheless, Jake is one of the best liked fellows on the campus and will always be remembered by those who know him as the most genial of companions, the smartest of students, and a very good friend, overlooking his unquestionable aptitude for breaking things—especially teacups and chandeliers.

M. S. 'VILLANOVA' ADDED TO FLEET OF FRANCIS O'HARA

Trawler Named for College Is 100th Boat in Three Years

By WM. J. WARD

Villanova's far flung fame has finally reached to the briny deep! Until recently Fame had been very elusive even on dry land but at last the gods of fortune have smiled and we have been blessed with that kind feeling peculiar to those who are known and appreciated wherever they go.

Carried Villanova Banner

It was a beautiful Fall morning, with nature in its finest array and with bands playing appropriate music, that the M. S. Villanova was launched at Bath, Me. The "Villanova" was beautifully arrayed in blue and white bunting as she cleaved the water for the first time after having been christened by Francis J. O'Hara, owner of the company.

The "Villanova" is a 136 foot Diesel-powered trawler and is the latest edition to the Boston fishing fleet of Francis O'Hara and Sons. The boat itself is of modern design and is constructed entirely of steel. A highly streamlined effect is given by the new treatment in arrangement of the bridge; the top of her stem is rounded out in curved fashion creating what is known as a soft nose, so as if she should come head-on with another vessel the damage would not be so great as with the usual type stem.

From the moment the launching party left Boston in six special trains until they returned there were no dull moments. Entertainment for the special guests was provided by a group imported with the launching party from Boston.

With the stirring strains of the Victory March ringing out Francis J. O'Hara, Jr., crashed the bottle of champagne across the bows of this modern champion of the seas with the words: "I christen thee Villanova."

JUST A BIT MIXED

A University of Washington freshman, listing his activities for the student yearbook, said he belonged to "Flat feet, earache and appendicitis once." He had mistaken "affiliations" for "afflictions."

Connecticut Club Busy Preparing for Annual Easter Dance

Plans for the forthcoming Easter Dance were formulated at the last meeting of the Connecticut Club last Wednesday evening. At that time several sites were discussed but the committee in charge decided to wait uptil next meeting to make definite plans.

In order to more easily arrange for the affair President Harry Luzzi, senior in the School of Science, asked that all members attend the next meeting to be held tomorrow evening immediately after chapel in the Mendel Hall amphitheater.

Included in the suggested sites for the Spring Affair are the "Paddle and Royale" at Bridgeport, the Waverly Inn at Waterbury, and the Hotel Taft in New Haven.

VILLANOVA WINS NINTH COURT FRAY

Sportorial

By BILL BOWKER
Sports Editor

THE WEST COAST has finally beaten Alabama, and California's choice of the Tide is justified, to Californians, at least, and the gridiron game sinks into comparative obscurity as far as we are concerned until the Villanova schedule for 1938 is released. We hear that Clipper and the athletic authorities are having a hard time getting "name" teams to play us. That's the penalty of being a comparatively small school and having such a phenomenal team.

—V—

We hear "Jumbo" Elliott's tracksters are busy training for a short but difficult Winter schedule. The outlook for this season is very bright with last year's freshman squad now eligible for varsity competition. Track, long in the doldrums at Villanova, is now coming to the fore as one of the more important of the minor sports.

—V—

Boxing officially makes its bow with the Intra-Mural tourney next Monday night. Less interest than usual has been shown by the student body than in former years. This is to be deplored, as it is student interest that is the backbone of intra-mural doings of any nature. Touch football was formerly one of the most widely supported of all the inter hall sports, but in the past three years it suddenly sank into oblivion. Unless student support is given the ring program, it too will fade into nothing. In past seasons, many varsity men were discovered in the one night show, and it is up to students to take advantage of an opportunity to get a little exercise, and possibly a varsity berth. It's been done before, and can be accomplished again.

With nine straight victories under their belts, the Wildcat basketeers are rolling along in fine style, and a longer streak is possible if the lads don't become over impressed with a sense of their own importance. If the lads don't watch out, these two games on Friday and Saturday can well be the stumbling blocks to a long victory string. The fact that Lehigh, not too strong a team, amassed a 14-2 lead on our lads, and kept in the van until four minutes before the end of the game, shows that the boys are not invincible, and also brings to notice the fact that they can put on the pressure, if necessary, and come from behind when the occasion demands.

—V—

Johnny Wysocki gained additional recognition by his election to the Liberty Magazine All-Players All-America for 1937. Some 760 teams were included in the voting and as the balloting is done by players who have met those voted for in actual competition and the fundamentals of play, the fact that John received 106 out of a possible 110 ballots speaks very well for his play. Suitable emblems of the honor will be given to the winners at a dinner given at the Poor Richards Club this Thursday noon. The event is going to be broadcast over KYW and John will entertain us with a few words. Here's your chance to hear an All - America end speak, boys.

A late flash just came in to the effect that Harold J. "Scoop" Keating will referee the battle of the century between the L. K. D. and the VILLANOVAN.

SEVERANCE SQUAD SEEKS TO AVENGE DICKINSON DEFEAT

Memory of Last Year's Upset Still Rankles; Face Catholic U. on Saturday

The revenge motive will be in full swing tomorrow night, when a group of eager Wildcat dribblers invade the lair of the strong Dickinson College Red Devils, at Carlisle, Pa., in the opening game of a crowded week of basketball activity.

A strong Catholic University team and a formidable Western Maryland five will greet the Villanovans upon their return, Friday and Saturday evenings, on the home boards.

Meet Geneva Monday

Following the Saturday tilt with Western Maryland, Al Severance will take his squad to Beaver Falls to battle the ever powerful team of small Geneva College on Monday evening.

Getting back to tomorrow's tilt with Dickinson, it will be remembered that the Carlisle collegians handed the Wildcats one of the few reverses they sustained last season. After bowing to the locals on the scene of the morrow's game by a one sided margin, the Red Devils came to Villanova and dumped the wearers of the blue, 27-26. Overconfidence was the reason for the unexpected reversal.

It will be a veteran team that will meet the locals tomorrow. Four of the five who played in the second tilt against the Wildcats will be ready for the fray.

Western Maryland, Catholic University and Temple to be Met on Card

With renewed vigor, the Villanova boxing squad candidates resumed post-holiday training in their newly founded and re-accommodated training quarters

This spirit is indicative of the caliber of the men representing Villanova this season in a boxing schedule which includes six of the major pugilistic teams along the Atlantic coast.

Face Terrors First

Ray Gadsby is already priming his proteges for their first intercollegiate meet, with the "Green Terrors" of Western Maryland, which will take place in the Villanova Gym in the seventh of February.

Catholic University, of Washington, D. C., a newcomer to the schedule, will be met away on the 12th of the same month in the Capitol city; the Blue mentor considers this as one of the toughest matches on the Villanova roster.

Following this meet the Wildcats will face three worthy foes on consecutive home dates. The first of these opponents to be met will be a strong team from C. C. N. Y. on the 18th of February; on the 26th

Scribe Basketeers Challenge Meds To Year's Outstanding Court Fray

Strong Aggregation Representing VILLANOVAN Expects Hard Battle; Contest to Mark Initial Appearance of Deverall as Athlete

By JOE "Killer-Diller" MC DADE

Armed with what is probably the greatest and the most formidable (also, the most numerous) conglomeration of court satellites ever to be contracted by a campus organization, the VILLANOVANS will meet their supreme test when they clash with Lambda Kappa Delta (future doctors) society on Saturday February 12. The game, a possible prelim in the Varsity-Dickinson fuss, will culminate a season of intense rivalry between the two organizations and promises to be a "knock-'em-down-drag'em-out" affair.

For weeks the would-be medicos evaded every challenge proffered by Manager-Coach-non-playing-Captain "Wolf" Tofani. Finally, with great trepidation, and only because they feared that their spotless honor would be impugned, the "men in white" consented to the contest only on the condition that they receive a favorable write-up in the campus weekly in the event that they lose. Manager-Coach-non-playing-Captain "Wolf" Tofani, fully cognizant of the tremendous power of his proteges, cozily snatched the golden opportunity.

Hold Secret Drills

Daily, the lads who edit news which is better late than never, hold secret drills in the spacious Alumni Hall floor. Although the game is about five weeks away, the announcement of a definite date for the fray has added new incentive and fire to the daily practices, and has left the VILLANOVAN board of strategy in a greater dilemma than ever as to the starting five.

Among the galaxy of stars who are fighting for a berth (on the team) is University Editor Joey Toland. Joey, a scintillating senior has starred consistently during his three year's service on the paper's quintet and desires to finish his athletic career in a veritable blaze of glory. Unlike the somewhat athletically renowned Hank Luisetti whose brilliance is sporadic, scribe Toland is steady and consistent, notching a foul shot now and then when it is least needed.

Next amid the star-studed athletically inclined journalists comes a North Jersey lad in the person of Wilbur "Choo-choo" Bowker, who tosses 'em up (and sometimes in) from all parts of the floor. His ability and accuracy at one handed stabs is amazing, and surprisingly enough, they often miraculously drop through the nets. Not permitting his defensive ability to outshine his defensive tactics, "Bow-dow" has earned the nickname "clinging vine" by his close guarding. It is not unusual to see him stop many enemy shots by draping himself over his opponent; or more simply, by holding his opponent's arm, and a "c'm up and see me sometime" look in his large brown orbs.

"Pepsi-Cola Pete" In Trim

Rushing these lads for starting positions are such luminaries as "Pepsi-Cola Pete" Mackin, the Intra-Mural Boxers Trade Punches This Monday Night Before Notables

By JOHN L. SIMONS

Next Monday evening at 8:15 the Villanova Field House will be the scene of the 1938 Intramural Boxing Championships. All the fanfare that surrounds a boxing meet will combine with the traditional color of the college campus to provide a gala entertainment. A great number of celebrities of the boxing world and other lines of sport have been contacted, and it is assured that there will be a group of famous personages from the sports universe at the ringside next Monday night.

The exact program of bouts has not been announced as yet, and according to a statement by the Rev. Edward B. McKee, O. S. A., the Faculty Moderator of Intramural Athletics, the list of bouts will not be made known until the night of the fights

In addition to the regular program of intramural bouts there will be several exhibitions to be given by Captain Bill Duffy and his varsity teammates. This is an innovation this year, and it adds variety to the program.

It is not dennitely known as yet how many intramural bouts there will be. But there is still an opportunity for anyone to enter the tour-

'CATS SHADE LEHIGH BY SCORE OF 31-27 IN LISTLESS MATCH

Duzminski, Dubino, Montgomery Lead Blue Attack in Closing Minutes

LOSERS DROP EARLY EDGE

Last Saturday night the Brown and White of Lehigh became the ninth straight victim of the smooth-rolling Villanova basketball five. The Engineers fielded a stubborn quintet, which forced the Wildcats to win the hard way with a last ditch rally that eked out the 31-27 victory.

First Close Fray

The game, which was played up at Bethlehem before a large crowd, was the first close one for the Wildcats this season. The Villanovans got off to a bad start and were trailing until four minutes from the end. Then "Duke" Duzminski came through with a pair of baskets that gave the Blue the lead which was held to the whistle.

Duzminski, the sophomore flash and the 'Cats leading scorer, and the veteran Lou Dubino, were standouts for the Main Liners. Each tallied four field goals and a foul to lead the winners' scoring. Dubino especially played bang-up ball. It was the first time this season he has seen much action, and he celebrated in fine style. His return to the form of previous years will be a great help to the Blue.

Lehigh Takes Lead

At the outset of the game Carl Russell threw three goals in rapid succession to put the Lehigh club ahead by 6-0. The Engineers went on to build up a 12-2 advantage before the Wildcats got going. The homesters couldn't miss in the first half. Everything they threw

BOWLERS EVIDENCE LITTLE INTEREST

News of Intra-Mural Tournament Fails to Arouse Any Enthusiasm

An unusual lack of interest in the bowling alleys and billiard tables has been the case this year, despite the fact that Harry Mazzei, the pool room major-domo, has in mind a tournament far superior to any heretofore held at Villanova.

Tournament Planned

Mazzei plans to have an Intramural tourney in billiards and one in bowling. The two alleys are in fine shape and enthusiasts of the pin game are urged to polish up for the coming competitions which should start soon after the mid-year examinations. There has not been much activity due to unknown circumstances, and those wishing to be in top trim for the tournament should begin practice now. Possibility of a bowling team to represent Villanova in intercollegiate competition looms if the proper interest is shown. Two years ago the Main Liners entered a three-man team in an intercollegiate meet with gratifying results.

Four excellent tables await the pool sharks, and to make the intra-mural competition of high calibre, students are urged to begin practice at once. The rooms are

Austin Takes Two Games To Tie Mendel Commuters

Victories Over Fedigan and Commerce Day-Hops Knot Mural Court Race in First Week of Second-Half Chase

SKYTOPPERS SPLIT BRACE OF FRAYS

Austin Hall and Mendel Day-Hops lead the intramural court league with two victories apiece gained during the first week of play in the second half race. The "Train and Trolley" boys, playing without the services of Joe Beittenmiller and Dan O'Connor, took into camp the Commerce and Finance Day Hops and Alumni by scores of 49-25 and 44-28 respectively.

Austin Ties Leaders

Austin's victories over Fedigan and the C & F commuters ties them with the leaders, and in defeating the West Enders, the Austinites showed possibilities of being very important factors in this half of the pennant chase.

Out of the six frays contested during the week's play, the Austin-Fedigan tussle was by far the most exciting, with a 25-22 score being the margin of victory. Sensational shooting and phenomenal teamwork accounted for the victory. The "Blue Shirts" functioned as a perfectly co-ordinated unit regardless of the personnel. Substitutes and regulars both played A-1 ball. Scoring was evenly divided among the victors, with Jimmy Dwyer pacing them with six points. Tim Waad and Vic Sandor followed closely with four apiece. Bud O'Connell, Fedigan's contribution to last year's All-Star team, led the losers with four field goals.

The second win scored by Austin was one-sided, Father McKee's lads trouncing the business aggregation by a 38-point margin, the final tally being 58-20. Mike Cuskey led the victory march with a total of 12 points. Leo Balbo, another of Father McKee's annual finds, tallied two less, while Robinson paced the losers.

Fedigan Beats Mendel

Fedigan's initial victory of the second half campaign was gained at the expense of the Penthousers from Mendel by 32-23 count. Mike Tolin continued his work of the first half by leading the Gigolos with nine markers. Scleba was the game's high scorer, however, with six field goals, for an even dozen points.

Alumni Hall joined the C & F boys in the cellar by taking a beating from the Mendel Residents, the Skytoppers taking the contest by a seven-point margin. Delehanty tallied ten points to lead the winners, while Leahy paced the losers.

In taking their first two games of the second half, Mendel Day-Hops, annual contenders for the flag in each half of the chase, showed plenty of power despite the absence of O'Connor and Beittenmiller, two of the league's leading scorers and members of the first All-Star team, with several freshmen ably filling in the place of these two veterans. Dan Keating, another of the scoring leaders of the first half race, paced the commuters with seven field goals and two fouls for 16 counters. Murphy and Dalena pressed him with eight apiece. DeLuca's nine counters led the Alumni cohorts.

The 49-25 rout of the Commerce lads was featured by Keating's and Rosenberg's high scoring, the former garnering 17 markers with a trio of free throws and seven twin-pointers, while "Rosie" dropped in eight from the field to trail Dan by a point.

With a fine showing by Austin and the Mendel Day-Hops, the league race promises to be more exciting than the first half, which was decided in the final game when the crew from the west end of the campus, Fedigan, eked out a 29-27 win over the Mendel Day-Hops. The West Enders, off to a somewhat slow start, are not to be counted out, and the race looks to be among these three clubs again. Austin seems to be the dark horse with the improved play demonstrated by the "Firemen." It will be remembered that their thrilling upset of the Day-Hops late in the race enabled Fedigan to capture the first half diadem in the final contest.

the other guard position is Bill Reese of Kingston, Pa. The other veterans are forward Earl Doll and the team's ace scorer, Bill Hendrickson, of Harrisburg, Pa. He is the pivot man on the Red Devil aggregation. Four members of the 1936-37 squad who did not win letters, and nine sophomores round out the squad.

If Dickinson appears to be tough, those high flying Cardinals from Washington, are not exactly setups. Although the Wildcats did not play Catholic University last year, Coach Severance has plenty of respect for the District of Columbia quintet.

Catholic University won ten of the nineteen games it played last year. The Cardinals have had better success this year, having won three of four tilts played thus far. Besides Forrest Cotton's squad includes seven letter men of the 36-37 season, and the starting five is a facsimile of last season's game beginners.

Maryland Loses Vets

At Western Maryland, Bruce Ferguson is bemoaning the loss of three regulars who failed to return to the campus as was expected of them. The Maryland five won only six games last season, bowing on thirteen occasions, numbering among the defeats, a terrific walloping of 51-20 taken from the hands of the Main Liners.

As for the Wildcats it will be no new thing to play on successive nights, having taken the New England trip in fine form. Particularly gratifying has been the play of Bill Sinnott, lanky forward, whose pinch goal tossing played an important part in the Springfield and Boston University tilts. With Mike Lazorchek, and "Duke" Duzminski, playing the brand of ball shown thus far, Lou Dubino seems headed for a substitute role for the next few days. Should Montgomery, Krutulis and Vigilante continue their sensational play, thousands of Philadelphians may get the surprise of their lives on the 28th of January when Temple's vaunted Owls re-enact the fable "The Owl and the Cat" on the Convention Hall floor.

Ray Gadsby has made it clear that he will allow no one to fight who is not in good physical shape. All entrants must take themselves down to the gym during the time that remains for their workouts.

Those in charge of the program would like to be able to inject a couple of wrestling bouts. So far they lack the wrestlers, and if any "grunt-and-groans" report to the gym for conditioning, there will be wrestling also.

Tommy Loughran, one of Philadelphia's greatest boxers, and ex-lightheavyweight champion of the world, has been contacted by the committee, and he may attend. Connie Mack, who has been present at previous Intramural Meets, Gerry Nugent, of the Phillies, Marty McLaughlin, Villanova alumnus and Director of the Department of Public Works, and other celebrities are expected.

Once again all contestants in the bouts are reminded that it is absolutely necessary for them to do some training if they want to fight. This warning is given for the sake of the boys themselves, who need the workouts in order to put on capable showings.

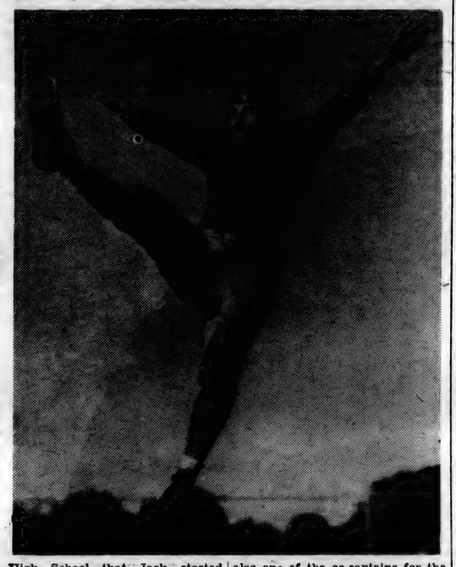
By JAMES LYONS

"And from out of the West"—well, Chicago, anyway, came one of the greatest fullbacks ever to put on the blue and white for Villanova, known to most of us as Jack Earle, sometimes referred to by the rest of the squad as "Captain Easy." Jack is that dark complexioned, good looking fellow with the ready smile, usually seen around the campus in the company of Bill Rogers.

Jack was born in 1913. After eight uneventful (he says) years in grammar school at Chicago, he packed up with his mother and father and moved to Collingswood, New Jersey. It was at Collingswood



High School that Jack started making a name for himself in athletics. He played four years of football being named all-South Jersey fullback three successive years and receiving all-state honors his senior year. Largely through his efforts, Collingswood High became Class A champions three of the four years he played with the team.

Jack-of-all Trades

Being a "Jack-of-all-trades" he did not limit his endeavors to the gridiron, but played on the basketball team during the Winter season and ran during the Spring. It was in Track that he made another notch for himself in the schoolboy hall of fame. In the Penn Relays in 1932 Jack ran on Collingswood's national high school champion mile relay team.

Completing his high school course in 1932, Jack furthered his education and athletic abilities at Staunton Military Academy in Virginia, excelling in football and track. He was rated all-state prep school fullback during his year at Staunton.

Evidently he liked the South, for at the close of his short career at Staunton Military Academy, Jack went deeper into "dear old Dixie," matriculating at the University of Georgia. Here he played football for the freshman team.

The following Fall he entered the portals of Villanova and reported to "Doc" Jacobs for action. After playing one year for the Kittens, Jack began his varsity pigskin career at Villanova late in the season of '35. Just before the season opened, he hurt his foot and was forced to remain out of action until the last two or three games of the season. Then came that eventful day in the blizzard game with Temple. Alternating with Art Raimo at the fullback berth, Jack played a big part in the 21-14 victory, and lived up to all expectations.

Good Player

He is known both near and far to be a great blocking fullback as well as a ball carrier and strong defensive player. Once in a while he even takes a hand (or should we say a foot) at punting. Temple will remember him for that fourth touchdown last November. He was also one of the co-captains for the Wildcats in their victory over Marquette last season.

Not only in athletics does Jack excel, but also in studies. Last year he was an honor man in the Education School, and seems to be more proud of that than his success in football. So Colorado isn't the only place that can boast of a great backfield star who is also a good student.

During the Summer months our famed fullback did his part to lure vacationists to Wildwood by serving on the resort's beach patrol. That accounts for that tan outdoor look he brings back each Fall.

As for the future, Jack doesn't seem to have anything definite in mind. "Are you going to coach?" "Well, yes. I'd like to coach. Coach in the Winter and be a life guard in the Summer. That's the life!" But then he said seriously he would probably look for a future in coaching. Here's luck to you, Jack.

open daily from 1:30 to 5:30 P. M. and a nominal sum is charged for the use of the equipment. With the Winter weather certain to put in an appearance shortly, it is advisable to take advantage of the exercise offered by these two activities.

of February, Columbus University, of Washington, D. C., will journey to the lair of the Wildcat. This meet should prove to be a very interesting one because Columbus U. not only has a powerful team but also administered a sound defeat to the Villanova fighters a few years back. There can be no doubt that the Blue squad will be out there scrapping to avenge that loss and to show their supremacy in the ring.

Meet Temple March 2

An old friendly feud will be resurrected on March 2 between two rival institutions, for it is on this date that the Cherry and White squad of Temple will invade Wildcat territory to resume fistic relationships of that much disputed stalemate of 1937.

An intersectional tilt may prove to be the outstanding attraction of the schedule, between Miami University and the Blue team. Miami U. is a new-comer to the schedule and will be out to inaugurate its appearance with a victory over the Wildcats on February 9.

In winding up the regular schedule Villanova will motor to Lewisburg to tackle Bucknell's highly touted boxing machine and Champs of last year's Eastern Intercollegiate Boxing Tournament.

Ray is interested in having the Villanova boxing squad participate in the Eastern Intercollegiate Boxing Tournament which will be held at Penn State on the eleventh and 12th of March. Since Tony Sala, former boxing idol of Villanova, won the light-heavyweight championship for three consecutive years in this tourney it is only natural and justifiable that Gadsby and Villanova authorities feel that the entire Blue squad, which has been making remarkable progress in Eastern boxing circles, receive a formal invitation to compete in this great fistic spectacle.

went in. Villanova had trouble locating the basket in the dimly lit hall and trailed at half-time.

Al Severance's boys kept plugging away, and finally with four minutes to go went ahead 23-22. Drake put Lehigh ahead with a basket, but seconds later the count was knotted at 24-all.

At this stage of the game Coach Severance inserted "Duke" Duzminski into the battle. The Duke immediately dropped in a lay-up shot to give Villanova the lead. Less than a minute later he turned gunner and split the cords from the middle to increase the lead to 28-24. From there on it was all Villanova, and the margin at the end was still four points, the final score being 31-27.

Wayne darling; "Spider" Bob Howe ("who's the best man in the house and why am I?"); and "Toughie" T. G. Kennedy from "tolty-toid" street. Should the game develop into a slugfest the board of strategy in the person of "Wolf" Tofani feels that this trio can readily take matters into its own hands.

In the guard slots the fight is even hotter. "Tubby" Jake Simons, U. P. (United Press) Wallach, and "Scoop" Carbine are waging a cat-and-dog fight for one of the berths, while Joe (Pride of Bridgeport) Pagano, "Minute-man" Jimmy Lyons, and "Mussolini" Alessandroni are exerting all their effort (if possible for Alessandroni) to land the other guard position. From the impartial viewpoint of this writer, it would seem that "Tubby" Jake and "Minute-man" Lyons hold the inside track because of their gingervating and superior all-around play. Their dynamic style and indomitable courage coupled with that never say die spirit permeates all their actions, and at the same time it inspires the other members of the team to rise to greater heights, especially in the leering face of almost certain catastrophe. Nevertheless the others may be counted on to give them a lively tussle before they permanently secure their posts since the honor of playing for the VILLANOVAN is a singular one.

Deverall Signed Up

Although the center tap has been eliminated, minimizing the importance of tall men, the VILLANOVAN is fortunate in having at its disposal "Dead-eye Dick, the Red-Baiter," or in private life, Richard L. G. Deverall, to act as pivot man. Dick is an excellent shot, possessing ability to put anything he throws in the hole, as a defensive player he has no equal and has been known to talk his opponent into missing a shot by telling him that it was unethical. For a time it was doubtful if he would be able to play since affairs at Washington and at the Vatican were very unsettled, but after a hurried consultation with his correspondents "Dead-eye" announced that he would sacrifice his time in order to aid the cause of the journalists.

With such a variety of basketball artists at his disposal for the first team, Manager-Coach-non-playing-Captain "Wolf" Tofani mopped his perspiring brow, blew his proboscis in stentorian tones that savored of tears in his eyes and piteously decried that he had the same clear as mud situation on his second team.

Firstly he had Tom "Dick Merriwell" O'Mahoney, the fair-haired Irish lad who never failed and always came through in the last minute. Frank "Little Italy" Reale, Len "Slugger" Flinkman, and "Pretty boy" Jackie Rhoads are three lads whose athletic ability is overshadowed only by their journalistic efforts. Then there is Joe "Tickimuah" Sanborn who possesses the rare art of being able to shoot the ball without hitting the backboard—sometimes it goes under while other times it sails far atop the boards. Al "Streamline" Zogby and "Toiyash" Harry McGlade are candidates for forward positions claiming that is one job they can do to perfection—especially if she's nice. Rene "Adonis" Calliet gets first choice for center on the second team since he maintains that his Gablian features make him a natural center—of attraction. Incidentally "Brain trust" Tofani disapproves. Last but not least on this list of scintillating stars comes none other than that Brooklyn flash, that mighty meteorite, who can run with the ball up and down the floor faster than any three men—Bill (I'm not lazy, just tired) Dobbins.

The wind blew—the bologna flew—and in walked Joe "Windy" Bongiovanni and "Old John Pepper" Harrington, as candidates for water boy, student manager, and general all-around handy-man. Perhaps "Windy" could be substituted for an amplifying system and thus save money, while "Old John Pepper" could give the pep talks during the intermission.

Cognizant of the fact that "Doc" Conte, "Herky-Jerky" Paul Juergens, Martin "Rube" Kassel, and Bil "Baby-face" Ward are members of both organizations besides being court stars of no ability, (pardon the error, we meant court stars of no mean ability), nevertheless, the VILLANOVANS will magnanimously waive all priority rights in order to prevent the contest from becoming too one-sided.

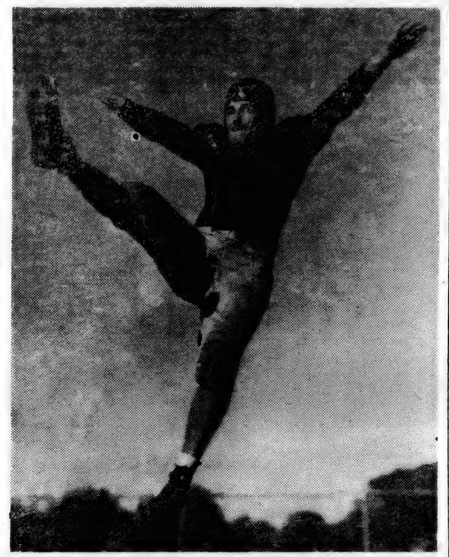
By JAMES LYONS

"And from out of the West"—well, Chicago, anyway, came one of the greatest fullbacks ever to put on the blue and white for Villanova, known to most of us as Jack Earle, sometimes referred to by the rest of the squad as "Captain Easy." Jack is that dark complexioned, good looking fellow with the ready smile, usually seen around the campus in the company of Bill Rogers.

Jack was born in 1913. After eight uneventful (he says) years in grammar school at Chicago, he packed up with his mother and father and moved to Collingswood, New Jersey. It was at Collingswood



High School that Jack started making a name for himself in athletics. He played four years of football being named all-South Jersey fullback three successive years and receiving all-state honors his senior year. Largely through his efforts, Collingswood High became Class A champions three of the four years he played with the team.

Jack-of-all Trades

Being a "Jack-of-all-trades" he did not limit his endeavors to the gridiron, but played on the basketball team during the Winter season and ran during the Spring. It was in Track that he made another notch for himself in the schoolboy hall of fame. In the Penn Relays in 1932 Jack ran on Collingswood's national high school champion mile relay team.

Completing his high school course in 1932, Jack furthered his education and athletic abilities at Staunton Military Academy in Virginia, excelling in football and track. He was rated all-state prep school fullback during his year at Staunton.

Evidently he liked the South, for at the close of his short career at Staunton Military Academy, Jack went deeper into "dear old Dixie," matriculating at the University of Georgia. Here he played football for the freshman team.

The following Fall he entered the portals of Villanova and reported to "Doc" Jacobs for action. After playing one year for the Kittens, Jack began his varsity pigskin career at Villanova late in the season of '35. Just before the season opened, he hurt his foot and was forced to remain out of action until the last two or three games of the season. Then came that eventful day in the blizzard game with Temple. Alternating with Art Raimo at the fullback berth, Jack played a big part in the 21-14 victory, and lived up to all expectations.

Good Player

He is known both near and far to be a great blocking fullback as well as a ball carrier and strong defensive player. Once in a while he even takes a hand (or should we say a foot) at punting. Temple will remember him for that fourth touchdown last November. He was also one of the co-captains for the Wildcats in their victory over Marquette last season.

Not only in athletics does Jack excel, but also in studies. Last year he was an honor man in the Education School, and seems to be more proud of that than his success in football. So Colorado isn't the only place that can boast of a great backfield star who is also a good student.

During the Summer months our famed fullback did his part to lure vacationists to Wildwood by serving on the resort's beach patrol. That accounts for that tan outdoor look he brings back each Fall.

As for the future, Jack doesn't seem to have anything definite in mind. "Are you going to coach?" "Well, yes, I'd like to coach. Coach in the Winter and be a life guard in the Summer. That's the life!" But then he said seriously he would probably look for a future in coaching. Here's luck to you, Jack.

of February, Columbus University, of Washington, D. C., will journey to the lair of the Wildcat. This meet should prove to be a very interesting one because Columbus U. not only has a powerful team but also administered a sound defeat to the Villanova fighters a few years back. There can be no doubt that the Blue squad will be out there scrapping to avenge that loss and to show their supremacy in the ring.

Meet Temple March 2

An old friendly feud will be resurrected on March 2 between two rival institutions, for it is on this date that the Cherry and White squad of Temple will invade Wildcat territory to resume fistic relationships of that much disputed stalemate of 1937.

An intersectional tilt may prove to be the outstanding attraction of the schedule, between Miami University and the Blue team. Miami U. is a new-comer to the schedule and will be out to inaugurate its appearance with a victory over the Wildcats on February 9.

In winding up the regular schedule Villanova will motor to Lewisburg to tackle Bucknell's highly touted boxing machine and Champs of last year's Eastern Intercollegiate Boxing Tournament.

Ray is interested in having the Villanova boxing squad participate in the Eastern Intercollegiate Boxing Tournament which will be held at Penn State on the eleventh and 12th of March. Since Tony Sala, former boxing idol of Villanova, won the light-heavyweight championship for three consecutive years in this tourney it is only natural and justifiable that Gadsby and Villanova authorities feel that the entire Blue squad, which has been making remarkable progress in Eastern boxing circles, receive a formal invitation to compete in this great fistic spectacle.

went in. Villanova had trouble locating the basket in the dimly lit hall and trailed at half time.

Al Severance's boys kept plugging away, and finally with four minutes to go went ahead 23-22. Drake put Lehigh ahead with a basket, but seconds later the count was knotted at 24-all.

At this stage of the game Coach Severance inserted "Duke" Duzminski into the battle. The Duke immediately dropped in a lay - up shot to give Villanova the lead. Less than a minute later he turned gunner and split the cords from the middle to increase the lead to 28-24. From there on it was all Villanova, and the margin at the end was still four points, the final score being 31-27.

Wayne darling; "Spider" Bob Howe ("who's the best man in the house and why am I?"); and "Toughie" T. G. Kennedy from "tolly-told" street. Should the game develop into a slugfest the board of strategy in the person of "Wolf" Tofani feels that this trio can readily take matters into its own hands.

In the guard slots the fight is even hotter. "Tubby" Jake Simons, U. P. (United Press) Wallach, and "Scoop" Carbine are waging a cat-and-dog fight for one of the berths, while Joe (Pride of Bridgeport) Pagano, "Minute-man" Jimmy Lyons, and "Mussolini" Alessandroni are exerting all their effort (if possible for Alessandroni) to land the other guard position. From the impartial viewpoint of this writer, it would seem that "Tubby" Jake and "Minute-man" Lyons hold the inside track because of their gingervating and superior all-around play. Their dynamic style and indomitable courage coupled with that never say die spirit permeates all their actions, and at the same time it inspires the other members of the team to rise to greater heights, especially in the leering face of almost certain catastrophe. Nevertheless the others may be counted on to give them a lively tussle before they permanently secure their posts since the honor of playing for the VILLANOVAN is a singular one.

Although the center tap has been eliminated, minimizing the importance of tall men, the VILLANOVAN is fortunate in having at its disposal "Dead-eye Dick, the Red-Baiter," or in private life, Richard L. G. Deverall, to act as pivot man. Dick is an excellent shot, possessing ability to put anything he throws in the hole, as a defensive player he has no equal and has been known to talk his opponent into missing a shot by telling him that it was ethical. For a time it was doubtful if he would be able to play since affairs at Washington and at the Vatican were very unsettled, but after a hurried consultation with his correspondents "Dead-eye" announced that he would sacrifice his time in order to aid the cause of the journalists.

With such a variety of basketball artists at his disposal for the first team, Manager-Coach-non-playing-Captain "Wolf" Tofani mopped his perspiring brow, blew his proboscis in stentorian tones that savored of tears in his eyes and piteously decried that he had the same clear as mud situation on his second team.

Firstly he had Tom "Dick Merriwell" O'Mahoney, the fair-haired Irish lad who never failed and always came through in the last minute, Frank "Little Italy" Reale, Len "Slugger" Flinkman, and "Pretty Boy" Jackie Rhoads are three lads whose athletic ability is overshadowed only by their journalistic efforts. Then there is Joe "Tickimush" Sanborn who possesses the rare art of being able to shoot the ball without hitting the backboard—sometimes it goes under while other times it sails far atop the boards. Al "Streamline" Zogby and "Toiyash" Harry McGlade are candidates for forward positions claiming that is one job they can do to perfection—especially if she's nice. Rene "Adonis" Calliet gets first choice for center on the second team since he maintains that his Gablian features make him a natural center—of attraction. Incidentally "Brain trust" Tofani disapproves. Last but not least on this list of scintillating stars comes none other than that Brooklyn flash, that mighty meteorite, who can run with the ball up and down the floor faster than any three men—Bill (I'm not lazy, just tired) Dobbins.

The wind blew—the bologna flew—and in walked Joe "Windy" Bongiovanni and "Old John Pepper" Harrington, as candidates for water boy, student manager, and general all-around handy-man. Perhaps "Windy" could be substituted for an amplifying system and thus save money, while "Old John Pepper" could give the pep talks during the intermission.

Cognizant of the fact that "Doc" Conte, "Herky-Jerky" Paul Juergens, Martin "Rube" Kassel, and Bill "Baby-face" Ward are members of both organizations besides being court stars of no ability, (pardon the error, we meant court stars of no mean ability), nevertheless, the VILLANOVANS will magnanimously waive all priority rights in order to prevent the contest from becoming too one-sided.

SCIENCE MAGAZINE MAKES APPEARANCE ON LOCAL CAMPUS

Commended by Fordham's 'Cabmuth'; Many Technical Discussions Featured

The first issue for the year 1937-38 of the Mendel Bulletin, quarterly publication of the Villanova Science School, was released for distribution last week. This is the second year that the Mendel Bulletin is being published in quarterly fashion. Previously, it had been an annual publication.

Featured in this issue are a discussion of Dioxan and its uses in histological technique, by Bernard J. Miller, junior science student, and an article by Sister M. Regis, M.S.C., R.N., entitled "Tribute to Caesar or the Church, Florence Nightingdale and Nursing."

Dioxan Discussed

Dioxan, a fluid which only recently has been considered as applicable to histological technique, is discussed thoroughly as to its advantages and disadvantages in various phases of histological preparation and examination of tissue. Extensive work had been done with it by the writer, who presents a summary of his observations and conclusions as to its usefulness.

Sister Regia discusses in her article the Church, her attitude toward nursing, and the manner in which religious orders have built the nursing profession to its present high standards. She also discusses thoroughly the excellent work of Florence Nightingale, with the observation that if the latter had been a Catholic, she may today be venerated as another "St. Theresa the Great."

Signal honor was paid to the Mendel Bulletin recently by the "Cabmuth," official publication of the Fordham University, School of Science. A review of the periodicals to be found in the Fordham Mendel Club Library mentions Villanova's Mendel Bulletin. The criticism of our publication rates it as one of the most interesting to be found in the library. "The Villanova publication," states Mr. Boller, writer of the article, "features easy reading, excellent photography, and accurate diagrams accompanying each article and discussion."

The annual presents a brief review of the history and functions of the entire student body, the various classes, faculty, extra-curricular activities in existence on the campus, and college life in general. The publication is of superior quality, having received the All-American Award in the national judging of college annuals last year, and in several previous years. It was also awarded first ranking by the Catholic Press.

Library Installs Newspaper Rack To Hold Current Daily Periodicals

Rev. Daniel P. Falvey, O. S. A., Villanova College librarian, has recently announced the installation of a newspaper rack on the main floor of the student library.

The rack, constructed by the students of the School of Engineering, is a replica of those used in the Library of Congress and in many of the more important libraries in the country. Built of wood and standing five feet in height, it is capable of containing ten separate sets of publications in such a way as to make them easily accessible to the readers and yet preserve them for future use.

To date, a balanced shelf of nine publications has been carefully chosen as appropriate reading material. Two interesting religious weeklies, "The Brooklyn Tablet" and "The Catholic Herald," of London, have entered the list to provide the readers with the latest ideas and developments on Catholic Action in the United States and Europe. Together with such towering papers as "The United States News," of Washington, and "The New York Times," "Herald-Tribune," and "Standard Times" will furnish ample up-to-the-minute news. Local events can be found in "The Villanovan" and "Main Line Daily Times."

NO MORE STOCKINGS

A "date" boycott is in force at the University of Washington against all coeds who wear sheer silk hose. It was started by men of the American Student Union, a campus group, to stay in force until Japan removes her troops from China.

No Speaker For Monthly Breakfast Of Holy Name

Dykes and Loughran Being Contacted for February Affair

William J. Bowker announced yesterday that the reason the Monthly Holy Name Breakfast was without a speaker last Sunday was because of the proximity of the Christmas Holidays. "We felt," said the president of the group, "that it would not be advisable to try to contact a speaker for this month's breakfast. We are planning, however, to have Jimmy Dykes at the February meeting if proper arrangements can be made."

Students who are members of the group will remember that the Oakmont Orator addressed the Society two years ago and gave one of the best talks ever heard at a Holy Name breakfast. Negotiations are also in progress as to obtain Philadelphia "Tommy" Loughran, erstwhile light-heavyweight champion, and present restaurant proprietor, for one of the monthly gatherings.

TECHNICAL MEN NEEDED

Belle Masque, campus dramatics group now in production of Maxwell Anderson's "Winterset," has issued an appeal to all students interested in the technical work connected with the theatre. Mr. Anthony J. Frayne, moderator of the organization, has announced that all those who wish to submit models of the stage setting for "Winterset" will be eligible for participation in the contest held by the Philadelphia Art Alliance, which offers prizes of $50, $25 and $15 for the three best models submitted.

DEBATERS ANNOUNCE TENTATIVE PROGRAM

Beta Gamma Prepares For Most Strenuous Schedule in Years

A tentative list of coming debates was released yesterday by Joseph McNsmara, secretary of Beta Gamma Debating Society. Although incomplete, this list reveals one of the most ambitious undertakings of any Villanova debating team in recent years. Over fifteen debates have already taken place since September; twice that number is anticipated for the coming season.

Go On Road

Many trips have been scheduled. Brief visits will be made Up-State to meet Bucknell, Albright, and Penn State; to New York for Manhattan, C.C.N.Y. and Fordham; to New Jersey for Georgian Court, Upsala and Rutgers; to Maryland for Maryland U. and to Washington, D.C. for Georgetown. These will be mixed from time to time with longer excursions to New England and possibly Notre Dame and South Carolina. On the New England trip Brown, Dartmouth, Providence, Connecticut State, and Boston U. will be engaged.

Teams from all over the East and far into the West will meet the Beta Gamma debaters on their home grounds at Villanova. Marquette is coming from Madison, Wisconsin; Dayton University from Ohio; and Detroit University from Michigan, are among the visitors.

The Loyola debate on the evening of January 29th in the amphitheatre will break the current lapse in the debate schedule during the past month. In the ensuing

CHORAL CLUB TO SING MARCH 12

Will Entertain At Mount Carmel Parish On St. Patrick's Day

Rev. J. A. Boyle made it known that the Villanova Glee Club is entering a period of earnest practice in preparation for their season's schedule.

The club has been working hard to perfect its renditions of a number of new scores that have been recently acquired. A few engagements have been scheduled and more are expected.

The club has accepted an invitation to sing at Mount Carmel Parish in Philadelphia on March 17th, St. Patrick's Day. There are other invitations that as yet have not been made definite.

Annual Retreat To Be Conducted By Former Prefects

Exercises to be Held From January 31 to February 4 Inclusive

Villanova College's 95th annual retreat exercises will be conducted from January 31 to February 4 inclusive, starting on Monday afternoon with conferences and concluding on Friday morning with Mass and Papal blessing.

The retreat masters for the occasion, as announced by the Rev. Charles P. Brown, O. S. A., chaplain, are Rev. John B. Martin, O. S. A., and Rev. Thomas E. Rogers, O. S. A., both former prefects at the college.

These exercises are conducted yearly by the Augustinian Fathers for the spiritual benefit of the students. The chaplain urges that the students enter this retreat in the proper frame of mind and they will be justly rewarded.

Swingsters Visit To Villanova Will Be First To Any College Campus

Stevens' Band Has Been Tied Down by Contracts; Present Goodman's Arrangements; Has Large Radio Audience

By RENE CAILLIET

"Through the courtesy of the Senior Ball Committee, the Saturday Night Swing Session will come to you from the Villanova Field House on Friday night, February 25." The present senior class pulled this statement out of their bag of many tricks as a new means of presenting something different in entertainment and as a revolt from the conventional "name band" dances.

Hope To Score Hit

By their contracting of Leith Stevens and his Swing Session Orchestra, the members of the class of 1938 sincerely hope to score up another Hit of the Campus as they have so often in the past. The price of admission has been set at four dollars and fifty cents and hours from ten 'til two.

For the last two years or so, swing cats and music lovers the country over have rushed from the dinner table on Saturday night to tune in to the famous swing session. Prominent in the success of all the guest stars and even more outstanding in their individual selections, Lieth Stevens' band has made its niche in the sophisticated jazz world and were it not for individual guest stars stealing the announcer's praise, the name of Stevens would now occupy a place with the swing immortals.

Attracts Many Listeners

"The pseudo - sophisticated patrons of the present dances given in and about Philadelphia have formed a pedestic around a half dozen orchestras and have now begun to believe that they alone can furnish a successful evening," quoted Chairman Louis Biester, "but none of them can deny that

TECHNOLOGY SCHOOL RECEIVES ADDITIONS

Materials Testing Laboratory Enlarged by Installation of New Machines

Four new machines have been added to the Materials Testing Laboratory of the School of Technology, it was learned from J. Stanley Morehouse, professor.

The new additions include: The Brinnell Hardness Machine, Tension and Compression Machine, Impact Testing Machine, and Dynamic and Static Balancing Machine.

Hardness Machine Bought

The Brinnell Hardness Machine is used to determine the hardness of any material by impressing the steel ball on the surface of the material under the standard pressure and from the depth of the impression, and the indication of the hardness is obtained.

The Tension and Compression Machine is used to test the tensil strength of any metal, up to 100,000 pounds per square inch. It can be set up to test compression strength.

The Impact Testing Machine is used to test impact tensil strength and impact sheering strength and impact tension.

The Dynamic and Static Balancing Machine is used to balance flywheels, crank-shafts, armatures, fans, and blowers statically, that is, when at rest and dynamically, that is, when in rotation.

STAFF TO MEET

An important staff meeting will be held in the VILLANOVAN office at one o'clock this afternoon. It is imperative that all staff members be present.

EDITORS REQUEST PREVIOUS ISSUES

Back Editions of VILLANOVAN To Be Bound For Distribution

A request for back issues is being made by the current editorial board of the VILLANOVAN. Members of the student and alumni groups are asked to submit any extra copies that are available. Return postage will be forwarded by the VILLANOVAN.

COLLEGE YEARBOOK SPONSORS CONTEST FOR BEST PICTURES

Belle Air Promises Awards For Unique Campus Snapshots

As has been recently announced by the Rev. D. P. Falvey, O.S.A., moderator of Villanova's year book, the editors of the Belle Air are sponsoring a contest for the best snapshots taken in or about the college campus. Although the actual prizes have not been announced, they are certain to be well-worth the efforts of the contestants.

Present Entries Excellent

The few entries that have been received thus far show excellent possibilities and should act as incentives to the rest of the student body. Unless better support is offered, the true purpose of the contest will be defeated—the 1938 edition of the Belle Air will not be pictorially representative of all the phases of student life at Villanova.

Snapshots really insert life into all annuals and for many, principally possess the means of appeal. This "appeal" determines, or can be expressed as, the amount of circulation. From this it logically follows that the "appeal" of former Villanova year books has steadily been improving. In retrospect it is seen that the circulation of the Belle Air has increased from five hundred copies in 1935, through seven hundred in 1936 to the latest figure of one thousand copies for 1937. The Belle Air editors have fond hopes of bettering this mark, but they can not do so if a more enthusiastic response is not given their appeal for snapshots.

A new feature will be offered by this year's Annual staff to all the student-purchasers of the Belle Air. The students are presented with an opportunity of having their names engraved on their personal copies in attractive lettering for an additional nominal charge of thirty-five cents. This is offered to give the student the prerogative of making his year book a very personal one—his own.

Chairman Louis Biester Appoints Sub-Committee to Arrange Details

After weeks of toil behind closed doors, in booking offices, and on the road to New York, Louis Biester, chairman of the senior dance committee, finally has announced the signing of Lieth Stevens and his "Saturday Night Swing Session" orchestra. Immediately following the announcement of the acquired band, the list of sub-committees that will guide the destinies of the ball scheduled for Friday night, February 25, was released for publication.

Committees Named

Many of the names found on these sub-committees were prominent on last year's committee, the committee that was responsible for one of the most outstanding proms presented on the Villanova campus. The publicity will be handled by Joseph Sanborn, William Bowker and John Simons, while the decorations will be planned and carried out by Harry Guckenberger, Salvatore Angelozzi, Edward Carroll and Leonard Connelly.

The tickets, selling for $4.50 and limited to a definite number, will be distributed by W. John Stahlmann and Joseph Federowicz. They in turn will appoint various members of the senior class to help as a sub-committee.

Last year's promenade chairman, Daniel O'Connor, will collaborate with Joseph W. Biettenmiller to Signal honor was paid to the Mendel Bulletin recently by the "Cabmuti," official publication of the Fordham University, School of Science. A review of the periodicals to be found in the Fordham Mendel Club Library mentions Villanova's Mendel Bulletin. The criticism of our publication rates it as one of the most interesting to be found in the library. "The Villanova publication," states Mr. Bollet, writer of the article, "features easy reading, excellent photography, and accurate diagrams accompanying each article and discussion."

The annual presents a brief review of the history and functions of the entire student body, the various classes, faculty, extra-curricular activities in existence on the campus, and college life in general. The publication is of superior quality, having received the All-American Award in the national judging of college annuals last year, and in several previous years. It was also awarded first ranking by the Catholic Press.

WASHINGTON ALUMNI MEETS

The Villanova Alumni group of Washington D.C. will hold a meeting this evening at the Hays-Adams Hotel in the nation's capital. The membership already numbers thirty and it is hoped that more alumni of the vicinity will soon join.

Library Installs Newspaper Rack To Hold Current Daily Periodicals

Rev. Daniel P. Falvey, O. S. A., Villanova College librarian, has recently announced the installation of a newspaper rack on the main floor of the student library.

The rack, constructed by the students of the School of Engineering, is a replica of those used in the Library of Congress and in many of the more important libraries in the country. Built of wood and standing five feet in height, it is capable of containing ten separate sets of publications in such a way as to make them easily accessible to the readers and yet preserve them for future use.

To date, a balanced shelf of nine publications has been carefully chosen as appropriate reading material. Two interesting religious weeklies, "The Brooklyn Tablet" and "The Catholic Herald," of London, have entered the list to provide the readers with the latest ideas and developments on Catholic Action in the United States and Europe. Together with such towering papers as "The United States News," of Washington, and "The New York Times," "Herald-Tribune," and "Standard Times" will furnish ample up-to-the-minute news. Local events can be found in "The Villanovan" and "Main Line Daily Times."

NO MORE STOCKINGS

A "date" boycott is in force at the University of Washington against all coeds who wear sheer silk hose. It was started by men of the American Student Union, a campus group, to stay in force until Japan removes her troops from China.

No Speaker For Monthly Breakfast Of Holy Name

Dykes and Loughran Being Contacted for February Affair

William J. Bowker announced yesterday that the reason the Monthly Holy Name Breakfast was without a speaker last Sunday was because of the proximity of the Christmas Holidays. "We felt," said the president of the group, "that it would not be advisable to try to contact a speaker for this month's breakfast. We are planning, however, to have Jimmy Dykes at the February meeting if proper arrangements can be made."

Students who are members of the group will remember that the Oakmont Orator addressed the Society two years ago and gave one of the best talks ever heard at a Holy Name breakfast. Negotiations are also in progress as to obtain Philadelphia "Tommy" Loughran, erstwhile light-heavyweight champion, and present restaurant proprietor, for one of the monthly gatherings.

DRAMATIC SOCIETY ANNOUNCES PLANS FOR MODEL CONTEST

'Winterset' Miniatures to be Judged by Art Alliance; Posters Requested

TECHNICAL MEN NEEDED

Belle Masque, campus dramatics group now in production of Maxwell Anderson's "Winterset," has issued an appeal to all students interested in the technical work connected with the theatre. Mr. Anthony J. Frayne, moderator of the organization, has announced that all those who wish to submit models of the stage setting for "Winterset" will be eligible for participation in the contest held by the Philadelphia Art Alliance, which offers prizes of $50, $25 and $15 for the three best models submitted.

Mount On Block

The models must be mounted on a flat block measuring eighteen by twenty-four inches, and are to be constructed on a scale of one-half inch to the foot. Details of the rules can be obtained from Mr. Frayne, or from Vincent LaBrasca, chairman of the Art Committee for Belle Masque, and it is imperative that all those interested should contact them as soon as possible.

It is recommended that candidates examine the stage dimensions and discover its limitations and possibilities before submitting their models. A thorough knowledge of the play itself is also a necessity; in this regard it will be helpful for hopeful designers to borrow a copy of the script from any of the players.

Poster Contest Announced

A "Winterset" Poster Contest has also been announced by Belle

DEBATERS ANNOUNCE TENTATIVE PROGRAM

Beta Gamma Prepares For Most Strenuous Schedule in Years

A tentative list of coming debates was released yesterday by Joseph McNamara, secretary of Beta Gamma Debating Society. Although incomplete, this list reveals one of the most ambitious undertakings of any Villanova debating team in recent years. Over fifteen debates have already taken place since September; twice that number is anticipated for the coming season.

Go On Road

Many trips have been scheduled. Brief visits will be made Up-State to meet Bucknell, Albright, and Penn State; to New York for Manhattan, C.C.N.Y., and Fordham; to New Jersey for Georgian Court, Upsala and Rutgers; to Maryland for Maryland U. and to Washington, D.C. for Georgetown. These will be mixed from time to time with longer excursions to New England and possibly Notre Dame and South Carolina. On the New England trip Brown, Dartmouth, Providence, Connecticut State, and Boston U. will be engaged.

Teams from all over the East and far into the West will meet the Beta Gamma debaters on their home grounds at Villanova. Marquette is coming from Madison, Wisconsin; Dayton University from Ohio; and Detroit University from Michigan, are among the visitors.

The Loyola debate on the evening of January 20th in the amphitheatre will break the current lapse in the debate schedule during the past month. In the ensuing

Rev. J. A. Boyle made it known that the Villanova Glee Club is entering a period of earnest practice in preparation for their season's schedule.

The club has been working hard to perfect its renditions of a number of new scores that have been recently acquired. A few engagements have been scheduled and more are expected.

The club has accepted an invitation to sing at Mount Carmel Parish in Philadelphia on March 17th, St. Patrick's Day. There are other invitations that as yet have not been made definite.

Annual Retreat To Be Conducted By Former Prefects

Exercises to be Held From January 31 to February 4 Inclusive

Villanova College's 95th annual retreat exercises will be conducted from January 31 to February 4 inclusive, starting on Monday afternoon with conferences and concluding on Friday morning with Mass and Papal blessing.

The retreat masters for the occasion, as announced by the Rev. Charles P. Brown, O. S. A., chaplain, are Rev. John B. Martin, O. S. A., and Rev. Thomas E. Rogers, O. S. A., both former prefects at the college.

These exercises are conducted yearly by the Augustinian Fathers for the spiritual benefit of the students. The chaplain urges that the students enter this retreat in the proper frame of mind and they will be justly rewarded.

Swingsters Visit To Villanova Will Be First To Any College Campus

Stevens' Band Has Been Tied Down by Contracts; Present Goodman's Arrangements; Has Large Radio Audience

By RENE CAILLIET

"Through the courtesy of the Senior Ball Committee, the Saturday Night Swing Session will come to you from the Villanova Field House on Friday night, February 25." The present senior class pulled this statement out of their bag of many tricks as a new means of presenting something different in entertainment and as a revolt from the conventional "name band" dances.

Hope To Score Hit

By their contracting of Leith Stevens and his Swing Session Orchestra, the members of the class of 1938 sincerely hope to score up another Hit of the Campus as they have so often in the past. The price of admission has been set at four dollars and fifty cents and hours from ten 'til two.

For the last two years or so, swing cats and music lovers the country over have rushed from the dinner table on Saturday night to tune in to the famous swing session. Prominent in the success of all the guest stars and even more outstanding in their individual selections, Lieth Stevens' band has made its niche in the sophisticated jazz world and were it not for individual guest stars stealing the announcer's praise, the name of Stevens would now occupy a place with the swing immortals.

Attracts Many Listeners

"The pseudo - sophisticated patrons of the present dances given in and about Philadelphia have formed a pedestic around a half dozen orchestras and have now begun to believe that they alone can furnish a successful evening," quoted Chairman Louis Biester, "but none of them can deny that

TECHNOLOGY SCHOOL RECEIVES ADDITIONS

Materials Testing Laboratory Enlarged by Installation of New Machines

Four new machines have been added to the Materials Testing Laboratory of the School of Technology, it was learned from J. Stanley Morehouse, professor.

The new additions include: The Brinnell Hardness Machine, Tension and Compression Machine, Impact Testing Machine, and Dynamic and Static Balancing Machine.

Hardness Machine Bought

The Brinnell Hardness Machine is used to determine the hardness of any material by impressing the steel ball on the surface of the material under the standard pressure and from the depth of the impression, and the indication of the hardness is obtained.

The Tension and Compression Machine is used to test the tensil strength of any metal, up to 100,000 pounds per square inch. It can be set up to test compression strength.

The Impact Testing Machine is used to test impact tensil strength and impact sheering strength and impact tension.

The Dynamic and Static Balancing Machine is used to balance flywheels, crank-shafts, armatures, fans, and blowers statically, that is, when at rest and dynamically, that is, when in rotation.

STAFF TO MEET

An important staff meeting will be held in the VILLANOVAN office at one o'clock this afternoon. It is imperative that all staff members be present.

COLLEGE YEARBOOK SPONSORS CONTEST FOR BEST PICTURES

Belle Air Promises Awards For Unique Campus Snapshots

As has been recently announced by the Rev. D. P. Falvey, O.S.A., moderator of Villanova's year book, the editors of the Belle Air are sponsoring a contest for the best snapshots taken in or about the college campus. Although the actual prizes have not been announced, they are certain to be well-worth the efforts of the contestants.

Present Entries Excellent

The few entries that have been received thus far show excellent possibilities and should act as incentives to the rest of the student body. Unless better support is offered, the true purpose of the contest will be defeated—the 1938 edition of the Belle Air will not be pictorially representative of all the phases of student life at Villanova.

Snapshots really insert life into all annuals and for many, principally possess the means of appeal. This "appeal" determines, or can be expressed as, the amount of circulation. From this it logically follows that the "appeal" of former Villanova year books has steadily been improving. In retrospect it is seen that the circulation of the Belle Air has increased from five hundred copies in 1935, through seven hundred in 1936 to the lofty figure of one thousand copies for 1937. The Belle Air editors have fond hopes of bettering this mark, but they can not do so if a more enthusiastic response is not given their appeal for snapshots.

A new feature will be offered by this year's Annual still to all the student-purchasers of the Belle Air. The students are presented with an opportunity of having their names engraved on their personal copies in attractive lettering for an additional nominal charge of thirty-five cents. This is offered to give the student the prerogative of making his year book a very personal one—his own.

After weeks of toil behind closed doors, in booking offices, and on the road to New York, Louis Biester, chairman of the senior dance committee, finally has announced the signing of Lieth Stevens and his "Saturday Night Swing Session" orchestra. Immediately following the announcement of the acquired band, the list of sub-committees that will guide the destinies of the ball scheduled for Friday night, February 25, was released for publication.

Committees Named

Many of the names found on these sub-committees were prominent on last year's committee, the committee that was responsible for one of the most outstanding proms presented on the Villanova campus. The publicity will be handled by Joseph Sanborn, William Bowker and John Simons, while the decorations will be planned and carried out by Harry Guckenberger, Salvatore Angelozzi, Edward Carroll and Leonard Connelly.

The tickets, selling for $4.50 and limited to a definite number, will be distributed by W. John Stahlmann and Joseph Federowicz. They in turn will appoint various members of the senior class to help as a sub-committee.

Last year's promenade chairman, Daniel O'Connor, will collaborate with Joseph W. Biettemmiller to

IT COULD HAPPEN TO YOU

ONE July afternoon during the Preparedness Day Parade twenty-one years ago a dynamite bomb exploded on a San Francisco street corner, killing ten and injuring forty. Tom Mooney and Warren K. Billings, labor organizers, were convicted of the crime. Mooney was sentenced to the electric chair; Billings was given life imprisonment. President Wilson interceded to have Mooney's sentence commuted to life imprisonment.

What led the President of the United States to intervene in this case? Why did a U. S. Senate Committee investigating the Mooney case boldly declare last month that Mooney should be given full unconditional pardon by the Governor of California?

Because the man has been proven innocent. The perjured witnesses have confessed that they were bought by the utility and traction interests. The judge has repented and is pleading for at least a new trial. Nine of the ten who were in that jury are begging for Mooney's release.

Among the reasons Mooney is still in jail are that the politicians who Mooney attacks would lose face, and that a terrific prejudice was created with propaganda, one form of which was three-quarter page newspaper advertisements paid for by the gas, electric, and railroad people. A more important reason is that public opinion has not become crystallized in a strong enough protest.

After studying the facts one understands why Mooney feels, as all citizens should, what Maxwell Anderson's Mio expresses:

"Will you tell me how a man's
To live, and face his life, if he can't believe
That truth's like a fire and will burn thru'
And be seen
Tho' it takes all the years there are?
While I live
I shall be one flame of that fire
It's all the life I have."

The law permits the court to reverse a conviction on a finding of error by the trial judge. Remove an incident the Soviets are capitalizing on. It would be advisable to write the Supreme Court asking freedom for Mooney.

NONSENSE

FOR the past several weeks there has been much talk of a "recession." This recession, as it is most politely termed, is supposed to have been caused by the wicked government, especially that arch enemy of business, Franklin D. Roosevelt. The wicked government caused the recession because its representatives made nasty speeches in which big business was attacked. Big business got frightened, lost "confidence" in the country, curtailed production, and then you had the depression.

What a sweet story.

Perhaps in the nursery rooms they get away with such rubbish, but how can the daily press expect thinking people to swallow this buncombe.

The "explanation" of the recession, or depression, is very nice, but it is far from really explaining the true causes.

If true causes of the depression of 1937-1938 are to be found, they are to be found in the fact that purchasing power of minority income groups was not lifted sufficiently. One of the most important causes derives from the growing scale of profits which the few are drawing out of business. The forgotten man of '32 is still a lonely, forgotten man.

The press has reported many government attacks on business, but the press has failed to point out that the Administration is not attacking all business men, but only that small oligarchy which controls the rest of American business. Ferdinand Lundberg claims that 60 families control America. Senator George Norris says 2000 individuals control America. The exact number does not matter. The important fact is that a small minority group has obtained a strangle hold on American socio-economic life.

People have just got to realize that all government is not all wicked, that all business is not all holy.

YOU HAVE PROVEN IT

EVER since the renewal of the practice of cheering at basketball games some three years ago many students have been wont to say that "cheering at basketball just doesn't take. Basketball cheering is spontaneous." For the longest time because of your attitude and the disheartening performances given by you at almost every home game since that time, we have been inclined to agree with you.

We, too, have felt that organized cheering at Villanova basketball games was useless and, to outside fans, amusing.

But now our opinions have changed. You have proven to us that organized cheering is not altogether hopeless. The Green Terrors from Western Maryland finally aroused you from your shameful lethargy and you cheered. It can't be denied. The cheering during the second half of Saturday's game was the best ever heard in that gym at any of the Villanova games. No doubt your display of spirit greatly aided our basketeers and enabled them to overcome the lead the fighting Terrors had gained over them.

You have proven to the college authorities and yourselves that cheering at basketball is not useless. Now that you have been what can be done, stay with the team, and whether the game is exciting or not let them know by your cheering that you are with them to win and bring another unsullied record to Villanova College.

Editor's Note—Ross Arnold is responsible for this week's pillar, so what appears here-in should not be held against the regular columnist.

BEWARE cynical cohorts at this time of year,
Of that Ghost of Failure we all revere.
Crashing through college hamlet, village and vale
Invisible, he leaves a broken, blood-marked trail
Of tiny red marks on snow-white paper slains,
Reminding us of unopened books, and sins
Of dreaming, do-nothing, labor-lost days
When wishing, not doing, led us into the maze
Of mid-year failures, we now see well on their way
To be criticized by families; scrutinized by friends,
Causing them to stop sending those fives and tens,
And leave us hating that "Galloping Ghost"—Flunk!
Whose red-tipped swinging brush is a sign we're sunk.

"They spend their days trying to out-wise crack each other with miserable puns," he said. We take exception to this statement, . . . Our wisecrackers are the best in the country. . . . I offer examples:

Father Mahoney, decrying the student's shrunken vocabularies, attempted to explain the meaning of the word "guise.". . ."It's an attitude," he said, groping for the right definition. . . . The class thought about it for a minute and suddenly Cavanaugh sotto voiced: "Who's an attitude? That's going too far."

Jim Forkin, the Frosh jumping jack, was a bit puzzled by the word, "pensive." He sought Cash Haggerty, Alumni's learned lexicographer, and asked, "What's the meaning of the word 'pensive'?" Cash thought for a moment and replied: "It's the first part of the name of a state—Pensive-annia."

The Observer

THE OBSERVER wants to make an apology. At the end of last week's column we had a serious discussion of school work, and then followed it with a crack about a Freshman in Mendel Hall and a crack about Art Raimo. We want to make it plain that these two paragraphs were unrelated. Many persons took it to mean that we were taking them to task. Such was not the case. We regret any misunderstandings.

Our Southern Freshman has just gone scientific on us by trying to prove the theory of the missing link. Of course, he didn't have much to do to do that, but here is the story. After bargaining for half an hour, Cash Haggerty finally worked the price on a monkey down low enough for him to swing the deal. This isn't Cash's story, you know (he doesn't "remember"). Anyhow, to make a long story short, Cash came back to the college and woke up Sunday morning with his new monkey, Jock, sleeping quite sweetly beside him in the bed. Several incidents followed in quick succession as this monkey tale developed over the week-end. First, there was the question of food. No one knew what to feed a monkey, but when our Jock took a bite out of Cash, the problem was solved. Cash was a bit disgruntled. After being transferred from room to room, Jock finally ended up in the custody of Matt Phelan, who received the monkey free of charge. Matt, the business man, sold Jock for $2.00. Ring up $2.00 cold profit for our Matt. When you hear a weird chattering in Alumni Hall, you can be sure it is either Cash or Jock. But that doesn't matter much. One is as bad as the other. The thing the Observer wants to know is this: who has the most sense? Cash or Jock? We wonder.

200 COUPLES PACK ACADEMY OF MUSIC AT SENIOR FORMAL

"Bob" Fallon's Orchestra Featured at Successful Belle Aire Ball on Jan. 18

The outstanding event of the Winter social season took place at the Academy of Music, Philadelphia, on Friday, January 18, when over two hundred Villanovans and their fair partners danced from ten until two to the pleasing strains of Bob Fallon's orchestra.

Arriving at the fashionable ballroom about ten o'clock, the eagerly expectant couples were presented with blue, calfskin bound dance cards with the seal of Villanova inscribed upon them, and a unique favor in the form of a stationery portfolio made of leather stamped with the Villanova seal and the name and date of the event.

Ballroom Crowded

From the beginning, the Belle Aire Ball was stamped with the dye of success. At ten o'clock, the floor was already filled with dancing couples. As the evening hours passed along, couple after couple thronged the smooth surface of the mirrored shrine of the terpsicores until there was scarcely any room left for dancing. Influenced by the stirring music and the pleasing environment, all those who were present caught the spirit of the evening at an early hour and maintained it throughout the entire affair. Happy couples, gracefully dancing, or gaily chattering in the alcoves gave an impression of hilarity which was characteristic of the Senior Belle Aire Ball.

The "Femmes"

Pretty misses, representing the pulchritude of several states and gorgeously gowned in a riot of colors, afforded a pleasing contrast against the conventional black-and-white effect of their escorts. Cocktail jackets and evening capes whose shimmering scales reflected the spotlights into exotic refraction, were a feature of the evening.

Varieties

Borrowing a phrase from our fellow columnist, O'Mahoney, VILLANOVAtions to the Seniors for giving us a chance to see in person the CBS Swing Club Band with Lieth Stevens directing. Many of the lads will be pleased at this opportunity to hear one of the country's best swing outfits. It is surprising the number of students at Villanova who have not heard about this organization, but with proper publicity, all Philadelphia will want to see these lads. Again we compliment the Class of '38 on being the first to introduce the Stevens aggregation to the collegiate world in person.

POLL RESULTS: Gentlemen, the results! Thanks to you, and you, and I do mean you, we have here the results of a very successful poll. There were 963 votes cast and over 45 orchestras selected! Let us go into a huddle and discuss this matter together. From the very beginning the consensus of opinion of the student body seemed to indicate that Hal Kemp would run away with the balloting. Hal didn't exactly accomplish this feat, Tommy Dorsey was right on his tail till the very end. A surprise feature of the contest was the selection of Sammy Kaye in third place. Rhythmically speaking, little difference can be noticed among the "name" bands. Each has an outstanding characteristic, naturally, and that is its type of playing. But it must be considered that upon a national rating very few ballots differ between the first ten.

It can be said that if Fred Waring had a radio program, he would be among the first five in our poll. Fred was in much favor with the college folk, but since his exodus to cinema land he has lost much prestige, or rather remembrance, here in the East. Since that time others have come up. So it goes.

Coming back to Sammy Kaye. Sammy, when he first organized his band had confidence in it and a vision that some day he would be tops. First he took on a different style of music and then more important he had to make a name for himself. How to get it? By a brilliant idea, it was Sammy's proposition to buck Benny Goodman at any dance free of charge or for a small sum of money. It worked. Dance lads and lassies began wondering. Where had he been all this time? Naturally enough, many did not care for Goodman, and when orchestras buck each other you are bound to get rhythm, and each time this happened Sammy was on top. So there we are. Mr. Kaye now has a name, and as far as the results are concerned he tops Horace Heidt, Mr. Goodman himself, Guy Lombardo, Russ Morgan and more.

For Hal Kemp, we can only say he deserves it. For Horace Heidt, as the poll shows he's still on top. But Tommy Dorsey has come a long way to fame and recognition. A little bit of sorrow must be felt for his less fortunate brother Jimmy. Jimmy only polled two votes. However, the contest is over until next year, the king of them all has been crowned, and all we need here at Villanova are two good orchestras for the Proms.

One ingenious Pre-Med wrote on his ballot, "Let's have recordings and please everybody." Well, he's got something there too. We are surprised to notice that two very distinguished and eminent characters of the school had voted. We appreciated that very much. But what took us by storm was the orchestra's that they voted for. On one of them in the following order appeared Lacky Millinder, Claude Hopkins and Fletcher Henderson. And when we looked at the name we were dumbfounded. Was it an experiment in psychology or could it have been the effects? It was signed Dr. Wm. P. McHugh, Dean of Education; we wonder? The other ballot favored Ozzie Nelson, Clyde McCoy and Hal Kemp in the order named. This individual must be burglee. It was signed,, "Louie, The Pie Shoppe." But something of the odor of dead fish passed our nostrils. The writing of each was similar, even the way the "Q's" were dotted. Strange! Could a gentleman of Villanova be possibly lowering himself to the level of a double-voter? Would such a thought enter so brilliant and illustrious a mind? Impossible.

Well, it was all in fun anyway and no harm could have been meant. As a result we investigated the case. We sent our best double-voter detective on the chase and told him to spare no expense as long as it was within the walls of Mendel Hall. After much expense, if I may impress that upon you, we caught the guilty one. Before we ascertained his guilt, however, and in order to give him a fair chance, we conducted scientific experiments to prove to him that he actually was the guilty one. Well, Barney "Double-Voter" Bellew finally confessed. All is forgiven, Barney. So without further adieu we present a box-score of the results. Gentlemen, they are yours!

Introducing

By ALBERT P. ZOGBY

UNTIL the year 1915, not withstanding the fact that the great European war had broken out, the month of June was just another month; the fourteenth day of that month was just another day in the Village of Whitestone, L.I. Since that year however, the month of June had turned for the better and the fourteenth day has inspired at least one person to say, "Ah, what is so rare as a day in June?" and under his breath, "especially the fourteenth."

With this bit of personal slamming allow me to introduce the "arguelngist" individual on the campus, Alan, (don't spell my name with two l's) Francis Dowling. We don't mean a pugnacious sort of fellow with a perennial chip on his shoulder, but a mild good-natured sort who has a weakness to take issue with any sort of opinion put forth by his associates, especially if it pertains to the New Deal and its policies.

When Alan Francis reached the age when most children learn their ABC's he was busy choosing his career. His mind was very much upset with the strenuous task of choosing between operating a steam shovel, or firing the boilers on one of the Lackawanna ferries on the near-by East River. He had his family so upset that they decided to send him to the local parochial school, where he worried the good sisters for eight years. Finally not being able to put up with young Alan, they presented him with a diploma and on with this he proceeded to the able Christian Brothers, where he enrolled at St. Francis Xavier Military Academy in New York City. Here he began his athletic career delighting his coaches with the dignity and grace with which he conducted himself on the polished wood of the players bench and then to rush in at the critical moment when the varsity, having earned a rest, cleared Alan and his cohorts off the bench.

Although his athletic career had nothing to do with his next step, Alan Francis decided that he did not quite like the atmosphere about Xavier and forthwith withdrew and transfered his sympathies and talents to Dwight Prep, also in New York City. Here he blossomed forth and became a shining star in baseball and track, winning his letter in both these sports.

Upon graduating from Dwight, Alan looked about for another institution of higher learning and upon the recommendation of family and friends he enrolled at Seton Hall College, in Orange, New Jersey.

At Seton Hall Alan learned the finer things in life and switched his attentions from sports to Drama. As a member of the Seton Hall Dramatic organization he helped write a drama of early Rome and of course the Romans, believing in the adage "when in Rome do as the Romans." To further insure success to the work of Art he decided to play one of the leading roles. He performed the task so well that if monograms were given for dramatics he would surely have earned one. Beside his dramatic venture Alan Francis also became interested in journalism (a forward step when compared to firing boilers on ferries) and became a member of the staff of the Seton Hall Weekly, and finally earned himself a weekly column in the short space of one year.

Again the bug of higher learning bit, and again Alan Francis responded. It was in the Summer of 1936 that Alan decided on entering the acme of perfection in Collegiate learning, Villanova College. At Villanova he continued with his pre medical work, enrolling in the school of science. It was not long before he made his presence felt with his active interests. Joining the Lambda Kappa Delta Fraternity in his junior year, he has the distinction of being the first person to climb the ladder from fraternity pledge to fraternity president in the short space of three months.

Alan Francis has not neglected his social life and may be seen once in a while in a nearby town, calling upon a fair young damsel who day hops to Rosemont College.

IT COULD HAPPEN TO YOU

ONE July afternoon during the Preparedness Day Parade twenty-one years ago a dynamite bomb exploded on a San Francisco street corner, killing ten and injuring forty. Tom Mooney and Warren K. Billings, labor organizers, were convicted of the crime. Mooney was sentenced to the electric chair; Billings was given life imprisonment. President Wilson interceded to have Mooney's sentence commuted to life imprisonment.

What led the President of the United States to intervene in this case? Why did a U. S. Senate Committee investigating the Mooney case boldly declare last month that Mooney should be given full unconditional pardon by the Governor of California?

Because the man has been proven innocent. The perjured witnesses have confessed that they were bought by the utility and traction interests. The judge has repented and is pleading for at least a new trial. Nine of the ten who were in that jury are begging for Mooney's release.

Among the reasons Mooney is still in jail are that the politicians who Mooney attacks would lose face, and that a terrific prejudice was created with propaganda, one form of which was three-quarter page newspaper advertisements paid for by the gas, electric, and railroad people. A more important reason is that public opinion has not become crystallized in a strong enough protest.

After studying the facts one understands why Mooney feels, as all citizens should, what Maxwell Anderson's Mio expresses:

"Will you tell me how a man's
To live, and face his life, if he can't believe
That truth's like a fire and will burn thru'
And be seen
Tho' it takes all the years there are?
While I live
I shall be one flame of that fire
It's all the life I have."

The law permits the court to reverse a conviction on a finding of error by the trial judge. Remove an incident the Soviets are capitalizing on. It would be advisable to write the Supreme Court asking freedom for Mooney.

NONSENSE

FOR the past several weeks there has been much talk of a "recession." This recession, as it is most politely termed, is supposed to have been caused by the wicked government, especially that arch enemy of business, Franklin D. Roosevelt. The wicked government caused the recession because its representatives made nasty speeches in which big business was attacked. Big business got frightened, lost "confidence" in the country, curtailed production, and then you had the depression.

What a sweet story.

Perhaps in the nursery rooms they get away with such rubbish, but how can the daily press expect thinking people to swallow this buncombe.

The "explanation" of the recession, or depression, is very nice, but it is far from really explaining the true causes.

If true causes of the depression of 1937-1938 are to be found, they are to be found in the fact that purchasing power of minority income groups was not lifted sufficiently. One of the most important causes derives from the growing scale of profits which the few are drawing out of business. The forgotten man of '32 is still a lonely, forgotten man.

The press has reported many government attacks on business, but the press has failed to point out that the Administration is not attacking all business men, but only that small oligarchy which controls the rest of American business. Ferdinand Lundberg claims that 60 families control America. Senator George Norris says 2000 individuals control America. The exact number does not matter. The important fact is that a small minority group has obtained a strangle hold on American socio-economic life.

People have just got to realize that all government is not all wicked, that all business is not all holy.

YOU HAVE PROVEN IT

EVER since the renewal of the practice of cheering at basketball games some three years ago many students have been wont to say that "cheering at basketball just doesn't take. Basketball cheering is spontaneous." For the longest time because of your attitude and the disheartening performances given by you at almost every home game since that time, we have been inclined to agree with you.

We, too, have felt that organized cheering at Villanova basketball games was useless and, to outside fans, amusing.

But now our opinions have changed. You have proven to us that organized cheering is not altogether hopeless. The Green Terrors from Western Maryland finally aroused you from your shameful lethargy and you cheered. It can't be denied. The cheering during the second half of Saturday's game was the best ever heard in that gym at any of the Villanova games. No doubt your display of spirit greatly aided our basketeers and enabled them to overcome the lead the fighting Terrors had gained over them.

You have proven to the college authorities and yourselves that cheering at basketball is not useless. Now that you have been what can be done, stay with the team, and whether the game is exciting or not let them know by your cheering that you are with them to win and bring another unsullied record to Villanova College.

Editor's Note—Ross Arnold is responsible for this week's pillar, so what appears here-in should not be held against the regular columnist.

BEWARE cynical cohorts at this time of year,
Of that Ghost of Failure we all revere.
Crashing through college hamlet, village and vale
Invisible, he leaves a broken, blood-marked trail
Of tiny red marks on snow-white paper sailing,
Reminding us of unopened books, and sins
Of dreaming, do-nothing, labor-lost days
When wishing, not doing, led us into the maze
Of mid-year failures, we now see well on their way
To be criticized by families; scrutinized by friends,
Causing them to stop sending those lives and tens,
And leave us hating that "Galloping Ghost"—Flunk!
Whose red-tipped swinging brush is a sign we're sunk.

"They spend their days trying to out-wise crack each other with miserable puns," he said. We take exception to this statement. . . . Our wisecrackers are the best in the country. . . . I offer examples:

Father Mahoney, decrying the student's shrunken vocabularies, attempted to explain the meaning of the word "guise." . . ."It's an attitude," he said, groping for the right definition. . . . The class thought about it for a minute and suddenly Cavanaugh sotto voiced: "Who's an attitude? That's going too far."

Jim Forkin, the Frosh juniping jack, was a bit puzzled by the word, "pensive." He sought Cash Haggerty, Alumni's learned lexicographer, and asked, "What's the meaning of the word 'pensive'?" Cash thought for a moment and replied: "It's the first part of the name of a state—Pensive-annia."

The Observer

THE OBSERVER wants to make an apology. At the end of last week's column we had a serious discussion of school work, and then followed it with a crack about a Freshman in Mendel Hall and a crack about Art Raimo. We want to make it plain that these two paragraphs were unrelated. Many persons took it to mean that we were taking them to task. Such was not the case. We regret any misunderstandings.

Our Southern Freshman has just gone scientific on us by trying to prove the theory of the missing link. Of course, he didn't have much to do to do that, but here is the story. After bargaining for half an hour, Cash Haggerty finally worked the price on a monkey down low enough for him to swing the deal. This isn't Cash's story, you know (he doesn't "remember"). Anyhow, to make a long story short, Cash came back to the college and woke up Sunday morning with his new monkey, Jock, sleeping quite sweetly beside him in the bed. Several incidents followed in quick succession as this monkey tale developed over the week-end. First, there was the question of food. No one knew what to feed a monkey, but when our Jock took a bite out of Cash, the problem was solved. Cash was a bit disgruntled. After being transferred from room to room, Jock finally ended up in the custody of Matt Phelan, who received the monkey free of charge. Matt, the business man, sold Jock for $2.00. Ring up $2.00 cold profit for our Matt. When you hear a weird chattering in Alumni Hall, you can be sure it is either Cash or Jock. But that doesn't matter much. One is as bad as the other. The thing the Observer wants to know is this: who has the most sense? Cash or Jock? We wonder.

THE VILLANOVAN Nine Years Ago

200 COUPLES PACK ACADEMY OF MUSIC AT SENIOR FORMAL

"Bob" Fallon's Orchestra Featured at Successful Belle Aire Ball on Jan. 18

The outstanding event of the Winter social season took place at the Academy of Music, Philadelphia, on Friday, January 18, when over two hundred Villanovans and their fair partners danced from ten until two to the pleasing strains of Bob Fallon's orchestra.

Arriving at the fashionable ballroom about ten o'clock, the eagerly expectant couples were presented with blue, calfskin bound dance cards with the seal of Villanova inscribed upon them, and a unique favor in the form of a stationery portfolio made of leather stamped with the Villanova seal and the name and date of the event.

Ballroom Crowded

From the beginning, the Belle Aire Ball was stamped with the dye of success. At ten o'clock, the floor was already filled with dancing couples. As the evening hours passed along, couple after couple thronged the smooth surface of the mirrored shrine of the terpsicores until there was scarcely any room left for dancing. Influenced by the stirring music and the pleasing environment, all those who were present caught the spirit of the evening at an early hour and maintained it throughout the entire affair. Happy couples, gracefully dancing, or gaily chattering in the alcoves gave an impression of hilarity which was characteristic of the Senior Belle Aire Ball.

The "Femmes"

Pretty misses, representing the pulchritude of several states and gorgeously gowned in a riot of colors, afforded a pleasing contrast against the conventional black-and-white effect of their escorts. Cocktail jackets and evening capes whose shimmering scales reflected the spotlights into exotic refraction, were a feature of the evening.

Varieties

Borrowing a phrase from our fellow columnist, O'Mahoney, VILLANOVAtions to the Seniors for giving us a chance to see in person the CBS Swing Club Band with Lieth Stevens directing. Many of the lads will be pleased at this opportunity to hear one of the country's best swing outfits. It is surprising the number of students at Villanova who have not heard about this organization, but with proper publicity, all Philadelphia will want to see these lads. Again we compliment the Class of '38 on being the first to introduce the Stevens aggregation to the collegiate world in person.

POLL RESULTS: Gentlemen, the results! Thanks to you, and you, and I do mean you, we have here the results of a very successful poll. There were 963 votes cast and over 45 orchestras selected! Let us go into a huddle and discuss this matter together. From the very beginning the consensus of opinion of the student body seemed to indicate that Hal Kemp would run away with the balloting. Hal didn't exactly accomplish this feat, Tommy Dorsey was right on his tail till the very end. A surprise feature of the contest was the selection of Sammy Kaye in third place. Rhythmically speaking, little difference can be noticed among the "name" bands. Each has an outstanding characteristic, naturally, and that is its type of playing. But it must be considered that upon a national rating very few ballots differ between the first ten.

It can be said that if Fred Waring had a radio program, he would be among the first five in our poll. Fred was in much favor with the college folk, but since his exodus to cinema land he has lost much prestige, or rather remembrance, here in the East. Since that time others have come up. So it goes.

Coming back to Sammy Kaye. Sammy, when he first organized his band had confidence in it and a vision that some day he would be tops. First he took on a different style of music and then more important he had to make a name for himself. How to get it? By a brilliant idea, it was Sammy's proposition to buck Benny Goodman at any dance free of charge or for a small sum of money. It worked. Dance lads and lassies began wondering. Where had he been all this time? Naturally enough, many did not care for Goodman, and when orchestras buck each other you are bound to get rhythm, and each time this happened Sammy was on top. So there we are, Mr. Kaye now has a name, and as far as the results are concerned he tops Horace Heidt, Mr. Goodman himself, Guy Lombardo, Russ Morgan and more.

For Hal Kemp, we can only say he deserves it. For Horace Heidt, as the poll shows he's still on top. But Tommy Dorsey has come a long way to fame and recognition. A little bit of sorrow must be felt for his less fortunate brother Jimmy. Jimmy was only polled two votes. However, the contest is over until next year, the king of them all has been crowned, and all we need here at Villanova are two good orchestras for the Proms.

One ingenious Pre-Med wrote on his ballot, "Let's have recordings and please everybody." Well, he's got something there too. We are surprised to notice that two very distinguished and eminent characters of the school had voted. We appreciated that very much. But what took us by storm was the orchestra's that they voted for. On one of them in the following order appeared Lucky Millinder, Claude Hopkins and Fletcher Henderson. And when we looked at the name we were dumbfounded. Was it an experiment in psychology or could it have been the effects? It was signed Dr. Wm. P. McHugh, Dean of Education; we wonder? The other ballot favored Ozzie Nelson, Clyde McCoy and Hal Kemp in the order named. This individual must be bourgoise. It was signed, "Loule, The Pie Shoppe." But something of the odor of dead fish passed our nostrils. The writing of each was similar, even the way the "Q's" were dotted. Strange! Could a gentleman of Villanova be possibly lowering himself to the level of a double-voter? Would such a thought enter so brilliant and illustrious a mind? Impossible.

Well, it was all in fun anyway and no harm could have been meant. As a result we investigated the case. We sent our best double-voter detective on the chase and told him to spare no expense as long as it was within the walls of Mendel Hall. After much expense, if I may impress that upon you, we caught the guilty one. Before we ascertained his guilt, however, and in order to give him a fair chance, we conducted scientific experiments to prove to him that he actually was the guilty one. Well, Barney "Double-Voter" Bellew finally confessed. All is forgiven, Barney. So without further adieu we present a box-score of the results. Gentlemen, they are yours!

By ALBERT F. ZOGBY

UNTIL the year 1915, not withstanding the fact that the great European war had broken out, the month of June was just another month; the fourteenth day of that month was just another day in the Village of Whitestone, L.I. Since that year however, the month of June had turned for the better and the fourteenth day has inspired at least one person to say, "Ah, what is so rare as a day in June?" and under his breath, "especially the fourteenth."

With this bit of personal slamming allow me to introduce the "argueingist" individual on the campus, Alan, (don't spell my name with two l's) Francis Dowling. We don't mean a pugnacious sort of fellow with a perennial chip on his shoulder, but a mild good-natured sort who has a weakness to take issue with any sort of opinion put forth by his associates, especially if it pertains to the New Deal and its policies.

When Alan Francis reached the age when most children learn their ABC's he was busy choosing his career. His mind was very much upset with the strenuous task of choosing between operating a steam shovel, or being the boilers on one of the Lackawanna ferries on the near-by East River. He had his family so upset that they decided to send him to the local parochial school, where he worried the good sisters for eight years. Finally not being able to put up with young Alan, they presented him with a diploma and on with this he proceeded to the able Christian Brothers, where he enrolled at St. Francis Xavier Military Academy in New York City. Here he began his athletic career delighting his coaches with the dignity and grace with which he conducted himself on the polished wood of the players bench and then to rush in at the critical moment when the varsity, having earned a rest, cleared Alan and his cohorts off the bench.

Although his athletic career had nothing to do with his next step, Alan Francis decided that he did to rush in at the critical moment when the varsity, having earned a rest, cleared Alan and his cohorts off the bench.

Although his athletic career had nothing to do with his next step, Alan Francis decided that he did not quite like the atmosphere about Xavier and forthwith withdrew and transfered his sympathies and talents to Dwight Prep, also in New York City. Here he blossomed forth and became a shining star in baseball and track, winning his letter in both these sports.

Upon graduating from Dwight, Alan looked about for another institution of higher learning and upon the recommendation of family and friends he enrolled at Seton Hall College, in Orange, New Jersey.

At Seton Hall Alan learned the finer things in life and switched his attentions from sports to Drama. As a member of the Seton Hall Dramatic organization he helped write a drama of early Rome and of course the Romans, believing in the adage "when in Rome do as the Romans." To further insure success to the work of Art he decided to play one of the leading roles. He performed the task so well that if monograms were given for dramatics he would surely have earned one. Beside his dramatic venture Alan Francis also became interested in journalism (a forward step when compared to firing boilers on ferries) and became a member of the staff of the Seton Hall Weekly, and finally earned himself a weekly column in the short space of one year.

Again the bug of higher learning bit, and again Alan Francis responded. It was in the Summer of 1936 that Alan decided on entering the acme of perfection in Collegiate learning, Villanova College. At Villanova he continued with his pre medical work, enrolling in the school of science. It was not long before he made his presence felt with his active interests. Joining the Lambda Kappa Delta Fraternity in his junior year, he has the distinction of being the first person to climb the ladder from fraternity pledge to fraternity president in the short space of three months.

Alan Francis has not neglected his social life and may be seen once in a while in a nearby town, calling upon a fair young damsel who day hops to Rosemont College.

YEARLING DEBATERS FACE BUSY SEASON

Will Meet Princeton, Fordham, and St. John's Universities

At the last meeting of the Freshmen Debating Society, a team composed of George Flannery, Murray Zealor, Thomas Hughes, and James Donovan was selected. Plans have been formulated for contests with the debating societies of neighboring Haverford College, and Princeton University. No definite dates have been decided upon as yet, but both contests will be away from home.

The week-end of February 17 will find the team traveling to New York to accept the challenge of St. John's University Freshmen debating society, and in addition contests with St. Peter's of Jersey City, Fordham University and an unnamed Prep school are planned. In all debates the topic will be, Resolved: That Munitions Factories Should Be Government Controlled.

Ssh! Vagrants On Rosemont Campus? No! Attendees At Poverty Dance

Christian Front Affair Success Despite "Pope" Deverall and "The Mad Russian"; VILLANOVAN Officials Win Two Prizes

See you at the Poverty Ball . . . and more than 150 collegians danced in an atmosphere of jovial informality when a new type of social was introduced in the Villanova vicinity last Friday night. The Poverty Ball, presentation of the editors of the Christian Front, was conducted in the gymnasium at Rosemont College.

A line of clothes, conspicuously drying at one end of the ballroom, seemed perfectly oblivious to the danceable rhythms rising from the other extreme where Bob Routillier and his Kenmore Orchestra produced a syncopation of modern melodies.

Entre—Les Femmes

When the comely lassies from osemont took the place by storm a few moments before the tenth hour, faces among the Villanova stag line took on beaming expressions. Basil Dobrowlski, Chief Relief Purloiner, was placed behind the eight ball by the instant surge of relief applicants. What puzzled him most was the innumerable "Smiths and Browns" who attend local colleges these days.

From all intentions the affair was staged for the benefit of those unfortunates who suffered before the New Deal and the CIO took form. Notwithstanding . . . a few costumes were worn. Tommy Haines, sporting the latest in raccoon coats, seemed in the right pew, but . . .

Now—The Dole

Prizes were awarded for the best . . pardon, the worst . . . attires. Christiana Sin Claire, Rosemont, received a fashionable black and brown compact and cigaret set for her depiction of a demure mendicant. We wonder if the dark glasses were part of her costume or mere protection from curious eyes . . . or did Frank Castles have anything to do with it? Plaudits to Garden City L. I.

VILLANOVAN boss Joe Toland was awarded the men's prize for original costume array. The Ed in Chief in a battered old felt and bedraggled suit portrayed the CIO member who "was done no good." When Joe stepped up to receive his booty from the judges a few kind-hearted individuals reached into their jeans for the traditional "copper." The prize winner received a stout set of military brushes . . which he truly needs. Unemployed street-cleaners were represented by Copy Editor Bob Howe, who really "pushed the broom" for his box of chocolates . . . some folks say that candy never reached the Villanova campus. Or are we wrong, Mackin?

Of course . . there was the "Mad Russian," that good-natured, belligerent fellow in Cossack disguise, emitting his well known war-cry . . . "Ravowl-u-shun!"

Many obstacles confronted the committee before the band and price were definitely settled, due to their quest for something different to present, but at last they have settled down to the final details with high hopes for success on their coming affair.

Senior Student Heads Civil Reception Committee; Plea for Dues Made

Ward Scanlan, senior engineer, was appointed chairman of the Civil Reception Committee of the A. S. C. E., it was announced today by Joseph O'Brien, president. Scanlan will be supplemented by a committee of two. Joseph Scully, sophomore, and James Carroll, junior, have been named to aid him.

In the meeting conducted yesterday, Secretary Carroll made an earnest plea for funds in order to bring the society out of the red, reminded the group that the payment of dues was imperative to the continuance of the chapter activities as a recognized campus society.

The Civil Reception Committee will be of benefit to the Freshmen. During the first semester, the freshmen engineers were unable to participate in any society activities due to their many studies.

WILDCAT COURTMEN ADD TO STREAK

MURAL RING SHOW FEATURES COMEDY AND GOOD FIGHTING

Mendel Day - Hops Dominate Meet With Four Entries In Four Bouts

By BILL BOWKER

Before a large crowd of students and notables Villanova's sixth intercollegiate boxing season opened with Bryan Hayes as the referee. Intercollegiate rules were in force.

At approximately 8:15, announcer Murray Zealor introduced the principals of the first bout, Al Hall of Mendel Day-Hops and Dick Archer of the Lighthouse Boys club of Philadelphia.

The boys started slowly with little action in the first, but Hall pressed the fighting in the second, although Archer got some good lefts as the round ended. Archer, though outweighed gave a very good account of himself in the third round but Hall pressed the fighting again and seemed to be the aggressor, Referee Bryan Hayes awarded the decision to Hall amid the boos of the assembled multitude.

Austin's dark horse, Bill Dobbins and Frank Hiney of the Mendel Day-Hops tangled in the first Intramural tussle of the evening in the featherweight class. Hiney pressed in the first round and seemed to be hitting more than getting hit. Clinches were frequent, and Hayes had to halt the fight to restore silence. The second canto was a repetition of the first, with both battlers seemingly a bit tired. Hiney again looked to have the advantage, but there was not much difference between the two. Dobbins got in some good in-fighting at the opening of the final round and had Hiney in trouble a few times. There was plenty of clinching throughout the match, and Dobbins was declared the winner after an exciting last round. The crowd clamored for action every time the boys clinched. Mixed cheers and boos greeted the decision.

Murray Zealor took this moment to introduce one of the noted guests. He started with George P. "Gerry" Nugent, president of the Philadelphia Phillies.

George Bourus and Frank Melagrana renewed the Austin-Fediganfeud with the former representing the West Enders and the latter the Fire Chiefs. Both boys came out fighting and some action seemed imminent. Clinches were frequent, but the boys broke cleanly. Bourus, seconded by Tommy Carbine and Bill Pisclone, came out in the second landing some good punches, but never had the Austinite in serious trouble. Bourus pressed hard and Melagrana retaliated by clinching. Pat Kelly and Bob O'Brien gave Melagrana a talking to and he came out fighting. Bourus got in some nice punches, and Melagrana saved himself by clinching, tying up the Fediganite again and again. Melagrana rallied as the fight neared its end, but the spurt was not enough to gain him the decision. Austinites jeered as Fediganites cheered when Hayes gave the nod to Bourus.

"Battler" Charles Farsworth and "Slugger" Jim Coughlin, both of Mendel Day-Hops, had the spectators in stitches as they put on a comedy act of two rounds. Amid cheers and boos the lads dropped to the floor every time a glove came within a mile of his face. Midway between the first canto the lads put on a sprint, and one tripped over the other as the round ended.

Charlie Calahan and Tommy Haynes entered the ring as the VILLANOVAN went to press.

Getting Set to Topple Wildcats

Blue Quint Faces Strong Foes This Week; Buek Track Captain

Westminster and Duquesne Play Host to Severance Squad

By JOHN L. SIMONS

Starting with the Westminster College game this evening, Villanova's basketeers swing into the tough part of their season's schedule. The 'Cats finish their invasion of Western Pennsylvania with Duquesne Thursday night and return to town to meet Temple and Fordham at Convention Hall and the Arena respectively. These four clubs rate with the best in the country, and they will test the real strength of the Villanova five.

Temple Battle Ahead

The traditional battle with Temple is the most important on all counts. Temple has a top-ranking outfit that gained national recognition when it defeated the peerless Hank Luisetti and his Stanford mates.

The Owls have fashioned their attack this year around the three veterans, Don Shields and Howie "Birdlegs" Black, the snipers, and Mike Bloom, towering center. This trio has received plenty of able assistance from Ed Bole and Don Henderson, a pair of sophs, who have shown rare form in Temple's climax wins. To date the Templars have lost but one game, a 39-22 setback at the hands of Georgetown; this was due no doubt very much to the Owls' overconfidence.

Westminster will also offer tough opposition. As in previous years, the Titans are displaying a brand of basketball that is setting the pace in the East. Under the capable direction of Grover Washabaugh, the Titans have been molded into a team which leaves no doubt as to its ability to defeat opponents of the better class without too much trouble. The Villanova-Westminster battle promises to be a thriller and one of the more important games in the East.

Washabaugh's team lines up with Andy Demo, the most elusive man on the team, and John Krivosh, ball handler extraordinary and a "feeder," at the forward posts. Paul Backus, a flashy in-and-outer, cavorts at center. Melvin Miller and Ken Grubb, the team's leading scorer, perform in the back court.

Duquesne on Rebound

Duquesne, as usual, will be a hard team to down. The Pittsburghers were beaten 92-27 by Stanford, but the hapless Dukes had the misfortune of meeting Hank Luisetti on his record-breaking night. That fray will always be remembered by court followers as the game in which Hank racked up his record of 50 points.

The Red and Blue will be on the rebound from that setback. They are led by Co-captains Joe O'Malley, center and Ernie Fortney, forward. The spark plug nature of Fortney, coupled with the quiet confidence of O'Malley, forms a blended quality of leadership which reaches a peak when the going becomes tough. In addition to being the leaders Fortney and O'Malley are the sharpshooters of the club.

Elmer Krieling, a smooth functioning floorman and crack shot, holds down one of the guard berths. Dan Herling and Charles Darkowski split up the duties at the other guard position. Darkowski is a newcomer and one of the season's finds.

Villanova shouldn't have too much fear of taking their Western opponents into camp. But the Wildcats cannot take these games lightly, as there is a mess of dynamite in both. Montgomery, Duzminski, et al., will have to go at top speed to bring home a pair of victories. The records of the Temple and Fordham teams speak for themselves. They are the two toughest teams on the schedule, and Al Severance is pointing his boys for these meetings.

VILLANOVAN SCORES

The VILLANOVAN basketball team, in strenuous training for that epic struggle with L. K. D., slaughtered the Old Man's Home squad 8-7 in an exhibition game yesterday at the Garden. Coach "Wolf" Tofani expressed himself as satisfied with the scribes' showing.

Selected to Lead Runners; Daily Practice Started

As the first week of intensive training for the trackmen passed, it was announced by Coach "Jumbo" Jim Elliot that Harvey Buek, halfback and hurdler, will captain the Blue runners for the 1938 season.

Has Fine Record

Buek, a Lower Merion boy, is a junior and came to Villanova with an exceptionally fine high school track record. His specialty is the 60-yard high hurdles, and it is in this event that he will compete for the Main Liners. His all - around ability and fight should presage good prospects for the Villanova track enthusiasts.

Evidence of his ability lies in the fact that he lost only one race last year, and that in the Franklin and Marshall meet when he tripped going over one of the last hurdles. He quickly recovered and finished third.

Competing with Buek throughout the track schedule will be Bill Meehan in the same event. In the relay department much is expected with a strong array of Freshman sprinters and dash men reporting to Elliot. Bill Guiteras, speed merchant of last year's yearling aggregation seems to be slated for the anchor position, while Whitey Urbellis, speedy quarterback and sprinter, represents another ex-frosh of whom much is expected.

Many for Relay

The remainder of the relay team will be picked from sophs, juniors and seniors, with Barney Bellew, Jim Hanley, Bill Dobbins, Vince La Brasca and Lou Biester. The two latter men are seniors and may get the call over their less experienced rivals.

Another footballer competing under Elliot is Art Murphy, who will represent the Blue in the high jumping department. Tim Waad, who did so well in last year's intra-mural track meet, is warming

BASKETEERS DEFEAT WESTERN MARYLAND IN EXCITING FRAY

Also Vanquish Dickinson, Catholic University During Week's Activities

By HARRY MAZZEI

Villanova's all winning ways on the ribbed court were very much in jeopardy last Saturday night when the Western Maryland Terrors invaded the Main Line Field House and put up a whale of a battle before going down to a 25-21 defeat. This was the 12th of the season and third of the week for the "Cats," who previously defeated Dickinson and Catholic U.

'Cats Off

The Terrors, who, incidentally, have not won a game all year, caught the Wildcats on a decidedly "off" night and but for the brilliant efforts of George Duzminski probably would have returned home victors. The Villanova quintet hit a new low for the season, as their desperate sallies were thwarted by the Mason and Dixon boys time after time.

Coach Al Severance started his second team against the Green and Gold, but his strategy turned into a boomerang when the Southerners stepped out to an early lead. With four minutes of play remaining in the first half, Severance inserted his first five, but to no avail. As a result the half ended with Western Maryland leading, 14-10. Koegle, with five points, and Stropp, who notched four markers, featured the Terror's attack.

Even after the second half opened the contest proceeded very much

FROSH COURT SQUAD WINS TWO CONTESTS

Extends Victory Streak to Seven in One-Sided Frays During Week

Emulating the fine example set by the Varsity, the Villanova Freshmen continued on their unbeaten ways, stretching their consecutive streak to seven, by racking up victories over the Springfield A. C., of Bordentown, N. J., and the Audubon Catholic Club of the same state. The scores were 34-14 and 30-11 respectively. Both games were run-away affairs, and the Frosh are having a tough time proving their true calibre against such mediocre opposition.

Both games started out with the Yearlings assuming a large lead before their opponents could find the range of the baskets. This was particularly true of the Springfield A. C. game on Friday night when the Blue took a ten to nothing lead and increased it to 18-6 as the initial half ended. The second canto was a repetition of the first as the homesiers accounted for sixteen more points while an obviously tired Springfield crew could muster only one-half as many.

The Audubon Catholic Club presented even less opposition which resulted in a shabby exhibition by both clubs. Passing was inaccurate while the boys were far off form in their shooting. Morris, the Kitten's tall center, played a sterling game and accounted for 15 points.

Fedigan Ties For First Place In 'Murals

MENDEL RESIDENTS UPSET COMMUTERS; GIGOLOS TAKE TWO

Victories Over Both Day-Hop Clubs Knot Court Race; Alumni Wins

With the usual pushing and shoving characteristic of intramural games, the basketball tournament continued on its illustrious way with Alumni beating Austin and C. & F., Fedigan winning two, and the Mendel Day Hops and Residents annexing one apiece.

Although the Austinites boasted a two point lead at half-time, they ended on the short end of a 19-17 count. This was a fast, evenly played fracas with both clubs battling to end on top. Due mainly to DeLuca's last minute field goal, the cohorts from Alumni gained the victory. It was their second win in four starts.

Upsets Prevail

Since upsets were the diet of the week, the Mendel Residents contributed to the couse by handing their Day Hop brothers a 29-28 reverse. This was the first victory of the Residents who appear to have hit their stride. Healy and Finn had 4 goals apiece while Sceiba had three double deckers and one foul, for the Residents, while while the Day Hops were paced by their center, Thorne, who contributed eight markers.

The Day Hops from Mendel suffered their second successive setback at the hands of the champion Fedigan contingent. The Gigolos manifested their superiority from the first whistle until the final gun. The West Enders amassed an 11 point lead at half time which was enough to secure them an easy victory. Starring for the Fediganites were Woods, O'Connell and Totin who annexed ten, ten, and nine points respectively; while the Commuters were led by Keating and Rosenburg who tossed through the hoop five and four double deckers, respectively.

M. D. H. Drops Second

On Thursday evening, the once victorious Mendel Day Hops could not stand prosperity, and dropped another decision, this time to the Austin quintet. They were given a severe going over by the chiefs who rolled up 17 field goals and seven fouls for a total of 41 points while the Residents were rewarded for their efforts with a mere pittance of 16 markers. The Austinites were led on their spectacular offensive by LeBalbo, who donated nine counters to the totals, by his sharpshooting from both outside and inside the foul circle.

The Fediganites, league champions of the first half, together with Alumni continued with the work of destroying any hopes the Commerce and Finance Day Hops had of gaining victories in the second half. They vanquished the hapless business men by scores of 47-34 and 62-29, respectively. The C. & F. dribblers were led by Coupe, who collected a total of 21 points in the two tilts. Fedigan was greatly assisted by the services of O'Connell and Goumy, who dropped a total of 22 markers between them. Alumni had enough points for all to share in the glory but Leahy gathered the Lions share with 10 two pointers being charged to his credit.

In the games of the past week many close contests were held, but the Alumni Austin and Mendel Resident-Mendel Day Hop frays supplied the most thrills. With DeLuca scoring the winning goal in the last minute and the Residents ekin out a one point decision over the highly touted Mendel Day Hops, these games were very eventful in Intramural basketball events.

In the scoring department Keating with 43 points, still retains the lead which he held for most of the first half. Second place is a deadlock between Rosenburg and Leahy who have 34 counters apiece, while O'Connell is a close third with 32 markers. Woods brings up the rear of the first five with 25 counters.

Due to the ensuing examinations, there will probably be no games during that week. The games will be moved back until week after the tests.

Swim Mentor

RUGGERIO FLOCCO, recently appointed coach of the Blue natators, who announced that the National Catholic Interscholastic Swim Meet will be held at Villanova on February 22.

MANY STARS IN SCHOLASTIC SWIM

For the fourth consecutive year Villanova College is sponsoring the National Catholic Interscholastic swimming championship to be held on Washington's birthday.

This fact was revealed by the recently appointed Wildcat swimming mentor, Ruggiero Flocco; accompanying this release was the statement that applications would be put in the mail very shortly.

St. Francis' Prep of Brooklyn, displacing West Catholic as champion last year by a sensational finish to win the meet by four points, will be back with a strong team to maintain their standing.

Gridders to Meet Seven Former Foes On 1938 Card; Eight Contests Booked

Auburn, Bucknell, Manhattan, Boston University, Temple Games Definite; Muhlenberg Newcomer to Wildcat Schedule

By TOM O'MAHONEY.

As it must to every college, schedule-making time comes to Villanova. And with it, the usual crop of headaches for grid Head Man "Clipper" Smith, who piloted the Wildcats to their second undefeated season in Main Line history. In an interview yesterday, "Clipper" revealed that, while the '38 football schedule is still in the tentative stage, eight games are sure to be on the 'Cats' list next year. Six are repeaters from the '37 season, and one is a renewal of an old feud which was last contested in 1936. Auburn, Detroit, Manhattan, Boston U., Temple and Bucknell were all met in '37, while South Carolina, another definitely booked, was met and defeated in the year that Vermont and Maine didn't vote for Roosevelt. Muhlenberg's Mules replace P. M. C. as the opening day foe.

Old Foes Improved

The selection of these five games, plus the probability that one, and possibly two, more intersectional foes will clash with the Blue next year, points to an interesting season for Villanova followers. Auburn is rated as the class of the Southeastern Conference because of its sensational sophomore team; Detroit, as always, will be a tough enemy, and should be thirsting for revenge after three successive setbacks at the hands of the Blue. Manhattan, with its new deal under Herb Kopf, of Washington and Jefferson Rose Bowl fame, should go places again using the quick breaking, semi-Notre Dame offense taught by Lou Little's former understudy at Columbia. And if anyone thinks that the Owls of North Broad Street aren't patiently awaiting next November, they missed that 33-0 debacle up in Temple last Fall. The South Carolina fray will be held at Columbia, S. C., as the climax of the annual State Fair, a gala occasion for the natives of the Gamecock State. To be played on a Friday afternoon, the encounter is expected to be well attended. If you remember, the game last year pitted South Carolina against its intrastate rival, the Citadel, and resulted in a near-riot when a Carolina partisan dashed out upon the gridiron to tackle a touchdown-bound Cadet. So they do take their football seriously down there.

May Travel to Coast

"Clipper" stated that he would like to arrange a trip to the coast if it can be done without disrupting agreements already made. Although Smith would not name any team as a possible rival, this department believes that the choice of a Far Western opponent rests among Loyola of Los Angeles, Santa Clara and San Francisco. Loyola has expressed satisfaction with Villanova and would like to play host to the 'Cats again. There is also the chance that a prominent Southwestern Conference team will appear on the local card, the game to be played away, far away, from Philadelphia. The absence of new Eastern foes is undoubtedly due to the Blue's sensational '37 record—no Atlantic Seaboard team seems anxious to pick up too hot a coal. The nearest thing to a new intrasectional game is seen in the announcement that the 'Cats will meet Rutgers twice next Spring in practice scrimmages.

Bucknell's rugged but usually underrated Bisons will again provide source of worry for Head Man Smith. The Thundering Herd will be met on their home grounds, which bodes evil for the 'Cats. It is to be remembered that in the past four years, of the games played with the Bisons, two were lost and two were won. The two victories were scored on home turf, while the losses occurred up at Lewisburg. Muhlenberg's eleven is tougher than most people give them credit for being. As for Boston University the memory of that 12-0 game of this year will remind fans that the Terriers are plenty to handle, and are definitely on the upgrade. Villanova students will see no games at the Main Line Stadium if present plans are carried out. A majority of the tussles will be on foreign fields.

The card for this year, Elliot's second as mentor, is not completed as yet, but the coach has in mind an extensive indoor season with indoor meets in Boston, Washington, Baltimore and Philadelphia. How the team shapes up will determine whether it will compete in these contests. For the open events, Elliot is planning on using Johnny Maher, sensational sprint man, along with Buek and a few others in these indoor meets. Daily practice is being held on the board track under the North stands of the stadium.

SATURDAY NIGHT'S GAME was the most exciting fray ever played here in many a moon, if not the sloppiest.

—V—

Among all the "Bowl" contests now scattered throughout the country, another is proposed to add to the general confusion. For this new idea, however, one thing can be said, and that is that it's the first of its kind. We are speaking of the "Basket Bowl" as proposed by one Seymour Lipshutz, writing a column called "Fair View" and published in the January 6, issue of the N. Y. U. Commerce Bulletin. This idea, as propounded by Mr. Lipshutz, consists of a battle between a picked metropolitan team and a club from some other section of the nation.

This picked metropolitan team, chosen by vote of the Metropolitan Basketball Writers' Association, would then play a team with the finest record from some other part of the country, the opposition to be picked by the sports writers. He suggests as worthy foe for the New York team, as representatives of the East, the Big Ten Champion, Eastern Intercollegiate, leader; Southern Conference winner or Pacific Coast victor, or teams of like calibre. The Eastern team is to be chosen from members of the squads representing St. Francis, St. John's, Manhattan, Long Island U., Fordham, C. C. N. Y., Brooklyn, Columbia and N. Y. U.

He suggests as a site for the fray New York's Madison Square Garden, and the date as March 21, the first day of Spring and the last day of the basketball season.

After a few more lines about the drawing power of such a contest and another appeal for the fulfillment of the same, and a fear that there are some drawbacks to the scheme, he closes. All this was written as an open letter to Mr. Ned Irish, who, with Clair Hare, sponsors collegiate basketball in New York and Philadelphia.

—V—

At first glance the idea seems to be faultless, but like all other "Bowl" contests, it would no doubt lead to dissatisfaction among the followers of the teams who were not chosen to participate, and among the followers of the metropolitan teams who didn't have enough representation on the East's squad. Another difficulty lies in the fact that outstanding teams in the East might necessarily be passed by in order to invite a team from another section of the land such as the Midwest or Far West. Suppose, for instance that Temple went through this year undefeated (an impossibility now). This would make the Owls the outstanding team in the country due to their having met and defeated the best in the nation. In all fairness, they would be the logical contenders against the East in the Bowl. But then that keeps the game in the East and leaves the idea open to criticism from the other parts of the country. And yet (still assuming the Temple case to be fact) if the other team should not be Temple, an injustice would be done the Usilton-coached club. So, as far as we can see, the idea as proposed by Mr. Lipshutz has some fearful drawbacks, but whether they are too great to be overcome depends in great part upon the collegiate sports writers throughout the country.

—V—

Another objection we have to the idea is that, like all things in America, there will spring up a situation similar to that in football, i.e., a large number of "Bowls." And it's very possible in collegiate basketball, too, because of the fast strides the game has made in the past few years as a good commercial proposition.

—V—

Loyola University's team is looking for an intersection opponent for its 1938 grid card, and the university paper recently voiced the opinion that they would like to see Villanova out there again. This certainly speaks well for the show the boys put on while they were there.

VILLANOVAN Aggregation Loses Services of "Dare-Devil" Dick Deverall Through Sledding Mishap; Players Show Insubordination

By Joe "Killer-Diller" McDade

Opening the door where we closed it last week, yours truly, the Killer-diller, entered the portals of the VILLANOVAN office in search of more info concerning the game which will be the high-light of the '37-'38 basketball season—the Lambda Kappa Delta—VILLANOVAN struggle which precedes the Varsity-Dickinson fray on Feb. 12.

Journalists Moan

Ears burning from the verbal barrage of disgruntled journalists, we sought refuge in the person of Manager - Coach - non - playing - Captain "Wolf" Tofani, the fiery leader of the basketball playing Villanovans. It was quite some time before his dejected figure, slumped over a dimly lit desk, could be discerned. Evidently he was in the depths of despair. Alas and alack!

"What's the trouble, Coach?" we said by way of introduction.

"Everything!" he replied vehemently, "things aren't worth a foo. Trouble, trouble, and more trouble! Oiy oiy, should I stand for it?"

Without waiting for a reply, the "Wolf" plunged into his woeful tale with dirgeful mien. "Some of my best players have taken a run out powder and refused to participate in this great athletic enterprise. Injuries, too, have taken their toll, and left me in a precarious situation. Already I have dismissed two men and warned several others because of insubordination and infraction of training rules. Woe, O Woe is me!"

"Have a seat," the VILLANOVAN board of strategy graciously invited, as if suddenly cognizant of the fact that yours truly had been standing all the while. Accepting with alacrity knowing that a long story was forthcoming, we gingerly sat down after dusting off the excuse he proferred as a chair.

Socialite Howe Retires

"Now take that lad "Spider" Bob Howe—(not on a bet) he absolutely refused to play! Says that his social life interferes with his playing. Studies, too, were another obstacle. Can you imagine a guy like that?

"Then "Dick Merriwell" O'Mahoney broke training rules once too often and I was forced to drop him in order to maintain discipline on the squad. What did he do? What didn't he do—pie a la mode at every meal and milk shakes in between! U.P. (United Press) Wallach was another whose star was prematurely dimmed due to infraction of training rules. I have sacrificed the able services of these two, but I must have discipline! I will have discipline! It is my license and my privilege to make use of such punitive measures.

"But my greatest setback is due to injury—malignant injury which nipped in the bud and ruined the debut of one of the most promising satellites ever to don the Blue and White — "Dead-eye Dick, the Red baiter," Deverall. I had assigned him the center spot on the starting line-up and my entire attack centered around him. Now that he is definitely out, his absence has entirely disrupted all my plans. In addition to finding a new center I must also rebuild my entire attack.

"What happened to him? He was injured sledding last Thursday night and will not be able to play again this season. I don't know exactly what happened, but it seems that there was a bit of foul play somewheres. It's too bad, though."

Sees Encouragement

Seeing that his pitiful tale of such calamities had plunged his listener into the same depths of despair, Manager - Coach - non - playing Captain "Wolf" Tofani, content in the fact that he had company in his misery, smiled bravely, and said, "Cheer up, 'Killer-Diller,' I have not yet drained the dregs of my cup of bitterness. The old stand-bys, 'Pepsi-Cola Pete' Mackin, Wilbur 'Choo-Choo' Bowker, "Tubby Jake' Simons, and a few others are coming along in great style and are making a strong bid for the starting line-up. Such men as these help make life worth living, for me.

"Also I have two new friends in 'Ming' Toy and 'Jocko' Collins. These boys reported late but showed plenty on the ball. They'll be my new dark horses, or aces up my sleeve, or something. Just in case the going gets tough, I have a real surprise in Henry 'One-Eye Gus' Mancuso. He's my biggest ace, and I'm keeping any info about him strictly a secret. You'll see plenty of him against the 'Pre-Meds.'

"You want a statement for the Press?" splattered the "Wolf." "Why no, of course not! Definitely not! I'm superstitious about such things, and it's too soon anyway. I've a wealth of material and after a few minor technicalities are worked out, the boys will be really hot. I won't make any predictions.

"Of course, my boys should sweep aside all opposition, and, granting that the Pre-Mede are a little tough, we will . . . however, I'll make no predictions. Just say that my boys have the goods. With my brains, we'll get someplace. Incidentally, we will challenge any team on the campus . . . and let them choose their weapons."

"O.K. 'Wolf'," said yours truly as he exited through the window to escape another barrage of woeful loquacity.

Blue Five Shades Western Maryland

as it did in the first half until Duzminski and Bill Sinnott, whose floor work was particularly outstanding, went into action.

Sinnott Starts Rally

With the count 20-12 in the visitors favors, Sinnott arched in a long two-pointer. Duzminski followed this by dribbling through the Southerners and scoring on a lay-up shot. A foul and another basket by this same Duzminski brought the 'Cats to within one point of their adversaries. Again it was Dzminski who, with the 1000 fans raising a terrific din, dribbled free and countered on his specialty — a beautiful one hand push up shot from under the basket to give Villanova a 21-20 lead.

To put the clincher on the embrogio, Johnny Krutulis popped in a charity toss and Jim Montgomery added a basket. These scores were superfluous, however, for Duzminski's sensational efforts had the Marylanders bewildered and rocking on their heels. Mention also must be made of Bill Sinnott for his remarkable ball-handling throughout the fray. Time and again Bill recovered loose balls for the Main Liners and set up sure-fire scoring plays only to have his teammates dub the shot.

Some salve may be garnered from the fact that on Friday night the much beaten Catholic University Cardinals invaded the Wildcats' lair and fell before the sensational shooting of the Main Liners, 51-33. Pacing the Villanova attack were "Jungle" Jim Montgomery and George Duzminski, who collected 15 and 14 markers, respectively. However, it must be added that these two individuals were aided by a Villanova quintet that played its finest ball of the season.

Grasping an early lead and never once relinquishing it, the Main Line passers ran up a 29-16 lead at half time and increased it as the contest continued. Only uncanny sharpshooting by Captain Maurice Carroll and Wayne Ambrose enabled the Cardinals to function as well as they did. Carroll with 16 points was the leading scorer of the fray, while Ambrose, a gentleman with a very unorthodox style, followed him with 10 markers.

Catholic U. attempted to check the Wildcats by employing a moving zone defense, but the Blue was able to penetrate this sieve-like structure with monotonous regularity. Largely responsible for this was Montgomery, who besides leading the Villanova scorers, showed his usual remarkable ability in retrieving the ball off the backboards and setting up scoring plays.

Meanwhile the Wildcats travelled up to Carlisle last Wednesday night to make the Dickinson Red Devils their tenth straight victim, as they subdued them 39-33. The Red Devils, defeated in the last six out of seven performances gave the Main Liners unexpected opposition and almost walked off with the victory.

Dickinson's long range basket shooting kept them on a par with the Wildcats until the last few minutes of the contest, when Jim Montgomery, the Villanova scoring machine, whipped in a couple of baskets on lay-up shots and solidified the fray for the visitors.

As usual, "Jungle" Jim Montgomery sparkplugged the 'Cat offense by whipping 14 markers through the wires. George Duzminski also uncorked some fine marksmanship tossing in 10 points on four goals and two fouls. Dickinson's ace was Bill Reese, their stellar guard, who arched 10 scorers through the hoop.

Fedigan Ties For First Place In 'Murals

MENDEL RESIDENTS UPSET COMMUTERS; GIGOLOS TAKE TWO

With the usual pushing and shoving characteristic of intramural games, the basketball tournament continued on its illustrious way with Alumni beating Austin and C. & F., Fedigan winning two and the Mendel Day Hops and Residents annexing one apiece.

Although the Austinites boasted a two point lead at half-time, they ended on the short end of a 19-17 count. This was a fast, evenly played fracas with both clubs battling to end on top. Due mainly to Delaney's last minute field goal, the ooboys from Alumni gained the victory. It was their second win in four starts.

Upsets Prevail

Since upsets were the diet of the week, the Mendel Residents contributed to the cause by handing their Day Hop brothers a 29-28 reverse. This was the first victory of the Residents who appear to have hit their stride. Healy and Finn had 7 points apiece while Scelba had three double deckers and one foul for the Residents, while while the Day Hops were paced by their center, Thorne, who contributed eight markers.

The Day Hops from Mendel suffered their second successive setback at the hands of the champion Fedigan contingent. The Gigolos manifested their superiority from the first whistle until the final gun. The West Enders amassed an 11 point lead at half time which was enough to secure them an easy victory. Starring for the Fediganites were Woods, O'Connell and Tobin who annex a ten, ten, and nine points respectively; while the Commuters were led by Keating and Rosenburg who tossed through the hoop five and four double deckers, respectively.

M. D. H. Drops Second

On Thursday evening, the once victorious Mendel Day Hops could not stand prosperity, and dropped another decision, this time to the Austin quintet. They were given a severe going over by the chiefs who rolled up 17 field goals and seven fouls for a total of 41 points while the Residents were rewarded for their efforts with a mere pittance of 16 markers. The Austinites were led on their spectacular offensive by La Balbo, who donated nine counters to the total, by his sharp shooting from both outside and inside the foul circle.

The Fedigan-Alumni league championship of the first half, together with Alumni combined with the work of dark horse Day Hops and Conservative Day Hops in the second game, is now the only hope the Commuters have to stop the Gigolos from annexing the championship by scores of 40 and 42 points respectively. The C. & F. club was defeated by Coop who scored a total of 25 points on the two fouls. Feltman was highly instrumental in the success of O'Connell and Leahy, who dropped in a total of 22 counters between them. Alumni ran Gaudy just to the tune of 31 on the glory ball League standard. Lyons starred with 10 two pointers being charged to his credit.

In the games of the past week in the close contests were held, but the Alumni Austin and Mendel Resident-Mendel Day Hop frays supplied the most thrills. With De Luca scoring the winning goal in the last minute and the Residents out a one point decision over the highly touted Mendel Day Hops these games were very event

For the fourth consecutive year Villanova College is sponsoring the National Catholic Interscholastic swimming championship to be held on Washington's birthday.

This fact was revealed by the recently appointed Wildcat swimming mentor, Ruggiero Flocco; accompanying this release was the statement that applications would be put in the mail very shortly.

St. Francis' Prep of Brooklyn, displacing West Catholic as champion last year by a sensational finish to win the meet by four points, will be back with a strong team to maintain their standing.

ful in Intramural basketball events.

In the scoring department Keating with 43 points, still retains the lead which he held for most of the first half. Second place is a dead lock between Rosenburg and Leahy who have 34 counters apiece, while O'Connell is a close third with 32 markers. Woods brings up the rear of the first five with 25 counters.

Due to the ensuing examinations, there will probably be no games decided that week. The games will be moved back until week after the tests.

Gridders to Meet Seven Former Foes On 1938 Card; Eight Contests Booked

Auburn, Bucknell, Manhattan, Boston University, Temple Games Definite; Muhlenberg Newcomer to Wildcat Schedule

By TOM O'MAHONEY.

As it must to every college, schedule-making time comes to Villanova. And with it, the usual crop of headaches for grid Head Man "Clipper" Smith, who piloted the Wildcats to their second undefeated season in Main Line history. In an interview yesterday, "Clipper" revealed that, while the '38 football schedule is still in the tentative stage, eight games are sure to be on the 'Cats' list next year. Six are repeaters from the '37 season, and one is a renewal of an old feud which was last contested in 1936. Auburn, Detroit, Manhattan, Boston U., Temple and Bucknell were all met in '37, while South Carolina, another definitely booked, was met and defeated in the year that Vermont and Maine didn't vote for Roosevelt. Muhlenberg's Mules replace P. M. C. as the opening day foe.

Old Foes Improved

The selection of these five games, plus the probability that one, and possibly two, more intersectional foes will clash with the Blue next year, points to an interesting season for Villanova followers. Auburn is rated as the class of the Southeastern Conference because of its sensational sophomore team; Detroit, as always, will be a tough enemy, and should be thirsting for revenge after three successive setbacks at the hands of the Blue. Manhattan, with its new deal under Herb Kopf, of Washington and Jefferson Rose Bowl fame, should go places again using the quick breaking, semi-Notre Dame offense taught by Lou Little's former understudy at Columbia. And if anyone thinks that the Owls of North Broad Street aren't patiently awaiting next November, they missed that 33-0 debacle up in Temple last Fall. The South Carolina fray will be held at Columbia, S. C., as the climax of the annual State Fair, a gala occasion for the natives of the Gamecock State. To be played on a Friday afternoon, the encounter is expected to be well attended. If you remember, the game last year pitted South Carolina against its intrastate rival, the Citadel, and resulted in a rear-riot when a Carolina partisan dashed out upon the gridiron to tackle a touchdown-bound Cadet. So they do take their football seriously down there.

May Travel to Coast

"Clipper" stated that he would like to arrange a trip to the coast if it can be done without disrupting agreements already made. Although Smith would not name any team as a possible rival, this department believes that the choice of a Far Western opponent rests among Loyola of Los Angeles, Santa Clara and San Francisco. Loyola has expressed satisfaction with Villanova and would like to play host to the 'Cats again. There is also the chance that a prominent Southwestern Conference team will appear on the local card, the game to be played away, far away, from Philadelphia. The absence of new Eastern foes is undoubtedly due to the Blue's sensational '37 record—no Atlantic Seaboard team seems anxious to pick up too hot a coal. The nearest thing to a new intrasectional game is seen in the announcement that the 'Cats will meet Rutgers twice next Spring in practice scrimmages.

Bucknell's rugged but usually underrated Bisons will again provide source of worry for Head Man Smith. The Thundering Herd will be met on their home grounds, which bodes evil for the 'Cats. It is to be remembered that in the past four years, of the games played with the Bisons, two were lost and two were won. The two victories were scored on home turf, while the losses occurred up at Lewisburg. Muhlenberg's eleven is tougher than most people give them credit for being. I had assigned him the center spot on the starting line-up and my entire attack centered around him. Now that he is definitely out, his absence has entirely disrupted all my plans. In addition to finding a new center I must also rebuild my entire attack.

"What happened to him? He was injured sledding last Thursday night and will not be able to play again this season. I don't know exactly what happened, but it seems that there was a bit of foul play somewheres. It's too bad, though."

Sees Encouragement

Seeing that his pitiful tale of such calamities had plunged his listener into the same depths of despair, Manager - Coach - non - playing Captain "Wolf" Tofani, content in the fact that he had company in his misery, smiled bravely, and said, "Cheer up, 'Killer-Diller,' I have not yet drained the dregs of my cup of bitterness. The old stand-bys, 'Pepsi-Cola Pete' Mackin, Wilbur 'Choo-Choo' Bowker, 'Tubby Jake' Simons, and a few others are coming along in great style and are making a strong bid for the starting line-up. Such men as these help make life worth living, for me.

"Also I have two new friends in 'Ming' Toy and 'Jocko' Collins. These boys reported late, but showed plenty on the ball. They'll be my new dark horses, or aces up my sleeve, or something. Just in case the going gets tough, I have a real surprise in Henry 'One-Eye Gus' Mancuso. He's my biggest ace, and I'm keeping any info about him strictly a secret. You'll see plenty of him against the 'Pre-Meds.'

"You want a statement for the Press?" splattered the "Wolf." "Why no, of course not! Definitely not! I'm superstitious about such things, and it's too soon anyway. I've a wealth of material and after a few minor technicalities are worked out, the boys will be really hot. I won't make any predictions.

"Of course, my boys should sweep aside all opposition, and, granting that the Pre-Meds are a little tough, we will . . . however, I'll make no predictions. Just say that my boys have the goods. With my brains, we'll get someplace. Incidentally, we will challenge any team on the campus . . . and let them choose their weapons."

"O.K. 'Wolf'," said yours truly as he exited through the window to escape another barrage of woeful loquacity.

as it did in the first half until Duzminski and Bill Sinnott, whose floor work was particularly outstanding, went into action.

Sinnott Starts Rally

With the count 20-12 in the visitors favors, Sinnott arched in a long two-pointer. Duzminski followed this by dribbling through the Southerners and scoring on a lay-up shot. A foul and another basket by this same Duzminski brought the 'Cats to within one point of their adversaries. Again it was Dzminski who, with the 1000 fans raising a terrific din, dribbled free and countered on his specialty — a beautiful one hand push up shot from under the basket to give Villanova a 21-20 lead.

To put the clincher on the embroglio, Johnny Kratulis popped in a charity toss and Jim Montgomery added a basket. These scores were superfluous, however, for Duzminski's sensational efforts had the Marylanders bewildered and rocking on their heels. Mention also must be made of Bill Sinnott for his remarkable ball-handling throughout the fray. Time and again Bill recovered loose balls for the Main Liners and set up sure-fire scoring plays only to have his teammates dub the shot.

Some salve may be gamered from the fact that on Friday night the much beaten Catholic University Cardinals invaded the Wildcats' lair and fell before the sensational shooting of the Main Liners, 51-33. Facing the Villanova attack were "Jungle" Jim Montgomery and George Duzminski, who collected 15 and 14 markers, respectively. However, it must be added that these two individuals were aided by a Villanova quintet that played its finest ball of the season.

Grasping an early lead and never once relinquishing it, the Main Line passers ran up a 29-16 lead at half time and increased it as the contest continued. Only uncanny sharpshooting by Captain Maurice Carroll and Wm. Ambrose enabled the Cardinals to function as well as they did. Carroll with 18 points was the leading scorer of the fray, while Ambrose, a gentleman with a very unorthodox style, followed him with 10 markers.

Catholic U. attempted to check the Wildcats by employing a moving zone defense, but the Blue was able to penetrate this sieve-like structure with monotonous regularity. Largely responsible for this was Montgomery, who besides leading the Villanova scorers, showed his usual remarkable ability in retrieving the ball off the backboards and setting up scoring plays.

Meanwhile the Wildcats travelled up to Carlisle last Wednesday night to make the Dickinson Red Devils their tenth straight victim, as they subdued them 39-33. The Red Devils, defeated in the last six out of seven performances gave the Main Liners unexpected opposition and almost walked off with the victory.

Dickinson's long range basket shooting kept them on a par with the Wildcats until the last few minutes of the contest, when Jim Montgomery, the Villanova scoring machine, whipped in a couple of baskets on lay-up shots and solidified the fray for the visitors.

As usual, "Jungle" Jim Montgomery sparkplugged the 'Cat offense by whipping 14 markers through the wires. George Duzminski also uncorked some fine marksmanship tossing in 10 points on four goals and two fouls. Dickinson's ace was Bill Reese, their stellar guard, who arched 10 scores through the hoop.

SPANISH CIVIL WAR INSPIRES NUMEROUS OUTSTANDING BOOKS

Five Newly-Published Tomes Discuss Situation In Great Detail

VOLUMES NOW IN LIBRARY

The Spanish Civil War has inevitably given birth to a very large number of books on Spain. It may well be that in the light of history not only the fundamental causes but the characteristics of the war will be explained better through an understanding of the character and spirit of the Spanish People than by recent events or extraneous circumstances.

Books in Library

Five books, newly published and in the Villanova library, should help toward such an understanding. Several of the essays in "Invertebrate Spain" by Professor Jose Ortega y Gasset appeared in Spanish over fifteen years ago, but his witty analysis of the defects of his country, which has now been translated, is most appropriate to the present time. Senior Ortega holds the view that one grave defect of the Spanish character is a lack of will power which reflects itself among other things in a failure of her leading men to be tenacious on reform.

In the greater events which have hung upon the siege of Madrid, the defense of the Alcazar at Toledo, very much in the news less than a year ago, has probably been almost forgotten. It was nevertheless, an affair which illustrates in miniature the nature of the present struggle between Catholicity and Communism. In diary form, Major McNeill-Moss has set down the story of this siege from July until November of last year, in the book "The Siege of Toledo's Alcazar."

Trying to cover the complicated ground on politics and warfare too extensively, H. Edward Knobiaugh in his "Correspondent in Spain," leaves the reader with the suspicion that his stories are much more authentic when they are describing events of which he has first-hand knowledge than when he is dealing with topics outside their direct experience. Perhaps the newest part of the book is the light thrown on the Government censorship and its first rate methods of propaganda, especially for foreign consumption.

Though she only brings us to the fringe of the civil war in Spain, Sister M. Monica, an American Ursuline nun, is a real contributor to the history of the times. "And Then The Storm" opens with this nun doing research work in various Spanish libraries in 1932, and closes in the early months of 1936. Apart from her work, Sr. Monica had numerous opportunities of observing the habits and customs of her hosts and of the country people.

"Spanish Rehearsal" by Arnold Lunn is, in a sense, a depressing one; but it is depressing principally because the thesis forshadowed in the title—that what is happening in Spain is intended by Communists to be a rehearsal for what is to follow in France and England—ought to be, but is not, a self evident truth. Lunn declares himself a supporter of the Nationalists because he is convinced that they are more determined to redress the just grievances of the poor than are their opponents.

Masque. A prize of five dollars is offered for the best advertising poster submitted to Mr. Frayne. The winning poster is to be reproduced and used to advertise the play on the campus and in the neighboring towns. Drawn on paper fourteen by twenty-four inches, the poster should be a simple illustration of some scene from the Theatre Guild's success, "Winterset." Simplicity in colors and lines is desired; only two colors, one of which will be white, are to be used.

Entries in this poster contest are to be submitted to Pershing Calabro on or before February 7, but it is advisable that preliminary sketches be shown to Mr. Frayne before the starting of the Annual Retreat, January 31.

Washington And Richmond Clubs Swell Number Of Alumni Groups

Villanova's National Alumni has recently been enlarged by the addition of the newly organized Washington and Richmond groups.

Washington's group held its first dinner meeting on Tuesday, January 11th at the Hays-Adams House in the Capitol city. Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O.S.A., was the guest speaker and presided over the elections of officers. Anselm X. Marilley, '13, Senior Civil Engineer with the Bureau of Valuation of the Interstate Commerce Commission, was elected president. William J. Hoover, '09, was elected vice-president and Joseph C. McManemin was selected to fulfill the duties of secretary-treasurer.

Hotel Richmond was the scene of the initial meeting of the Richmond Alumni Association. The occasion was a dinner meeting at which Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O.S.A., delivered the address. Following the dinner the new club elected James P. O'Hara, '30, president, and George Rankin, '21, secretary-treasurer.

The addition of these two groups brings the number of local Alumni associations to fourteen.

ANNUAL EXERCISES CLOSE WITH PAPAL BLESSING AND MASS

Directors Well Pleased With Co-operation of Students During Retreat

MASTERS WERE RECTORS

Villanova College's 95th annual retreat, conducted yearly by the Augustinian Fathers for the benefit of the student body, was inaugurated last Monday by services in the college chapel and terminated with Papal Blessing Friday morning, February 4.

Were Former Teachers

Rev. John B. Martin, O. S. A., and Rev. Thomas E. Rogers, O. S. A., formerly of Villanova College and now members of the missionary band, conducted the retreat exercises. Both retreat masters are thoroughly familiar with students because of unlimited experience with young men in the past and in their conferences gave the student body the benefit of this experience.

As has been the custom since 1930, individual retreat services were conducted for the two groups of students, namely the resident group and the non-residents. This action has been necessary because of the increase in the number of students.

Retreat During Interval

During the interval between the mid-year examinations and the beginning of the second semester, it has been the practice at Villanova to conduct a five-day retreat with the purpose of affording religious spiritual aid during the days set aside. This particular time is set aside whch finds the students in the right frame of mind and free from classes and examination worries.

The conferences were delivered in a manner that was straight-forward and devoid of any attempt at subtleness. Every subject attacked was of utmost importance to

WINTERSET POSTER DEADLINE EXTENDED

Belle Masque Sets Wednesday As Last Day for Submitting Placards

Deadline for "Winterset" posters has been extended to Wednesday, February 9, it was revealed last night by Mr. Anthony J. Frayne, Belle Masque moderator, and director of that organization's production of Maxwell Anderson's famous hit. Posters must be turned in to Pershing Calbaro, Junior Arts, or to Mr. Frayne's office at 120 Mendel Hall.

Measurements Repeated

For those who have not known the requirements for the posters, it was stated by Belle Masque officials that they must measure 14 by 22 inches, and be restricted to only two or three colors. (Blue and white, or blue, black and white combinations are preferred.) It is also recommended that the poster embody some symbol representing the theme of the play so that it will catch the eye and more effectively advertise the production. A two inch space at the top and a five inch space at the bottom should be left blank so that the dates, admission and time can be inserted.

Belle Masque has also issued an appeal to all those interested in art work to hand in their names to either Mr. Frayne or Mr. Calabro as soon as possible.

THIRTY YEARS OF NOBLE SERVICE

CARL T. HUMPHREY, late Dean of the School of Technology, who passed away Sunday morning.

Dean Humphrey Succumbs to Attack Of Pneumonia After Short Illness

Technology Head Spent Thirty Years in Service of Villanova College; Became Dean in 1920; Originated Phi Kappa Pi

Sunday morning, February 6, saw the passing of one of the most prominent figures on the Villanova campus when Carl T. Humphrey, B. S., M. S., D. Sc., dean of the School of Technology, succumbed to pneumonia at his home in West Philadelphia after a short illness. Services will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2 P. M. at Tabernacle Lutheran Church, 59th and Spruce Sts., and interment will be made at his former home in North Weymouth, Mass.

30 Years Of Service

The untimely death of the beloved dean of the Engineering school marks the termination of 30 years of efficient work in the service of Villanova College; the last 18 of which he spent as dean of that department.

Carl T. Humphrey joined the faculty of the Villanova School of Technology in 1908, three years after his graduation from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology with a Bachelor of Science degree in Civil Engineering. He served successfully as Instructor, Assistant Professor and Professor in engineering subjects until 1920 when he became dean of the department. Aside from his duties as dean, Dr. Humphrey personally instructed in the civil engineering department and taught Applied Mechanics, Strength of Materials, Bridge Design, Structures, and general Surveying.

Dean Humphrey's popularity may be evidenced in the fact that he took a personal interest in every student who came under his jurisdiction. He had a marvelous memory and was able to name every graduate of the school of Technology. He was deeply interested in every social function of the college and assisted at the graduation of every engineering class from the time of his arrival here in 1909 until the present.

Began Phi Kappa Pi

The Phi Kappa Pi, engineering fraternity of the college, was begun under his direction and has always remained under his guidance. No function of the organization whether it be smoker, banquet, initiation or dance was complete without his presence. He was a loyal Villanova rooter and seldom was missing from Alumni activities.

Deeply religious and retiring he had a stimulating view on every problem and was never too busy to listen to the difficulties of a student in his department. When trouble arose between student and teacher Dean Humphrey was always ready to act as intermediary and usually found a solution which was to the liking of student and

Reservation of French, Russian and Italian Rooms Assures Privacy; Girls Will Get Attractive Novelties

BUNNY BERIGAN WILL FURNISH MUSIC

By JAMES COLLINS

In a special announcement to the VILLANOVAN, Andrew Conte, chairman of the Senior Dinner-Dance Committee, expressed his complete satisfaction with the arrangements thus far made in preparation for the gala finale of senior-sponsored social activities. In a very optimistic mood he went further to prophesy that the Senior Dinner-Dance, which is an annual affair exclusively attended by members of the graduating class, will this year eclipse even the most brilliant of similar events in the past. Conte then proceeded to support his assertions with facts.

The date of this social highlight is February 26, the evening following the Senior Ball. The time—seven thirty o'clock to twelve o'clock midnight. The place—the the beautiful and well-known Arcadia International Restaurant in central Philadelphia. The subscription fee—five dollars per couple.

Privacy Assured

This is not the first time that the Arcadia has served as the site of a Villanova dinner-dance, since such an affair was given there about four years ago. However, the approaching one has a notable advantage over its predecessor in that privacy will be assured the party of Seniors. A suite of three adjoining rooms—the Russian, French, and Italian Rooms in all their representative gaiety and decoration—has been reserved. As is evident, this will tend to produce a more congenial and pleasant atmosphere.

The members of the committee, constantly striving to create just such an atmosphere, offer this suggestion. If the attending Seniors desire to keep intact their own private groups while dinner is being served, they may do so by notifying any member of the Dinner-

PREPARATIONS MADE FOR ANNUAL L. K. D. SPRING FUNCTION

Date Set for April 23; Troncelliti Named Chairman of Dinner-Dance

Announcement of the date for the Lambda Kappa Delta annual dinner-dance was made by president Alan F. Dowling, as a result of a decision at the last meeting of the Pre-Medical fraternity. The date has been set for Saturday evening, April 23. Definite selection of a site for the social has not yet been made.

Troncelliti Chariman

Many ultimate activities to be sponsored by the fraternity were also revealed at this time. Edward Troncelliti, previously appointed Chariman of the annual dance, will also head preparations the Lambda Kappa Delta dinner-dance. He will be assited by the same committee over which he presided at that time.

Dowling also revealed that the fraternity has been invited to inspect the laboratories of a prominent pharmaceutical firm in New York City. The organization will probably make the trip sometime in March. Last year the fraternity members were guests of Sharpe and Dohme Laboratories at Glenolden, and of Abbots Dairies in Philadelphia.

Active preparations are being made for the athletic contest to be staged with members of the VILLANOVAN staff on Saturday, February 12, prior to the Dickinson game.

Orders for the fraternity pins are being taken by Andrew McKane and Robert Howe. The pins bear the figure of a skull, symbolic of the Medical trend of the fraternity. The next meeting of the fraternity will be on February 10.

In view of the coming term, the monthly Thursday evening session

DR. STANFORD GIVES CHICAGO BROADCAST

Villanova President Lectures Over Station WGN; Elected A. A. C. Board Member

A radio address "Religion in Education" was given in Chicago by the Rev. Edward Stanford, O. S. A., president of Villanova College. The address was broadcast over a large network from the Chicago Tribune Radio Station WGN on January 19.

Appointed to Committee

Father Stanford during his stay in Chicago was appointed a member of a National Committee of five to study and report on the Accrediting Problem of the National Catholic Educational Association.

Father Stanford was also re-elected a member of the National Conference of Church-Related Colleges and a member of the Executive Committee of this Conference.

On Thursday, Father Stanford was elected to the new Board of Directors of the Association of American Colleges. 30 YEARS OF SERVICE

THE teaching career of Dean Carl T. Humphrey is interwoven with practically the full span of Engineering Education at Villanova. Coming to Villanova as an instructor in Civil Engineering in 1908, three years after the inauguration of the engineering curricula, he witnessed the graduation of the first class and of each succeeding class of Villanova engineers. Known personally to every past and present student of engineering, revered and respected by all who had the good fortune to sit in his classes, his passing creates a void that will not readily be filled. Serving in the capacity of Dean for the past 18 years, he was largely responsible for the good reputation for thoroughness and efficiency enjoyed by the Engineering School. His associates on the faculty always knew that he could be counted on for well-considered thought and a stimulating view on every problem that arose.

Administration, faculty, students and alumni unite in paying loyal tribute to the Dean, the Professor, the man that lived in Carl T. Humphrey. May his name be ever held in loving memory! Deeply religious, modest and retiring in his personal life, he set a good example to all about him.

A CALL TO ARMS

IN TIMES of famine, war, and depression nations the world over set up a plea for the unselfish sacrifice of wealth, luxury, and even life itself. Every citizen is called upon to extend his utmost to defeat the threat to national security.

Business requires the co-operation of its partisans to assure success in enterprise. Nations have been built upon the standards of unity, determination, and sacrifice. All successful endeavor has need of these requisites.

Villanova, too, needs unity. Every social activity at Villanova College has risen to success as a result of the determination and co-operation of the students. Social presentations in the past few years have been lifted to a new status, and now form an integral part of Villanova tradition.

The Class of 1938 has the determination to present a social that is in keeping with the standards and traditions of Villanova College. However, all the determination in the world would not suffice if the co-operation of Villanova students was not realized.

Unite as a body; bring your friends; enter into the spirit of Villanova—be at the Belle Air Ball. The Class of 1938 needs you; the Senior Ball needs you; Villanova needs you. The Belle Air Ball, or any other presentation on the campus, would mean nothing without you.

Should this presentation not experience the success achieved by its predecessors, it would prove that Villanova socials do not receive the support of Villanova students themselves. Do not let this happen. It has NOT happened before.

STRIKE OUT COMMUNISM

THE way to strike out Communism is not by the sword, nor denial of civil liberties, nor hysterical denunciatory criticism; indeed, just as persecution helped the Church to flourish, these measures have the opposite effect.

By living the Catholic Ideal of justice and charity to show by example that what we believe is worth practicing, by studying the problems of our civilization, and by publicizing our program through efficient propaganda channels we can not only ward off Communism but win a greater America and salvation.

Most important is a return to the Spirit of Christ. To fulfill the people's desire for an ideal, there should be more and better sermons for the faithful as well as those who never hear the word of God. This would necessitate widespread preaching in public squares and under unfavorable conditions as Christ did it. This Spirit of Christ is necessary for no matter how legal reforms may be, they will not be successful unless enacted in a people of good will.

Anyone bursting with faith in something marvelous should be forever wanting to explain it. An example to be emulated in this regard is the Catholic Worker group. Workers resent being talked down to, so Villanovans should study well themselves these and other questions of promise.

To this end those who owe the country leadership and those who must be intelligent followers should expand the Study Club, discuss these things in class, do original reading, conversation, and reflection, and hear inspiring speakers in the weekly Seminars. It is your duty as Catholic men.

FIRE

OUR DIVINE SAVIOR says: "I am come to cast fire on the earth; and what will I, but that it be kindled?" (Luke, xii, 49).

This message from Christ to you, to all men, is one that should find a ready answer in the heart of the Catholic College man. It is a call summoning the young soldier in Christ to cast off the things of self for those that are of Christ. It is a summoning to give ourselves up to the love of Christ, returning His love as best we can by knowing, serving, and loving Him.

The Catholic college man of this generation is called upon to perform a mighty office. It is his especial mission, through Catholic Action, to see to it that the Cross of Christ triumphs over the hooked arms of the Nazi swastika and the self-centered hammer and sickle of the Communist.

College Chatter

By Joe Alessandroni

THERE seems to be a growing conviction, rising from the college campuses throughout this broad land, that we of the stronger sex are being led unwillingly into bankruptcy by those of the lily-white hands and fair faces. It is true that custom dictates the actions of many well meaning young ladies, while of course we must excuse that small group of exceptions, who may be found among any group. In order to illustrate my point more concretely, I have choosen, at random what may be considered by some as mere witticisms pounded out by columnists with a perverted sense of humor, but 'tis said where there is smoke, there must be an odor—so——

Fraternity men at Washington University have outlawed corsages for their dates at school dances. According to reports, women on the campus have accepted the situation with good grace. In the words of one co-ed, "Well, if he pays for the dance and then feeds me afterwards why should I kick about flowers?"—it would be better to buy the flowers and forget the food which they seldom eat.

I took her to a night club,
I took her to a show,
I took her almost everywhere
A boy and girl could go.
I took her to swell dances,
I took her out to tea,
And then suddenly I realized
That she'd been taking me.

Then, "The Columnian" gives the qualifications for the ideal man:

He pays the bills.
He's not so good-looking.
He pays the bills.
He doesn't dance so well.
He pays the bills.

* * *

Again we are warned by the St. Bona Venture:

Say it with sweets
Say it with drink,
Say it with eats—
But never with ink.

Daffinitions:

Hun—What lovers call each other.

Register—The person who puts the red marks on schedule cards.

Crest—The edge of a piece of toast.

Hollow—What people say to each other when they meet.

Avail—What a lady wears on her hat.

ODDS and ENDS

By Tom O'Mahoney

THERE can be little doubt about it. First prize in the letter writing and receiving derby goes to Val Rizzo, senior footballer. While putting the boys in Austin to bed one night, our little Bird discovered Val industriously reading a 22-page letter from the Someone. Postmarked at Pittsburgh, the envelope carried enough Air Mail and Special Delivery stamps to balance the budget down in Washington. Upon further investigation, the Bird found that this goes on twice a week. Nice work — and he seems to get it.

ON THE CAMPUS—

Paramount Pictures: If you should ever need a double for the silent Indian who played "Pawnee" in the recent production of "Wells Fargo," we have one in Austin Hall. Name of Vic Sandor—see Mawbey for details. By Way Of The Cotton Belt: We now know why Ross Arnold has grown a full-length Southern accent. Our Bird avers that it is all caused by a Fairmount College Miss who paddles a canoe across the Potomac to get to class every day. Personal, Purely: To Jim Montgomery—what's become of that "modern classic," or are you? United We Stand: How come the whole swimming team and dad's sat clustered together in two rows at Convention Hall for the Temple game? Not checking up on one another, we hope. Red Rhumba: Bob Barrett and the girl of the moment dancing at Arcadia last Saturday aft. Special, To R. L. G. Deverall: Rosemont girls are still waiting for another Poverty Dance. And D'Ippolito is waiting for another chance to get up and scat one out with the band.

Speaking of bands, the moans of those who aren't fond of the Seniors' selection should spur the juniors to new efforts in the little matter of signing a new crew. Possibilities as seen from this corner include Hal Kemp, who, tho minus Skinny Ennis, is still a favorite; Horace Heidt, icky but a great show band; Kay Kyser. Personally, we'd like a couple of the following, all of whom are reasonably price-tagged: Reggie Childs for the smoothies; Count Basie, that colored gentleman of the solid piano, or Art Shaw with his blues clarinet for the swing bugs. And for the Lombardo fans there's always the record-player in the Greek's.

The Observer

TO the Augustinian Retreat Masters, Fathers Martin and Rogers, we wish to extend our thanks for one of the best retreats ever held here at the college. Their well-delivered, practical conferences, we feel, met with a hearty response from every man in the college. Our only regret is that the Retreat Masters could not stay on for a few more weeks. We look forward to their return next year. May God bless them for their splendid work.

In fact, fellows, the retreat was so good that the Observer feels rather penitent and therefore the Observer has resolved not to spread scandal and such. So along that line, we'll hand out a few flowers instead of malodorous plants . . . such as aged eggs and over-ripe tomatoes.

Bill Corkhil, silver-tongued lady-killer: the only fault we can find with you Bill is that the only checking out you do is in the library. Hi, Skip!

Emil Mathias: that two hundred thirty-five pound-six-foot three German gentleman from New Jersey (who is as handsome as the face is long) loves to dance. Ever try the Big Apple, Emil?

Bob Bond: he plays baseball, but he is best in the Bull Ring.

Tom Delate: if you can't find it in the dictionary, ask Tom. He knows. He'll tell you, too!

Antonio Olivares: we are glad we have at least one Engineer who knows how to smile. And what a smile.

John Sherman: John is a sooner-Coal-Cracker, he'd sooner sleep than . . . well, just sleep.

Francis Bowen: A letter a day keeps the love bug a biting. That, my friends, is good advice from Dr. Francis D-T. Bowen.

As the floor of the dining hall threatens to crumble in, Cliff shouts to the Mad Russian: "Slovenski, get on your Russian mittens, and get out the Russian wolfhounds from the Russian kennelski. Go upstairski and find outski whatski the matterski is."

"Okayski," grunts the Mad Russian as he tears another piece out of the milk-sh ke can.

The Mad Russian and the hounds dash upstairs and investigate.

Mad Russian: "Comrade, the boys are wrestling the bum steers. It's steak night."

McNamara: "Comrade, report this to Stalin quickski. It is very seriousovitch."

Mad Russian: "Comrades, I'm tellink you mit a Hexint it ain't right."

Chorus in Pig Shoppe: "It ain't right . . . "

Mad Russian: "Hey, you comrades, I'll be hittink you in the haid."

Joe Ham: ": oys, you get it all wrong. It ain't like dat."

Bowen: "Marcy me, the boy's got the dope."

Melian: "Bien, bien."

Joe Ham: "It's like dis, pals. Dem steers come ariding in okey. It's just when they get taken on that Cook's tour that they get vulcanized . . . you got me, huh?

Mad Russian: as he digests another piece of the counter, "In the old country, too many cooks spoil the bro . But in America, a... country of my adoption, too many Cooke's spoil the steer."

Cliff: "What's the matter, Tiny, didn't they feed the sooth of you upstairs tonight?"

Boys, it is here again. The Christian Front staff, local red-raiders, have let it be known that there will soon be another dance. Are ya fer it, or or are ya agin it? (That is, if the annual strike ends on time.)

FOUND: One Model Stew-dent. From Alumni Hall we hear that one of our friends studied for the first time—the EVENINGS of January 23, 24, and 25th! He claims that he has never found it necessary to open his book for years past.

From his professors we get a sample of his knowledge.

In Biology he writes, answering a question on Mendel's laws of heredity, "The Mendel Law states that all Freshmen must have their lights out by eleven o'clock."

In History, answering an identification of the Reformation, writes: "Reformation is the result of a retreat in a Catholic college."

But that isn't as bad as the Freshman Engineer who said that "Boyle's Law is that body of rules and regulations drawn up by Father Boyle to govern the conduct of the band."

And that brings us to another question. What notorious figure on the campus cracked his Hygiene exam by opening a biology note book two hours before the examination? That's what he thinks!

This is where we were going to print some scandal if we could. But as we can't, we won't. To prove that we were really going to print some of the real McCoy, here it is.

We hear that . . . is . . . to . . . Norristown . . . Bryn Mawr College . . . and Rosemont . . . was . . . shocked beyond words. The police . . . jail . . . milkman . . . three o'clock . . . murder . . . lacerated brutality . . . Amen.

Do not blame us if we can't keep this policy. It's hard to keep the boys good.

We hear that our so-called friend, Tom O'Mahoney, has been threatening some of the Freshmen. Now we wouldn't like to get personal, but it seems to us that 400 Freshmen can do a lot of damage while Tom O'Mahoney is trying to run away.

Anyhow, Tom, why invite trouble. The cops are still after you for what happened in . . . but why bring that up?

FLASH: Murray Zealor shaved.

BURLINGTON: What is the matter with you, old kid. Where is the old fight. Where is that booming voice? The only thing you have retained from last year is your dainty figure.

We who remember the glorious days of the Burlington Progressive Association wonder what has happened to you. Have you lost your political ambitions? Have you been bought out?

Come on, Burly, pep up Campus life with another one of your Associations.

John Leary, Sophomore Engineer, would please the Observer if he would inform us just what makes a Mt. St. Joseph girl so different from a Rosemont College. Is it an accidental difference, or is it an essential difference?

the present-day Catholic young men.

The results of the retreat were that daily six to eight priests were kept busy hearing confessions and the number of students receiving communion increased from day to day. Papal Mass found every student present receiving the Most Blessed Sacrament and the Pontifical blessing.

OBITUARY

On behalf of the student body the VILLANOVAN takes this opportunity to express its condolence to William Navin, Sophomore in the Science School, upon the death of his father, who passed away on Thursday, January 3.

The VILLANOVAN in behalf of the students and faculty of Villanova College extends condolences to John J. Costello, Commerce and Finance student, upon the recent demise of his mother, and to Joseph M. McHugh, junior arts, upon the death of his father.

By HARRY J. McGLADE, JR.

A popular figure and his achievements go hand in hand. An adequate summary of the life of any individual would be worthless and incomplete without mention of his deeds and their effects upon his surroundings.

The mere fact that a man is born and reared in Philadelphia, educated in local schools, and graduated from a local college would not distinguish him as any particular citizen of the Quaker city. And so with Louis J. Biester.

It is true that he was born in the city of Philadelphia, also that he was reared in and about that city but much more could and should be added to those brief phrases.

Attended West Philly High

Louis began his career in the Harriet Beecher Stowe School in Philadelphia and in turn attended Tilden Junior High, West Philadelphia High, and Upper Darby High. In these schools he acquired a most enviable record. Louis was on the Honor Roll for two years and was also an active member of the baseball and track teams.

Following his graduation from Upper Darby in the year 1932 there is a two year pause in his scholastic life. However, in 1934 he entered Villanova to continue his education.

As in former schools, Louis was soon recognized as a scholastic leader. High marks accumulated and he again founded his name among the class intellectuals. For four years his name has been among that list of scholars known as the Honor Roll. But studies did not take up all of his time for he found time to participate in the sports program. He played football as a member of the 150-pound team, participated in freshman baseball, and for three years has been a member of the varsity track team.

Chairman of Rings

When popularity grows so also do the duties of the popular increase. This has been true with Louis as his list of important positions prove. In his junior year he was chairman of the Ring Committee, member of the Prom Committee, and member of the Business staffs of both the Year Book and the Belle Masque, Dramatic Society. His extra-curricular activities this year include chairman of the Belle Aire Ball and Business Manager of the Year Book.

LOUIS J. BIESTER

Villanova can truly be proud to have had Louis J. Biester among its students. Louis has received the benefits offered by Villanova and has accomplished the primary purpose that is in the heart and mind of every Villanova student. Besides this he has willingly given his co-operation at any time that he was called upon to do so. Never have his own personal endeavors kept him from lending himself to the demands of the school authorities, his class, or his many friends.

Upon the completion of his college career some insurance company is going to find Louis Biester a very valuable asset to its firm. During the past four years he has been attending the Commerce and Finance School.

Doing things in a big way is typical of Louis for he considers no less than four class mates as his personal friends. Vince Labranca, Dan O'Connor, Charlie O'Connor and Jim Monahan may be seen any afternoon in the company of Biester.

"Lou," to his associates, is an considerable influence in making matters of business matters of pleasure.

Varieties

BALL: Lieth Stevens thinks that being born on Friday, the 13th (of September, 1909, to be exact) is the reason for his success. At any rate, Stevens conducts, today, the largest non-symphonic daytime orchestra on the air. He has time to play polo occasionally; owns two horses, six dogs. He is married to Mary McCoy, blonde concert singer and Lieth's most respected critic. Their romance started when they met during a concert tour, and blossomed in the California moonlight, when they were visiting the late Mme. Schumann-Heink in Coronado. Mr. and Mrs. Stevens celebrated their seventh wedding anniversary on October 9, and are still happy, though married. (In other words, she's the real McCoy!)

With his 20-piece orchestra, Stevens paints musical pictures three times a week for the "Magazine of the Air" over the WABC-Columbia network. He recently composed a Suite for Six Nocturnal Interludes.

Lieth's parents were both piano teachers and as soon as their son was big enough to sit up at the keyboard, they started giving him lessons. At first he didn't like that very much. He wanted to be a soldier and envied Huckleberry Finn's talent for doing just as he pleased.

Still, Lieth earned his first dollar thru the medium of music at the age of four—and hasn't made any prolonged departures from the musical profession since then. There was a brief excursion into the business of delivering packages for a grocery store at 25 cents a day—but that was short lived.

His childhood debut was made by singing a soprano ditty at an amateur night in Kansas City, the family having moved there when he was two years old. Before he was twelve, Stevens got a job playing a piano in a moving picture theatre after school hours. Later he won a scholarship at Horner Institute and between studies he gave concerts to cover living expenses. At the end of three years at the Institute, Stevens was ready to go on tour as accompanist and assisting artist to Lambert Murphy, tenor. After considerable concert experience on the road he won his first conducting job as director of the Chicago Grand Opera Company orchestra for Sylvia Tell, danseuse, and her ballet.

When Mme. Schumann-Heink needed an accompanist, she engaged young Stevens. But the beloved singer developed laryngitis and the tour was cancelled. So Stevens, left with nothing to do, followed a hunch and came to New York. He tried for a Juilliard Fellowship and won it. About this time he joined the Columbia staff as arranger and coach for the "Four Clubmen" quartet and since then has appeared on numerable Columbia programs. He had all the necessary training for broadcasting, having started in 1923 as announcer, pianist, conductor, engineer, program director, and what not, at an experimental station in Kansas City.

SIDELIGHTS: Is extremely fond of a set of yellow braces he owns, otherwise has no eccentricities of dress but likes best of all to be in riding jodhpers . . . . hates road hogs and Sunday drivers; affectedness and the well-known "life of the party" . . . treasures a letter from Ernest Hutcheson the pianist, congratulating Stevens for his radio work . . . hopes some day to retire to a farm where he will play the piano, ride to hunts and play polo . . . . is just under six feet tall, weigh's 145 pounds and has light brown hair and amber eyes.

AROUND TOWN Bunny Berigan is booked to be Arcadia for two weeks starting February 24. He follows Leighton Noble, who closes the night before, concluding a twelve week session. Tentatively pencilled in after Berigan are Bob Crosby, Sammy Kaye and Tommy Dorsey, each for two weeks. If previous engagements cast any shadows it seems the Arcadia is booked for two weeks more of "recession." I refer at the moment to Bunny Berigan. Recently he put in an appearance at the Earle and like Villanova gentlemen, we cut lab and went down to hear him. As for Kaye and Dorsey we look forward with eager enthusiasm for their tunes. . . One of the worst fogs ever known in Glasgow caused a big motion picture house to abandon its performance for the first time in its history. Feature was "Lost Horizon."

Frustration Dept. Yours truly's name was posted on the bulletin board of Mendel Hall as having been absent from the retreat exercises. Tsk! Tsk! One western newspaper mentions Edgar Bergen as the "Forgotten Man of 1937." They forgot to investigate the matter further. Next week Charlie's stooge opens in San Francisco for one performance at the mere sum of five thousand.

UPBEAT: Hal Kemp will be at the St. Louis Prom the night Lieth Stevens brings his swing session to Villanova . . . Tommy Dorsey theaters at the Earle for the week on March 11. Keep Posted . . . Believe it or not but Mae West's popularity has gone up 7 points since that mess with the Radio Commish, this according to the Crosley survey.

BACK TO STEVENS:

Those of you who listened to the Saturday Night Swing Club last Saturday probably heard the announcement that the program came in second in its class in the Hearst Radio Editor's Poll. This shows that the Seniors, in getting the Stevens orchestra, were not pulling something without knowing what they were doing. Those who know music applaud the choice, and it will be a test of the musical knowledge of Villanova students according to the strength of their support at the dance.

BACK TO THE UPBEAT:

We don't wish to discourage our classmates, but we hereby predict that those who have hopes of getting Kay Kyser at the Junior Prom are going to be sorely disappointed. The lad keeps pretty well to the Midwest and South in his engagements, and has only played once on this section of the Atlantic Coast, to our knowledge. This was a one day stand at the Steel Pier. Needless to say, he broke some kind of a record. We sincerely hope that the boys on the committee will be able to secure his services, but we doubt it very much.

30 YEARS OF SERVICE

THE teaching career of Dean Carl T. Humphrey is interwoven with practically the full span of Engineering Education at Villanova. Coming to Villanova as an instructor in Civil Engineering in 1908, three years after the inauguration of the engineering curricula, he witnessed the graduation of the first class and of each succeeding class of Villanova engineers. Known personally to every past and present student of engineering, revered and respected by all who had the good fortune to sit in his classes, his passing creates a void that will not readily be filled. Serving in the capacity of Dean for the past 18 years, he was largely responsible for the good reputation for thoroughness and efficiency enjoyed by the Engineering School. His associates on the faculty always knew that he could be counted on for well-considered thought and a stimulating view on every problem that arose.

Administration, faculty, students and alumni unite in paying loyal tribute to the Dean, the Professor, the man that lived in Carl T. Humphrey. May his name be ever held in loving memory! Deeply religious, modest and retiring in his personal life, he set a good example to all about him.

A CALL TO ARMS

IN TIMES of famine, war, and depression nations the world over set up a plea for the unselfish sacrifice of wealth, luxury, and even life itself. Every citizen is called upon to extend his utmost to defeat the threat to national security.

Business requires the co-operation of its partisans to assure success in enterprise. Nations have been built upon the standards of unity, determination, and sacrifice. All successful endeavor has need of these requisites.

Villanova, too, needs unity. Every social activity at Villanova College has risen to success as a result of the determination and co-operation of the students. Social presentations in the past few years have been lifted to a new status, and now form an integral part of Villanova tradition.

The Class of 1938 has the determination to present a social that is in keeping with the standards and traditions of Villanova College. However, all the determination in the world would not suffice if the co-operation of Villanova students was not realized.

Unite as a body; bring your friends; enter into the spirit of Villanova—be at the Belle Air Ball. The Class of 1938 needs you; the Senior Ball needs you; Villanova needs you. The Belle Air Ball, or any other presentation on the campus, would mean nothing without you.

Should this presentation not experience the success achieved by its predecessors, it would prove that Villanova socials do not receive the support of Villanova students themselves. Do not let this happen. It has NOT happened before.

STRIKE OUT COMMUNISM

THE way to strike out Communism is not by the sword, nor denial of civil liberties, nor hysterical denunciatory criticism; indeed, just as persecution helped the Church to flourish, these measures have the opposite effect.

By living the Catholic Ideal of justice and charity to show by example that what we believe is worth practicing, by studying the problems of our civilization, and by publicizing our program through efficient propaganda channels we can not only ward off Communism but win a greater America and salvation.

Most important is a return to the Spirit of Christ. To fulfill the people's desire for an ideal, there should be more and better sermons for the faithful as well as those who never hear the word of God. This would necessitate widespread preaching in public squares and under unfavorable conditions as Christ did it. This Spirit of Christ is necessary for no matter how legal reforms may be, they will not be successful unless enacted in a people of good will.

Anyone bursting with faith in something marvelous should be forever wanting to explain it. An example to be emulated in this regard is the Catholic Worker group. Workers resent being talked down to, so Villanovans should study well themselves these and other questions of promise.

To this end those who owe the country leadership and those who must be intelligent followers should expand the Study Club, discuss these things in class, do original reading, conversation, and reflection, and hear inspiring speakers in the weekly Seminars. It is your duty as Catholic men.

FIRE

OUR DIVINE SAVIOR says: "I am come to cast fire on the earth; and what will I, but that it be kindled?" (Luke, xii, 49).

This message from Christ to you, to all men, is one that should find a ready answer in the heart of the Catholic College man. It is a call summoning the young soldier in Christ to cast off the things of self for those that are of Christ. It is a summoning to give ourselves up to the love of Christ, returning His love as best we can by knowing, serving, and loving Him.

The Catholic college man of this generation is called upon to perform a mighty office. It is his especial mission, through Catholic Action, to see to it that the Cross of Christ triumphs over the hooked arms of the Nazi swastika and the self-centered hammer and sickle of the Communist.

College Chatter

By Joe Alessandroni

THERE seems to be a growing conviction, rising from the college campuses throughout this broad land, that we of the stronger sex are being led unwillingly into bankruptcy by those of the lilly-white hands and fair faces. It is true that custom dictates the actions of many well meaning young ladies, while of course we must excuse that small group of exceptions, who may be found among any group. In order to illustrate my point more concretely, I have choosen, at random what may be considered by some as mere witticisms pounded out by columnists with a perverted sense of humor, but 'tis said where there is smoke, there must be an odor—so——

Fraternity men at Washington University have outlawed corsages for their dates at school dances. According to reports, women on the campus have accepted the situation with good grace. In the words of one co-ed, "Well, i f he pays for the dance and then feeds me afterwards why should I kick about flowers?"—it would be better to buy the flowers and forget the food which they seldom eat.

I took her to a night club,
I took her to a show,
I took her almost everywhere
A boy and girl could go.
I took her to swell dances,
I took her out to tea,
And then suddenly I realized
That she'd been taking me.

Then, "The Columnian" gives the qualifications for the ideal man:

He pays the bills.
He's not so good-looking.
He pays the bills.
He doesn't dance so well.
He pays the bills.

* * *

Again we are warned by the St. Bona Venture:

Say it with sweets
Say it with drink,
Say it with eats—
But never with ink.

Daffinitions:

Hun—What lovers call each other.

Register—The person who puts the red marks on schedule cards.

Crest—The edge of a piece of toast.

Hollow—What people say to each other when they meet.

Avail—What a lady wears on her hat.

FOUND: One Model Stew-dent. From Alumni Hall we hear that one of our friends studied for the first time—the EVENINGS of January 23, 24, and 25th! He claims that he has never found it necessary to open his book for years past.

From his professors we get a sample of his knowledge.

In Biology he writes, answering a question on Mendel's laws of heredity, "The Mendel Law states that all Freshmen must have their lights out by eleven o'clock."

In History, answering an identification of the Reformation, writes: "Reformation is the result of a retreat in a Catholic college."

But that isn't as bad as the Freshman Engineer who said that "Boyle's Law is that body of rules and regulations drawn up by Father Boyle to govern the conduct of the band."

And that brings us to another question. What notorious figure on the campus cracked his Hygiene exam by opening a biology note book two hours before the examination? That's what he thinks!

This is where we were going to print some scandal if we could. But as we can't, we won't. To prove that we were really going to print some of the real Simon, here it is.

We hear that, . . . is . . . to . . . . . Norristown . . . . . Bryn Mawr College . . . . . and Rosemont . . . . . was . . . . . shocked beyond words. The police . . . . . jail . . . . . fullkman . . . . . three o'clock . . . . . murder . . . . . lacerated brutality . . . . . Amen.

Do not blame us if we can't keep this policy. It's hard to keep the boys good.

We hear that our so-called friend, Tom O'Mahoney, has been threatening some of the Freshmen. Now we wouldn't like to get personal, but it seems to us that 400 Freshmen can do a lot of damage while Tom O'Mahoney is trying to run away.

Anyhow, Tom, why invite trouble. The cops are still after you for what happened in . . . but why bring that up?

BURLINGTON: What is the matter with you, old kid. Where is the old fight. Where is that booming voice? The only thing you have retained from last year is your dainty figure.

We who remember the glorious days of the Burlington Progressive Association wonder what has happened to you. Have you lost your political ambitions? Have you been bought out?

Come on, Burly, pep up Campus life with another one of your Associations.

John Leary, Sophomore Engineer, would please the Observer if he would inform us just what makes a Mt. St. Joseph girl so different from a Rosemont College. Is it an accidental difference, or is it an essential difference?

The results of the retreat were that daily six to eight priests were kept busy hearing confessions and the number of students receiving communion increased from day to day. Papal Mass found every student present receiving the Most Blessed Sacrament and the Pontifical blessing.

On behalf of the student body the VILLANOVAN takes this opportunity to express its condolence to William Navin, Sophomore in the Science School, upon the death of his father, who passed away on Thursday, January 3.

The VILLANOVAN in behalf of the students and faculty of Villanova College extends condolence to John J. Costello, Commerce and Finance student, upon the recent demise of his mother, and to Joseph M. McHugh, junior arts, upon the death of his father.

Introducing

LOUIS J. BIESTER

By HARRY J. McGLADE, JR.

A popular figure and his achievements go hand in hand. An adequate summary of the life of any individual would be worthless and incomplete without mention of his deeds and their effects upon his surroundings.

The mere fact that a man is born and reared in Philadelphia, educated in local schools, and graduated from a local college would not distinguish him as any particular citizen of the Quaker city. And so with Louis J. Biester.

It is true that he was born in the city of Philadelphia, also that he was reared in and about that city but much more could and should be added to those brief phrases.

Attended West Philly High

Louis began his career in the Harriet Beecher Stowe School in Philadelphia and in turn attended Tilden Junior High, West Philadelphia High, and Upper Darby High. In these schools he acquired a most enviable record. Louis was on the Honor Roll for two years and was also an active member of the baseball and track teams.

Following his graduation from Upper Darby in the year 1932 there is a two year pause in his scholastic life. However, in 1934 he entered Villanova to continue his education.

As in former schools, Louis was soon recognized as a scholastic leader. High marks accumulated and he again founded his name among the class intellectuals. For four years his name has been among that list of scholars known as the Honor Roll. But studies did not take up all of his time for he found time to participate in the sports program. He played football as a member of the 150-pound team, participated in freshman baseball, and for three years has been a member of the varsity track team.

When popularity grows so also do the duties of the popular increase. This has been true with Louis as his list of important positions prove. In his junior year he was chairman of the Ring Committee, member of the Prom Committee, and member of the Business staffs of both the Year Book and the Belle Mesque. Dramatic Society. His extra-curricular activities this year include chairman of the Belle Aire Ball and Business Manager of the Year Book.

Villanova can truly be proud to have had Louis J. Biester among its students. Louis has received the benefits offered by Villanova and has accomplished the primary purpose that is in the heart and mind of every Villanova student. Besides this he has willingly given his co-operation at any time that he was called upon to do so. Never have his own personal endeavors kept him from lending himself to the demands of the school authorities, his class, or his many friends.

Upon the completion of his college career some insurance company is going to find Louis Biester a very valuable asset to its firm. During the past four years he has been attending the Commerce and Finance School.

Doing things in a big way is typical of Louis for he considers no less than four class mates as his personal friends. Vince Labinaco, Dan O'Connor, Charlie O'Connor and Jim Monahan may be seen any afternoon in the company of Biester.

"Lou," to his associates, is an considerable influence in making matters of business matters of pleasure.

Varieties

BALL: Lieth Stevens thinks that being born on Friday, the 13th (of September, 1889, to be exact) is the reason for his success. At any rate, Stevens conducts, today, the largest non-symphonic daytime orchestra on the air. He has time to play polo occasionally; owns two horses, six dogs. He is married to Mary McCoy, blonde concert singer and Lieth's most respected critic. Their romance started when they met during a concert tour, and blossomed in the California moonlight, when they were visiting the late Mme. Schumann-Heink in Coronado. Mr. and Mrs. Stevens celebrated their seventh wedding anniversary on October 3, and are still happy, though married. (In other words, she's the real McCoy!)

With his 29-piece orchestra, Stevens paints musical pictures three times a week for the "Magazine of the Air" over the WABC-Columbia network. He recently composed a Suite for Six Nocturnal Interludes.

Lieth's parents were both piano teachers and as soon as their son was big enough to sit up at the keyboard, they started giving him lessons. At first he didn't like that very much. He wanted to be a soldier and envied Huckleberry Finn's talent for doing just as he pleased.

Still, Lieth earned his first dollar thru the medium of music at the age of four—and hasn't made any prolonged departures from the musical profession since then. There was a brief excursion into the business of delivering packages for a grocery store at 25 cents a day—but that was short lived.

His childhood debut was made by singing a soprano ditty at an amateur night in Kansas City, the family having moved there when he was two years old. Before he was twelve, Stevens got a job playing a piano in a moving picture theatre after school hours. Later he won a scholarship at Horner Institute and between studies he gave concerts to cover living expenses. At the end of three years at the Institute, Stevens was ready to go on tour as accompanist and assisting artist to Lambert Murphy, tenor. After considerable concert experience on the road he won his first conducting job as director of the Chicago Grand Opera Company orchestra for Sylvia Tell, danseuse, and her ballet.

When Mme. Schumann-Heink needed an accompanist, she engaged young Stevens. But the beloved singer developed laryngitis and the tour was cancelled. So Stevens, left with nothing to do, followed a hunch and came to New York. He tried for a Juilliard Fellowship and won it. About this time he joined the Columbia staff as arranger and coach for the "Four Clubmen" quartet and since then has appeared on numerable Columbia programs. He had all the necessary training for broadcasting, having started in 1923 as announcer, pianist, conductor, engineer, program director, and what not, at an experimental station in Kansas City.

AROUND TOWN Bunny Berigan is booked to the Arcadia for two weeks starting February 24. He follows Leighton Noble, who closes the night before, concluding a twelve week session. Tentatively pencilled in after Berigan are Bob Crosby, Sammy Kaye and Tommy Dorsey, each for two weeks. If previous engagements cast any shadows it seems the Arcadia is booked for two weeks more of "recession." I refer at the moment to Bunny Berigan. Recently he put in an appearance at the Earle and like Villanova gentlemen, we cut lab and went down to hear him. As for Kaye and Dorsey we look forward with eager enthusiasm for their tunes. . . . One of the worst fogs ever known in Glasgow caused a big motion picture house to abandon its performance for the first time in its history. Feature was "Lost Horizon."

Frustration Dept. Yours truly's name was posted on the bulletin board of Mendel Hall as having been absent from the retreat exercises. Tsk! Tsk! One western newspaper mentions Edgar Bergen as the "Forgotten Man of 1937." They forgot to investigate the matter further. Next week Charlie's stooge opens in San Francisco for one performance at the mere sum of five thousand.

UPBEAT: Hal Kemp will be at the St. Louis Pram the night Lieth Stevens brings his swing session to Villanova . . . Tommy Dorsey theaters at the Earle for the week on March 11. Keep Posted . . . Believe it or not but Mae West's popularity has gone up 7 points since that mess with the Radio Commish, this according to the Crosley survey.

BACK TO STEVENS:

Those of you who listened to the Saturday Night Swing Club last Saturday probably heard the announcement that the program came in second in its class in the Hearst Radio Editor's Poll. This shows that the Seniors, in getting the Stevens orchestra, were not pulling something without knowing what they were doing. Those who know music applaud the choice, and it will be a test of the musical knowledge of Villanova students according to the strength of their support at the dance.

BACK TO THE UPBEAT:

We don't wish to discourage our classmates, but we hereby predict that those who have hopes of getting Kay Kyser for the Junior Prom are going to be sorely disappointed. The lad keeps pretty well to the Midwest and South in his engagements, and has only played once on this section of the Atlantic Coast, to our knowledge. This was a one day stand at the Steel Pier. Needless to say, he broke some kind of a record. We sincerely hope that the boys on the committee will be able secure his services, but we doubt it very much.

Dance Committee. Both large and small parties can be accommodated. William Dinges and Anthony Rifici are specifically attending to the sale of tickets and this arrangement of tables, but applications for special seating facilities will also gladly be received by any one of the five committee members. If such reservations are desired, prompt attention to the matter will aid the committeemen to a very great extent.

Over and above the extra appeal of informality which the privacy of the Russian, French, and Italian Rooms suggests there is, of course, the usual excellent entertainment of the Arcadia International Restaurant to be anticipated. The floor show is a feature attraction and one of high theatrical repute. Its cast includes the leading Broadway celebrities and the most popular of radio artists. On the night of February 26, those in attendance at the annual Villanova Dinner-Dance of Seniors will be very welcome to enjoy one of the several nightly performances of this floor show.

Bunny Berigan Plays

And then, naturally, the guest orchestra and the ballroom are likewise available to the festive Seniors. Nothing need be said about the "big name bands" that uninterruptedly visit this gorgeous ballroom of the Arcadia; they speak for themselves. Although it is not at all definite, there is a rumor abroad that would give the baton to Bunny Berigan on the 26th of February. If this proves true, the dancing should be more than ordinarily delightful.

As a fitting epilogue to the night of merriment, novel gifts are to be presented to the young ladies at the dance. Edward Shevlin and Theodore Goumy, in charge of securing suitable novelties, have not as yet made any definite selections, but they promise the best possible, something certain to rank high in feminine favor.

It is expected that one of the largest dinner dance crowds is expected to attend this affair. Aside from the spirit of cooperation which prevails in the Senior Class, the assurance of an evening of wholesome entertainment of the highest order is responsible for this great expectation.

There is one thing which the committee wishes to impress on those present at the dinner dance. The hours for which the Arcadia is contracted by the Senior Dinner Dance Committee are from seven-thirty P. M. to twelve o'clock midnight. Although the establishment does not close for regular patrons at midnight, the Villanova Seniors can only remain longer at the Arcadia at their own expense.

Recognition of his popularity and efficiency prompted the class of 1933 to dedicate the Belle Air yearbook of that year in his honor. His reputation was not limited to the campus for he was given an honorary degree of Doctor of Science by La Salle College of Philadelphia upon the occasion of his 25th year in the service of Villanova College.

Dean Humphrey is survived by his wife, Helen, and a son, Richard, who are living at 638 S. 57th St., in Philadelphia.

LIETH STEVENS,

SWING WILL TAKE BACK SEAT 25TH CLAIMS STEVENS

Maestro's Interview Shows He Will Play Slow Music For Ball

"Swing musicians can play sweet music," was the gist of Leith Stevens' remarks during a discussion of music with five Villanova students after last Saturday night's Swing Club session.

During the course of the discussion, Stevens pointed out the difference between music as played for dancing and that played to an audience. Problems met in the latter instance, especially when played for a large radio audience — the Swing Club is heard from coast to coast—consist mainly in getting the people's attention from such distractions as the newspapers or idle conversation. To do this, in the Senior Ball orchestra leader's opinion, it is necessary to step up the tempo to a pace entirely unsuitable for dancing. The slow dreamy ballad is heard, but not listened to, by the average radio listener; but swing music with its fast pace and distinctive arrangements demands attention.

When an orchestra plays for a dance, according to the maestro, an entirely different type of music is required. It is then that the dreamy ballad comes to the fore, with an occasional swing number to give the "cats" a break and to relieve any possible monotony from hearing the same slow tempo for a number of hours.

IN THE warehouses Mr. Pinnix has managed in Georgia, North Carolina, and South Carolina, 46,000,000 pounds of tobacco have been sold. Farmers travel many miles to bring their crops to Mr. Pinnix's warehouse for sale. Reason is that they respect his tobacco experience and business integrity. So surely Mr. Pinnix's views are worth your respect, too.

"At every market I've ever attended," says Mr. Pinnix, "Lucky Strike has bought the ripest, mellowest tobacco offered. That's why I've smoked Luckies ever since I first became a warehouseman 20 years ago."

Mr. Pinnix's statement is borne out by sworn records which show that, among independent tobacco experts —auctioneers, buyers, and warehousemen—Luckies have over twice as many exclusive smokers as have all the other cigarettes combined.

VILLANOVAN SPORTS

WILDCAT FIVE UPSET BY FORDHAM

Sportorial

By BILL BOWKER
Sports Editor

VILLANOVA'S boxing aspirations were dealt a severe blow when Eddie Kirk, 135-pound ringman, was stricken with appendicitis over the week-end. This, of course, means that he will be out for the season. Appendicitis operations take quite a bit out of the victim, and so Ray Gadsby will have to look for another man to take Kirk's place. Among the proposed candidates, though nothing is definite as yet, are Stan Bobrowski and Frank Hiney. Both of these boys performed in the intramural meets and gave good account of themselves. However, whoever is chosen to fill Eddie's shoes, will have a job worthy of his best efforts, for the varsity man won many points for the Wildcat ringmen during the past season in which the Main Liners lost only to the very strong Wisconsin mittmen. Gadsby is faced with a tough problem to find a replacement on such short notice, with the rugged Miami squad being met tomorrow night.

—V—

We see where the N. Y. U. Commerce and Finance Bulletin's Sports Editor's idea of a basket bowl is gathering momentum, and looks to be well within the realm of reality. Al Severance, when questioned about it at a recent dinner engagement in New York, expressed a favorable opinion and a willingness to enter the Wildcats in the event of their being selected. We think it's a good idea, although it has its drawbacks as we mentioned in a former column.

—V—

Some of the lads on the campus have formed a basketball team known as the Villanova Ramblers. These boys have full confidence in themselves and point to a record which includes among their victims some of the better amateur teams about the college district. They are desirous of facing Al Severance's undefeated freshman aggregation. Some of the members of the team are Pat Marquette, Ted Goumy, Mike Totin and others. Manager Anthony Rifici takes care of the business end.

—V—

Fordham brought to town two excellent basketball players in Bobby Hassmiller and Dick Davis. These lads were two very effective thorns in the sides of the Wildcat five and the points they rolled up between them just about ruined the evening for the Villanova rooters. We think that a little more accuracy from the foul line will help the Blue cause to a great extent. They boys missed more than three fouls, which would have changed the complexion of matters considerably.

—V—

"Jumbo" Elliot's trackmen get under way with the Penn A. C. meet this Saturday. Harv Buck will be around to do some fancy stepping as will the new relay team, of which much is expected. For the past few years, the track and field department of athletics has been somewhat neglected, but the outlook for this year is much brighter than in former years due to the wealth of material at hand.

—V—

It seems there has been some difficulty in the arrangements of L. K. D.-Villanovan contest. It will not be played in the big gym as a prelim to the varsity fray Saturday, but will probably be contested in the afternoon.

Villanova Boxers Meet Strong Foe In Bill Regan's Miami Ring Squad

Southerners Boast Fine Record Along Atlantic Seaboard; Three New Faces on Gadsby Club; Duffy Leads Blue

By JOSEPH PAGANO

With the precedent of winning athletic contests already established this season by two Wildcat teams, Villanova's gentlemen of the ring will attempt to keep the ball rolling in this direction when they meet the strong Miami U. boxing team from Coral Gables, Florida, in Villanova's field house on Wednesday night.

Lost One Meet

Coach Bill Regan will introduce to Eastern boxing fans practically the same team that won all but one of its meets last season. Miami U. has been noted for its fistic prowess along the Atlantic coast line and will, no doubt, offer enough competition to keep the 'Cat mittmen hustling all evening.

However, the Wildcat scrappers, expecting stiff opposition, have been working out faithfully and diligently for the past month in preparation for a blistering schedule. Coach Ray Gadsby is inclined to favor Miami in the meet; nevertheless, he feels certain that his boys will be out there giving their all to the final gong.

Villanova followers will see in Jimmy Mulroy, representing the Blue in the 115 pound class, a hard hitting and sincere worker. It will be Jimmy's first appearance here and he is anxious to display his wares. Mike Ariano, another newcomer to the squad, will engage in the 125 pound division and will be out there scrapping to start off his record with a win.

Holdovers are Captain Bill Duffy and Bob Mentzinger. These two boys form the nucleus of the embryonic squad and the burden is left upon their shoulders to set the correct winning xample for their teammates.

Three Newcomers

Three newcomers to the squad who will be out there to make an impression are Johnny Nujunas, Ben Markam and Ed Killian; these three fellows performed on the Frosh football team and gave good accounts of themselve. Respectively they will represent Villanova in 165, 175 and heavyweight classes.

Many of those who witnessed the Intramural spectacle will remember the exhibition tha Ed gave in eking a decison over Bill Dokas o. Alumni Hall in their hectic match. Since that event Ed has been coming along fine under the careful guidance of Coach Gadsby and appears to be a key man in

SWIMMERS VICTORIOUS OVER FORDHAM, GARNET

Defeat Rams and Swarthmore By Decisive Scores, Lose to St. Francis College

Since the Fordham meet, which Villanova tank team took by the score of 37-34, the swimming Cats have earned another victory; but a defeat at the hands of the St. Francis College swimmers came between these two wins.

Although Bill Leahy's individual work dominated the contest with the Saints the Wildcats lost to the tune of 34-32. After leading from the fourth face until just before the end. Leahy's victories in the 220, 100, and 440 yard events kept the Cats in front until the last race, a medley relay.

Won by a 49-26 Score

Again in the Swarthmore contest, Bill Leahy stole the show. He won the 220 yard free-style race and then went out and broke the pool record of 59 seconds by doing 100 yards in six-tenths of a second under the mark.

Last-Minute Rally Fails As Rams Triumph By 40-37

Fast Attack of Victors and Sensational Shooting of Hassmiller and Davis Account for Win; Krutulis Paces Losers With 12 Points

SECOND LOSS FOR BLUE BASKETEERS

By HARRY MAZZEI

Villanova's fancy-stepping basketeers struck a snag last Friday night at the Arena, when they met a brilliant Fordham team and were set down 40-37. Far from the form they displayed conquering Temple, the Wildcats never could quite catch the elusive Rams until the last minute and a half of play when they unleashed a rally that only the time clock stopped. Even this rally left the 'Cats three points short of a tie.

'Cats Favored

Fordham entered the contest rated one of the lesser teams of the New York City area, but at the close of the game they had served fair notice to the rest of the opponents on their schedule. The Rose Hill outfit showed as nifty a pair of forwards as ever opposed the Main Liners in Bobby Hassmiller and Dick Davis, a Bronx speed merchant. These two lads accounted 29 markers between them and with the exception of Jolting Johnny Krutulis, who tallied 13 points, no Blue player came close to equaling their performances.

Just after the opening tap-off, Villanova jumped into the lead on like Lazorchak's pretty toss from outside the foul circle. The 'Cats increased their lead to 5-1 before Hassmiller and Welch scored double-deckers to knot the count. Then the Rams took the lead, but the Wildcats tied it at nine-all and went ahead as "Jungle Jim" Montgomery made good on a free toss. This was the last time the Main Liners held the advantage, however, for the Maroon, on sensational shots by Hassmiller and Davis, forged to the front and stayed there for the remainder of the fray.

At the half Fordham held a 20-14 lead, as a result of their sharp-cutting dashes under the Blue bas-

SEVERANCE SQUAD TAKES FOUR FRAYS

Defeats Temple, Duquesne, P. M. C. and Geneva; Loses to Westminster

Al Severance's colorful Wildcat basketball squad took four out of five games played in the past two weeks preceding Friday night's Fordham tussle, defeating Duquesne, Geneva, P. M. C. and Temple. Westminster handed the Blue their initial defeat in a hotly contested fray.

Owls Defeated

The most important game of the five was the 36-28 beating administered to the high-riding Temple quintet. Form as has not been flashed before or since characterized the play of the Blue in this contest in which they trailed by five points with only a few minutes left to play. Goals by Duzminski and Sinnott turned the tide.

Geneva, Westminster and Duquesne were met in that order on a trip through Western Pennsylvania. Geneva, victim number 13, was defeated by a 43-32 count, with many reserves seeing action. Four starters were banished via the personal foul route, and the subs gave a good account of themselves.

Westminster played host to the 'Cats next, and seemed to be slated for the distinction of being the 14th victim of the Blue avalanche, but a furious rally in the closing two minutes of the contest saw the Titans snatch victory from defeat

Trip Through New England Features Baseball Nine's Tentative Schedule

Coach "Doc" Jacobs' baseballers will soon be out limbering up those stiff muscles as the boys are slated to begin practice February 18. A stiff twenty-game schedule is tentatively carded for the tossers, and it behooves them to get into trim.

Tigers Met First

Princeton's Tigers play host to the Jacobsmen on the second of April and four days later the Blue makes its yearly visit to Penn, weather permitting. Ursinus is met at Collegeville the day following the battle with the Quakers, and then the Wildcats come home for a five-game stay.

Boston University travels from New England to face the Main Liners on the eighth of the month, and the next day finds St. John's very rugged Redmen invading the Villanova field. A week's rest will allow the boys to prepare for the invasion of City College of New York, Western Maryland, and Providence.

Take to Road

The tossers then take to the road again, visiting Temple, Colgate and Penn State, not seeing home until May 4, when Lehigh comes down from Bethlehem. Fordham's Rams are met on the seventh and then Dickinson in Boston College are met on the home diamond. The annual New England trip sees the Blue facing Providence, Holy Cross and Boston College on successive days. This looks to be the highlight of the season, as the boys remember that decision at Holy Cross last year.

Temple's Owls repay the visit made by the 'Cats earlier in the season and Ursinus closes the campaign on May 21 at the Main Line stadium.

FLOCCO'S TANKMEN VISIT RIDER POOL

Blue Natators Underdogs in Tomorrow's Meet With Strong Rivals

Villanova's tankmen will go after their third win in five starts when they stalk up against the natators of Rider College tomorrow afternoon in the Trentonians' pool. The duel should be exceedingly close throughout providing thrills until the final event.

Enter Meet as Underdog

The Wildcats will enter the pool as underdogs as Rider sunk St. Francis by a margin of six points. St. Francis holds a two-point victory over the proteges of Coach Flocco. Several unfortunate incidents aided St. Francis in their meet with Villanova. A pulled muscle in Charley Barrett's leg forced Coach Flocco to scratch him in the century. Charley's absence from that event costed the Wildcats several valuable points that might have spelled victory for the Blue swimmers.

Coach Flocco is pleased with the team spirit and enthusiam in the daily drills and he firmly believes that the boys have more than a half a chance of upsetting the dope and getting revenge for last year's setback.

Rider is tutored by Coach Brooks, who has made quite a name for himself in swimming circles. In the last Olympic games he tutored the Bermuda swimming team. This year at Rider he has molded a strong team which has a nucleus composed of such stars as Ed Gisburne, Ed Kelley, and Dave Rowan. The latter two are very well-known in Philadelphia aquatic circles. It may be remembered that in last year's meet this same trio were responsible for the downfall of three of Villanova's pool records.

In spite of these stars, Coach Flocco believes his lads will carry off the laurels, for he thinks the Wildcats are more well-balanced than Rider and should score heavily in the second and third place positions.

THREE TEAMS TIE FOR MURAL LEAD

Austin, Fedigan and Mendel Day-Hops Top Court League

With the Intramural Basketball Tourney drawing nigh unto its end, a triple tie for first position is in evidence between Mendel Day, Austin, and Fedigan. The Austinites and West Enders represent the upper classmen's bid to fame while the lowly Frosh are kept in the running by the efforts of the Mendel Day Hop contingent.

All the clubs play each other in the near future and many fast and interesting frays are anticipated. Mendel is paced by Danny Keating, the league's leading scorer, while Le Balbo and Waad are leading the Austin horde. Fedigan, the first half victors, are playing with hopes of gaining the championship undisputed.

It is interesting to note that these three teams finished one, two, three in the first half standings. The Austinites, Red Shirts and Commuters are all fighting in hopes of attaining the title, so many typical intramural frays may be anticipated with little, if any, attention paid to the rules.

L. K. D.-VILLANOVAN FRAY TO BE CONTESTED SOON

Change In Plans Necessitated Because of Freshman Game

Sudden developments in the way of a freshman game for this Saturday night have disrupted the plans of non-playing Captain "Wolf" Tofani and his horde of VILLANOVAN basketeers. When informed of the fact that his boys would not be able to cavort before the assembled throng he stated with much vehemence, "We wuz robbed."

All plans will have to be changed as a result of Manager John Costello's having announced that the Freshman squad needed the practice whereas the two teams involved in the battle of the century had all the work they could handle, so it seems that the contest will have to take place on some other date, probably Saturday afternoon. Notice will be posted concerning the change in time.

Wildcat Foes on Saturday Night

THREE COURT GAMES FOR 'CAT DRIBBLERS

P. M. C. and Dickinson Here for Week - End Games

Facing three opponents in as many nights, Villanova's courtwise basketball squad, enters the last leg of a long gruelling 30 game schedule.

Al Severance will take his dribblers to Allentown, where the Wildcats will meet the fast and rangy Muhlenburg quintet of the Eastern Pennsylvania Intercollegiate League, Thursday evening, after which local fans will see the Main Liners in action on Friday and Saturday when the Cadet five of Pennsylvania Military College and the Dickinson College's quintet invade the Villanova Field House

Mules Little Known

Little is known of the Muhlenburg teal which has won three of the five games they have played in league competition. At the present writing, the Mules shared third place with Lebanon Valley College. The Allentown Collegians defeated Albright earlier this season.

The Chester Cadets, who visit here Friday evening, will be attempting to upset the apple cart and gain revenge for an early reversal charged to the Villanova team.

They have come a long way since that defeat, having swamped the strong Philadelphia College of Science squad 52-21. La Salle College, who dumped St. Joseph's, went an extra period before defeating P. M. C. 25-23.

Cadets At Full Strength

For the first time this season the "Soldiers" will be at full strength, Sid Spang, flashy forward, who suffered an injury during the gridiron campaign is climbing steadily in the district scoring column, has been going like a house on fire, since his return to the team two weeks ago. Inny Biasiotto, rangy pivot man, and the team's leading scorer, presents another threat to Wildcat hopes for the "City Championship."

Dickinson, defeated several weeks ago at Carlisle by the Wildcats, will be out to repeat their deeds of last year, when they upset the locals on the Field House court, after being shellacked on their own court. That victory snaped an eight game Villanova string of victories.

PENNAC MEET OPENS BLUE TRACK SEASON

Seven Entered in Penn A. C. Invitation; Buek Opposes Towns

The track team opens its indoor season this Friday night at Convention Hall, where Coach Jim Elliot will enter seven men in the annual Penn A. C. Invitation Heet. The Wildcat entries are Harvey Buek, Bill Guiteras, Bill Dobbins, Pete Petril, Barney Bellew, Art Murphy and Tim Waad.

Beuk will run in the special invitation 50-yard high hurdles against a very promising field including Forrest "Spec" Towns, University of Georgia track and football star. Towns broke the world's record for this event only last Saturday at New York.

Meet Temple in Relay

The mile relay team will be pitted against squads from Temple, Georgetown, Penn State, Swarthmore and West Chester Teachers. Coach Elliot is not yet certain of the order in which the team will run, but it is certain that Bill Guiteras will be anchor. Petril, Dobbins and Belley will form the remainder of the team.

Art Murphy, sophomore gridder, and Tim Waad will be entered in the jumping events; Art in the high jump and Tim in the broad jump. A probable contestant in the hurdles is Bill Meehan, a reliable veteran from last year's freshman ranks.

HERE and THERE

By TOM CARBINE

Editor's Note: This week the column is being written by Ross Arnold, who is Mr. Carbine's guest columnist.

After reading the "Duquesne Duke," Duquesne U. newspaper and finally settling our eyes on a report of the Villanova-Duquesne basketball game, we are led to believe that a certain Mr. Frank Gill should hand in his resignation for being unsound in his views and giving the wrong information regarding the players.

Quoting Mr. Gill, "two blind mice" were the referees. "The notorious number fourteen—George Duzminski used rough-house tactics." "Speaking of Duzminski, he and his mates did a good job of slugging, pushing and mauling throughout the game." "Flagrantly incompetent officiating and an unguarded Wildcat in the pocket of the floor won the decision over the dogged scrappiness of the Dukes that die but don't surrender."

Yes, the story was well-written in the parlance of the sport world, in fact it was too exact in denouncing hard playing for unruly tactics. When the Dukes were ahead everything was "hunky-dory" but when the heat was turned on by a fast, clean-playing squad, excuses were manifold, officials were denounced and in general the idea was put forth that there were seven men of the Wildcat team on the floor instead of the usual five men and the two officials.

First Defeat

When Villanova suffered its first defeat at the hands of Westminster, one of the officials was a Mr. Allison. It would be interesting, Mr. Gill, to know that Mr. Allison officiated at your game. Also, it is hard to believe that two men, with an eye to being adjudged honest so that in the future they can officiate in college circles, would throw a whole game to the side of one team. It isn't being done today. Loyal fans wouldn't stand for it, especially on a home court.

So much for the referees except that after the Westminster-Villanova game, Mr. Severance was a gentleman and didn't act like a sore-head, although several decisions were questionable and should have been in the favor of the 'Cats. More about "Chick" Davies. Davies was "driven into a fighting rage" for an out-of-bounds ruling. Maybe it wasn't Mr. "Chick." You see, it may have been a "Wildcat in Chick's clothing." Davies' actions after the contest were anything but those of a good loser. Davies is temperamental.

Regarding the "notorious number fourteen, George Duzminski, who

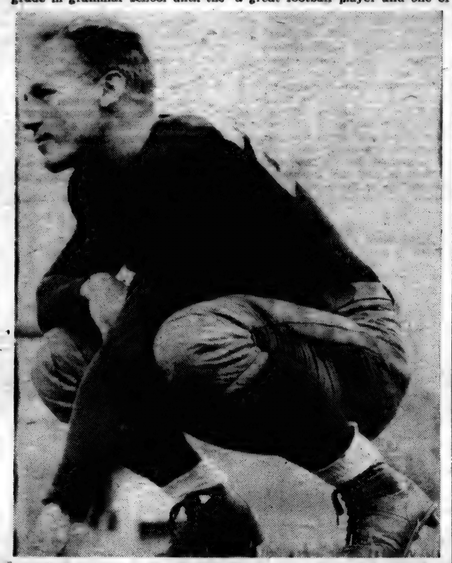
By JOHN L. SIMONS

THE sportlight is still being occupied by football men, and this week we give you Joe Missar, who for the past two years has done a sweet job at the left guard position on "Clipper's" eleven. In giving you the life history of Mr. Missar, we are proud to present him as a shining example of the worthwhile product of Catholic education and as a fellow who recalls the old headline "Local Boy Makes Good."

Joe was born in Philadelphia, on July 8, 1916, and he has lived in the City of Brotherly Love ever since. From the time he entered the first grade in grammar school until the present time Joe has always studied in Catholic institutions of learning. His first schooling was acquired at St. Clement's Parochial School in West Philadelphia. After the usual eight year Joe moved up a step and matriculated at West Catholic High.



Has Musical Talent

As a freshman Joe kept his athletic abilities under cover, but he was noted as a musician. Although it is not generally known about the Villanova campus, Joe was quite an efficient music maker. His saxaphone tooting earned him a place in West Catholic's championship band.

Music, however, was not Joe's true love. While he marched on the field with the band as a frosh Joe got a good view of the life of the West Catholic football men. So the following year found our hero gracacing the Burrs' bench. Still Joe wasn't able to show his stuff before the fans of Philadelphia. When the next year rolled around, things were very much different. Joe was regular center for the Burrs, and his play at that post was brilliant enough to earn him rating as the best center in the Catholic League. Once started, he couldn't be stopped. As a senior he was once again pivotman and once again earned All-Catholic rating.

Sought By Colleges

His record as a schoolboy athlete caught the interest of several colleges, some nearby and others not so near. Among them were the University of Pennsylvania, Temple and the University of North Carolina. But Joe wanted more than anything else to go to a Catholic college. Thus Villanova College was able to include in the roster of its class of 1938 one Joseph Missar, a great football player and one of the best guards ever developed on this campus.

Even though he was a standout as a center in high school, Joe was immediately switched to guard position by Harry Stuhldreher. History has since proved that Harry made no mistake in making that change.

ket. Incidentally, Hassmiller, when not actually scoring himself, was setting up these dashing point manufacturing maneuvers for Davis or some other teammate with well-directed assists.

Blue Reduces Margin

With the beginning of the second half, the Wildcats sliced their six-point deficit to four points on several occasions, but could not come closer until the final minutes. Then with the score at 39-31, with Fordham in the van, Johnny Krutulis, with two cord rustlers, and Mike Lazorchak, with a single basket, brought the count to 39-37. Here the attack stalled when Hassmiller converted on a free toss, and the game ended a few seconds later.

Johnny Krutulis performed exceptionally well for the Villanova quintet, for usually Johnny confines himself to a digging brand of ball, but on Friday he became the Blue's chief scoring threat. In this respect he was aided very ably by Jim Montgomery, who laid up eight scores, as well as doing most of the 'Cat ball handling.

this position. Incidentally Ed tips the beam at 235 and is the heaviest man ever to represent Villanova College in the heavyweight division.

One of the outstanding feats of this intersectional meet will be the match that will probably bring together Captain Bill Duffy and Captain "Scotty" McLachlan of Miami U. "Scotty" has been going great guns in his college career and Duffy is by no means any slouch, so this tussle will most likely bring back to memory the old friendly feud between three-time Intercollegiate Champ Tony Sala, of Villanova, and Vic Ortenzi of Western Maryland.

However, all of the bouts should be packed with enough thrills and excitement to warrant an interesting evening of real boxing ability and ring sportsmanship for Intercollegiate boxing fans.

used rough-house tactics." Well Mr. Gill, number fourteen (14) is none other than "Jungle Jim" Montgomery, a hard-playing man who is quite a threat to any opposing team. Duzminski, number six (6) is known as the "Duke." Rough-house hardly portrays any member of the team. We repeat, they play a fast, clean ball game. The tradition of Villanova sportsmen has and always will be, to play clean and hard, and lastly, if having lost a bitterly-contested fray, to act as sportsmen and not complain.

Taking the "unguarded Wildcat in the pocket of the floor" doesn't speak well of the playing ability or the coaching staff. In short, either the players weren't able to cope with the speed of the 'Cats or the coach expected the "rough" men from the Main Line to turn Emily Post, wear a monocle, top hat and tails and politely say, when they got possession of the ball, "I say, old bean, would you care for me to pass you the ball?" Mr. Gill doesn't speak well of his team, the members of the coaching staff of his University, or the collegiate sportsmanship that should be prevalent in all athletic contests.

If Mr. Gill takes to shame and resigns or changes to the Home Economics Department of Duquesne U. (provided they have such a department), we won't carry the matter any further. However, if Frank—May we call you Frank?—desires to have a duel or whatever gentlemen of honor have (We'll have a Coco-Cola) we'll gladly challenge Mr. Gill, or rather Frankie, to fists at 40 paces, in Mexico.

and mar the heretofore perfect record of the Severance aggregation.

Dukes Prove Tough

Duquesne, still smarting from the sound trouncing given them by Luisetti and Company, proved to be worthy opponents in the final game of the Western Pennsylvania journey, and the Main Liners found it necessary to come from a 19-11 halftime deficit to eke out a 33-32 win in the last 30 seconds of play with a basket by Mike Lazorchak.

Two days after the Duquesne triumph, the basketeers took a short hop over to Chester and smothered the P. M. C. Cadets by an overwhelming 56-39 score, with everybody taking a hand in the conquest.

WATCH FOR NOTICES

All persons interested in the L. K. D.-VILLANOVAN battle of the century are hereby advised to watch all bulletin boards for notices concerning the change of time of the fray It will not be played as a preliminary to the Dickinson game as announced in the VILLANOVAN.

Mr. Nugent lives in Conshohocken, Penna., is married and has one son, Gerald, Jr.

Nugent will outline the plans of the "Phillies" for the coming year and will give out some inside news on the recent trades and the part the "Phillies" played in them.

College Presidents Warned Against Governmental Control of Education

Villanova Head Expresses Fear of "Threats to Freedom" of Private Institutions at Conference in Harrisburg

Harrisburg, Pa., Jan. 31 (NC)—Warning against current trends toward governmental control of higher education was voiced here by the Very Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O. S. A., LL. D., president of Villanova College, in his presidential address made at the annual meeting of the Association of College Presidents of Pennsylvania.

No Danger Yet

Father Stanford declared that while there may be no thought of control in the mind of the governmental agency, there have been increasing evidences in the past few years "of paternal interest in higher education on the part of the Federal and State governments that give rise to well-founded fears that we are heading ultimately for governmental control of higher education."

"The current tendencies," he said, "are paving the way to make it easy for governmental agencies in the future to assume such control if they are so minded."

The three tendencies cited by Father Stanford as "threats to the freedom, or it may be to the existence, of privately supported colleges and universities," are increasing government subsidies to State institutions to duplicate or replace the facilities already afforded by privately supported colleges and universities; Federal and State "encroachments in the field of the voluntary accrediting agencies"; and "threats of taxation against privately supported institutions.

"There is every reason for us to be on the alert against the possibilities, no matter how remote they may seem, of a State monopoly in the field of higher education," Father Stanford said. "I believe that it is our duty to see that the governing boards of our institutions, our alumni, friends and the general public, are aroused to a recognition of the danger."

BLAZER COMMITTEE CHOSEN BY JUNIOR CLASS PRESIDENT

Belated Announcement Reveals Seven Members Named to Aid Chairman Kassel

SEVERAL CONTACTS MADE

It has recently been announced by Junior Class officials that the newly appointed Blazer Committee has received the support of the authorities and is now making rapid progress toward the acquisition of the necessary raiment to satisfactorily celebrate Junior Week.

Assist Kassell

The members of the committee as released by Donald Mackowski, president, are as follows: Martin B. Kassel, of the Science School, as chairman, Albert E. Holl of the Arts School, Leonard R. Merullo of the School of Education, Harry W. Matsinger and Joseph A. Higgins, both of the School of Commerce and Finance; John J. Curran of the Science School. From the Engineering School both Edward A. Ritti and Leo B. Bicher are represented on the committee.

This committee has already made several contacts and predicts that this year will see an innovation in blazers. Nothing as yet has been set regarding style or material but from all indications things will be handled in a manner pleasing to all the members of the class.

Individuality Stressed

The blazer is the traditional garment worn by the Juniors to set them apart as a class during the celebration of Junior Week. This year an attempt will be made to preserve the uniformity of former years and yet allow the individuality of the class members to be shown in their selection of blazers.

Important topics relative to the Junior Week program will be discussed at a general meeting of the Junior Class today in the Mendel amphitheater at 1 o'clock. In all probability, an assessment will be decided upon at this time. Information pertaining to the activity of the Blazer Committee will be presented to the class members. It is anticipated by class officials that all juniors will attend this important class gathering.

HOFSTRA DEBATERS ARRIVE WEDNESDAY

Beta Gamma Also Engages John Carroll University Friday Night

For the coming week Beta Gamma has scheduled two forensic contests which are to take place on the Villanova Campus, Wednesday night has been set aside for a debate with Hofstra, and on Friday night representatives of John Carroll will play the role of opponents to the Villanova debating team.

After a temporary lull due to the examination and retreat, there has been during the past week a renewing of activity. The campus was the scene of a debate against Georgian Court on Tuesday night. Manhattan was engaged the following evening, and Marquette was scheduled for Saturday.

Detroit Contest Broadcast

Last night's contest with the University of Detroit was also interesting. This debate was broadcast over station WIP.

Last week's debaters were: against Georgian Court—Simons, Stahmann, and Corkill; against Manhattan, Harrington, Delate, Corkill; against University of Detroit—McNamara, Calabro and Simons. In the debate against Hofstra, Quigley, Stahman and O'Brien are to take part. Friday night against John Carroll will be Harrington, Delate and Corkill.

Phi Kappa Pi Plans Big Initiation And Banquet For Next Monday Night

John A. White, First President of Group, Guest of Honor; Membership Chairman Expects to Induct Seventy-Five Members

Villanova's college dining hall will reverberate with laughter and gaiety as old grads gather around in circles of friendship and scores of neophytes joke about their trials, when Phi Kappa Pi, oldest fraternity on the campus holds its thirtieth anniversary banquet on Monday evening, February 21.

Initiation Precedes Banquet

Preceding the anniversary banquet, the fraternity will conduct its annual initiation ceremonies. Approximately seventy-five members are expected to be inducted. Under the direction of John L. Simons, senior chemical engineer and chairman of the membership committee, and William A. Burns, senior electrical engineer and chairman of the initiation committee, Phi Kappa Pi will play host to the largest group of pledges in the fraternity's history. This new group will increase the fraternity membership to a record number.

Annually the banquet is the scene of a renewal of friendship between Villanova-graduated engineers. This year will be no exception for the banquet will bring together three graduates of the first engineering class to leave Villanova College, the Class of 1909. These distinguished graduates are John A. White, of Baltimore, Md., guest of honor; Edward J. Kirsch, of Wayne, Penna., and John J. Smith of Philadelphia.

In addition to the members of the Class of '09 various other speakers will be presented at the banquet by fraternity president James Paul Skelly. Most prominent among these are the Rev. John S. O'Leary, O.S.A., faculty advisor of the Phi Kappa Pi, Paetrus Banmiller, '35, college Registrar, and Edward J. Dougherty, '12, president of the Empire Engineering Company of Baltimore, Md. John P. Keffer of Trenton, N. J., prominent in alumni circles, will also be among those present at the anniversary celebration.

Faculty, Alumni Expected

Besides the men listed above, President Skelly expects many members of the alumni to be in attendance at the banquet. All present members of the Phi Kappa Pi will be on hand as welcoming committee to the graduated members. Several members of the college administration and faculty will be among the guests of the fraternity at the affair.

John B. Rhoads, '38, chairman of the Decorations Committee, has made preparations for the arrangement of gay decorations for the banquet. Conveyors of melodies, the Villanovans will lend a musical atmosphere to this annual occasion of the most comprehensive get-together of the Villanova Technology School.

Series Of Debates Begin Today By Oratory Students

Arts and Engineering Public Speaking Classes Divided Into Teams

Beginning today and continuing every day except Monday, four times a week thereafter, there will be an inter-class debate between the School of Arts and the School of Technology in the amphitheatre at one o'clock. As next Tuesday is a holiday, Washington's Birthday, the debate ordinarily scheduled for that day will be on the preceding Monday.

Schools Have Four Teams

There are four teams in each school. The captains in the School of Arts are: A team, Robert Wilderotter; Team B, Joseph Kozlowski; Team C, Joseph McNamara; Team D, John Harrington.

The captains in the School of Technology are: Team A, John Holland; Team B, Fred Rappiayea; Team C, John Seelaus; Team D, Joseph Scully.

The question for this week's contests is; "Resolved: that the several states should adopt a unicameral system of legislature." The questions for the succeeding weeks in order are NLRB, Ludlow Bill, Wages and Hours; these are all being debated by the varsity. The Engineers will always take the negative.

This afternoon's debate will be between the two A teams, tomorrow's the B teams, Thursday, C teams, Friday, D teams. All speeches are limited to three minutes.

Members of the Junior Arts will act as chairman and officials.

BIRTHDAY GREETINGS

The VILLANOVAN takes this opportunity to offer congratulations to Very Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O. S. A., who celebrated his birthday yesterday.

Joseph J. Quinn Selected Villanova Engineer Head

Succeeds Joseph B. Sanborn as Editor-in-Chief of Technology Publication; Edward A. Ritti Chosen Business Manager

MOZZI IS APPOINTED ASSOCIATE EDITOR

Joseph J. Quinn, junior mechanical engineer, was appointed editor-in-chief of the Villanova Engineer, official publication of the School of Technology, by Joseph B. Sanborn, retiring editor, and the announcement was confirmed by Rev. John J. Vrana, O. S. A., moderator, and faculty advisor for the past six years.

Quinn succeeds Joseph B. Sanborn, senior chemical engineer, who, in his tenure of office, inaugurated many ideas which increased the already high standards of the magazine. He originated a new cover design and many other features. Sanborn commended his successor upon his splendid work as copy editor and predicted a very successful publication under the guidance of the new editor.

Announces New Staff

Immediately upon assuming his new duties, Quinn announced the list of staff members who will serve under him for the ensuing year.

Named to the important position of business manager is Edward A. Ritti, junior mechanical engineer, replacing Emil Mathias, retiring official, who completed a very successful term of office.

Francis J. Mozzi, junior electrical engineer, was selected as the new associate editor, succeeding John L. Simons. John Seelaus was chosen circulation manager, while John Leary, sophomore chemical student, was named to the post of copy editor, which was formerly held by the new editor.

Other appointments include Samuel H. Brown and Thomas J. Schaedler as columnists. Brown replaces Daniel J. O'Connor as the author of "College World," while Schaedler succeeds Joseph W. Beitenmiller as the writer of the column, "Alumni News."

Editor Active

Quinn has been extremely active in the course of his stay here. He served on the Sophomore Cotillion Committee and also on the Orientation Committee. In addition, he is

DISCUSS BLOOD THEORY

Research Seminar Begins Series of Lectures on Coagulation

Beginning a new series of lectures on the various theories concerned with the important question of blood coagulation, the Research Seminar under the direction of Rev. James Donnellon, O. S. A., heard the first papers of this new series delivered by Irving Uram, senior, and John Curran, junior Pre-Med.

Following the reading of these papers a lively discussion was held in which several important phases of this work were thoroughly discussed. This new series of lectures will continue over a period of weeks and anyone interested in attending them is cordially invited to attend.

PRE-MEDS PREPARE SPORTS SCHEDULE; POSTPONE N. Y. TRIP

L. K. D. Fraternity Plans Basketball Activity; to Contest Campus Clubs

Plans for the furtherance of the Lambda Kappa Delta athletic program were discussed by Lawrence Knaphle, manager of the basketball team, at a recent meeting of the fraternity. Tentative games have been scheduled with clubs and fraternities on the campus. Practice sessions are being held in the Alumni Hall gymnasium every Friday afternoon.

Trip Postponed

Because of the pressure of studies and the difficulty of arranging new rosters, the fraternity members have voted unanimously to postpone the proposed trip to New York. The members of the fraternity had previously been invited by one of the largest manufacturers of pharmaceuticals in the country to visit their plant in that city. However the trip has not been stricken from the rolls of future activities and will be made as soon as is compatible with the schedules of studies of all the members.

A special meeting of the fraternity will be held Thursday of this week in Room 210, Mendel hall. This is to be a business meeting at which all members are requested to be present.

FATHER DOUGHERTY APPOINTED ADVISOR

It was announced today that the Rev. Joseph M. Dougherty, O.S.A., dean of the School of Science, has accepted an invitation to help in the movement to standarize nursing schools.

Fr. Dougherty was chosen as a professional advisor for the Nursing School Evaluation Program of the Catholic Hospital Administration. The advisors will meet this week at St. Louis University, St. Louis, Missouri.

NUGENT ADDRESSES HOLY NAME GROUP

Phillies' President Speaks at Breakfast; Advocates Further Catholic Action

Mr. Gerald P. Nugent, president of the Philadelphia National League baseball club, entertained as after-breakfast speaker at the Holy Name Society Communion breakfast last Sunday. The popular Philadelphia Catholic layman gave in his pleasing open-hearted manner his firm belief of what a Catholic layman should do.

Emphasized Action

Mr. Nugent spoke not as a baseball executive but as a Catholic layman advocating the advancement of Catholic Action to a newer and higher degree. He told of various interesting stories that he has come to possess in his travels as official of the Phillies. He informed the students of the developments of Catholic Action among the ball players that he has come to know. Showing that Catholic Action can be done in any field of occupation as shown by the example of the Philadelphia police and firemen in their yearly open Mass opposite the Cathedral, he asked that college students urge themselves to further their faith in every manner that they might.

PUBLIC SPEAKING

BEING cognizant of the manifold benefits to be derived from public speaking, it is with pleasure that we note this week announcements of student oratorical contests, intra- and inter-class debates, and increased freshman and varsity intercollegiate debate schedules.

If there is any subject that makes a man ready in the clear expression of his ideas, it is public speaking. The knowledge that you can express yourself and the resulting confidence in explaining your original plans and suggestions comes, as always, with practice. Of course, there are some individuals who can think on their feet with no formal training, but most of us, whatever reason, must overcome a certain fear by means of positive successful experience in acquiring a facile vocabulary and the active mind that is able quickly to marshall knowledge, bring it to bear on a particular point, and present reasons diplomatically.

The ability to speak when the occasion demands, the analytical reasoning, and improved memory acquired in debate make one not only a more interesting conversationalist, but a leader as well. Success in public speaking gives a success habit that transfers to all our endeavors.

ARE WE BEHIND OTHERS?

ARE we, the students of Villanova, mentally stagnant? Are we content to drift aimlessly from day to day? Are we aware that Villanova is not the world?

Are we students? A student is one who studies not books alone but life itself. College is NOT life but a small part of it.

There is war in Spain; war in China. We know that. But do we know how these affect us? Do we study these happenings to realize the course that we should follow in the immediate future? Are we cognizant that as the youth of the nation we shall be the future leaders?

For some reason a peculiar apathy holds the average student aloof from such things. Such an apathy is no longer typical of the average college student. Granting that at one time the word "student" meant withdrawal from the world, that time has now passed.

More and more, students today are taking an interest in current events; some are even instrumental in making history. Are we at Villanova to lag behind? Are we to be found at the foot of the march or—where we should be—at the head.

CATHOLIC PRESS MONTH

IT IS no guarded fact that anti-social, anti-Catholic and Communistic propagandists have been flooding the American literary market with poisonous falsehoods which are beginning to seep into the very soul of our American public. It is no secret that their foul lies are being accepted by uneducated and unsuspecting Americans, misled by the silver tongues and golden pens of radical theorists.

Everyone is aware of this situation, but what is being done about it? Are we to sit by while these corrupting influences forever ruin the democratic and Catholic principles for which so many of our predecessors have so well fought? Are we going to adopt an attitude of "it can't happen here?"

The Catholic Church is one of the few world organizations which realizes the overwhelming power of the radical press and the vast influence of the vile tongues of the radical orators. In order to combat this drastic situation she has appointed this month as Catholic Press Month.

As Catholic College students it is our duty to acquaint ourselves with the literature of our Faith. Here at Villanova we have ample opportunity to do so, for Catholic newspapers and Catholic magazines can be had for the asking. The Catholic Press Apostolate has placed religious pamphlets in the college chapel and news clippings and religious bulletins will be found on the religion bulletin board. It is your duty to read them and learn what your Church is doing to fight the evils which are seeking to destroy the prestige of our Church as well as the very life of our nation. At least during this month assigned to Catholic Press make an effort to Read Catholic and Talk Catholic.

STRIKE UP THE BAND

IT would be wise for Villanova students to take a tip from your band. Working as they do throughout the year to give you an organization of which you may justly be proud the band has also shown the acme of Villanova spirit. At home and on the road, where they have been commended for their excellent display of spirit as well as their superb musical ability, the band is the only group that will consistently cheer and encourage your team.

Now that the football glamor is over the band is still holding regular practice sessions and is endeavoring to supply you with music for basketball games. They show their spirit by being the only ones to answer the pleas of the cheer leaders before the court frays—and you students would do well to follow their example. They have evidenced more school spirit in their small way than any other campus organization.

It is with great pleasure then that we congratulate them upon their show of loyalty and urge you students to do likewise and to follow their example. With the band as leaders the cheering and spirit at the few remaining basketball games should be a bit better than it has in the past. Strike Up the Band.

ODDS and ENDS

By Tom O'Mahoney

ED. NOTE—This week's column is being written by Tom Haynes.

IN the humble opinion of the writer, upon being assigned this task, the columnist pictured above is fast approaching senility or feebie mindedness or whatever you may call it that causes people to do rash things. Anyway, here goes.

I WONDER:

Why the lad who is responsible for the column "Varieties" in this sheet doesn't extend his knowledge of the movements of Kay Kyser and band? Need we remind him that this band made a tour of this very state last Summer.

Why Buzz Hart doesn't tell us more about his back home interests? . . .

Why a portrait of Mr. Ben Pawlowski graced his home town rag? Did you know that Benny is going to sing "Blossoms on Broadway"?

Why no one ever consults "Wee Willie" Nollman of Alumni Hall on the subject of the fairer sex? Shh . . . he's a cynic.

There must be a reason for it . . .

If Charlie Barrett still listens to "Gloomy Sunday"? Did she surrender Charles? Personally, I'd rather be rich than handsome too . . .

When that handsome thing from the Penthouse is going to give up that harelip? Hiya Bill . . .

Why the business manager of this sheet enjoys the enviable rep that he does among his best friends? Or is it their overwhelming jealousy, Mr. Mackin? . . .

Why Art "Worry" Appleby is an enthusiastic supporter of the move to drop corsages from the list of necessaries for dance dates? . . .

When "Mad Genius" Metzger of Alumni will be added to the nation's list of famous but nutty inventors? Have you seen his room?

ADD SERIOUS NOTE:

We have heard that a certain confectionery store in Bryn Mawr has refused to put an ad in one of our school publications. Claims that the students here don't support him. Let's see your spirit of revolt rise. Let's show him just how much our business is worth. It seems to the writer that we've been taking it on the chin anyway. Of course we wouldn't like to say who he is, but . . . that Greek sure gets away with murder.

College Chatter

By Joe Alessandroni

SINCE COLLEGE SENIORS will soon "worry" through their last examinations, it is only proper that we give space to their reflections . . . with apologies to all poets of the past, present and future.

Do you remember, seniors, when the college campus was crowded
With laughing students returning again, and you doubted
That your frightened freshman faces, filling campus places,
Would soon be running others through their paces?
As sophisticated sophomores, life was clearer;
Studies were harder; junior year
drew nearer;
Bodies were stronger; hours of study longer,
As thoughtless boys became thinking men.
Seniors at last; the world is waiting;
Hours are dragging, months are lagging;
Exams are penned, professors are panned,
Seats grows harder; When Will it End?

BONERS: "Boners" reached a new high recently at the University of Washington when results of an identification test given to freshmen were made known. Here are some of them:

Florella La Guardia, New York City mayor—"a general in the Spanish civil war."

John L. Lewis—"President of the American Federation of Labor."

Al Smith—"a Seattle newspaper reporter."

Dr. Joseph Goebbels, German minister of propaganda—"a secretary to the A. F. of L., or a kidnaper."

Camille Chautempts, premier of France—"a French movie star."

The Observer

FOUND: One Mayor of a small, thriving town of three hundred twenty thousand population.

PLACE: Meadows of North Jersey.

DISTRICT: Hudson County.

IDENTITY: Hon. Frank Hague.

According to the papers, it seems as though a great catastrophe has befallen our fair land. CIO men the country over announce to the world that they have made a startling discovery. They have uncovered the ruins of the Hague Dynasty of New Jersey, Hudson County, and Jersey City. They say that this reign lasted from 1912 B. C. to 1938 A. D. (B. C.—Before the Republican Crash.)

As these men say, the basis of the Constitution is being undermined—Sapped by an Irish Catholic politician because this man had the audacity to wish to keep the people of his fair city working.

What a horrible, heartless monster! Wanting honest Americans to work! What a subversive principle. What is he trying to do? Abolish unemployment relief?

He wanted to give every man a chance to work without having to pay their CIO dues each month.

Nasty Frankie! Robbing Johnnie L. of his milk and cigarette money. What's the country coming to?

The man was courageous enough to continue running the fair city, which he had been asked to protect.

Incredible! Amazing! The man actually took his office seriously. But then, this is the twentieth century, the age of miracles.

It just shows to go you how smart these Jerseyites are. They knew Frank was there all the time. That's why he's there.

Some people might call him an "enlightened despot." But he isn't king or emperor, he's mayor, elected to rule in his city as he sees fit, so long as he stays within the law.

Mayor "I-am-the-law" Frank Hague, being what he is, can do no wrong. He is the law. So is every other mayor in every other city in the United States. He is to Jersey City as the President is to the forty-eight states.

It would appear that Horace hit the Communist nail on the head, for he has written: "Lo, the mountains are in labor! And they have brought forth a ridiculous mouse!"

In the same manner, we give you the nation-wide clamor of so-called liberals which brought forth our fearless Frankie.

Shall we sing the national anthem?

The Frosh have now officially been initiated into Villanova. They have now seen Bill Duffy working under pressure. It really did this old man's heart good to see that bout the other night. According to the Miami U. chaps, that is the third time that Duffy's opponent has been defeated in four years of collegiate fighting. We hear that that Miami star has the ungentlemanly habit of winning by knock-outs. Congratulations, Bill.

FLASH: BY WAY OF CABLE. European Diplomats take leaf from notebook belonging to American politicians and economic royalists.

The First World War was a war to end wars. To prove this was a "just" war, there have been no major wars since then. Mussolini only chastised the Ethiopians; Japan is only persuading China to give up some worthless land; and the Spaniards are only having a well-known family reunion.

RESULT: Millions killed in Spain, China, Manchuria, and Ethiopia. We all know this is all right. Nothing has seriously been endangered.

And it is all very profitable for the War offices of the various countries. They no longer have veteran trouble, expenses for war medals, or other war expenses. There have been no wars to cause such disbursements.

They just have "campaign expenses." Far be it from us to complain about that. Even President Roosevelt has those!

PATIENCE IS A VIRTUE

Don't say that fellow next door was permitted to hand in his resignation. Not yet. You'll most likely run into him again in a couple of days.

Where is he? He may be in any of the two hundred odd rooms on the campus.

Now the real grind begins: getting up a new gang for the bull session; getting together with the old gang for the gentlemanly games of chance (no money involved, of course); and finding out where to grub cigarettes.

As you may have noticed, the divorce rate was very high this year. Could the reason behind the decrees of separation which Father Albers gave out last week be that the couples have broken up, or should we look at the more idealistic (SIC!) side and say that they found so many new friends during the term that they wish to go on the part time system—This semester with Jack, next with Jim (I can meet his good looking sister then and go travelling with him next Summer).

Welcome home, Frank Castles. We are glad to see you back with us again. 'Tis our gain, Louie's loss. It took Louis two weeks to find out how much to cook after you left. Now he'll run short for two weeks more. Look at the trouble you cause.

Seriously, though, we are glad to see you feeling a bit better, after the vacation you have had. I should think you would be very glad to come back and start cramming for all those too, too lovely exams.

Danny O'Mahony: get out of bed! FLASH:

Seen along the paths to those Valentine dispensaries in Bryn Mawr: Alan Dowling, LKD prexy, last Saturday aft hustling to answer that sweet card he received from up-state New York. How did we find out? Ah, Alan! You wouldn't ask that, would you? Tom DeRosa accompanied to assist in the choosing of the important missive. Al's not the only guilty party, however, for the boys met "Reds" Kannen and Bede Howard loaded with cards, and they didn't look like comics, either.

CAMPUS POET

ED. NOTE—This poem in its entirety was taken from "The Villanovan" of 1923. At that time the publication appeared in the form of a magazine.

The Dying Improvisatore

There sleeps a warmth, a quiet glow,
Upon the wreaths of driven snow
That 'gainst the frozen casement show;
And thoughtful—here before my fire,
A-burning dim and slow—
I dream, I dream, till wakes the lyre
Of memory, fondly low.

I gaze into the hearth's red heart,
And from its depth vague phantoms start:—
Dear One! how near to-night thou art!
Thy spirit flickers in the flame
And forms a special part
Of magic smoke that spells thy name
Upon the wall's blank chart.

I tell the beads of joy that thou
Once wrought for me, and yet must bow
My heart in pain. I see them now
There in the fitful, blurring blaze—
A thorn-wreath for my brow,
That turns to agony those days
Of love and youth's sweet vow.

Thy dust they laid within the ground;
And faded offrings on the mound
Do lure the ghosts of old around
The hallowed slab that marks thy grave.
My hope—my life is wound
About that place where laps the wave
With vext, unquiet sound.

Now 'gins to pale the wearied blaze,
My soul with strange and fixed gaze,
Still pierces deep its dying rays,
Seeking thy fair, immortal face;
Far through the gathering haze
It flees the narrow bourne of space
And roams o'er unknown ways.
The flames are out. Like heart-beats red
That died upon their ashen bed;
And then the mystic phantoms fled;
And sad and drear as thy dim tomb,
The silence . . . Love, I shed
One poignant tear . . . Within this room
They'll find me—col and dead.

—Edmund Kowaleski.

ON THE UPBEAT:

Did you lads hear Lieth Stevens last Saturday? His rendition of "Nice Work If You Can Get It," and his accompaniments to "Little T" Teagarden prove that he can play slow sweet music. Teagarden rendered "Stardust" and "Ain't Misbehavin'" and the Stevens band played as sweet an accompaniment as one would want to hear. That sax section is as good as any I've heard, and in "Stardust" the boys really put their soul into their work. Another enjoyable feature of the Stevens arrangements is the trombone work, where a pair of the lads stand up and do some sweet work. Excelled by very few, says I.

The more the lad plays—we're still talking about Stevens — the better he sounds. How did you like that 1922 bit on "Swinging in the Corn?" Versatility is only one of the good features of the Senior Ball band and those of you who have any qualms as to not hearing slow music at the Ball are worrying needlessly. So get in line and follow the crowd to the Main Line Field House a week from Friday. Remember, you dance to the music the band plays, not to the name of the leader.

BEAUTIFUL AND BRILLIANT:

I never heard of the college before, in fact I couldn't tell you whether it was coed or where it was located. But, as all things must come in due time, I found out all I wanted to know. Further, I never liked to debate or even to participate in one. However, all this is changed now.

It seems that there is a college for women located in New Jersey, Lakewood to be exact, for girls. It is also true that they have a debating team combining beauty and brilliance. Last Tuesday afternoon this combination came to Villanova to argue with our boys that the women's place was definitely NOT in the home. The boys from Villanova knew otherwise, and with emphasis, I'm sure, convinced the debaters from Georgian Court College for Women that they were wrong.

Ed "There are still plenty of vacant seats" Delaney was the Chairman, but he had a hard time attempting to get the boys to occupy a seat in the amphitheatre, rather than stand. It seems they were afraid of getting too close to the female debaters for fear of losing all interest in the argument, rather than become absorbed in beauty.

Well, anyhow, the first speaker was Jake Simons, as fine a fellow as you want to meet. He wants to be an engineer when he grows up, and now I'm positive he'll make a better bridge builder than a debater. Jake put up a fine fight, but stick to bridges in the future, will you please, Jake. You convinced me that beauty was only skin deep, but deep enough to convince me that the girls were correct from the very beginning.

The second speaker, may the heavens bless her, was Miss Bender. She wore a green taffeta dress, with the cutest little ruffles you ever want to see. I bet she bought the dress for a mere note. And her shoes, oh yes! her hair was done by Francois, I must try him sometime. Schucks, she was de bating too.

Miss Bender is a good debater, but she made one remark, that of all places does not go well here. She asks, "What's wrong, is that the men of today cannot support a home and children, and as a result women go into business." Now Miss Bender, you know that that is not true. Take Jake Simons for example . . .

Then came the dawn, and with it blew in Bob "Call me Eve" McNamara. Bob believes in rabble rousing as the essential principle to follow when debating. To prove his point as to just where the women belong during office hours, he started his argument from the time when Eve was politely told that she was only a "rib" of Adam. That Eve and those of her sex were put on this globe to aid her superior, and that was man. Yes sir, Bob let 'em have it. Women, he said, "weren't satisfied when they were given the right to vote, they weren't satisfied when the Turks gave them a break and permitted them to dispense with their veils, now they want to go into business because it's the style." And then he said, "Now all the women know is to eat oysters during the months that have "R's" in them." "Come back Miss Bender, don't go yet. Bob is ALL THROUGH.'

About this time the heat was terrific—from the arguementers. Prof. Frayne's face was red and the audience was splitting from laughter one moment and ire the following. Then came the calm in a "petite" way as it were. It arrived with bonde hair and all. She was the answer to the "baking" question. Petite Miss Pettit grabbed the floor and flung all the fury that was in her little body. She was mad. "What," she flung at the gentlemen from Villanova, "would you thing of a girl who said, 'It will be impossible for me to make a date with you tonight because I have to bake a loaf of bread?'" Silence reigned in the amphitheater. She stood her ground with defiance as she looked about. "Where is she" was the chorus from Villanova. "We'll be right over."

In an interview with Miss Bender following the contest I asked her what her hobby was. "Ping Pong" she replied, "and I'm no amateur." Incidentally she is a country girl and her parting remark to me was, "I'm a rustic, but don't take me literally." Oh, no!

Delaney was still asking the boys to have a seat, not to stand in the rear.

Then came "Caesar's Commentaries" Corkill. "Show me the girl that CAN bake a loaf of bread," was his slogan. Personally, Bill looks as though he could stand one, a loaf of bread I mean.

They always save the best for last. And this was a classical piece. Miss Barr, dark, handsome and mature. She knew what she was talking about—until she faced the grimaced faces of the boys and then she wilted, pity it all, like the last rose of Summer. Barring what Miss Barr spoke on, she is ONE GOOD REASON why women should work.

COURSE FOR PARENTS

A course for parents of University of Wasington students, believed the only one of its kind in the United States, has become so popular in this its second year, that it is limited to parents of freshmen only. Discussions cover such subjects as student activities and problems, adjustment to university conditions.

By JAMES F. DONOVAN

"THE Play's the thing" has been often quoted as the motto of all dramatists everywhere. So today we present to you one who has achieved stardom in his own little way in the Thespian art. We present to you one who has been foremost among Villanovans in fostering the sock and buskin and whose skillful management and brilliant acting have made the Belle Masque one of the proudest boasts of Villanova—John M. Donahue.

Was "Coal Cracker"

However, we must confess there is a dark side in John's life. The fact is this, that it is his early rearing which fills his heart with misgiving—"he is a coal cracker." Born in Mahonoy City, Penna., on January 9, 1916, our future Villanovan tried valiantly to overcome the odium of living in Northern Pennsylvania. In our time, John cast aside his slate and pencil and entered Mahanoy City Catholic High School. Here he flourished and shone as brilliantly as a diamond in a coal bin. But alas, the Catholic High School had only a two year course and so Mahanoy City High School was his next stop in his search for higher learning. At M. C. H. S. he was prominent in debating and gave evidence of his collegiate success when he entered dramatics and became the star of the high school society.

Upon his graduation in 1934, John looked about for the lucky college that was to be his next stop-over for four years. Perhaps it was an inner voice—perhaps it was first Villanova's good luck—nevertheless in September of 1934, John stepped off the train at Villanova and first spied the twin spires of the college chapel.

In his freshman year our tall lanky "frosh," between struggles with accounting, was the sole representative of his class on the staff of the Belle Air. His second year in the land of the Wildcat was featured by his membership in that troupe that is the bane of every freshman—the Sophomore Orientation Committee.

JOHN DONAHUE

Elected Dramatic Head

In Junior year, John began his collegiate dramatic career which was to carry him to the presidency of the Belle Masque. When the society, dormant for so many years, finally awoke with a start, the name of John M. Donahue was first on the roster of its members. When "Journey's End" was presented as the initial work of the Belle Masque, the part of Lieut. Osborn was portrayed by no one else than our ex-"coal-cracker." His brilliant performance as the elderly officer caused his election as first president of the reorganized Belle Masque.

This year, his dramatic efforts have spread beyond the campus and his services have been sought by many of our neighbors. The Harcum School for Girls secured him to play an important role in "Cradle Song." And when the Philadelphia Guild Players presented "Accent on Youth," this Villanovan's name was numbered among the cast. At present he is diligently preparing his Belle Masque associates for the production of "Winterset."

So, you see, John has a varied and unusual career at Villanova. The pride of Mahanoy City has established himself as a true organizer, a brilliant actor and a fine fellow. No senior in the school can be more proud of his record than can this diligent Thespian. We give you John M. Donahue, Villanova, '38.

CHEMISTRY TEACHER EXPLAINS IDEAS FOR CHEMISTRY LAB

Haltenberger Announces That Senior Students Will Make Own Equipment

With the installation of new equipment in the basement of Mendel Hall, Villanova's new Chemical Engineering laboratory began to take shape. The lab, according to William Haltenberger, instructor in Chemical Engineering, consists of semiplant size equipment, and will be able to accommodate 12 to 15 students.

Haltenberger Explains Process

Mr. Haltenberger explained that the primary purpose of the new lab is to acquaint the college student with the operation and construction of plant size equipment. To do this each aspirant for a Bachelor's degree will be required to build and operate his own equipment as thesis work, thus enabling him to do individual research with equipment such as is used in the major chemical engineering industries throughout the United States and the rest of the world.

The idea, new to Villanova, is found in nearly every first-rate Chemical Engineering school in the country. Through the construction of this lab and the work it will enable the students to perform, Villanova College is on the way to better methods of teaching, explained Haltenberger.

At present, an evaporator and an absorption tower are being installed and in the near future a still and rectifying column will be constructed, making the department one of the best equipped and most modern in collegiate circles.

Mr. Haltenberger stated concerning the new laboratory, "This is only the nucleus for a greater Chemical Engineering course. Off all the engineers at this college, the Chemicals are the largest in number."

FROSH WRANGLERS SCHEDULE DEBATES

Princeton, Fordham, Penn, Georgian Court, Seton Hall, Haverford Contacted

Debating engagements with freshman debating teams representing outstanding eastern colleges have been announced by James Donovan, secretary of the Freshman Debating Society.

Tentative debates with the University of Pennsylvania, Fordham, Georgian Court and Seton Hall are being planned, while definite dates and topics of debate have been selected for meetings, with Princeton and Haverford.

Subject of discussion for the Princeton debate, to be held on the local campus, is: Resolved that the policies and actions of the C. I. O. be approved.

The topic of the debate on the nearby Haverford campus is: Resolved nations should agree to prevent the international shipment of arms and munitions. Villanova will handle the affirmative side in both debates.

The ranks of the Freshman debaters have decreased since the initial meetings and Rev. Jeremiah Mahoney, O.S.A., moderator of the group, has recently issued an invitation to all Freshmen interested in debating to join the organization. Full information concerning the activities of this forensic group may be garnered from president Murray Zealor, Freshman C & F student, or James Donovan, Freshman Arts student.

War Poll Shows Villanova Students 80% Against Foreign Entanglements

Inquiring Reporter Seeks Opinions of Campus Cross Section; "No War For Us" Is Concensus

By MURRAY ZEALOR

During this time of the year, all over the United States in hundreds of colleges there are polls being taken concerning various vital questions. Villanova, not to be out done by them in any respect, has been in the last few days conducting her own poll on one of the most vital questions of the day, holding the most interest to college students. "Would you, if the United States becomes entangled in a foreign war in Europe, go over there and fight?"

A representative of the VILLANOVAN has taken it upon himself to go about the campus asking various students their opinions of this question. He has combined them together in an effort to make it a human interest story, and bring forth the facts of this question. He has been impartial in his questioning, having stopped and asked students about the campus unknown to him, and unbiased in their opinions. The names and quotations are in no means segregated and the exact quotations are presented as each student gave them to give the true viewpoints of the students.

Same Question To All

The same question was asked of the following students, and the opinions based upon the wording of that question alone. Opinions concerning the question of national defense or any other possible question of the entrance of America into the war was not considered.

"Would you, if the United States becomes entangled with foreign wars in Europe, go over there and fight?"

Stanley Stress, Freshman, Commerce and Finance. "No sir, I don't like war.

Carl Pantaleo, Junior, School of Science. "Yes, I think that it is my duty to fight providing the other nation is an aggressor."

Stephen Vogel, Freshman, Arts School. "I'd go to the hills of Kentucky."

Daniel Dalesio, Sophomore, School of Science. "I'd go if I had to, but I am not anxious to go over there and fight."

Joseph Emburgia, Senior, Premed. "No, they're not hurting me."

Raymond Keller, Freshman, Commerce and Finance. "Yes, I'd like to go over there and shoot someone."

Thomas Delate, Sophomore, Arts School. "It all depends on the country we are fighting, and whether or not England is in it. If England or France are being fought, I would gladly go. If it was any other nation, no."

George Haluszka, Freshman, Engineer. "Heck no, that would be militaristic, and I am a pacifist. Why if any one would read any books on war, they would realize that nothing good has ever come out of it."

Andrew Conte, Senior, Pre-med. "No, let them fight among themselves."

Army Gives Good Food

Walter Smith Freshman, Commerce and Finance. "Sure, I want to fight for my country. The food is good in the army, and you'll get a chance to become a man."

Richard Deverall, Senior, Education. "I'd go to jail."

Daniel Cappiello, Sophomore, Premed. "No, I figure we already know what war is all about and should not enter. We never gain anything by it, and lose our lives."

Raymond Beaucaire, Junior, Commerce and Finance. "America hates war, I hate war."

Arthur Fanning, Education, Junior. "Sure I'll go. If my country goes, I will go.

Stanley Browbowski, Junior, Commerce and Finance. "Not if I could help it. Why should we spend millions, and most of all lose millions of lives for the capitalists who have invested wealth in those countries."

George Duzminski, Sophomore, Business, "I'll go if it is for an honorable cause."

Leo Bicher, Junior, Engineer. "I'd go, if I could think of some good last words."

Fred Kull, Sophomore, Pre-med. "Not me, let the other suckers go. I want to be an physician but in Europe."

Peter Makin, Junior, Commerce and Finance. "No, we have enough to take care of ourselves without bothering about Europe."

Above are the opinions of students taken at random. They constitute our straw vote. It is interesting to show the comparison of our students' opinions with those of the University of Texas. That university held a similar poll about the same question. The results were that 67.5 percent were not in favor of our entrance in the fighting in Europe. In our poll Villanova is 80 percent in favor of remaining out of foreign entanglements. This figure is a little higher than usual but it reaffirms the common view of most college students in the nation. They hate war and will not go over to Europe to fight if they have their way.

The Villanova Engineer has taken rapid strides in the past few years, and has brought favorable comment to the Engineering Department. It reached unprecedented success this year under Sanborn, who practically changed the entire layout of the magazine. Changes were noticeable in the cover design, contents page, which was made more interesting than ever; and the print in the title heads.

A redeeming feature of the Villanova Engineer is that it does not confine itself to educational purposes, but also includes articles which have as their main purpose entertainment.

Modern Composers Open Resumation Of Music Seminar

Tonight in the Mendel Day Hops' Room, 102 Mendel Hall, the Music Seminar will again resume the playing of popular recordings of classical and modern music. Everyone is invited to attend this seminar which will be held from henceforth on Tuesdays instead of Thursdays at 7:30 P. M.

The program of this evening will include music of the modern impressionistic age, and a bit from the past classical music. Ferdi Grofe's "Grand Canyon" suite will be the first number on the program.

This suite of modern music was composed in the period of the jazz age in America and utilizes the various instrumentations of modern music. The classic music of the evening is composed in the presentation of the William Tell Overture by Rossini. This thunderous and inspiring composition has been a favorite of many for its deep voluminous tones and spirited rhythm. Also will be played various selections of popular concert artists of the Metropolitan Opera Company.

DUFFY WINS TWICE AS BLUE RINGMEN SPLIT TWO MEETS

Miami University Defeated in Opener, 6 - 2; Cardinals Repulse Wildcats

CITY COLLEGE HERE FRIDAY

By JOSEPH PAGANO

A promising Villanova boxing team displayed fine form to start off its season with a victory over a strong Miami University squad last Wednesday evening by a score of six to two. However, a scrappy Catholic U. team turned the tables on the Wildcats by trouncing them to the tune of 6-2 in the Capital city Saturday evening.

Boxing fans were really treated to an evening of fistic thrills in the Miami meet, most of the bouts being packed with action that rarely accompanies intercollegiate boxing meets. This condition was made possible because boys from both teams were willing and able to go out there and swap punches in such a manner that is peculiar only to men with fighting hearts.

Mulroy Loses Opener

In the first bout of the meet "Bunny" Lovett eked out a close decision over Jimmy Mulroy; "Bunny" was very effective in the pinches and used a left jab to outscore the Villanova 115 pounder in the final round. Mike Ariano, Villanova's 125 pounder, showed his supremacy over Jerry O'Connel by jabbing beautifully and counterpunching with a right hook to lead his opponent throughout the whole match.

George Back scored the other point for the visitors by gaining a technical knockout over Stanley Bobrowski in the second round. Stan, substituting for Eddie Kirk with less than two days notice, must be given a great deal of credit for making an appearance in the meet.

A Villanova victory was made secure after the next three bouts in which Captain Bill Duffy, Bob Mentzinger and John Nojunas really outdid themselves in handing their opponents decisive setbacks. Captain "Scotty" McLachlan tried his best to continue his winning streak, which extends over a period of two years, but was unable to cope with Duffy's ring generalship and fistic ability.

George "Cozy" Dolan proved to be a tough customer and this bout with Villanova's Bob Mentzinger developed into a slugfest in which Bob proved to be the more agile and landed several steaming rights which served as the margin for his victory.

Johnny Nojunas outboxed and completely outscored Nick Seminoff, who was a game and trying opponent but was unable to stop Johnny in a bout which the Blue 165 pounder won by a large margin. Ben Morkun was awarded his bout on a technical knockout when "Chick" O'Domski was unable to continue because of a dislocated shoulder.

Ed Killian, Villanova's promising heavyweight, won his first bout of the season on a forfeit from Lou Chesna, of Miami.

C. U. Beats 'Cats

However, the sweet taste of victory was not to linger very long with the Wildcat mittmen for they fell before a well aimed Cardinal onslaught last Saturday night before a crowd of 4500 in Washington, D. C.

Leads District Scoring

SPORTORIAL

By BILL BOWKER, Sports Editor

Editor's Note: This week the column is being conducted by Tom O'Mahoney, acting sports editor.

It is interesting to note that Bill Duffy, leader of Ray Gadsby's leather-pushers, has defeated two opposing team captains out of a possible two so far this year. In the opener, pitted against Miami's previously undefeated "Scotty" McLachlan, Bill very efficiently worked on the Southern lad to earn a clear cut victory as his teammates ran wild to take the match 6-2, for the 'Cats initial win of the year. Again pitted against a captain, Bill turned in a sweet performance to beat Fred Mix, leader of the Catholic University squad, in the match held at Washington last Saturday night. Here, however, Mr. Duffy's fellow-journeymen were not so fortunate, bowing to the Cardinals, 6-2. All this may, and probably doesn't, mean much—but we'd still hate to bet on a rival ring leader when he met Duffy.

—V—

With 22 games behind them, the Blue basketballers now run into the toughest part of the schedule. Victorious in 20 of the first 22, the Wildcats can hardly expect to maintain such a high average. Immediately ahead are Muhlenberg, New York U., and City College of New York. The latter, along with St. John's, whom the Severancemen must meet here March 5, are generally regarded as the class of the city, and a win over the Beavers would be welcome news indeed to the boys at home. However, N. Y. U.'s Violets present as tough an obstacle, for the game with the New Yorkers is to be played in the not-so-shrinking Violets' gym, a locale which has yet to see the home team lose. Since 1932, when the new gym went up on the Hall of Fame campus, Coach Cann's boys have won 46 games in a row. An observer is naturally led to inquire why the Gothamites don't play all their games there. We know that if we had a lucky room to take exams in we'd never be found sweating away in another uncharmed one.

—V—

We weren't present at the Ursinus game, but we have been told the boys clicked as never before. That may be so. It's a cinch they weren't right against P. M. C. or Dickinson. Save for a few flurries, in which the 'Cats passed the ball like inspired madmen, the home team just did not go. But, when they are on, the Main Line pride and joys look like the best ball club this side of the original Celtics, of whom you have, no doubt, heard Grandpa talk in awed tones.

Our dearest rivals, the Temple Owls from up North Philly way, have been doing all right for themselves since the night Duke Duzminski hit the baskets at Convention Hall as well as the headlines. After the 36-28 beating the young 'Cats gave them, the Birds have risen to the top of the Eastern Conference by twice defeating Penn State and by nosing out Pitt in a hectic battle in the Smokey City. How a return battle would pack 'em in Convention Hall — but then 30 games is enough for any college team to play. Especially when N. Y. U., City, St. Francis and St. John's are yet to be met.

NEW YORK U. TRIP CAPS COURT WEEK FOR BLUE VARSITY

Violet To Be Met At Heights Gym; Muhlenberg Invades Main Line Thursday

A capacity crowd is expected to jam the Heights Gymnasium on the New York University Campus next Saturday night, when one of the few all-time great eastern collegiate court squads, the Violets of N. Y. U., entertain the ambitious Villanova Wildcats.

Muhlenburg College of Allentown, Pennsylvania will invade the Main Line Field House on Thursday evening to return a visit made by the locals a week ago. The Allentown collegians, who held the Severancemen to a 40-35 count, will supply the necessary tune up game for the all-important tussle with the New Yorkers on the following Saturday.

Violet Strong

Howard Cann's sharpshooters have piled up an enviable record this season, as has been their custom in years gone by. The Violets have turned in twelve victories in fifteen starts. Intersectional foes on all three occasions have taken the measure of the Washington Square dribblers. The defeats were charged to Minnesota, Richmond, and North Carolina.

On the other side the record book shows victories over Georgetown, Brooklyn, Manhattan, Colgate, Maryland, and the bad men from Flatbush, St. Johns, which proves that the locals, in order to crack the lid on the eastern picture, must do some fancy ball tossing Saturday.

Boardman Leading Scorer

The Violets present a well balanced team in Si Boardman, Irv Witty, Bernard Carnevale, Jerry Tarlow and Bobby Lewis. The first four players mentioned have broken the century mark in the Metropolitan scoring columns. Boardman leads the squad with 143 points (Temple game not included) with Witty and Carnevale for second place with 125 and 123 points each. Tarlow has scored 101 points and, Lewis, the other starter, has hit the nets for 79 markers. Any outfit that can toss the ball through opponents' nets in that fashion must be given plenty of consideration.

The record of N. Y. U. under the coaching of Howard Cann is a remarkable record in itself. Cann took over the basketball coaching job in 1923 and has been there since. The Violets have bowled over 166 teams and have been submerged on 70 trips to the floor. This record does not include this year's court record. The all-time University record is 298 wins against 159 losses.

Unbeaten At Home

A victory over New York University, Saturday night, will break a 46 game winning streak established by Violet teams on the Heights Gymnasium. Since the 1932-33 season, no team has been

During the past week Villanova's brilliant court squad added four more victims to their long win list by dropping Ursinus, Muhlenberg, P. M. C., and Dickinson in the order named.

Dickinson, the most recent of the 'Cats' victims, was buried under a 37-17 trouncing on Saturday night at the Villanova Field House. "Duke" Duzminski and Jim Montgomery once again sparkplugged the Blue attack as the "Duke" collected 16 points and Jim notched an even 10 markers for his total.

The Main Liners revealed their most potent first half attack of the season when they rolled up 22 points before Kerber tallied the first Red Devil score with a foul. Lou Dubino started in place of Mike Lazorchak, who had injured his leg in the P. M. C. tussle the night before, and the ex-Pennington star proved of invaluable aid to the Main Liners with his ability to retrieve the ball off both backboards.

FROSH BASKETEERS WIN THREE GAMES

Chick Morris, Gangling Center, Leads Kitten Attack with 41 Points

During the past week the Freshman basketeers extended their streak of victories to eleven straight. The Frosh are quite an improved ball club over their first appearances; and the teamwork noticeably absent in the first few encounters is becoming smoother with each contest.

Their chief scoring threat is "Chick" Morris, big center, who in the last three games has won distinction by garnering 41 points. "Chuck" Yund, Tony Vinci and "Red" Murphy are also showing well, and these men will furnish plenty of competition for the varsity men who wish to hold their berths next year.

On Monday when the varsity traveled to Collegeville to meet Ursinus, the Kittens went with them and proceeded to hand the Ursinus Freshmen a 34-21 setback. Of the 34 points, Morris garnered 11; the remainder was evenly divided among the others in the quintet. For the Ursinus yearlings Johnson scored seven points to lead his teammates in a losing battle.

The undefeated Kittens next gained a nine point victory over the Coatesville Star Printers on the losers' floor. The game ended with the young Cats on the long end of a 32-25 verdict, after they had led at halftime 17-7. Morris scored 15 and Vinci, 8, of the total points obtained by the Freshmen quintet. Markwold led the Printers in scoring by sinking three field goals and a like number of fouls for nine counters.

Austin Hall In Tie With Red Shirts On Closing Lap

Intra-Mural Basketball Race Tightens as Austin Hall Whips Alumni and Earns First Place Tie With Fedigan Hall

O'CONNELL, OF GIGOLOS, TOPS SCORERS

By SAUL WALLACH

In what promises be the hottest week of competition in the second half race for intramural basketball supremacy, two teams go battling for the coveted honor neck-and-neck into the final stage of the court season.

Two bitter enemies in all phases of competition, the Blue Shirts of Austin Hall and the Fedigan Hall Gigolos, find themselves the center of attraction in this second half basketball campaign, tied for first place with six victories and two losses each. Both teams must play two more games which include important frays with the ever-dangerous Mendel Day Hops, defending champions of the loop. The Day Hops share third place with the improved Alumni Hall Freshmen with four wins and the same number of defeats, thus giving them an outside chance to tie for honors.

In an important campus tussle, the Austinites ran wild in the second half to trounce Alumni Hall, 37-26. The "Green Horns" held the upper class representatives to a 17-15 score at the half time. A second half splurge with Waad, Bochetto, and Vic Sandor bucketing goals from all angles, saw the victors go into the lead early in the third period never to be headed. Forkin and Deluca were high for the losers, with eight points each. Bochetto led the Austin attack.

The unfortunate Commerce and Finance team threw a scare into the ranks of the Fedigan dribblers, Thursday afternoon, when Bill Coupe of the trolley chasers dropped in 15 points to lead the day's scoring. It takes five men to win a basketball game so the Fedigantes emerged victorious, 42-30.

In another important game the Mendel Day Hops regained winning form long enough to gain revenge for an earlier setback to down a fighting Mendel Resident machine, 40-30. Graduate student Gene Barr, a former star of the Commuters, led the attack with 13 points.

Thursday proved to be another story as the ex-champions failed by a single point to tie the upsetters from Alumni who won the ball game, 26-25. The game proved to be a nip and tuck affair from beginning to end, with one team holding the advantage for almost no time at all. The half time score read: Day Hops 11, Alumni 11. The "Greenies" took the lead on a field goal by Forkin with less than 20 seconds of play remaining to wipe out a 25-24 Commuter lead.

Fedigan Hall won its second game of the week by bowling over the Mendel Residents, 39-23, after a close first half chase. They held a slim advantage of two points. Tony Sceiba, the Passaic sure shot, paced both teams with eleven points. Close behind him was Murphy of Fedigan with 10 markers.

Austin Hall won the easy way when the Commerce and Finance squad captained by Jerry Lynam failed to place five men on the floor at game time.

Unofficial individual scoring records for seven games show that Buddy O'Connel of Fedigan, is leading the second half race with an even 50 points. His closest competitor is a teammate, Al Wood, credited with 47 points.

Two New Jersey boys, Tony Sceiba, of Passaic, and Vic Sandor, the Perth Amboy Romeo, follow with and 45 markers each. Still among the boys who are in the forties is Danny Keating of the Mendel Day Hops, who has 44 counters. Others up in the scoring columns are Delehanty of the Mendel Residents, Coupe, Trolley Chasers' star, and Totin of the Gigolos.

Important games listed for this week finds the two loop leaders meeting the Mendel Day Hoppers, and the dangerous Alumni five meeting the Gigolos, Thursday night, in the final game of the second half. Other games are battles between Commerce and the fives of Mendel Residents and Alumni.

Sensational Pass Attack Gives Pre-Meds Triumph

Troncelliti and Pantaleo Pace Winners in 14-4 Victory Over VILLANOVAN; Neel and Mancuso Shine For Losers in Thrilling Contest

TOFANI IRATE OVER RESULT OF FRAY

By BILL BOWKER

"Deacon" Knahle's boys flashed a tremendous offensive in the middle of the first half to down "Wolf" Tofani's highly-touted VILLANOVA squad, 14-4, before a capacity crowd in the Main Line Field House last Saturday night before the Villanova-Dickinson tussle.

Passing Shows

Paced by "Tootsie" Troncelliti and "Battler" Pantaleo, each of whom scored five tallies, the pre-meds flashed a passing attack the like of which never has been seen on the Main Line since the days of "Jocko" Hurley and his mates. Andy "Doc" Conte aided materially with his excellent feeding game.

The scribes leaped into the lead with "One-eye Gus" Mancuso looping one in from the left side of the court. Inspired by this goal, the "newsies" turned on the pressure, only to see Pantaleo sneak away and drop in a two-pointer to knot the count. Ed Troncelliti put the doctors in the van with a flashy shot from near mid-court. From this point on they were never shaded. Manager Tofani did his best to stem the tide by putting in "Stringbean" Jurgens, "Black Mike" Neel, whom he had been keeping in the dark, "Tubby" Jake Simons, "Hooper-Dooper" Toland, and "Wizzbang" Wallach. But all in vain, for Al Dowling, canny field general of the medicos, from his headquarters in Norristown, sent in "Sales Tax" Keogan, Bede Howard, the metropolitan behemoth, and "Whistler" Beinado. These three, with Troncelliti and Conte, not only stemmed the scribe onrush, but added five points to the score. "Black Mike" Neel dropped a looper to give the VILLANOVAN its final score as the half ended.

Both first teams started the second half and five points were added to the pre-med score. The fact that the medicos had had 16 practices to the scribes none indicates the truth of the adage, "practice makes perfect."

Manager "Wolf" Tofani, when approached for a statement said. "Toland threw the game away for us and we had no practice." (Ed. note: Toland is a member of both organizations.) Tofani expressed disappointment in the work of "Pepsi-Cola Pete" Mackin, who evidently had had one cola too many, but expressed satisfaction with the work of "Jocko" Collins, "Rabbit" Reale and "Scoop" Pagano, as well as his scoring aces, Mancuso and Neel.

varsity tussle the Kittens met their most formidable home floor opponent of the season, the Wayne Raiders, and they took the neighborhood team into camp by a 40-27-count. Although the Kittens had the game pretty well in hand after the first few minutes of play, the Raiders furnished real competition throughout. Only inaccuracy of the Raiders' shots prevented the score from being closer. Chick Morris was again the spearhead of the Kitten attack with 16 points, Vinci helping with eight. Ed Soiellac led the Wayne lads with his 15 counters.

able to lower the University club's colors on that floor.

It is to be hoped that the Blue will be the first to crack this N. Y. U. streak on their own floor; and it is well to remember that the locals extended the Violets in the clash last year, the New Yorkers winning only in the last ten minutes when personal fouls banished several of the Wildcats starters. In other words, the game Saturday presents Villanova with its long-hoped for opportunity.

Ursinus, Muhlenberg, P.M.C. and Dickinson Fall Before Main Liners

was only a question of how many markers would be garnered, for the Main Liners loosed a sensational attack that the bewildered Carlisle team found impossible to check.

With the beginning of the second half, Dickinson exhibited an attack of their own, and, led by Jiminutive Kinzio Weimer, who led the Devils with 6 points, they pulled up to 34-17 with only a few seconds of play remaining. Montgomery and Rice nipped this rally in the bud, however, by scoring a basket and a foul, respectively, before the contest closed.

It is interesting to note that the Devils actually outscored their rivals during the second half, after trailing the Blue 26-5 at the half. A team that will keep hustling in the face of such overwhelming odds deserves nothing but the highest praise, and Dickinson certainly was in there digging all the way.

P. M. C. Falls

On Friday night the Wildcats won their third game of the week by thrashing Penn Military College, 47-25, in the Main Line gym. After a miserable first half, the Blue varsity came back with a terrific second-half onslaught that almost lifted the Kaydets out of the hall. Heading the scoring splurge were those two Philadelphia District scoring leaders, "Duke" Duzminski and Jim Montgomery, who tallied eleven and ten points respectively.

The 'Cats, having previously trimmed the Soldiers at Chester, were not counting on having very stiff competition, but during the first half all doubts were erased. P. M. C., displaying a fighting band of ball, jumped into the lead on Biasiotto's early basket, but lost it near the end of the half when Monty and Vigilante tossed in two-pointers in rapid fashion.

From this point on the play of both teams was nil until the close of the half. Easy plays were booted, passes were muffed, and what amounted to a mob scene took place on the floor. Then at the close of the period, with the 'Cats leading 10-7, Biasiotto, Piff and Spang scored on free throws to knot the count.

Cadets Take Lead

At this point, Inny Biasiotto came through with a shot from underneath the hoop to give P. M. C. the lead, 12-10. This was the last time the Kaydets were to hold the lead for the remainder of the embroglio, as a moment later "Lulu" Dubino slipped from below the rim to score for the Blue as the half ended.

After a few minutes of play in the second canto, the outcome was never in doubt for the Blue team turned on the power and played beautifully. Featuring the second half attack was Duzminski, who, after having been held to a foul in the first half, got going and lighted the red bulbs five times before the final buzzer.

Two victories earlier in the week were accounted for by Villanova when they traveled to Ursinus and Muhlenberg. Ursinus fell before a 42-27 'Cat drive, which was sparked by Jim Montgomery's play. The largest crowd ever to witness a basketball game in the Thompson-Gay Gymnasium gave "Jungler" a rousing ovation when he left the court in the final period.

Muhlenberg gave the 'Cats a tough tussle last Thursday evening on the floor of the Little Palestra at Allentown. The final score was 40-35. "Duke" Duzminski paced scorers of both teams, bagging 19 points.

Scholastic Natators To Vie Here; "Doc" Issues Call To Baseballers

Next Tuesday afternoon, February 22, Villanova College will play host to the Catholic High and Prep schools in the Fourth Annual Interscholastic Swimming Championships. Since its inception in 1935 at Villanova, this meet has attracted the cream of the East's Catholic schoolboy swimmers, and this year's entry list is expected to surpass the previous ones.

Entries Not Known

Since the entry blanks were just sent out at the end of last week, it is not definitely known as yet what teams will be entered. However, it is almost certain that all the Catholic High Schools in the Philadelphia Catholic League, as well as St. Francis Prep of Brooklyn will swim here next week. The St. Francis aggregation is the defending champ.

The race for this year's crown shapes up at present as a stiff battle between St. Francis, the defenders, and West Catholic, titleholders in '35 and '36. The Burrs are out to get revenge for the close victory the Brooklynites eked out last year and to regain the honors they achiev d in the two previous years of the competition.

To subdue the expected strong challenge of the St. Francis mermen the West Catholic will have to be at a peak. But the Burrs have a capable squad that is leading in Philadelphia's Catholic League. These two favored contenders may run into trouble in the form of the Northeast Catholic team, the "dark horse" entry. The Falcons rank close to the Burrs in the Catholic League, and in their last dual meet lost to them by the close margin of seven points.

Of last year's individual winners, two are fairly certain to defend their laurels. Jim Fiedler, co-captain of North Catholic, will defend his backstroke title, and Henry Steingass, ace sprinter from La Salle Prep, will be back attemping to retain honors in the 100-yard free-style event.

This afternoon at 3 o'clock candidates for Villanova's 1938 baseball team will assemble in the gym for their first practice session. The season's opener with the Princeton Tigers is just about a month and a half away, and Coach Jacobs is making sure that his chargees will be ready by that time.

Entire Squad Reports

The Wildcat squad is the first collegiate baseball aggregation in this vicinity to start its preliminary training. Although the whole squad is to report, the first practices will be mostly for the battery men. They will do the only hard indoor work. The infielders and outfielders will also work out, but won't be able to do any real batting and fielding until the weather permits outdoor practice.

"Doc" expects to have his pitching staff pretty well lined up by the time the indoor sessions are finished. He has reporting this afternoon a fine array of hurling talent, including an especially strong group of lefthanders. The two veteran southpaws, "Quack" Escott and Bill McLaughlin, look to be the aces of the staff in this, their senior year. Escott, an outfielder as a soph, turned to pitching last year and was the Wildcats' most effective twirler. McLaughlin, of the sharp-breaking curveball, is due to recover the form he displayed two years ago. Joe Desmond is Jacobs' leading right-hander, and will see plenty of action on the mound. "Wee Cliff" Choquette and Andy Sisco, a pair of lefthanders from last year's freshman aggregation, will be out and will push the veterans hard for the starting posts.

Duffy Wins Twice As 'Cats Split Two

umn, fought a fine fight against Dave Bernstein but at the end Dave was awarded the decision which immediately set the Cardinals off to a flying start. Mike Ariano, unable to set the pace he had hit in the Miami meet was decidedly off form and lost to Tex Gulnan in a slow bout.

Villanova's chances of winning were considerably limited when the score stood three to nothing against them as a result of forfeiting the 135 pound bout to Catholic U's Rene Benitez.

Captain Bill Duffy won his second victory in a row by taking Captain Fred Mix. Bill again proved to be very effective with both hands and fought a very clever fight in subduing the game and hard punching Cardinal captain.

Sully Greco made the score 4 to 1 in favor of the Cardinals when he was awarded a close decision over Bob Mentzinger. This bout was packed with thrills and Bob was in there fighting all the way before dropping the bout.

Nojunas Wins Easily

Villanova was given a chance to tie the meet when Johnny Nojunas won his bout in grand style by defeating Fred Stant in a battle which was all Nojunas from beginning to finish. Jay Turner clinched the meet for the Cardinals by knocking out Ben Morkun in the third round.

Leo Katalinas went on to make the score 6 to 2 in favor of Catholic U. by defeating Ed Killian in a very interesting bout. Leo has been boxing for several years and yet was pushed to the limit by the inexperienced but aggressive Wildcat heavyweight.

With one victory and one loss on the books for the Gadsbymen, Ray will put his boys through strenuous workouts in preparation for their meet with C. C. N. Y. on Friday evening in the Villanova Gymnasium.

'Cats Sunk, 46-29, As Rider Mermen Garner Six Firsts

Barrett, W. Leahy Star As Locals Bow For Second Year at Trenton

A fast and well balanced Rider College swimming team handed Villanova's band of natators a sound thrashing in the Trenton Y. M. C. A. pool, Wednesday afternoon as the home team won easily, 46-29.

The same Rider College team which handed the Wildcat swimmers one of their few defeats last season raced through the waters last week against the locals.

Another chapter in the long feud between Rider's Dave Rowan and Villanova's Bill Leahy was written into the record books Wednesday. The boys had to be content with an even split. Rowan led Leahy to the tape in the 220 free style. In the 440 yard event it was Rowan who trailed Leahy as the latter churned through the waters to win in 5:35.

Charley Barrett, the most improved swimmer on Ruggerio Flocco's tank squad hooked up with Eddie Gisburne, Rider College veteran star, in a pair of thrilling events. Barrett nosed out his rival in the 50 yard sprint, but was forced to split first place with Gisburne in the century. Both men were clocked at .57.

Captain Toby Greco placed second to Cryer of Rider in the 200 yard breast stroke as did Wilmer Book in the back stroke.

RELAY TEAM TRAILS HOYAS IN MILE RUN

Georgetown Wins Baton Event; Temple Third; Buek Fails to Place

Villanova's trackmen had their first taste of competition this season at the Penn A. C. Invitation Indoor Track and Field meet held last Friday night at Convention Hall in Philadelphia.

In the fifty-yard high hurdles, which was the first scheduled event of the evening, Captain Harvey Buek just missed the chance to qualify for the semi-finals by hitting the last hurdle off stride.

Murphy fell the victim of stiff competition in the high jump event which was eventually won by Mel Walker, of Ohio State, at a height of six feet, six inches. Marty Burns, who represented Villanova in the 880-yard run, got off to a fast start and led the pack for over half the distance, but fell back when Bradley of Princeton, and Graves, of New York started to make their bid for first place.

Relay Team Places

The relay team composed of Barney Bellew, Bill Dobbins, Tony Petrill and Bill Guiteras took second place to Georgetown, who turned in the best college mile relay time of the evening. In placing second, the Wildcat relaymen beat out their archrivals, Temple, by more than 15 yards.

Survey Reveals College Outlines Improve Studies

Villanova Represented in Nation-Wide Educational Poll of N. Y. Bureau

College outlines are a definite aid to improved grades, is the opinion of students using them, a poll conducted under the auspices of the Bureau of Educational Surveys, New York City, shows.

The poll, covering a period of several months, embraced 3720 students in 223 institutions of higher learning. Twelve students from Villanova College were included in the poll.

By far the largest number of students reported grade increases from fair to good, following the use of these study helps. A second large group reported improvement in grades from failure to passing. In a few cases, students previously receiving failing grades reported final A ratings.

The consensus of opinion among the students was that by stating the facts concisely, the college outlines simplified study, enabled them to quickly grasp the essentials as well as get the most out of the recommended text and auxiliary reading.

Cook Appointed Chief Technician For Coming "Winterset" Production

Belle Masque to Use All Excellent Features of College Stage in Spring Presentation

George Cook, Senior in Education, who was stage manager of the successful "Journey's End," yesterday was appointed stage manager of the coming Belle Masque production, "Winterset."

On accepting his post Mr. Cook said, "I am very desirous of having a stage crew that will equal in its technical field the artistic performance of the dramatic department. Scene-craft is one of the more difficult spheres of art. The painting may look horrible from a close view, but, as it is designed from the standpoint of the audience, what counts is how it looks from a distance. As we are going to make our own scenes for "Winterset," I ask all those who can wield a brush to report to Mr. Calabro, Mr. Ibarguen, or myself. More particularly, I want to see carpenters and electricians."

Coincident with this announcement it was revealed that in the last few weeks the society has acquired a considerable amount of stage equipment in the form of drop-curtains, wings, trees, flats, etc. A scene dock is now being built on the right side of the stage to store the new acquisitions which will allow for more latitude in future productions. Estimators from the leading stage equipment companies have been here with suggestions as to how the scenery can best take advantage of the fine lighting possibilities of the professional switchboard. Actual work on the stage will start about March 1.

Mr. Frayne reminds the half dozen who are making models of "Winterset" to enter them in the Art Alliance contest before it is too late.

SPORTS RULES AFFECT HEART

Physician States Streamlined Basketball Dangerous to Players

Chicago, Ill. — (ACP) — Medical evidence is beginning to pile up against the new streamlined basketball rules which have given the game its greatest box office boost in history.

While coaches from coast to coast discussed the controversial rule eliminating the center jump after field goals, Dr. Marcus Hobart of Northwestern disclosed he had completed experiments purporting to show the new game stimulates heart action of the players to a dangerous degree.

Dr. Hobart, Northwestern's team physician, said he had tested players after two Big Ten games and found "their normal heart beat of 60 to 90 had increased alarmingly, in one case to 144."

Chief defender is Ward Lambert, Purdue's "wild fox" who has been coaching the fast break in high schools and colleges for 25 years.

"It's all a matter of conditioning," Lambert counters, "We bring our boys up in the 'fast break' down in this country and keep them trained."

ORATORY CONTEST BEGINS ON APRIL 4

Mr. Anthony Frayne, moderator of speech arts, announces that the annual Villanova Oratorical Contest will be held sometime during the week of April 4. All students are eligible to enter. The preliminaries will be held the last two weeks of March. Any subject at all may be chosen. The maximum time for every speech is ten minutes.

Closing his talk while dwelling on these points, Mr. Nugent, who had received Holy Communion with the college students of the Holy Name Society, incited them to go further in their field and to gather others into their fold. He asked for a large army to fight for Christ, an army willing to live as Christ lived, an army to live upon the body and blood of Christ our Saviour, in the Holy Eucharist.

Novelties for Guests Secret by Chairman Andrew Conte

By RENE CAILLIET

Weeks of planning and discussion have finally terminated with the result that a unique and entertaining Senior Dinner dance is in the offing and will be held Saturday night, February 26, in the Arcadia International Restaurant.

Andrew Conte, senior Science man and Fedigan resident student, has headed a representative committee in every attempt to plan a successful affair and present events as yet untried by any class in the past. By choosing the Arcadia restaurant, they have chosen a convenient location as well as the sight of the finest entertainment to be found in Philadelphia.

Three Rooms Reserved

Three entire rooms of the famous night club have been reserved for the class alone and tables accommodating groups of four, six, or eight couples will be arranged to suit the demands of the attending seniors. Any members wishing to be grouped with particular groups or couples are asked to state this choice to any member of the committee before Friday noon.

ALUMNI ORIGINATES QUARTERLY REVIEW

Loyalty Cup Will Be Given Annually To Best Group

Last Sunday the Committee on Reorganization, Financing, Publication and Programs of the Villanova College Alumni Association presented a thirty-page report to the Board of Governors of the Association. This report was specifically in reference to a five-year plan of expansion of the Alumni association.

Not all of the proposals included in the report were accepted as yet. It was decided, however, that a quarterly publication would be innovated for distribution to all the members of the association. Moreover, that a Loyalty cup will be made and presented to a specific group each year.

Title Proposed

Proposed as a title for the magazine was the "Villanova Alumnus." It will be edited and distributed four times a year. A staff consisting of Editor-in-Chief, Business and Advertising Manager, Managing Editor, and Four Associate Editors, will probably be composed of those alumni who were former Editors-in-Chief of the "VILLANOVAN" and who are now connected with daily newspapers.

The Loyalty cup will be rotated annually and will be presented to that local chapter of the Alumni Association which has shown the greatest support of the organization during the past year. This support will be judged on the ba-

Thomas L. McNee Assumes Subjects Of Dean Humphrey

Villanova Alumnus Appointed Instructor of Civil Engineering Branches

Mr. Thomas L. McNee, Villanova graduate, class of 1928, has obtained a leave of absence from his position with the United Engineers Company of Philadelphia, so that he may immediately take over the teaching schedule in the Engineering Department formerly taught by the late Dean, Carl T. Humphrey.

Teaches Civils

The new instructor has taken over most of the subjects taught by the late dean. Included on his new roster are the civil engineering sciences of Applied Mechanics, Bridge Design, Railway Construction and Strength of Materials.

While here at Villanova Mr. McNee pursued the course of Bachelor of Science in Chemical Engineering. After his graduation was a member with the above-mentioned company and also was a member of the Drexel Institute of Technology faculty, where he taught the same subjects he is teaching here in Philadelphia college's evening school.

Connecticut Club Formulates Plans For Dinner - Dance

Nutmegers Expect Affair to Be Largest Ever Held By Group

At the recent meeting of the Connecticut Club, plans were discussed for the club's annual dinner dance to be held during the Easter vacation.

Letters have been sent to the various hotels and restaurants in the chief cities of the state asking for bids. In all probability the site chosen will be New Haven.

The Connecticut Villanova Alumni Club has been contacted and a large group of graduates will join with present Villanovans in making this year's dinner dance the biggest in the Club's history. The large number of Connecticut students present at Villanova ought to insure an appreciable number at this social highlight of the club.

The Connecticut Club has long been one of the most active of all the local clubs and has the reputation of holding the most unique affairs. One of the foremost aims of the group is to choose a location for affairs which will be convenient to members from all parts of the state.

SWING CLUB BAND DOMINANT FEATURE OF BELLE AIR BALL

Leith Stevens Orchestra Promises Unusual Music For Affair

DECORATIONS COMMITTEE PLANS NEW ARRANGEMENT

Novel False Ceiling and Fountain Improve Campus Ballroom in Gym

By JAMES COLLINS

With the date of the Senior Ball fast approaching, expectations of a delightful evening of entertainment are rising perceptibly. Although a "big-name" band is not under contract, it is generally believed by the real connoisseurs of sweet swing of the Villanova campus that there will be no cause whatsoever for dissatisfaction as regards the music to be furnished for this occasion. Leith Stevens brings all his orchestra talents with him to Villanova on February 25, and his ability will then make itself quite evident through his presentations of merry melody.

Students Hear Program

Ever since the announcement made on January 18 by Louis J. Biester, Chairman of the Senior Ball, that Leith Stevens and his CBS orchestra had been selected to provide this social with the rythmic beat so essential to the art of dancing, the Villanova rendoes have, one and all, been tuned into his Saturday Night Swing Sessions. The consistency with which this program is heard bespeaks in words of no uncertain praise for Mr. Stevens' fourteen piece band. And especially is the ever-smiling maestro himself popular on the

GOODMAN INVITED TO SENIOR FORMAL

Belle Air Ball Head Sends Invitation to "King of Swing"

Belle Air Ball Chairman Louis Biester made the announcement yesterday that a special invitation to the Senior presentation has been sent to Benny Goodman, swingster supreme. Goodman opens a week's engagement at the Earle Theatre in Philadelphia on Friday.

Leith Stevens, Swing Club maestro, featured the Goodman quartet four Saturdays ago, and there is a strong possibility that Benny will join his old friend in a "jam session" at the Villanova affair.

Tilton, Krupa Invited

Martha Tilton and Gene Krupa will also be invited to the Senior Ball, and a great show is in store for all should the "King of Swing" accept.

In addition to the session four weeks ago, Goodman and various members of his organization have appeared as guests of Stevens, who arranges the Swing Club programs, on several occasions. Appearance of one of these is often followed by a "jam session" which is welcomed by all musicians. Goodman, in all probability, will be glad to accept the invitation of the Senior Belle Air Ball chairman. His last show on Friday eve will be over in good time for him to join Stevens long before the dance is over.

Besides adding color to the Villanova presentation, the acceptance of Benny Goodman will also boost the prestige of Leith Stevens on his initial collegiate appearance.

Belle Masque Society Releases Names Of Chairmen For Technical Departments Supporting "Winterset"

Rosemont Girls to Try For Female Parts in Production

By JAMES HAUGHTON

A new era in local dramatic circles was created, when it was announced that three Rosemont College students have signified their intentions of trying out for the feminine parts of the Belle Masque production, "Winterset." The three young women are: Misses Anita Argentiere, Marion O'Brien and Rita Wollington.

This new Co-operative Theatre Movement aims to foster better relations between the Rosemont and Villanova dramatic groups. By this plan, Rosemont girls will take off the feminine parts in Villanova productions, while Villanova men will carry off the male roles in Rosemont dramatic presentations.

Chairman Announced

Belle Masque announces selection of the chairmen to head the principal committees working in conjunction with the production of Maxwell Anderson's "Winterset."

Vincent J. La Brasca, senior Commerce student, will act as business manager, the post he filled in last year's major production. Mr. Frayne, coach of dramatics, termed him one of the most active men in the society, for he not only handles the business end of dramatics but designs and paints scenery as well.

Taking care of the posters advertising the play is William L. Bailey, junior in Commerce and Finance School, whose job will be to see that posters are distributed and displayed in the most advantageous places.

Chairman of the patrons' committee is Joseph A. Higgins, Junior in Commerce and Finance. This is an important position inasmuch as the number of times the play is to be presented depends on the financial support.

Joseph Allessandroni, Senior in Arts, will have charge of the program while Thomas O'Mahoney, Junior in Arts department and John J. Harrington, Sophomore in the same school, are the publicity chairmen.

Cooke Stage Manager

Charles J. Cooke, Senior in Arts, is stage manager and Pershing Callabro, Junior Artsman, is head of the art department.

Anyone interested in the work of any of these committees should report to the respective chairman.

On Friday and Saturday Masque members went to Philadelphia and witnessed the collegiate dramatic festival of the Cultural Olympics at Irvine auditorium.

Participating in the one-act play presentations were Albright, Drexel, Lincoln, West Chester State Teachers, Pennsylvania, Ursinus, Shippensburg State Teachers, St. Joseph's, Kutztown State Teachers.

Mr. Thomas L. McNee, Villanova graduate, class of 1928, has obtained a leave of absence from his position with the United Engineers Company of Philadelphia, so that he may immediately take over the teaching schedule in the Engineering Department formerly taught by the late Dean, Carl T. Humphrey.

Teaches Civils

The new instructor has taken over most of the subjects taught by the late dean. Included on his new roster are the civil engineering sciences of Applied Mechanics, Bridge Design, Railway Construction and Strength of Materials.

While here at Villanova Mr. McNee pursued the course of Bachelor of Science in Chemical Engineering. After his graduation was a member with the above-mentioned company and also was a member of the Drexel Institute of Technology faculty, where he taught the same subjects he is teaching here in Philadelphia college's evening school.

Connecticut Club Formulates Plans For Dinner - Dance

At the recent meeting of the Connecticut Club, plans were discussed for the club's annual dinner dance to be held during the Easter vacation.

Letters have been sent to the various hotels and restaurants in the chief cities of the state asking for bids. In all probability the site chosen will be New Haven.

The Connecticut Villanova Alumni Club has been contacted and a large group of graduates will join with present Villanovans in making this year's dinner dance the biggest in the Club's history. The large number of Connecticut students present at Villanova ought to insure an appreciable number at this social highlight of the club.

The Connecticut Club has long been one of the most active of all the local clubs and has the reputation of holding the most unique affairs. One of the foremost aims of the group is to choose a location for affairs which will be convenient to members from all parts of the state.

SWING CLUB BAND DOMINANT FEATURE OF BELLE AIR BALL

Leith Stevens Orchestra Promises Unusual Music For Affair

DECORATIONS COMMITTEE PLANS NEW ARRANGEMENT

Novel False Ceiling and Fountain Improve Campus Ballroom in Gym

By JAMES COLLINS

With the date of the Senior Ball fast approaching, expectations of a delightful evening of entertainment are rising perceptibly. Although a "big-name" band is not under contract, it is generally believed by the real connoisseurs of sweet swing of the Villanova campus that there will be no cause whatsoever for dissatisfaction as regards the music to be furnished for this occasion. Leith Stevens brings all his orchestra talents with him to Villanova on February 25, and his ability will then make itself quite evident through his presentations of merry melody.

Students Hear Program

Ever since the announcement made on January 18 by Louis J. Biester, Chairman of the Senior Ball, that Leith Stevens and his CBS orchestra had been selected to provide this social with the rythmic beat so essential to the art of dancing, the Villanova radioes have, one and all, been tuned into his Saturday Night Swing Sessions. The consistency with which this program is heard bespeaks in words of no uncertain praise for Mr. Stevens' fourteen piece band. And especially is the ever-smiling maestro himself popular on the

Belle Air Ball Head Sends Invitation to "King of Swing"

Belle Air Ball Chairman Louis Biester made the announcement yesterday that a special invitation to the Senior presentation has been sent to Benny Goodman, swingster supreme. Goodman opens a week's engagement at the Earle Theatre in Philadelphia on Friday.

Leith Stevens, Swing Club maestro, featured the Goodman quartet four Saturdays ago, and there is a strong possibility that Benny will join his old friend in a "jam session" at the Villanova affair.

Tilton, Krupa Invited

Martha Tilton and Gene Krupa will also be invited to the Senior Ball, and a great show is in store for all should the "King of Swing" accept.

In addition to the session four weeks ago, Goodman and various members of his organization have appeared as guests of Stevens, who arranges the Swing Club programs, on several occasions. Appearance of one of these is often followed by a "jam session" which is welcomed by all musicians. Goodman, in all probability, will be glad to accept the invitation of the Senior Belle Air Ball chairman. His last show on Friday eve will be over in good time for him to join Stevens long before the dance is over.

Besides adding color to the Villanova presentation, the acceptance of Benny Goodman will also boost the prestige of Leith Stevens on his initial collegiate appearance.

Belle Masque Society Releases Names Of Chairmen For Technical Departments Supporting "Winterset"

Rosemont Girls to Try For Female Parts in Production

By JAMES HAUGHTON

A new era in local dramatic circles was created, when it was announced that three Rosemont College students have signified their intentions of trying out for the feminine parts of the Belle Masque production, "Winterset." The three young women are: Misses Anita Argentiere, Marion O'Brien and Rita Wolfington.

This new Co-operative Theatre Movement aims to foster better relations between the Rosemont and Villanova dramatic groups. By this plan, Rosemont girls will take off the feminine parts in Villanova productions, while Villanova men will carry off the male roles in Rosemont dramatic presentations.

Belle Masque announces selection of the chairmen to head the principal committees working in conjunction with the production of Maxwell Anderson's "Winterset."

Vincent J. La Brasca, senior Commerce student, will act as business manager, the post he filled in last year's major production. Mr. Frayne, coach of dramatics, termed him one of the most active men in the society, for he not only handles the business end of dramatics but designs and paints scenery as well.

Taking care of the posters advertising the play is William L. Bailey, junior in Commerce and Finance School, whose job will be to see that posters are distributed and displayed in the most advantageous places.

Chairman of the patrons' committee is Joseph A. Higgins, Junior in Commerce and Finance. This is an important position inasmuch as the number of times the play is to be presented depends on the financial support.

Joseph Allessandroni, Senior in Arts, will have charge of the program while Thomas O'Mahoney,

La Brasca, Bailey, Higgins, O'Mahoney Receive Posts

Junior in Arts department and John J. Harrington, Sophomore in the same school, are the publicity chairmen.

Cooke Stage Manager

Charles J. Cooke, Senior in Arts, is stage manager and Pershing Calabro, Junior Artsman, is head of the art department.

Anyone interested in the work of any of these committees should report to the respective chairman.

On Friday and Saturday Masque members went to Philadelphia and witnessed the collegiate dramatic festival of the Cultural Olympics at Irvine auditorium.

ATTENTION ALL CLASSES!

DO you realize that the senior Belle Air Ball takes place this Friday night in the college gymnasium? Have you bought your ticket? If not the members of the committee are only too glad to supply you with the necessary pasteboards.

Seniors—This is your dance. It is not only your privilege to attend this affair but it is your bounden duty to support your class in this your greatest social gesture. It is your duty to pay your class assessment in full and pay it immediately. Whether or not you agree with the plans made by your committees for your enjoyment it is your duty to co-operate with those members of your class who are working in the best interests of the group. If you do not attend both affairs and lend a helping hand both physically and financially to the success of the Belle Air Ball and the Dinner Dance you are nothing short of slackers and parasites. Seniors, Do Your Duty! See Treasurer Bill Durkin today.

Juniors—You know as well as we do that the success of your own Junior Prom depends upon the results of Friday's affair. If Villanova is to keep up with other colleges in the social field she must continue to have big time orchestras. If the Belle Air Ball is not a success and you Juniors are not allowed to have an orchestra worthy of the name you have only yourselves to blame. You are protecting yourselves by attending the Belle Air Ball. Look up the committee members.

Sophomores—Congratulations on the success of your class Cotillion. It was a splendid dance and from all reports your class treasury was enlarged as a result. Reflect for a moment and you will find that it was mostly students who comprised the attendance that night. One quarter of those students were seniors.—Tickets for the Belle Air Ball may be had in the VILLANOVAN office.

Freshmen—You had your first taste of Villanova social functions last October at the Sophomore Cotillion. That dance, we admit, was an excellent affair, but the senior Belle Air Ball has always been recognized as THE social function of the Winter season. It is the first chance you have to dress in formal regalia and show your terpsichorian technique before a wondering gaze of upperclassmen. The senior class guarantees one of the best times you have ever had. Bring her down to Villanova for the Belle Air Ball.—The committeemen will be around to see you.

WASHINGTON THE ADVISOR

TODAY is the 196th anniversary of the birth of George Washington. Soldier, statesman and philosopher, his memory is connected with Liberty itself and his name is synonymous with the birth and development of infant America. On this, the anniversary of his natal day, it is expedient for us to notice his philosophy and discover how the observance of the rules of his advice will keep our nation where he so unselfishly fought to put it. Consider excerpts from his famous Farewell address.

"Towards the preservation of your present happy state, it is requisite, not only that you steadily discountenance irregular oppositions to its acknowledged authority, but also that you resist with care the innovation upon its principles, however specious the pretexts."

If the General were here today we feel that he would be the first to organize forces against the "innovations" presented by Communistic elements as they exist in our nation today. He has given us sound advice. Aside from the Church and certain civic and veteran organizations who is so well equipped to follow Washington's advice as the Catholic student! Are we too lackadaisical? Are we so indifferent that we are going to allow outside influences to attack the uneducated and unprincipled masses of our people?

Did the City Fathers of Philadelphia, the very cradle of Liberty itself, follow the advice of the First President who so many times trod its streets, when they allowed definitely Communistic elements to hold an open meeting in the city's Convention Hall? Did they follow his admonitions to "be constantly awake against the insidious wiles of foreign influence" when they allowed speakers and ushers at that meeting to use the definitely identifying word "Comrade" and to wear "red" on their lapels?

We American people and especially we American Catholics are failing to listen to the words of the Father of our Country by allowing these "innovations" and "foreign influences" to continue. On this anniversary of the birth of George Washington let us resolve to divorce ourselves from our easy-going attitude and to give our whole-hearted support to those religious and civic leaders who are willing to listen to the words of the great General who over 150 years ago warned us against foreign influences and innovations upon our constitution and the very life itself of our nation.

When I was 14 my father was so ignorant that I could hardly stand to have the old man around; but when I became 21 I was amazed to find out how much the old man had learned in seven years. —Twain.

Always do right. You will surprise some and gratify others.—Twain.

Ed. note — This week the guest columnist is Frank Reale.

A STORY about a University of Texas professor comes to mind. One of the class wits had written on the board, "Professor Brown will not meet his classes today." Another of the students of the same humorous turn of mind had erased the letter "C." When the professor came along, and sizing up the situation at a glance, he erases one more letter.

DOUBLE OR NOTHING; When told his salary was going to be cut down to ten dollars a week, due to drop in patronage, Lee Cantor, m.c. at the Vanity Club, French Quarter nightery, told boss he'd sell newspapers before he worked for that kind of coin. He quit. Started selling the Tribune, morning tabloid, and is earning more than double the salary offered him. His stand is in front of the club. Moral: If you can't pass Organic Chem., sell newspapers.

APPRECIATON AND THANKS; To Miss Helena I. C. Byll, recently demised, whose thoughtfulness will never be forgotten. Miss Byll willed to the Augustinian Fathers of Villanova one thousand dollars, and the same amount to St. Charles Borromeo, Overbrook, and the Jesuit Fathers Seminary Fund.

PRIZE; The century note suggesting the title on next Janet Gaynor film for Selznick International go to President Roosevelt who unwittingly coined the title when he referred to the actress as "cute as a button," at recent President's Ball in Washington, D. C. Two scripters have been assigned to whip up a yarn around the remark.

BRINGING UP BABY; Coming to the Boyd Theatre in Philadelphia this week are Katharine Hepburn and Cary Grant, not with a baby carriage, but a baby; Nissa is the name and it's a leopard. Thus, they bring up the baby. This harum-scarum comedy is Miss Hepburn's first in this type. Opposite her is Cary Grant, who is perfectly at home as a farceur after his work in "The Awful Truth." "Bringing Up Baby" is constructed for maximum laughs, with Ruggles and Catlett adding to the starring team's zany antics. There is little rhyme or reason to most of the action, but it's all highly palatable.

Wacky developments include pursuit of an heiress after a zoology prof who expects to wed his femme assistant in the museum on the same day he plans to complete a giant brontosaurus; a pet leopard, "Nissa," who makes a playmate of "Asta" the redoubtable Scotch terrier; a wealthy woman who may endow the prof's museum with $1,000,000, and etc. Under Howard Hawk's skillful pacing it is a hilarious farce.

Ruggles, as the former African game hunter, does wonders with a minor characterization brought in late in the picture. May Robson, obviously out of her element here, provides a few sober moments to the mad proceedings, being as effectual as ever. Developments are paced by sizzling dialog. Prime piece; Miss Hepburn's imitation of a gunmoll.

PROTECTING PENNER; Anti-libel suit notice currently carried on all films takes high-powered ribbing in new Schlesinger cartoon about duck-hunting. Title is flashed on the screen, "All characters in this film are entirely fictitious. Any similarity to actual ducks, living or roasted, is entirely coincidental."

AIR TOUR; Following the current success of Leith Stevens and his "Swing Session," CBS has added to the ozone another program on the same order. Ballyed as bringing out new people and new voices, CBS once again raises its standard and presents Donald Novis and the velvet band of Lud Gluskin. Presented over the CBS chain on Thursdays at 10:30 P. M. E. . . . Proceeding hence to Sunday night we come upon Barbara Stanwyck who turned in a stunning dramatic job on the Chase and Sanborn show. It was a repeat date for her, since she had previously done the title part in "Anna Christie," Sunday's dramatization was from Eugene O'Neil's "The Straw." Script offered plenty of opportunity for emoting and the actress unloosed plenty of power, but avoid choking it. Her bout with Charlie McCarthy was good. Whatever it was that broke up the cast and panicked the audience didn't go over the air. Laughter kept increasing to the fadeout and could even be heard faintly during the final announcement.

RAH-RAH; Pat Ballard, songwriter and radio author, has tied up as music editor of College Humor to include an undergraduate swing contest, with prizes for campus swing gags. Ballard, who pioneered an amateur song-writing contest on WOR, will similarly air the collegiate jam tunes. Meanwhile, until these come along, his first tie-up will be "College Humor," by Larry Clinton, a pro songsmith.

NEHI TO A GOOD SHOW; Nehi, Inc., soda-pop bottling firm, takes on its first network program with a variety layout starting over NBC-Blue, March 11, and every Friday thereafter from 9 to 9:30. Talent roster will include George Olsen's orchestra, Teddy Bergmann, Tim and Irene and Graham McNamee will spiel the blurbs.

UPBEAT; Ina Ray Hutton set for three weeks at the Arcadia starting April the first. It's her first location date in nearly a year. Buddy Rogers precedes her on March 11 . . . Larry Clinton, newcomer, plays Yale and Princeton proms on March 11 and 18 respectively . . . Judy Garland starts on a personal tour . . . began in New York short time ago. She was a resounding wallop in her first appearance, is 14 years old and knows how to put over a song.

EXCERPT FROM U. OF CINCINNATI NEWS RECORD; (In regard to Prom Queen) "Judging from the spread in the Cincinnati Enquirer, last week, Harrison Dog Track (adv.), although it may be closed, is submitting an entry for U. S. Prom Queen."

"Odds on Cleo, the Sweetheart of Sigma Chi, (featured center of page) at press time were 5-4 to win, with the entries from the other kennels slated to fight it out for place and show.

"Cleo is a tall, tan, and terrific brindle Dane, and her exquisite poise (no relation to Equipoise, who is a horse) gives the dopesters to believe that although she isn't fast on a dry track, she stands a good chance in the Prom Sweeps."

VILLANOVA CHESS CLUB INVITED TO ENTER TOURNAMENT

Fifth Annual Championship of Philadelphia Association Held March 9

It has been announced that the Villanova Chess Team has accepted an invitation tendered to it by the Philadelphia Chess Association to participate in a tournament on March 9. As the result of this contest each year one team is awarded the Amateur Chess Championship of Philadelphia.

At International Institute

Chess players throughout Philadelphia and vicinity will compete for the Amateur Chess Championship of Philadelphia on Wednesday evening, March 9, at the International Institute, 645 N. 15th St. This tourney, the fifth annual, sponsored by the Philadelphia Chess Association, will start promptly at 8 P. M. on the above date. Games will be played on each succeeding Wednesday evening.

Club Active

Long has the Chess Club been an integral part of the campus life here. Because of the very nature of the activities in which it engages, it never attracts much attention. However, at this tournament it was decided that competition should not be restricted to members of this organization and the Chess Club has generously conceded to every student the privilege of taking part.

The tournament is mainly intended for less experienced players, those rated as experts being barred from competition. Entries, covered by a fee of 25 cents, will be received in advance or at the scheduled time to play.

Schedules will be mailed to those submitting their entry on or before Wednesday, March 2, to any member of the tournament committee: Chairman, Irving Goldstein, 2932 W. York St.; vice chairman, Edwin W. Walter, RFD No. 1, Media, Pa.; secretary, Edgar Ashman, 262 Apsley St.; treasurer, Mrs. Mary Selensky, 3931 N. 17th St.; statistician, Donato A. Giulio, 321 Magnolia Ave., Aldan, Pa.; publicity director, Walter Hall, 618 Magee St.

The Observer

THANKS to our remarks about Mayor Frank Hague, of Jersey City, Mr. Robert Barrett, Junior Arts, sent the Observer a splendid letter attacking our stand on the grounds that it was unconstitutional and subversive. In fact, Mr. Barrett even termed the Observer "fascistic."

We read Mr. Barrett's letter, and we reread it. His argument was seemingly quite convincing. He very cleverly placed in juxtaposition part of the Constitution—that guaranteeing the rights of free speech and freedom of essemblage—with parts of Hague's speeches, wherein the august Mayor of Jersey City said he suspected a Communist when he heard someone refer to "rights of speech freedom and press freedom."

Mr. Barrett then asserted that the CIO, representing a majority of the workers of the country, had every legal right to be heard.

We would like to have printed Mr. Barrett's letter, but we cannot for want of space. However, above is the gist of his argument.

First let us concern ourselves with the so-called right of free speech and free press. We are viewing this subject first as Catholics and then as American citizens.

Pope Leo XIII, in his immortal Encyclical on Human Liberty, writes: ". . . lying opinions, than which no mental plague is greater, and vices which corrupt the heart and moral life, should be diligently repressed by public authority, lest they insidiously work the ruin of that State." Thus, freedom of speech does not say that a man can speak his mind on everything under the sun. Nothing could be more pernicious. No man has a right to teach that there is no God, and no man has a right to teach that the proper method of living is to hate ones' neighbors. Yet the Communists who teach these very things do so in the name of "free speech."

Mayor Hague, it seems to the Observer, merely met a practical situation in a practical way. When men of Communistic tendencies invade one's cities, it is no time to discuss the niceties of free speech. Action is demanded, and it must be quick. Hague met the situation as any good Christian would have.

As for the Communism of the CIO, few doubt but that this alien and subversive movement is a direct Communist plot to take over the industries of the country. Why, only the other day Homer Martin, president of the United Auto Workers of America, large CIO union, demanded that "reds" in the union be expelled. Hillman and Dubinsky, of the clothing workers' unions have pasts which reek of Russia, bombs, and revolution. Many other examples could be cited.

Mr. Barrett might contend that while the Pope's opinion is quite correct, this country is not a Catholic country.

Okeh. Let us consult the law of the land.

From time to time, various agitators have been brought before the bar of justice to answer for their incitation to class war and revolution. In the celebrated case of Gitlow vs. New York (268 U. S. 652), opinionated in 1925 by the United States Supreme Court, a majority of the Court held that: ". . . a state may punish utterances endangering the foundations of organized government and threatening its overthrow by unlawful means. . . . Freedom of speech and press . . . does not protect disturbances of the public peace or the attempt to subvert the government."

To Mr. Barrett we extend this advice: this is a practical world where one must be practical. If Mr. Barrett wants to give freedom of speech to those who would overthrow our form of government, let him seek other lands. We are decent, law-abiding Americans, and we intend to use all reasonable methods to ensure the continuance of the American system.

And to Mr. Hague we extend congratulations for having upheld the American tradition of equal justice under the law. He gave the CIO rodents what was coming to them.

A MINUTE COMPARISON AND CONTRAST OF ABRAHAM LINCOLN AND ADOLF HITLER.

They were two great men, perhaps the greatest in their respective periods. Both were great patriots. Both were fighting for the good of their country—Lincoln to preserve his country from dismemberment; Hitler to undo the social and economic disintegration of his country.

Our Great Emancipator had very little regard for the Constitution when he knew his methods would lead to his end, the freedom of the enslaved people and the preservation of the United States of North America. Hitler of today has no regard for any constitution when he knows that his method will lead to his end, the enslavement of the German people to regain by military might and force the German Empire.

To express his views of the questions facing him, Lincoln spoke for three minutes, at Gettysburg, packing in there so much that his speech is now the greatest classic of all times.

Last Sunday morning we heard the resume of Hitler's speech to the Reichstag: "Hitler has now been talking two and one-half hours and hasn't said anything yet."

What a marvelous tribute to the "Leader."

Another comparison which we might draw would be that both are fearless. Lincoln believed in the theory of "right makes might." He was a man who had the courage of his convictions "even unto death." Hitler, we can easily say, believes in the theory of "might makes right." He is a man that has the courage of his convictions even unto the death of his whole nation.

Lincoln really loved men. He respected the views of others even though they were wrong. This we can see by the famous letter to Mrs. Bixby in which he mourned with her the passing of her five sons—all soldiers in the Confederate Army.

On the other hand, we see where Hitler not only hates his enemies, but his allies as well. For proof of this, we look toward the recent Army Purges, and the purges of last year. Many of Hitler's important Army Generals, High Cabinet Members, and close friends were bloodily slaughtered.

Lincoln fought internal enemies of the Union in order that all might be free. Hitler fights external enemies but the price which he is paying for the freedom of the German nation is the enslavement of the German people.

Such is the irony of history.

By RED WATERS

IF VARIETY is really the spice of life, then the versatile Jim Lyons has plenty of what it takes. Since his entrance into Villanova four years ago, Jim has associated himself with practically every extracurricular activity on the campus.

Continuing from where he left off at Philadelphia's La Salle High School, where he was a stellar performer on both the track and football squads, Jim soon became a member of the Villanova 150-pound football and varsity track teams, playing end for the lightweigts, and specializing in the hurdles for track. He later took up golf and boxing, then in his senior year becoming student manager of both track and golf.

Sweet Genevieve

It was during a memorable golf-team trip to Franklin and Marshall College at Lancaster last year that Jim's "Genevieve" ruined her previously doubtful, but until then spotless reputation.

"Genevieve" is a loosely-knit, ramshackle old roustabout of a bygone age. (Jim warned us not to call it a "Model T.") About all of Genevieve has left in her is that brief daily jaunt between the Lyons' home in Ardmore and Villanova, but it took the F. and M. trip to prove that to her owner.

At only one "stalling" point on the way, Genevieve was discovered to have, first: a flat tire; second: a hit water hose; third: broken fan belt.

The five turf-men on the trip came back full-fledged automobile mechanics.

The ambitious Mr. Lyons did not confine his activities to sports.

Again following in the path of his high school endeavors, where in conjunction with a small group of classmates he had succeeded in establishing a school weekly, Jim as a freshman became a member of the sports staff of the VILLANOVAN, continuing in that department for the following three years.

JAMES H. LYONS

As a member of the Sophomore Vigilance Committee, he struck terror into the heart of many a freshman with that half-sneer, half-cynical expression of his. Even when this failed to gain submission, all he had to do was to look up (Jim is seldom able to look down on anyone), point his right fist—with the index and little fingers extended, and then use that famous "Listen youse!"

Other activities include, the Glee club, Belle Air staff, the Sophomor Cotillion, and Junior Blazer Ball Committes, and a role in last year's Belle Masque production, "Journey's End."

Birthday Tomorrow

A fact that the Lyons' home is located in nearby Ardmore has proven a great convenience to his classmates. They are ever-ready to drop in for a visit—invariably at lunch-time. One day during the recent retreat, no less than eight unexpected guests arrived at noon—in time for lunch.

Tomorrow is Jim's birthday. His classmates intend to celebrate—by dropping in for lunch.

The Lyons' residence is notable in two respects. First for the fine hospitality of Jim's sister, who usually acts as hostess when the boys arrive; second, for the hundred-and-one gold awards, consisting of cups, clocks, cocktail shakers, and trophies (won by Jim's Dad) which are to be seen everywhere.

In his studies, notwithstanding all the extracurricular ventures, Jim is usually to be found near the top of his class when quarterly ratings are issued, frequently even breaking into the honor roll. All of this despite his 'come late go early" habit that has long been the bane of Commerce and Finance professors at exam time. (Jim blames it all on Genevieve.)

As for his success in the Quarterlies, although he will not admit it, Jim is to be seen almost any night before an exam over at Classmate LaBrasca's home, participating in a last-minute cramming session.

Upon completion of his Pre-Law course in the Commerce and Finance department, he intends to enter the Law school at the University of Pennsylvania. Good luck to you, Jim.

Leith Stevens Band Highlight of Senior Ball Friday Night

campus for his sizzling trumpet interpretations of the modern trend in swing. His versatility is proved beyond doubt when consideration is paid his abilities as an arranger.

Imitating the style of Benny Goodman, Leith Stevens can swing out pulse-quickening rhythm as torrid as one desires just as well as he can soothe with his romantically dreamy waltzes. Only the fact that the spotlight of his Saturday evening programs falls for the most part on the guest stars has prevented Leith Stevens and his really rhythmic orchestra from receiving the popular acclaim it richly deserves. Perhaps this, his first collegiate appearance as master of the baton, will, in some measure, start him on the road to this success.

Committee Detained

The decoration committee, realizing its importance, is certainly making elaborate preparations in connection with this Senior Ball. However, Harry Guckenberger, Salvatore Angelozzi, Edward Carroll, and Leonard Connelly, who comprise this committee, met an unexpected obstacle in their plans for the early decoration of the Villanova Field House. It was learned recently that the gym has been reserved Wednesday for a basketball game between two local high school teams. As is very evident this will prevent the committee from beginning its work until after the game. Nevertheless, the committee members have in their foresightedness transformed this handicap into as great an advantage as possible. They have purposely delayed making a final decision on the actual decorative arrangements in the hope that a better method will present iteself in the additional period to time allowed them.

Recognizing the artistic value of the decorations of last year's affair, these same committeemen are working in that direction, namely in the attempt to construct a fountain on the dance floor in all its simple beauty. As fitting setting to this fountain, the new idea of a surrounding rock garden is being considered. While the acoustic curtains will drape each side of the floor, a new false ceiling will enhance the scene. Another improvement has been suggested and undoubtedly will be put into effect. Although last year the gym was wonderfully decorated for the Senior Ball, the wall opposite the orchestra was not very presentable under close inspection. Therefore, this year will see special attention paid to it.

DEBATERS ENGAGE MORRIS PRICE TEAM

GERMAN CLASSES ORGANIZE CLUB

Language Students Meet Under Father Lunney to Further Knowledge

Its organization having been definitely established, the German Club under the capable supervision of Rev. William Lunney, O.S.A., has recently taken its place among the newly formed organizations on the Villanova campus.

Somewhat unprecedented and quite informal, the club held its first meeting Thursday in Alumni Hall. By the use of German language only, favorite topics of modern convereation were carried on through the course of the meeting. At some future date Father Lunney plans to discuss his personal travel experiences in Europe.

Current German newspapers and periodicals were read and placed on exhibit for the purpose of increasing the reading knowledge of the students.

The meeting was found to be in particular favor of the German classes although the membership is restricted to the higher ranking students of the lower classes.

talent presented in their entertainment. Again this spot has signed a name band and the Seniors will be among the first to enjoy his music here. The "name" is Bunny Berigan of hot trumpet fame from coast to coast. His heat choruses have been heard time after time on the Saturday Night Swing Session with Leith Stevens, the senior dance maestro.

The floor show accompanied by Berigan also consists of names that have thrilled crowds from Broadway to Tin Pan Alley. This cast will include a comedy dance team that already has had a requested long run, and a Charley McCarthy rival ventriloquist. "These and many more will provide several hours of entertainment.

Favors for Girls

When asked about the favors to be tendered the fair members of the attending couples, Conte assumed a secretive air and informed the VILLANOVAN reporter that a distinctive and altogether new gift was in mind but would not be announced until the time of distribution.

And thus will conclude the senior week of festivities. The dinner dance has been definitely indicated as a formal affair and also a request has been made by those in charge that all assessments be completed early to insure financial as well as social success to the proposed evening. Saturday night will mark the farewell of social life on the campus for the Senior Class of 1938.

AUTHORS DONATE SEVENTY BOOKS

Peck and Deverall Aid Library in Drive For Books

A gift of 70 books has recently been announced by the Villanova library, to add to the ever increasing collection of outstanding works.

Forty books, most of which are historical in nature, were presented by Frederick Stanford Peck, noted scholar and author. Richard Deverall, editor of the popular Christian Front, donated 30 books of various calibre.

Peck, born in 1868 in Barrington, R. I., received his LL. D. at Villanova. Well known throughout the New England states he is an authority on early American history. In 1927 he published a book from his collection of letters of George Washington.

His present donation which is now being catalogued and which will shortly be presented for the use of the students, consists of many books which are at present out of print. Among them are various histories of the early Indian tribes and of different sections of the country.

Previously he gave books on the history of Rhode Island and of local states of 1812. His present donation will be catalogued in the Union catalogue in the library in Philadelphia so as to be a help to the outside scholars.

The wonderful interest shown to the library by Frederick Peck is paralleled by that of Richard Deverall, editor of the popular Christian Front. His donation of 30 books, most of which are books on Religion, will indeed be a help to all the students.

FLOCCO'S CHARGES ENGAGE TWO RIVALS

Meet Delaware Thursday, F. and M. Monday in Main Line Pool

On the coming Thursday and Monday the Wildcat natators will engage two important opponents, Delaware University and Franklin and Marshall College, respectively. Both these encounters will take place in the Main Liners' tank.

Delaware is the first to be contended with and will offer a stern test for the ability of the Floccomen. Following this encounter, the swimmers will meet last year's Intercollegiate champion, Franklin and Marshall College, in the home tank.

This title was attained by tankmen of the visitors because they finished the '36-'37 season undefeated in league competition. This year's team is up to the usual high standards and will be a tough assignment for the 'Cats to handle. This meeting will be the first in the history of the two schools and many more are anticipated.

Blue Mittmen Held To Draw By Scrappy Beaver Boxers

Captain Bill Duffy Wins Feature Bout From Eastern Conference Champ, Amedeo Rea; Johnny Nojunas Registers Third Straight Win

BOB MENTZINGER OUTSLUGS GROJENSKY

By JOSEPH PAGANO

Villanova's boxing team was held to a draw by a strong C. C. N. Y. aggregation in its third meet of the season last Friday evening; a tied meet was made possible by two C. C. N. Y. victories in the lightheavy and heavy weight classes after the Blue mittmen were leading four to two.

Duffy Outstanding

Outstanding in the meet for the Wildcats were Villanova's "Big Three" Captain Bill Duffy, Bob Mentzinger and Johnny Nojunas, who on three successive wins, after Jimmy Mulroy had won his first meet of the season, sent Villanova ahead of their opponents by a count of four to two.

The 'Cat lead was short-lived, however, for Johnny Nemeth gained a decision over Bill Piscione, making his first appearance in an Intercollegiate boxing meet; and Sid Emmer was likewise given the nod over Ed Killian who tried valiantly to keep the 'ats in front but fell before the onslaught of the C. C. N. Y. heavyweight.

Villanova's promising 115 pounder set the Wildcats on the right path by winning his first bout of the season in grand from over Joe Lubansky, a tough little customer from City College. Mike Ariano, still off form, dropped his second straight bout of the year to Murray Sanders, crack 125 pounder of the opponents.

Marty Klein sent the visitors ahead by being awarded a technical knockout in the third round over Villanova's Frank Hiney, a lad who must be given plenty of credit for his grit in an attempt to fill the shoes of last year's sen-

CITY COLLEGE FIVE STARTS BUSY WEEK FOR BLUE QUINTET

Beavers, St. Francis and Rutgers Faced by Wildcats; Friars Here Tuesday

City College of New York, mighty atoms of the basketball world, provide the opposition for Villanova's ambitious dribblers tonight in the New Yorkers' home gymnasium.

The Beavers will be the second team from the Metropolis to present an obstacle in the path of the Wildcats within three days, the Violets of N. Y. U. having throughly tested the locals on Saturday. Following the C.C.N.Y. tilt, Coach Al Severance will move his weary band across the East River into Brooklyn, where St. Francis, another strong aggregation, will be met.

Possessing an all veteran combination, the Lavender has rolled up an impressive string of scores in defeating twelve major opponents this season. Only the great machine from the Pacific Coast, Stanford, and St. John's Red Men have gained decisions over the City College five.

Headed by Bernie Fliegel, probably the finest player in the Metropolitan area this season, Nat Holman has built one of the speediest quintets in the nation. Proof of this is the easy win over St. Joseph's before the latter started to decline. The recent victory over the in and out LaSalle club, which fell 40-23, is also something to consider.

Besides Fliegel, who is the leading point getter on the Lavender's roster, there are Morris Goldstein and "Felix" Katz, both veteran forwards of two years' experience. Paris and Lefkowitz hold down the guard posts. Both men played against the locals last season, when the Beavers dropped an exciting fray to the Wildcats.

As for reserves the Beavers can put on the floor two full teams in addition to the starting five. All are former members of New York's leading scholastic quintets, and several are all-scholastic players.

Saturday night the 'Cats conclude a busy week when the Severancemen go to the banks of the Old Raritan to meet the high-riding Rutgers quintet. Rutgers has met and beaten some of the East's better teams and will give the locals plenty of action. The boys have been enjoying prosperity in the court sport this year, and will be itching for a Wildcat skin to adorn the A.A. offices on the campus. Next Monday night those dope-upsetting Providence Friars move into the Main Line Field House to provide the opposition for the Blue's semi-final home appearance.

SPORTS STAFF MEETING

There will be a meeting of the Sports Staff of the VILLANOVAN in the office, 119 Mendel Hall, Wednesday, February 23, at 1:00 P. M. All staff members and new candidates are to be present.

AS THIS ISSUE of the paper goes to press, the Wildcat courtmen have taken care of one of the tough teams of the Metropolitan area. We mean, of course, New York University. Unbeaten in 47 star' on its home court, the Violet squad had everything in its favor, but the fighting 'Cats took nothing for granted and mowed down the highly-touted New Yorkers in convincing fashion. Getting the jump on their metropolitan foes, the lads kept a lead gained in the opening minutes of play. Nice work, boys, keep it up.

—V—

It looks as though the masterminds of double-header basketball, Clair Hare and Ned Irish, are leaving no stone unturned to cook up another St. Joseph's-La Salle, Villanova-Temple double-header. Nothing would suit us better than to see the Cat and Owl tangle again. We are hereby sending in our reservation for a couple of good seats to that bill of fare. Convention Hall will bulge at the sides if the plans now under consideration go through, and we certainly hope they do.

—V—

Ray Gadsby's boys met a pretty tough group of lads in that C. C. N. Y. crew. Most of the Lavender ringmen had pretty fast lefts, which bothered our boys a bit, but on the whole the Blue punchers took pretty good care of themselves. The only decision we question was the one which saw Bill "Max" Piscione on the losing end. We think it should have been a draw. "Max" showed aggressiveness, a good point in intercollegiate boxing. Incidentally, those rules about silence during the rounds are very trying to the spectator, especially when a couple of heavyweights are out there swinging lefts and rights to the jaw.

—V—

While we're still on the subject of boxing, the C. U. sports writer who previewed the 'Cat-Cardinal match predicted a 6-2 final count in favor of the Cards. A good prognosticator, say we. The story would have been different had Ray

POOL TOURNEY PLANNED

Bowling Contests Also Under Consideration if Interest Warrants

Two campus activities which are becoming more popular each day are bowling and billiards. With this observation comes the announcement that if interest warrants them, tournaments in these sports will be held in the very near future.

Harry Mazzei, majordomo of the pool tables and bowling alleys in the gymnasium, today made known tentative plans for these tournaments. Prizes of cash may be awarded, although it is probable that other things will be offered instead. Although the tourneys will come under the head of intramural sports, no points toward team standings in the intramural race will be given.

While the alleys and tables in the gym are put to constant use, there is always room for one or two more players. These sports offer fine possibilities for recreation, and it would be a good idea for even more students to become acquainted with them.

Six Year Winning Streak Ended As Blue Wins, 30-27

UNDEFEATED FROSH ADD TWO VICTIMS TO VICTORY STREAK

Conquer Coatesville and Conshohocken Clubs for Eighth and Ninth Conquests

Annexing their eighth and ninth consecutive victories, the Villanova Frosh vanquished the Coatesville Star Printers and Conshohocken Hi-club quintets in the past week. Conshohocken fell to the score of 37 - 31, while the passers from Coatesville were defeated by a 38-24 count.

Blue Takes Lead

In the encounter with the Printers, the Blue yearlings were never in danger, leading the visitors by a twelve point advantage. Brilliant first-half passing by the Frosh accounted for the 26-14 halftime count. Accurate passing and shooting kept the Stars in the mire as they were held to ten points in the second canto.

Chuck Yund, high-scoring guard of the Kittens, paced the victors with five field goals and two charity tosses for a total of twelve points. Nugent and Yinci garnered nine and eight markers, respectively, to press Yund for scoring honors. Eight points were all that were necessary to lead the visitors, and Garowski's three double deckers and two successful free tries gave him this honor.

Defense Dominates Game

Monday night the Kittens engaged the Mill Town representatives and emerged victorious in a hard fought contest, with six points only separating the two clubs at the final whistle. Another dozen counters were added to Yund's point total and Morris was the next in line with eight markers. Both teams displayed good defensive ball and the contest was not decided until the Blue yearlings spurted shortly before the final gun. Vinci and Colbert played good defensive ball while the other Kittens were racking up the tallies.

On the season's play so far, the Kittens look to be well on their way to an undefeated season as there are but two games to be played at the Main Line Field House, unless Coach Al Severance decides to take his boys on a trip or two. Standouts in the scoring column for the season are Yund, Morris, Nugent and Murphy, while Vinci, Colbert and Murphy have shown some excellent defensive work, with Murphy's tactics on the defense shading his offensive work a bit. So far the Frosh have presented a well rounded team which is not repete with individual stars but has proven itself to be a smooth working five man aggregation.

GAME WANTED

The Villanova Ramblers, high flying quintet composed of Villanova students, is desirous of procuring a game with the Freshman five. Mr. Anthony Rifici is the manager.

By TOM O'MAHONEY

Al Severance's hustling band of Main Line Wildcats did more than win a basketball game last Saturday night—they utterly ruined a winning streak that dated back six years as they humbled New York University's by now violent Violets on their own court, 30-27.

First Loss at Home

Ever since the gym on the Heights was built in 1932, N. Y. U. had compiled a record of 47 straight victories on its charmed surface; but this string was shattered when Villanova went out in front on Johnny Krutulis' foul shot in the opening minutes, for the home team never drew abreast in the remainder of the fray.

Aggressive defensive playing on the part of the 'Cats forced the New Yorkers into wild passing and wilder shooting all during the first half, and the calm, deliberate Blue offensive threw the highly-geared Violet combine into frenzied gallies out of position, much to the locals' glee. With five minutes to go in the first half, the 'Cats enjoyed a 13-2 lead, but as the home fans ranted and shrieked, New York turned the game into a rough and tumble back-alley affair, and managed to cut the Blue lead to 15-10 at the half on two goals and six charity tosses. During this unorthodox session Jim Montgomery was banished on personals, and big Lou Dubino, playing with a bad leg, came in to replace him at center.

Fedigan and Austin Tie For Mural Diadem

DAY-HOPS' FORFEIT ALLOWS AUSTINITES TO CATCH GIGOLOS

West Enders Defeat Alumni as Mendel Commuters Concede Victory

By BILL TOY

In the characteristic intramural style Fedigan was successful in annexing two victories to her total at the cost of the Mendel Day Hops and Alumni Hall while Austin and the C. & F. Commuters were winning one each from the Mendel Residents and Alumni respectively

Race Ends in Tie

Due to the developments of the week Fedigan and Austin find themselves in a deadlock with each having five victories and one defeat. A playoff will be arranged in the near future to decide the second-half winner. However, if Fedigan should emerge the victor, they will be the undisputed champs of the league; but if Austin is the conqueror, a second playoff will have to be enacted.

In the first two frays of the week Austin defeated the Mendel Residents by a 49-30 count while the Fediganites were trouncing the Engineers to the tune of 37-28. In the first game it was largely through the efforts of Austin's high scoring guard, LaBalbo, who garnered seven double deckers, that they were able to vanquish the rejuvenated Penthousers. Hines, Scelba and Delehanty each scored 8 points for the losers.

The second game found the Mendel Day Hops outclassed by the sharp shooting eye of Fedigan's long shot ace, Totin. Pushing baskets from all angles, Totin annexed 12 markers to the cause. The hapless Commuters were paced by the reliable Thorne and Rosenberg, who dropped in 12 counters respectively. This loss displaced all championship ideas the Day Hops might have had.

On Thursday an astounding upset took place. The C. & F. train and trolley boys won their first decision of the second half. Thoroughly outplaying the cohorts from Alumni, the Commutors ended on the long end of a 30-29 count. Leading the victorious Day Hops were Coupe and Lyman who gathered 20 and 12 points respectively. Haynes led the losers in the scoring column with a total of four two-pointers. This is the highest score attained by the Commerce men this year.

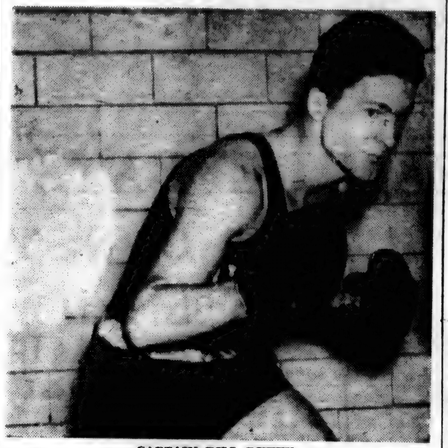
Fedigan Beats Alumni

In Thursday's other game Fedigan trounced Alumni by 32 to 228, clinching the tie for Fedigan. Leading the Gigolos was their forward, Woods, third leading scorer in the circuit, who tossed six goals and two charity tosses for a total of 14 markers. Showing the way to the losers was their spectacular forward, DeLuca, who scored four twin counters and two gift shots before he was obliged to leave the game on personals.

Of the other two games both C. & F. and Austin were awarded one apiece on a forfeit.

In the scoring department, Keating has emerged the victor. It was he who won the title in the first half and has repeated the victory in the final bracket. While Keating has a 49 point lead, he was hard pressed by his teammate Rosenberg who garnered 44 markers. In third position we find Woods who had a total of 43 counters and hot on his heels was O'Connell who was credited with 41 points. Last position finds Leahy with 40 points to his credit.

Still Undefeated



CAPTAIN BILL DUFFY,
who has met and vanquished three captains in as many matches. "Scotty" McLachlan, of Miami; Fred Mix, of Catholic U., and Amleo Rea, co-captain of C. C. N. Y., have all fallen before his onslaught. Duffy is the first one to defeat Rea in three years.

Courtmen Defeat N. Y. U. Quintet

before Dan Dowd, N. Y. U. guard, converted a free heave for the Violet's first score. Krutulis came right back with a one-point throw, only to see Irv Witty make it 3-2. Apparently irked at this, John sank a long one from the corner, and saw the Villanova lead increase still more when Mike Lazorchak made a goal and a foul shot to put the score up to 13-2. Witty and Si Boardman scored fouls for New York, but the irrepressible Duke Duzminski came right back with a long set shot, making the count 15-4.

Up to this point the Violets had not made a field goal, but Witty started them off with a corner shot after 15 minutes had elapsed. New York's desperate style of play finally reduced the visitors' margin as Art Schillig and Jerry Tarlow dropped in foul shots and Witty scored on a pretty lay-up as the half ended with the score 15-10.

N. Y. U. Falls to Connect

With Montgomery out, N. Y. U. had many opportunities to close in on the 'Cats in the second half, but the close-guarding locals kept hurrying the Violets to such an extent that they were missing shots that ordinarily would have been baskets. Unable now to penetrate the New York defense, the 'Cats reverted to long tosses, as Art Vigilante rang the bell on a set shot, and Duke Duzminski let go with two long shots in between which Bernie Carnevale scored for New York, Schillig registered on Carnevale's missed foul and Lewis counted on a lay-up while on the run. When Schillig rimmed a foul, the Villanova lead was cut to 21-17.

Krutulis Gets Two

At this, Krutulis planked home a long shot, and Jerry Tarlow brought the home fans to their feet with a beautiful one-hander, only to see Johnny come back to drop another long one to put the Wildcats in front 25-19. Lewis then scooped up a loose ball and dribbled in to slice New York's deficit to four points. The Violets now began to make desperate attempts to get possession of the ball in the Villanova back court, only to be caught napping when a long pass up the floor allowed Lou Dubino to score unmolested. N. Y. U. took the ball out under its own basket, but the pass out was slow and Art Vigilante darted in to intercept the ball and tuck it away for the clincher. These two goals in less than ten seconds broke the New Yorkers' hearts, and the game ended with the Violets trying to score from the center of the floor, but still on the short end of a 30-27 count.

Briefs

The Blue five should never have been threatened had it not been for poor marksmanship at the foul line. The 'Cats made only four points out of a total of 13 charity tobs, while N. Y. U. remained in the running by converting 11 out of 15 chances. John Krutulis led the scoring for both sides, making four goals and three fouls, while Bobby Lewis' eight points sparked the Violet attack. N. Y. U. threw in only eight baskets, while the 'Cats garnered 13. Although the entire Wildcat team played headsup ball, the defensive play of Jim Montgomery was outstanding, and his cool leadership on the attack was responsible for several scores. New York could never solve Krutulis' and Duzminski's quick breaking out of the slowly-paced weave used by the Severancemen, and deadly set shots from the corners by Mike Lazorchak upset the home team greatly.

Mules Bow, 37-24

The Wildcats made it two in a row over Muhlenburgh when they took the Mules' measure by the score of 37-24 in the Main Line Gym last Thursday night. The 'Cats had previously beaten the upStaters, 40-35, at Allentown. The first half of Thursday's game was a dismal affair, as both sides missed easy shots, but the home team gained the lead early and led at the end of the first stanza, 16-6. The high-flying Blue quintet increased this margin on brilliant shots. Jim Montgomery and Duke Duzminski added nine markers apiece to their already-high season totals, while Frank Tracy, Mule forward, paced the losers with ten points.

Pity the poor typesetter! Here come those fighting Wildcats, eleven strong, with the following lineup:

R. G.—DiFillipo
R. T.—Andrulewicz
R. E.—Shedlosky
Q.—Stryczniewicz
L. H.—Verbitsky
R. H.—Michniewicz
F.—Gogolinski

There, should "Clipper" Smith will it, is a headache for any typesetter. And should he bemoan his fate and pray for substitutes, the head man of the Blue gridiron machine has a few more bolts to toss at the unsuspecting linotypist with Sabrinsky, Urebilis, Yankauskas and Nujunas.

Imagine, however, the poor radio announcer trying to give a play by play description of one of the "Clippers'" "Killer-Dillers." "Romanowski centers the ball to Stryczniewicz, who fakes to Verbitsky and hands the ball to Michniewicz. Gogolinski blocks out the end and as Michniewicz is about to be tackled, he laterals to Bukofski, who goes ten yards to the opponents' twenty-five." By that time either the radio announcer or the public address system will have broken down, and the boys at school awaiting the results of the game will have to be content with the newspaper account of the "Battle of the Irish" and strain their eyes following the "c's" and "z's" along the columns of type relating the deeds of these sterling heroes.

However, the VILLANOVAN comes to the rescue, and herewith submits, for approval or disapproval, a list of alternates for the aid of the typesetters and radio announcers. Some of the lads will have to go on with the same names, as they are deeply impressed on the minds of the fans and will have to be kept, but quite a few will be able to change their names, or have them changed, to more easily retained nomenclature.

The grudge battle of the year looms in the Intramural court race when Fedigan and Austin play off the second half tie which resulted as Fedigan defeated Alumni and Mendel Day Hops defaulted to Austin by demand. The rivalry between the West and East Enders has always been intense and this tie business will only serve to add to the intensity. Should the Fedganites take the contest, intra-mural basketball will be concluded for the year, but should the Austinites win, there will be a playoff for the court championship, as each will have won the right to be in the play-offs.

Football will soon make its official appearance on the Main Line campus again, with Spring training starting early next month. Harbingers of that phase of gridiron life are seen in the fact that eight or nine boys are already to be seen down at the gym practicing centering the ball.

By JOHN L. SIMONS

WHEN PAT MARQUETTE came to Villanova College in September, 1934, it was no strange thing for him to come under the influence of the Augustinian Fathers. Ever since he was old enough to get into the first grade in grammar school Pat has been under the expert tutelage of these teachers. At the Augustinian Academy in Carthage, a small town nestled in the Adirondack Mountains of New York State, our hero began his scholastic career.

12 Years at the Academy

Twelve eventful and profitable years he spent there, absorbing knowledge and carving out for himself quite an enviable niche in Carthage's Hall of Fame. Beginning with the events of his sophomore year in the high school division of the Augustinian Academy, the story of Pat Marquette is rather interesting, a little odd in some respects, and highly successful.

First, the odd part (at least it's odd to us). It seems that football was not included in the athletic program of the Augustinian Academy, and Pat, being a virile, redblooded American youth, heard the call of the gridiron. So the result was that, listed as the regular end on the Carthage High School eleven, was one Pat Marquette. He went to school at the Augustinian Academy but played football for Carthage High School! Something a bit different in schoolboy athletic circles, certainly, and Pat played three seasons of football for the public high eleven, holding down an end position all the time.

Versatile Athlete

Most of the interest of the athletic career of Pat Marquette lies in the amazing versatility of his activities. In addition to playing end at football, Pat gave generously of his athletic talents to his own alma mater.

Basketball was the big sport at the Academy; it was the main extra-curricular interest of the student body. Pat came through for the Alma Mater and was for three years the regular centerman for the Academy's highly successful court aggregation. It was in basketball that Pat was at his best. In the three years he played for the Academy team, the five won 102 games while dropping only 7. In all three seasons the boys traveled out to Chicago to compete in the National Catholic High School Basketball Tournament and each time performed creditably. In 1933, with the smallest team ever in the tourney (Pat at 5 feet 10 inches and 155 pounds was the largest), the Augustinian Academy five went to the semi-finals, only to be defeated by the champions, Cathedral High of Indianapolis.

Pitched Three Years

In the Spring of the year Pat's athletic endeavors once more were spent in behalf of his Alma Mater. This time of the sports year Pat went in for baseball and did a fine job of pitching for the Academy nine. As usual he competed for three seasons, winning letters in all three. As a sideline Pat played tennis well enough to become town champion. Yes, you guessed it correctly; he was champ and licked all comers for three years.

Upon his gradual on in June of 1934 Pat was undecided as to where he would go in the quest for higher education. He had tentative plans to go to St. Lawrence or some other school near home, but through the influence of one of the good Augustinian Fathers, a Father Herron, Pat entered Villanova.

As a Villanova freshman Pat's athletic career was quite a varied one and included a bit of coaching. He jumped center on the frosh basketball team and was runner-up for scoring honors to the flashy Charlie Noonan. This frosh club was a real high-fly ing quintet that lost only two games, dropping a pair of overtime tilts to the Temple yearlings.

Managed Alumni

In his spare time during the basketball season Mr. Marquette was coach and manager of the original Steamrollers, that rootin', tootin', shootin' basketball team from Alumni Hall. Pat piloted this rough and tough aggregation to the Intramural basketball Championship, ruling with an iron hand at all times.

In that year varsity athletes were permitted to engage in the intramurals. Pat pitched the Alumni tossers to victory in the baseball competition. Their victory was, incidentally, the last time a freshman team has won the Intramural baseball crown.

As a sophomore Pat was shifted from the end position which he had played as a frosh and appeared at tackle on Harry Stuhldreher's last football team a Villanova. That switch remained, and Pat has been playing tackle ever since.

Although his appearances on the gridiron have been in the role of a substitute, Pat has done much for the success of the Villanova football teams. He is perhaps the most spirited player on the squad, always playing the game for all he's worth. Such indomitable spirit on the part of a sub was often a great source of inspiration to Pat's more famous teammates.

But his collegiate athletic career was not without its compensation in the way of fame. Pat made an All-America team. Concerning this matter we quote an up-State New York newspaper: "Pat Marquette has made All-America! Yes, it's true. The former Augustinian Academy basketball and baseball stalwart, and Carthage High football luminary, was named in a New York paper Sunday to the All-College All-America. As a reserve tackle for Villanova's undefeated eleven this year, Pat was named to the mythical squad as representing his namesake school, Marquette University."

Pat is studying in the School of Education. He has always been interested in coaching and with the experience he has gained through his varied athletic career, Pat should be able to make a place for himself in the coaching profession.

national Eddie Kirk whose absence in the Wildcat lineup was the difference between a victory and a draw in this meet.

Duffy Beats Rea

Following the tradition already established by a Villanova captain, Bill Duffy put his teammates back in the running by garnering a decisive win over City College's co-captain Amedeo Rea.

Bob Mentzinger again proved that he is willing and able to slug it out with anybody in the 155 pound class by notching an impressive win over Herbert Grojensky in a bout which was filled with plenty of action.

After dropping the first round to Allan Avidon, Johnny Nojunas turned on the heat in the last two rounds to win his third bout of the year and guaranteed the Villanova rooters at least a tie.

Jacobs' Tossers Workout In Gym

by Bond at first, "Cowboy" Crawley at second, and Mcrullo at shortstop, "Doc" has the foundation of a strong first line defense.

The third base position offers plenty of propositions. Walter Sheftic might be moved from the outfield to handle the "hot corner" with Rice filling the vacancy in right field. Again "Doc" might use Mike Lazorachak, Walt Nowak or Bobby Pash at third base and keep Sheftic in the outfield.

Wealth of Moundsmen

Jacobs also has a wealth of pitching material with four varsity hurlers from last season and two more sophomores from last year's freshman team. Frank Escott and Bill McLaughlin, senior portsiders, will probably handle much of the pitching duties. Frank enjoyed a successful season last year, but McLaughlin pitched in hard luck and will be looking for a better record this year.

Joe Desmond and Jim Schelle, former Haverford High pitcher, both righthanders, will add much strength to the pitching staff. Two sophomore pitchers, Cliff Choquette and Andy Sisco, both with clean records from last year's freshman team will make their appearance in varsity uniforms.

At present the practice drills are being held in the gymnasium. As soon as the weather permits "Doc" will have the boys working outdoors in preparation for a twenty game schedule which opens April 2 with Princeton University at Princeton.

right direction, but a substitute for Yankauskas baffled us and we leave it in the hands of the gentle readers to come to aid of the needy. Some of the other lads on the varsity have been omitted only because their names are not high-calibered enough to warrant alteration, or are too short to fix up. No matter how one looks at the situation the Wildcats are going to have a successful season, which, after all, is what counts most, despite the length of the gridders' names, or don't you think so?

GADSBY COMMENTS
on C. C. N. Y. Bouts

WHILE I expected and hoped to win the City College match, I am satisfied with the draw our boys earned. Not many people know that C. C. N. Y. has lost only one meet in the past four years. This stamps them as a very tough team. As all who saw the match know, the Lavender had a well balanced team.

Kirk's appendicitis attack has been a blow to our hopes and was one of the reasons why we tied the meet. Killian's illness throughout the week and the necessity of substituting the somewhat inexperienced Bill Piscione in the 175 lb. class at the last minute also were factors in the Friday night match.

Mulroy Shows Well

The bouts we won were won by decisive margins, and those we lost were by slim margins. Jimmy Mulroy's victory over Joe Lubanski, co-captain of the C. C. N. Y. squad, was very pleasing, as the New York boy was a tough customer with a very enviable reputation. Jimmy is in top form and if he continues this way he will earn quite a few points for us in meets to come.

Bill Duffy showed his usual fine form and did a workmanlike job in disposing of co-captain Amedeo Rea of the visitors. Previous to this, Rea had been undefeated in three years of ring warfare. He also is the 1937 Eastern Intercollegiate 155 lb. champion and is the third Captain Duffy has faced and beaten in as many meets. If Bill participates in the Nationals at Charlottesville he will make a good showing, judging by his past performances.

Mentzinger Improves

Bob Mentzinger showed improvement in overcoming a difficult foe. If he continues to improve as he has in the past few weeks, he will be a leader in collegiate boxing.

Johnny Nojunas has surprised me with his continued improvement. In the first round he underestimated his opponent and took it easy. However, when he found out the calibre of his foe, he came back to take the second and third rounds easily.

Mike Ariano is a fast, smart boxer, but something seems to be holding him back from his best form, but he should improve and flash the form he displayed in the Miami bouts.

Hiney Lacks Experience

Frank Hiney in his first bout in intercollegiate competition, showed the gameness and fighting spirit that characterizes the Wildcat athlete, but also showed inexperience. Experience, however, will come in time, and I expect him to show much in future meets.

Bill Piscione a last minute substitute, also showed inexperience, but made a commendable showing. He could develop a little more aggressiveness, but that, too will come in time.

Because Ed Killian lost his bout, he did not look so good as he might have, but then a week's illness does nobody any good, and I am confident that he will develop into one of Villanova's finest heavyweights with a bit more experience.

The attendance at the meets is disappointing to me, especially the City College match. Possibly the people along the Main Line are not acquainted with the fact that he have a first class ring squad, Unless people know about things, they will not come to see what's happening. All whom I have questioned agreed that a good show was put on and for that reason I think that the crowds should, and will be, larger.

Fedigan and Austin Tie For Mural Diadem

DAY-HOPS' FORFEIT ALLOWS AUSTINITES TO CATCH GIGOLOS

West Enders Defeat Alumni as Mendel Commuters Concede Victory

By BILL TOY

In the characteristic intramural style, Fedigan was successful in annexing two victories to her total at the cost of the Mendel Day Hops and Alumni Hall while Austin and the C. & E. Commuters were winning one each from the Mendel Residents and Alumni respectively.

Isaac Ends in Tie

Due to the developments of the week, Fedigan and Austin find themselves in a deadlock with each having five victories and one defeat. A playoff will be arranged in the near future to decide the second-half winner. However, if Fedigan should emerge the victor, they will be the undisputed champs of the league; but if Austin is the conqueror, a second playoff will have to be enacted.

In the first two frays of the week Austin defeated the Mendel Residents by a 49-30 count while the Fediganites were trouncing the Engineers to the tune of 37-28. In the first game it was largely through the efforts of Austin's high scoring guard, LaBalbo, who garnered seven double deckers, that they were able to vanquish the rejuvenated Penthousers. Hines, Scelba and Delehanty each scored 8 points for the losers.

The second game found the Mendel Day Hops outclassed by the sharp-shooting eye of Fedigan's long hot ace, Totin. Pushing baskets from all angles, Totin annexed 12 markers to the cause. The hapless Commute rs were paced by the reliable Thorne and Rosenberg, who dropped in and 12 counters respectively. This loss displaced all chan pionship ideas the Day Hops might have had.

On Thursday an astounding upset took place. The C. & E. team and trolley boys won their first decision of the second half. Thoroughly outplaying the cohorts from Alumni, the Commuters ended on the long end of a 30-29 count. Leading the victorious Day Hops were Cox and Lyman who gathered 20 and 12 points respectively. Hastie led the losers in the scoring column with a total of four twos and a liter. This is the highest score attained by the Commerce men this year.

Fedigan Beats Alumni

In Thursday's other game Fedigan trounced Alumni by 32 to 22, clinching the tie for Fedigan. Leading the Gigolos was their forward, Wells. Third Lentz, scorer on the circuit, who tossed six goals and two charity tosses for a total of 14 markers. Showing the way to the losers was their spectacular forward, DeLuca, who scored four two-pointers and two gift shots before he was obliged to leave the game on personals.

Of the other two games both C. & E. and Austin were awarded one apiece on a default.

In the scoring department, Keating has emerged the victor. It was he who won the title in the first half and has repeated the victory in the final bracket. While Keating has a 49 point lead, he was hard pressed by his teammate Rosenberg who counted 44 markers. In third position we find Woods who had a total of 43 counters and hot on his heels was O'Connell who was credited with 41 points. Last position finds Leahy with 10 points to his credit.

Still Undefeated

CAPTAIN BILL DUFFY,
who has met and vanquished three captains in as many matches, "Scotty" McLachlan, of Miami; Fred Mix, of Catholic U., and Amico Rea, co-captain of C. C. N. Y., have all fallen before his onslaught. Duffy is the first one to defeat Rea in three years.

before Dan Dowd, N. Y. U. guard, converted a free heave for the Violet's first score. Krutulis came right back with a one-point throw, only to see Irv Witty make it 3-2. Apparently irked at this, John sank a long one from the corner, and saw the Villanova lead increase still more when Mike Lazorchak made a goal and a foul shot to put the score up to 13-2. Witty and Si Boardman scored fouls for New York, but the irrepressible Duke Duzminski came right back with a long set shot, making the count 15-4.

Up to this point the Violets had not made a field goal, but Witty started them off with a corner shot after 15 minutes had elapsed. New York's desperate style of play finally reduced the visitors' margin as Art Schillig and Jerry Tarlow dropped in foul shots and Witty scored on a pretty lay-up as the half ended with the score 15-10.

N. Y. U. Fails to Connect

With Montgomery out, N. Y. U. had many opportunities to close in on the 'Cats in the second half, but the close-guarding locals kept hurrying the Violets to such an extent that they were missing shots that ordinarily would have been baskets. Unable now to penetrate the New York defense, the 'Cats reverted to long tosses, as Art Vigilante rang the bell on a set shot, and Duke Duzminski let go with two long shots in between which Bernie Carnevale scored for New York. Schillig registered on Carnevale's missed foul and Lewis counted on a lay-up while on the run. When Schillig rimmed a foul, the Villanova lead was cut to 21-17.

Krutulis Gets Two

At this, Krutulis slanked home a long shot, and Jerry Tarlow brought the home fans to their feet with a beautiful one-hander, only to see Johnny come back to drop another long one to put the Wildcats in front 25-19. Lewis then scooped up a loose ball and dribbled in to slice New York's deficit to four points. The Violets now began to make desperate attempts to get possession of the ball in the Villanova back court, only to be caught napping when a long pass up the floor allowed Lou Dubino to score unmolested. N. Y. U. took the ball out under its own basket, but the pass out was slow and Art Vigilante darted in to intercept the ball and tuck it away for the clincher. These two goals in less than ten seconds broke the New Yorkers' hearts, and the game ended with the Violets trying to score from the center of the floor, but still on the short end of a 30-27 count.

Briefs

The Blue five should never have been threatened had it not been for poor marksmanship at the foul line. The 'Cats made only four points out of a total of 13 charity jobs, while N. Y. U. remained in the running by converting 11 out of 15 chances. John Krutulis led the scoring for both sides, making four goals and three fouls, while Bobby Lewis' eight points sparked the Violet attack. N. Y. U. threw in only eight baskets, while the 'Cats garnered 13. Although the entire Wildcat team played heads-up ball, the defensive play of Jim Montgomery was outstanding, and his cool leadership on the attack was responsible for several scores. New York could never solve Krutulis and Duzminski's quick breaking out of the slowly-paced weave used by the Severancemen, and deadly set shots from the corners by Mike Lazorchak upset the home team greatly.

The Wildcats made it two in a row over Muhlenburgh when they took the Mules' measure by the score of 37-24 in the Main Line Gym last Thursday night. The 'Cats had previously beaten the upStaters, 40-35, at Allentown. The first half of Thursday's game was a dismal affair, as both sides missed easy shots, but the home team gained the lead early and led at the end of the first stanza, 16-6. The high-flying Blue quintet increased this margin on brilliant shots. Jim Montgomery and Duke Duzminski added nine markers apiece to their already-high season totals, while Frank Tracy, Mule forward, paced the losers with ten points.

In the Sportlight

By JOHN L. SIMONS

WHEN PAT MARQUETTE came to Villanova College in September, 1934, it was no strange thing for him to come under the influence of the Augustinian Fathers. Ever since he was old enough to get into the first grade in grammar school Pat has been under the expert tutelage of these teachers. At the Augustinian Academy in Carthage, a small town nestled in the Adirondack Mountains of New York State, our hero began his scholastic career.

12 Years at the Academy

Twelve eventful and profitable years he spent there, absorbing knowledge and carving out for himself quite an enviable niche in Carthage's Hall of Fame. Beginning with the events of his sophomore year in the high school division of the Augustinian Academy, the story of Pat Marquette is rather interesting, a little odd in some respects, and highly successful.

First, the odd part (at least it's odd to us). It seems that football was not included in the athletic program of the Augustinian Academy, and Pat, being a virile, red-blooded American youth, heard the call of the gridiron. So the result was that, instead as the regular end on the Carthage High School eleven, was one Pat Marquette. He went to school at the Augustinian Academy but played football for Carthage High School! Something a bit different in schoolboy athletic circles, certainly, and Pat played three seasons of football for the public high eleven, holding down an end position all the time.

Versatile Athlete

Basketball was the big sport at the Academy; it was the main extra-curricular interest of the student body. Pat came through for the Alma Mater and was for three years the regular centerman for the Academy's highly successful court aggregation. It was in basketball that Pat was at his best. In the three years he played for the Academy team, the five won 102 games while dropping only 7. In all three seasons the boys traveled out to Chicago to compete in the National Catholic High School Basketball Tournament and each time performed creditably. In 1933, with the smallest team ever in the tourney (Pat at 5 feet 10 inches and 155 pounds was the largest), the Augustinian Academy five went to the semi-finals, only to be defeated by the champions, Cathedral High of Indianapolis.

Pitched Three Years

In the Spring of the year Pat's athletic endeavors once more were spent in behalf of his Alma Mater. This time of the sports year Pat went in for baseball and did a fine job of pitching for the Academy nine. As usual he competed for three seasons, winning letters in all three. As a sideline Pat played tennis well enough to become town champion. Yes, you guessed it correctly; he was champ and licked all comers for three years.

Upon his graduation in June of 1934 Pat was undecided as to where he would go in the quest for higher education. He had tentative plans to go to St. Lawrence or some other school near home, but through the influence of one of the good Augustinian Fathers, a Father Herron, Pat entered Villanova.

As a Villanova freshman Pat's athletic career was quite a varied one and included a bit of coaching. He jumped center on the frosh basketball team and was runner-up for scoring honors to the flashy Charlie Noonan. This frosh club was a real high-flying quintet that lost only two games, dropping a pair of overtime tilts to the Temple yearlings.

Managed Alumni

In his spare time during the basketball season Mr. Marquette was coach and manager of the original Steamrollers, that rootin', tootin', shootin' basketball team from Alumni Hall. Pat piloted this rough and tough aggregation to the Intramural Basketball Championship, ruling with an iron hand at all times.

In that year varsity athletes were permitted to engage in the intramurals. Pat pitched the Alumni tossers to victory in the baseball competition. Their victory was, incidentally, the last time a freshman team has won the Intramural baseball crown.

As a sophomore Pat was shifted from the end position which he had played as a frosh and appeared at tackle on Harry Stuhldreher's last football team at Villanova. That switch remained, and Pat has been playing tackle ever since.

Although his appearances on the gridiron have been in the role of a substitute, Pat has done much for the success of the Villanova football teams. He is perhaps the most spirited player on the squad, always playing the game for all he's worth. Such indomitable spirit on the part of a sub was often a great source of inspiration to Pat's more famous teammates.

But his collegiate athletic career was not without its compensation in the way of fame. Pat made an All-America team. Concerning this matter we quote an up-State New York newspaper: "Pat Marquette has made All-America! Yes, it's true. The former Augustinian Academy basketball and baseball stalwart, and Carthage High football luminary, was named in a New York paper Sunday to the All-College All-America. As a reserve tackle for Villanova's undefeated eleven this year, Pat was named to the mythical squad as representing his namesake school, Marquette University."

Pat is studying in the School of Education. He has always been interested in coaching and with the experience he has gained through his varied athletic career, Pat should be able to make a place for himself in the coaching profession.

right direction, but a substitute for Yankauskas baffled us and we leave it in the hands of the gentle readers to come to aid of the needy. Some of the other lads on the varsity have been omitted only because their names are not high-calibered enough to warrant alteration, or are too short to fix up. No matter how one looks at the situation the Wildcats are going to have a successful season, which, after all, is what counts most, despite the length of the gridders' names, or don't you think so?

sational Eddie Kirk whose absence in the Wildcat lineup was the difference between a victory and a draw in this meet.

Duffy Beats Rea

Following the tradition already established by a Villanova captain, Bill Duffy put his teammates back in the running by garnering a decisive win over City College's co-captain Amedeo Rea.

Bob Mentzinger again proved that he is willing and able to slug it out with anybody in the 155 pound class by notching an impressive win over Herbert Grojensky in a bout which was filled with plenty of action.

After dropping the first round to Allan Avidon, Johnny Nojunas turned on the heat in the last two rounds to win his third bout of the year and guaranteed the Villanova rooters at least a tie.

115-pound class—Jimmy Mulroy, Villanova, defeated John Lubansky, C. C. N. Y., decision.
125-pound class—Murray Sanders, C. C. N. Y., defeated Mike Ariano, Villanova, decision.
135-pound class—Marty Klein, C. C. N. Y., defeated Frank Hiney, Villanova, technical knockout (third round).
145-pound class—Capt. Bill Duffy, Villanova, defeated Amico Rea, C. C. N. Y., decision.
155-pound class — Bob Mentzinger, Villanova, defeated Herbert Grojenski, C. C. N. Y., decision.

by Bond at first, "Cowboy" Crawley at second, and Merullo at shortstop, "Doc" has the foundation of a strong first line defense.

The third base position offers plenty of propositions. Walter Sheftic might be moved from the outfield to handle the "hot corner" with Rice filling the vacancy in right field. Again "Doc" might use Mike Lazorachak, Walt Nowak or Bobby Pash at third base and keep Sheftic in the outfield.

Wealth of Moundsmen

Jacobs also has a wealth of pitching material with four varsity hurlers from last season and two more sophomores from last year's freshman team. Frank Escott and Bill McLaughlin, senior portsiders, will probably handle much of the pitching duties. Frank enjoyed a successful season last year, but McLaughlin pitched in hard luck and will be looking for a better record this year.

Joe Desmond and Jim Schelle, former Haverford High pitcher, both righthanders, will add much strength to the pitching staff. Two sophomore pitchers, Cliff Choquette and Andy Sisco, both with clean records from last year's freshman team will make their appearance in varsity uniforms.

At present the practice drills are being held in the gymnasium. As soon as the weather permits "Doc" will have the boys working outdoors in preparation for a twenty game schedule which opens April 2 with Princeton University at Princeton.

GADSBY COMMENTS
on C. C. N. Y. Bouts

WHILE I expected and hoped to win the City College match, I am satisfied with the draw our boys earned. Not many people know that C. C. N. Y. has lost only one meet in the past four years. This stamps them as a very tough team. As all who saw the match know, the Lavender had a well balanced team.

Kirk's appendicitis attack has been a blow to our hopes and was one of the reasons why we tied the meet. Killian's illness throughout the week and the necessity of substituting the somewhat inexperienced Bill Piscione in the 175 lb. class at the last minute also were factors in the Friday night match.

Mulroy Shows Well

The bouts we won were won by decisive margins, and those we lost were by slim margins. Jimmy Mulroy's victory over Joe Lubanski, co-captain of the C. C. N. Y. squad, was very pleasing, as the New York boy was a tough customer with a very enviable reputation. Jimmy is in top form and if he continues this way he will earn quite a few points for us in meets to come.

Bill Duffy showed his usual fine form and did a workmanlike job in disposing of co-captain Amedeo Rea of the visitors. Previous to this, Rea had been undefeated in three years of ring warfare. He also is the 1937 Eastern Intercollegiate 155 lb. champion and is the third Captain Duffy has faced and beaten in as many meets. If Bill participates in the Nationals at Charlottesville he will make a good showing, judging by his past performances.

Mentzinger Improves

Bob Mentzinger showed improvement in overcoming a difficult foe. If he continues to improve as he has in the past few weeks, he will be a leader in collegiate boxing.

Johnny Nojunas has surprised me with his continued improvement. In the first round he underestimated his opponent and took it easy. However, when he found out the calibre of his foe, he came back to take the second and third rounds easily.

Mike Ariano is a fast, smart boxer, but something seems to be holding him back from his best form, but he should improve and flash the form he displayed in the Miami bouts.

Hiney Lacks Experience

Frank Hiney in his first bout in intercollegiate competition, showed the gameness and fighting spirit that characterizes the Wildcat athlete, but also showed inexperience. Experience, however, will come in time, and I expect him to show much in future meets.

Bill Piscione a last minute substitute, also showed inexperience, but made a commendable showing. He could develop a little more aggressiveness, but that, too will come in time.

Because Ed Killian lost his bout, he did not look so good as he might have, but then a week's illness does nobody any good, and I am confident that he will develop into one of Villanova's finest heavyweights with a bit more experience.

The attendance at the meets is disappointing to me, especially the City College match. Possibly the people along the Main Line are not acquainted with the fact that he have a first class ring squad. Unless people know about things, they will not come to see what's happening. All whom I have questioned agreed that a good show was put on and for that reason I think that the crowds should, and will be, larger.

COLLEGE PRESIDENT BELIEVES STUDENTS MENTALLY DEFICIENT

University of California Head Declares Majority Today Not of College Calibre

"Are those leaving our colleges different from the masses, except for their interest in football tickets on the fifty yard line?" Dr. Robert G. Sproul, president of the University of California, thinks that 85 per cent of the students in junior colleges are not of college calibre and should not go on to higher education.

"Civilization has advanced, in my opinion, not because of any improvement of mental quality in the masses but rather because the realization of the material advantages to be gained from the toleration of genius has slowly percolated into the minds of the majority of our species." Dr. Ernest A. Hooton, professor of anthropology and curator of Peabody Museum at Harvard, argues that social, material and intellectual progress are always the result of the effort of the gifted individual

"One rarely finds a European college student working his way through school. Even if we should get a job, it is very probable we would not get money for it. Our pay would be the valuable experience we received from the job," Robert Forster, foreign exchange student from Switzerland at Ohio State University, praises the initiative of American students who work their way through school.

New Type Furnace Now Perfected By Harvard Scientist

Permits Heating of Metals Up to Temperature of 4500 Degrees

Cambridge, Mass., (ACP)—A new "electron bombardment" furnace, permitting scientists to heat metals up to temperatures of 4500 degrees Fahrenheit, nearly half the temperature of the sun, has been perfected by a Harvard metallurgist.

In the new furnace, such rare metals as vanadium, titanium, columbium and the platinum group, which have been almost impossible to study because of their high melting points, can be melted into pure alloys.

The most important feature of the new furnace is that contamination of the metal being studied, by carbon or other impurities, can be entirely eliminated.

WORD IMPROVEMENT FORESEEN FOR U. S.

Chicago, Ill., (ACP)—The United States is in the midst of a period of remarkable word-consciousness, in the opinion of Dr. Walter K. Smart, professor in the English department of Northwestern University's school of commerce and journalism.

The upshot of it all will be, he ventures, a pronounced general improvement in verbal and written expression.

"Much of our slang is picturesque and keenly alive," Dr. Smart says, "Some of it is the inspiration of genius. The trouble is that after the genius employs it, every fool comes along and uses it, turning it into another bromide."

Philadelphia Orchestra Fifth Youth Concert Presented February 17

Ormandy Gives Varied Program; Offers Harl McDonald's Third Symphony; Yolanda Picucci, 14-Year-Old Flutist, Featured

The Fifth Youth Concert by the Philadelphia Orchestra was given on February 17, at the Academy of Music, and was particularly interesting and worth while. Mr. Ormandy planned and conducted a program of varied and satisfying character, presenting as its principal offering Harl McDonald's Third Symphony, with Selma Amansky, dramatic soprano, and the Choral Society of the University of Pennsylvania.

In response to the requests of the Youth audience, Mr. Ormandy opened his program with Tchaikovsky's Overture-Fantasy, "Romeo and Juliet." The second number, "Concertino for Flute and Orchestra," by Chaminade, will feature Yolanda Piccucci, 14-year old flutist, of 1816 McClellan St., Philadelphia. Miss Picucci, in addition to having been a soloist at the Philadelphia Junior High School Music Festival in 1936, has played for several schools, clubs and on the radio. She has soloed at Manhattan Lyceum Hall in New York and at the Cultural Olympics at the University of Pennsylvania. She is at present a pupil at Barratt Junior High School and under the musical direction of Frank Versaci.

Third on the program was Harl McDonald's Third Symphony, "A Tragic Cycle," for orchestra, chorus of mixed voices and soprano solo. This work was performed in Baltimore and Washington on January 11 and 12 and was received with great acclaim and enthusiasm, for its power, vividness and the skillful merging of vocal and orchestral tone. Selma Amansky, who in private life is Mrs. Saul Caston, wife of the associate conductor and first trumpet of the Orchestra, is singing the solo role, as she did in Baltimore, her native city. A graduate of the Curtis Institute of Music, Miss Amansky sang in several operas with the Philadelphia Grand Opera Company. Among other interesting appearances, she sang last Spring in Milhaud's opera, "Le Pauvre Matelot" in Baltimore, Fritz Reiner conducting. Her rendition of the solo part in McDonald's symphony was accepted with high praise and manifestations of approval in both Baltimore and Washington.

The second half of the concert opened with the singing by the audience of Brahms' Lullaby and "Santa Lucia," the remainder of the concert being devoted to the work of d'Indy and Ravel. D'Indy's "Lied" is being played for the first time in Philadelphia and though not widely known it occupies a place of distinction in the annals of earlier music. It is characterized by a charming simplicity, delicacy of orchestration and for its suave viola passages. The viola will be played by Samuel Lifschey.

Ravel's "Daphnis and Chloe," Suite No. 2, were the final number.

The program cover for this concert was designed by Theresa di Marco, 764 South 9th St.

Nebraska Medical College Students Invent Anesthetic

New Drug Supposed to Deaden Pain For 90 Minutes

Omaha, Neb.—(ACP)—Two scientists at the University of Nebraska medical college have announced discovery of a new local anesthetic, "more pleasant and safer than many administered today."

The drug has a handy little label —B-diethylamincethyl 4 ethoxy benzoate—and for four years has been the subject of research and experimentation on the part of Dr. A. R. McIntyre, chairman of the department of physiology and pharmacology, and R. F. Sievers, and advanced student working under a fellowship.

Scientists say the new product deadens pain immediately after injection, whereas other drugs often take several minutes. It is sometimes effective as long as 90 minutes.

It has been used in 100 dental surgery cases without an unfavorable report.

UNUSUAL ROLES FOR 40 MONTANA CO-EDS

Bozeman, Mont. (ACP) — Forty Montana State College coeds will play guinea pig roles this quarter in tests to determine the vitamin C adequacy of their habitual diets.

These nutrition tests, conducted by the head of the home economics department, are part of a regional study being made in the northwestern states. Starting simultaneously, more than 150 other coeds at colleges in Washington, Oregon, Idaho and Utah will be undergoing similar tests.

DRAMATIC SOCIETY SETS 'WINTERSET' CAST REHEARSALS

Anthony J. Frayne, Belle Masque Director, Releases Practice Session Schedule

With a wide program of rehearsals for "Winterset" scheduled to begin in March and carry through April, Anthony J. Frayne, director of the Belle Masque society, has sent out a call for more actors. Many of the students who did not feel well enough acquainted with the play at the time of the first try-outs will now have another chance to secure a role in the cast.

Will Have Roles

Most of the actors seen in last year's production of "Journey's End," including Bradley McManus, Robert Barrett, Joseph McNamara and John Donahue are again to be found along with such freshmen as James Donovan and Murray Zealor in this year's play.

In view of the fact that the play has about 23 parts it has become necessary to break it into sections which can be rehearsed without calling the entire cast. This will be easier on the group of actors and should prevent delays in getting the practices started on time. The entire rehearsal schedule as now arranged is to be found in this issue of the paper.

COLLEGE PROFESSOR BELIEVES GERMANS CLASS CONSCIOUS

Fr. Dwyer Claims Nation Attempting to Regain Original Social Status

GIVES ACCOUNT OF ORIGIN AND RISE OF NAZI REGIME

Entire Student Body Hears Interesting Lecture on National Development

Germans as a people are very class conscious today, according to a statement made by Rev. Edward M. Dwyer, O.S.A., professor of Philosophy at Villanova College, in an address to the student body last Thursday.

Immediately after the war, explained Fr. Dwyer, the German people were reduced from a so-called first class people to that of the second class. They are now attempting to regain their original status as a higher rated social group.

Germany Seeks Unity

This is being done through the medium of Naziam. It is the purpose of the present Nazi government to unite all Germanic peoples into one solid German nation. Thus Germany is attempting to secure the surrounding countries which are of Germanic relationship and unite them into the German nation. Also that all persons of German extraction, wherever they at present may be situated, are to be considered as members of the German nation, and if they are in the majority in regard to population, that particular locality is to be considered as part of Germany.

Catholics in Germany present a problem to members of that same faith not living in or members of that country. It is difficult to understand that even though the present Nazi government is persecuting the Catholics in Germany, those persons are supporting the movement.

It was explained that even though those individuals are Catholics they also consider themselves German patriots and are imbued with all the ideals of Germany. It is then out of a love of patriotism

AUGUSTINIAN GUILD MAKES PREPARATION FOR ANNUAL PARTY

Fifth Social to be Conducted in College Gymnasium on April 26

The first meeting of members and friends of the Augustinian Seminary Guild in preparation for the fifth annual card party and dance was held in the Villanova College gymnasium last Tuesday evening, February 22.

Laity Gives Aid

The meeting was marked by the display of energy and enthusiasm to co-operate in making this year's social event a worthy manifestation of the spirit which has carried the Guild over the five years of its existence to its present development.

A desire on the part of the laity to share in the task of educating young men for the priesthood in the Order of St. Augustine was the seed from which the Augustinian Seminary Guild sprang.

That an active role in accomplishing this noble purpose was welcomed by benefactors and friends of the Augustinian Fathers is attested to by the present flourishing state of the Guild as well as the willingness of its members and friends to take an active part in the work. Geographically, the Guild is as extensive as the work of the Augustinian Fathers. Spiritually it signifies the direct participation of its members and support-

JUNIORS ANNOUNCE BLAZER SELECTION

Committee Awards Contract to Philadelphia Firm; Distinctive Design Planned

Blazers for this year's Junior class will strike a new note, according to a recent announcement by Martin B. Kassell, chairman of the committee. A departure from the conventional design has been made to assure something distinctive and new for the class of '39.

Several Bids Considered

After careful consideration of several bids from firms in both Philadelphia and London, the contract was finally given to the M. B. C. Tailoring Co. of Philadelphia. The committee experienced extreme difficulty in making a selection of the various bids submitted, but finally gave the bid because of the exceptionally fine quality offered by the M. B. C. Company.

Definite choice as to the exact type of coat selected will be entirely up to the individual; three styles of backs will be offered. The cloth will be one hundred percent virgin wool and will be available in both blue and white. The insignia on the white coats will be blue on a white background and on the blue coats white on a blue background. Piping of contrasting color, extending from the tip of the lapel to the bottom of the coat, may be had if so desired.

Orders Being Taken

Price of the blazers will be $10.00 each. Orders will be taken all this week by Martin B. Kassell of the Science School and Albert Hull of the Arts School. Each order must

COLLEGE DEBATERS ENGAGE TWO TEAMS

Meet Shippensburg' State Teachers, Bucknell University This Week

Beta Gamma will open this week's rhetorical contests on Wednesday night at 8 P. M., as the guests of State Teachers College at Shippensburg, with the novel Oregon style debate — a series of questions and deductions. The subject in query will be: Resolved, that the National Labor Relations board should be in power to enforce arbitration in all industrial disputes. The affirmative will be upheld during this controversy by the Villanova representatives.

Japanese Boycott Subject

Thursday afternoon they will withstand the affirmative debaters of Bucknell on the topic "United States should Boycott Japan."

The subject: "Resolved, that American isolation is impractical in the modern world"; will be taken up on Friday with University of Pennsylvania at Springfield.

Plans are near completion for a forensic trip to take place during the third week of March through the New England States. Many prominent university and collegiate debating societies have already been contacted. A southern trip is being arranged to take place just after the Easter recess.

Last night's contest with Princeton proved to be very interesting. This debate was broadcast over station WIP of Philadelphia. With accordance to the general rule of the debates held over this station no decision was given as to the winner.

Colorful Setting Plus Sweet Syncopations of Leith Steven's Orchestra Make Senior Ball Grand Success

Cafe Facilities Make Arcadia Dinner-Dance Enjoyable Affair

Dancing to the rhythmic swing of Leith Stevens and his Swing Club Orchestra in a setting of collegiate gaiety, Villanova seniors bade fond farewell to four years of campus social activity last Friday evening at the Belle Air Ball.

Exuberant seniors are still talking of a world devoid of the harsh realism of a material consequence. Certainly all those fortunate to attend the Belle Air Ball shouldn't forget gliding along to the rhythmic swing music, emanating from Leith Steven's Band, in a setting as enchanting as any of those attributed to the paradises depicted in mythology.

Decorations Artistic

The decoration of the ballroom was an artistic creation. A magnificent fountain flooded with soft lights surrounded by a rock garden completed in every detail a setting essentially romantic. The traditional senior march had its beginning on the stage which was transformed into a lounge and lighted by hazy blue lights, giving a soft pleasant effect. The march continued down velvet covered steps onto the ballroom and up to the fountain. At the fountain the couples were separated to be united on the other side. The singing of the Alma Mater ended the greatest social triumph of the senior class.

Dancing was officially started with the "Belle-Air Waltz" which only the seniors had the privilege of dancing. Immediately after there followed a period where gayety and amusement reigned 'til the notes of the last waltz gave ending to another successful Belle-Air Ball.

Dinner-Dance Feature

Final in the social calendar of the seniors was the Dinner-Dance held at the Arcadia International. Every facility of the place was at their disposal. Bunny Berigan entertained musically and all unauthorized reports point to a most successful evening.

For those seniors who were

tempted to remain until the lingering hours of the morning to enjoy a bit more of the cherished event, the Arcadia International supplied a treat that would be the envy of all music lovers in this world of swing. In one of the most glamorous presentations ever to appear in any nightery, the Arcadia introduced to its customers, including the members of the Class of '38, three leaders in modern "swingocpation" — Tommy Dorsey, Gene Krupa, and the Bunny Berigan orchestra. Dorsey and Krupa, both headliners in the music sphere, gave their services in a cordial manner through the best facilities they knew—Dorsey with his trombone, and Gene, of course, the drums. Both joined with Berigan to climax an evening that will mark history at the Philadelphia club, and will long be the talk of Villanova men.

WHERE IS TURF AND TINSEL?

WHERE is Turf and Tinsel? Some weeks ago the VILLANOVAN ran a series of editorials asking this same question and asked for a rebirth of this former campus activity. Despite the efforts of these columns nothing has been done about the proposed revival of the group, and interested students are again wondering what has happened to block the progress of a club which would not fail to bring everlasting popularity and a dramatic name to our fair campus. Students and friends of the college have long taken the excuses given by authorities that facilities and talent were not within the reach of the college. This statement is now outmoded.

The annual Amateur Show given shortly before Christmas proved to the students, the friends of the college, and incidentally to the authorities that excellent talent is at hand. The new accoustical equipment in the gimnasium makes the long idle stage ready for any type of theatrical production.

The Belle Masque is doing a splendid job. No one can doubt that real dramatic ability is enlisted in its ranks. "Journey's End" was a marvelous production and "Winterset" is developing with amazing rapidity. But these plays are a bit on the serious side. College dramatists although capable of presenting finished productions, do not draw the crowds they should.

The Pennsylvania Players cannot begin to compare their gate receipts with those of their famous Mask and Wig. The former deals strictly with drama as does our own Belle Masque, while the musical comedies of the latter are nationally known. People do not go to the theater to weep and become moved. They want to laugh and be entertained. That is why the Mask and Wig enjoys such overwhelming popularity wherever it makes its appearance.

Our own Turf and Tinsel is the same type organization as the Mask and Wig. If Villanova should find it possible to revive this once popular musical comedy group there is no doubt that its popularity would soon vie with that of the very noteworthy Penn organization. It would literally put Villanova "on the map" in collegiate entertainment circles and would give the college another activity which would help bring it the name it so worthily deserves.

Again we ask—yea, not ask, but in the name of interested students, demand—Where is Turf and Tinsel?

SWIM FOR HEALTH

SELECTION of the Villanova College swimming pool as the site of the National Catholic Interscholastic Swimming Championships is recognition of the esteem in which the campus pool is held by those who know swimming pools. The pool is wonderfully adapted for racing. The lighting is perfect, the water never gets choppy, and the lane marks on the bottom are very distinct. Their selection was well made.

One wonders, therefore, at the apathy of Villanova students who do not use the pool, especially when one remembers that every student's fees include payment for use of swimming pool, including showers, locker, towel and suit, and instruction in swimming.

The only Villanovans who seem to be conscious of these facts are the members of the Wildcat swimming team, for only about 50 students use the pool regularly. Speaking on this subject, the captain said, "In four years of competition I have never been in a more beautiful pool, and furthermore all the opponents who visit us are amazed at it."

Doctors declare swimming to be the best of exercises, and yet, it seems, our students do not have the initiative to take a dip even once a week. Perhaps it will be an added inducement to know that the janitor has been keeping the pool warmer lately, and reports tell us it's just right.

THE THREE DICTATORS

FOR the reconstruction of the social order the Catholic Church has a program, propounded by Pius XI in his Quadragesimo Anno. The encyclical would end "economic dictatorship" by the elimination of four dictators: the wage dictator, the price dictator, the savings dictator, and the money dictator. How does our nation's record of reform compare with this program?

One step, at least, has been won. The wage dictator is overthrown by law, because the right of collective bargaining is guaranteed in the Wagner Labor Relations Act and protected by the National Labor Relations Board. However it will take much effort before the other dictators are eliminated.

One step, at least, has been won. The wage dictator is overthrown by law, because the right of collective bargaining is guaranteed in the Wagner Labor Relations Act and protected by the National Labor Relations Board. However it will take much effort before the other dictators are eliminated.

The price dictator is the man who bases the price of his product not on its value but on what the traffic will bear. For his end we need more of such prosecution as is now being conducted against certain midwest oil companies. Cracking of monopolies charging outrageous prices must go on.

The savings dictator is the man who recklessly uses other people's money for his own purposes. He borrows money to start and, pyramiding holding company upon holding company, he builds a vast financial empire. The trouble comes when he fails, thus ruining those whose money he was using.

ODDS and ENDS

By Tom O'Mahoney

Editor's Note: This week's column is being conducted by Rene Cailliet.

MAE WEST may think every day is a holiday, but with this new idea of two co-editors-in-chief, every day is Fourth of July in the Villanovan office.

Rumor has it that there was a certain complaint filed from the authorities about that girl cartoon in last week's issue; if anyone thinks that the female element does not affect our college life how come all these premature mustaches have disappeared during these pre-Senior Dance times. Speaking of the college authorities' influence on campus life, even Wysocki is about, looking uncomfortable in his collar and tie . . . everybody cannot resign himself to his fate cheerfully, so H. Buek shows his resentment by wearing a communistic red shirt; and I mean RED . . . hold everything! We've just found out that maybe there's a Norristown reason behind Wysocki's "Beau Brummel" attire.

SEEN ABOUT THE CAMPUS: . . . Nice racket the fellows run in Austin Hall that chiseled some fellow's dates: look out for the dating bureau union . . Volpe and Alessandroni feel prime now that they, and many of their fellow seniors, are being called Mister by a group of high school girls . . . During a spirited lecture Father Lannin parted with his uppers so we are told . . . and now so I won't be separated from my uppers, we'll sign off until next week . . .

A certain swimming team captain that now seems free from all "Technical" worries . . . A freshman swing cat that goes haywire when he hears Goodman recordings: it's a shame that all these efforts are wasted when Krupa gets paid for burning much less calories . . .

Congrats to Lou Biester on a successful senior dance . . . the only thing lacking at the Club Del Rio Friday night was Leith Stevens . . .

A bit of wisdom (not original), "If you are still satisfied with yesterday's work it means you have done nothing today."

. . . what was Eddie Troncelliti doing while the Seniors were having their procession . . . On Saturday morning remember that the dance wasn't the only thing high . . .

College Chatter

Editor's Note: This week's column is being conducted by Frank T. Reale.

FROM the University of Oregon comes the story, that to prevent parking in out of the way spots on the campus, the campus police have been requested to seal with wire the fan or motor of all cars found violating campus parking regulations.

We could draw a lot of conclusions, but we won't.

The Observer

WE just can't let the Hague vs. CIO battle die. Here is another open letter to the Editor.

Gentlemen:

There is an old Irish proverb, "better to take the Devil you know, than the Devil you don't know." I fear, Sirs, you have done just that. You both have selected the devil you know, and when all the debating is over you'll each have one devil. The CIO for Mr. Barrett, and the honorable Mayor Hague for the Observer.

You know boys don't believe you realize the extremes you two have reached in your efforts to defend these two imps. "Fascistic," "reds," "CIO rodents," etc. Really, that's not at all cricket. It's guys like you that are going to make that much-talked-about revolution a reality. And certainly I don't have to tell you what the prevailing element in a Bull session is, do I? After so many years in college you should know by now that it is a poor combination of ignorance and bluff.

To you, Mr. Observer, I wish to say that you took very unfair advantage over Mr. Barrett when you attacked his letter without printing it. Certainly he deserves to speak his own words. You owe it to your readers not to try that old newspaper gag of self-defense, "for want of space." Now wasn't that a dirty trick?

The most stupid remark in the entire article came in your closing paragraph when you said: "And to Mr. Hague we extend congratulations for having upheld the American tradition of equal justice under law. He gave the CIO rodents what was coming to them." And this climax was reached in spite of the fact that you had stated (using Pope Leo XIII's Encyclical on Human Liberty) "no man has a right to teach that the proper method of living is to hate one's neighbors." May I ask where in the world you got the basis of all your love for the "CIO rodents?" Somebody is trying to kid someone.

To you, Mr. Barrett, if you said as you were quoted that the "CIO, representing a majority of the workers of the country, had every legal right to be heard," I think you had better take another look at your statistics book. Of the 40-odd million workers in this country eligible for union organization, about 12% are so organized. Of thi percent, one-fourth are members of the Railway Brotherhoods. The remaining 9% is divided between the AFL and CIO, with the vast majority being members in the former organization. So you see, no matter how you take it you can't make a majority out of it. Because they are a minority, however, does not necessarily affect their individual rights, but it affects this discussion because you have started with the wrong premises.

To both of you may I express my opinion of both sides? The CIO is the greatest thing in rackets since the cop on the beat hit on the idea of a rake-off from the slot machines in the neighborhood pool room. Hague is nothing but a typical political boss with a thick skull and bitter prejudices that degrade the native Irish virtues of intelligence and sincerity. The CIO (despite wage increases, collective bargaining, etc.), Mayor Hague (despite maternity hospitals and what have you) are fundamentally rotten. The sooner we quit kidding each the better.

That last paragraph is merely my opinion. I refuse to take issue on the subject. If either of you can show me my mistake in holding such thoughts, I will gladly welcome such an attempt.

Signed: An Observer.

We take it that the Observer is on the spot. We extend to Mr. Barrett an invitation to answer, in a shorter letter than the last one, the comments of both the Observer and those of An Observer.

FAMOUS LAST WORDS . . .

Zealor: "Sure I shaved tonight."

To all persons disappointed with the Senior Class' selection of an orchestra, we bring the good word that St. Joseph's College is having Sammy Kaye at their Prom to be run Easter Monday evening. (Not a paid advertisement.)

LENTEN RESOLUTION:

F. D. R.: "I'll be a rugged individualist as a penance."

Reader of the Observer: "I'll tell them how good their column is."

(Smith: (aske notice!) Moravian thinks it's okeh!)

Hitler: "I'll have the Pope to lunch every Sunday."

Louis: "I'll cook the food, now."

Mussolini: "I'll let Haile Selaisse get in the Rome bread line."

Quoting the Mad Russian, "Orchids" to Ray Gadsby for his splendid handling of the boxing team. Thanks to the excellent material, and thanks to Ray's hard and unremitting work, Villanova now has one of the best boxing teams in the East. However, we want to give Ray a tip. When next on the road, bring a Burns Detective man along. He may come in handy. What about it, Ray?

TOO MANY QUEENS

Reporter Finds Villanova Slang Unique Jargon

Students Unconscious of 'Pet' Expressions; Understood Only on Local Campus

By MURRAY ZEALOR

Have you ever considered the slang expressions that you use? No one is free of them, for everyone has his own little pet saying. He says this frequently, often without knowing the meaning of the expressions or place that he has used it in his speech. For the past three days I have been going about the campus in pursuit of common slang expressions. To my surprise you do not know your own pet slang words. That explains the reason why slang is considered the language of the subconscious mind.

Has Own Expressions

Villanova has slang of her own, and any Villanovan could easily blend it into a sentence and a conversation that only a Villanovan could understand. It might be as the follows:

"Let's go to the P. O. Did you hear if the gigolos are going to attend the Pope's next jig? The penthouse boys of murders row are taking on the firechiefs in basketball this P. M. The whipper doos are on the ball and are giving the "Greeks" the air. So long slide-rule."

No one I am sure would understand the above jargon if he were not a Villanovan. There are other slang expressions about the campus but they are not definitely Villanova. They might be any of the following.

"I'll punch you in the horn. You've more nerve than Carter has pills. Okie-doke. You know me Al. What's the story? Have it easy. What do you say Doc? He's simple, isn't he? You're punchy."

The above does not mean that Villanovans do not speak the king's English, but it does show that Villanova is up to date with her slang. Slang is used by all peoples of all countries. Foreigners call slang, idioms of expression, and retain them for long periods of time. Slang in America is in and out of date, in short spaces of time. Villanova will be there with the rest of the colleges when there is new slang to be had. Remember there is no foo like an old foo. Give my regards to the Eskimos. Tootle pip.

CONGRATULATIONS

The VILLANOVAN extends best wishes to Harold McGrath, B.S., in Mechanical Engineering, '35, on his recent marriage to Miss Margaret Haltenbach, of West Englewood, N. J. The ceremony was performed with Rev. Charles B. Melchior, O.S.A., procurator of Villanova college, celebrating a nuptial High Mass at the church of St. Cecelia, Englewood, N. J. Mr. McGrath is a resident of Hackensack, N. J. and was quite active in campus affairs while at Villanova.

Varieties

Editor's Note: This Column, usually conducted by Leonard Flinkman, is written this week by Fred Waters.

KONKED. As German soldiers goose-stepped past a restaurant during a showing of "Inside Nazi Germany" at a Chester Theater recently, Walter Konkel noticed a sign advertising schweinerkrauten and sauerbrauten. His mouth watered and he cheered. Morris Schwartz, sitting next to him, reached over and konked Konkel on the noggin. Magistrate Brodsky fined Schwartz $5.

EASY MONEY. Ben Hecht owed Leland Hayward commissions for last year—so the story goes.

"Give me a check for $9000 and we'll be even," said Hayward to Hecht.

"Okay," said Ben, "but just give me a couple of hours."

Three hours later he emerged from a vacant room in the Hayward suite with a sheaf of typed pages.

"Call the Goldwyn office and tell them you have a Hecht original," he said.

Ten minutes later, goes the reported yarn, the story was sold for $15,000.

"Now give me a check for $4,500 and we'll be even," said Hecht to Hayward.

TECHNICOLOR JUMP. During the past season about six features were turned out in hues. Expect a sharp increase during the coming months. Twenty-four are already near or ready for production.

"Tom Sawyer," now at the Music Hall, is considered one of the best color pictures yet produced. The colors are more subdued than most predecessors, and while it at times isn't the spitten image of the real thing, a few more color-pics like "Tom Sawyer" will make a lot of die-hards give in.

BAN GIVEAWAYS. Whether or not Bank Nights and other giveaway promotion schemes will be allowed to continue in this state will soon be answered by the State Supreme Court. A test case has started in Pittsburgh. Eight states have already banned all types of "giveaways."

SOAP vs. POLITICS. The news in Washington is that soap has conquered politics. Lux, radio sponsors of the weeky Cecil B. De Mille broadcast, have sent out word that De Mille can consider himself washed-up as far as they are concerned if he goes into politics.

De Mille, recently boomed for the California Senatorial candidacy, sent his regrets—to the politicians.

BALLOTS SENT. Expect announcement of the Academy Awards any day now. About 15,000 ballots were sent out last week to movie industry members. Selections are limited to (nominated earlier): "The Awful Truth," "Captains Courageous," "Dead End," "Good Earth," "In Old Chicago," "Life of Emile Zola," "Lost Horizon," "100 Men and a Girl," "Stage Door," and "A Star Is Born."

GOEBBELS. "Inside Democratic America, 1938" will not be shown in German theatres. Condemned by Minister of Propaganda Goebbels as "liberal propaganda." "Subversive" he claims.

W. C. FIELDS BACK. W. C. Fields returns to the air March 7th after a three months layoff to do "Poppy" for Lux. This does not mean however that Fields will return to the Chase and Sanborn broadcast from which he departed because of script trouble.

NOVEL RADIO. Mrs. Reynolds, of Harrisburg, Illinois, does not own a radio. She receives radio programs via an ordinary coal range. Radio engineers are agog over the discovery. One explanation; coal formed clinker,—clinker contained crystal,—grate acted as a tickler on a crystal radio set does when it touches the crystal.

Mrs. Reynolds only trouble is that she cannot turn it off without extinguishing the fire.

JACK BENNY. Jack Benny marched up to the mike of the Maxwell House - Metro program Thursday as a guest and stole the show lock stock and script. Comedy he injected was the precise tonic show needed, and has needed on previous broadcasts.

Maxwell coffee had its blurb innings—but Benny slipped in four quickies for Jello.

O. O. McINTYRE. The late columnist's advance pillars run out March 7th. To all present indications, his customary space will be divided among two successors. For Hearst papers, Louis Sobol, pinch hitter for Winchell during his recent vacation, will take over. Elsewhere Charles B. Driscoll, who edited McIntyre's column for the past 13 years will proceede to bat out a daily say-so on his own.

NOT ENOUGH BEER. This agency is having its troubles these days. The two latest movie releases have caused a storm of protest. National Maritime Union is suing for $350,000 due to alleged slander and misrepresentation in Time's release dealing with U. S. merchant marine and seamen. The suit will be based on the scene which show 1 seamen calling a sit-down strike because there were not enough cases of beer on board.

It is still being debated whether "Inside Nazi Germany, 1938" is pro or anti-Nazi. Many claim that the voiced sound track is Anti-Nazi, while the actual pictures glorify the present conditions in Germany—with few exceptions.

Many large chains have banned this release, among them Philadelphia's Warner Brothers.

"FELT AND SMELLED" Motion pictures may someday be felt and smelled—according to a well known stage designer. Imagine a program note at a showing of "The Hurricane."

"Please fasten safety belts during big wind."

Or this: "Waikiki Wedding. Enjoy Bing's Crooning and Hawaii's climate.

"The Good Earth" suggests locusts let loose in the house.

"Captains Courageous" Buckets-full of salty brine thrown in the patron's faces.

One on the house to parallel March's drunk scenes in "A Star is Born."

Echoes from the Senior Ball: Paul Douglas, Swing Club commentator, gave the Senior dance a somewhat belated plug when he mentioned the fact that "the more energetic couples at the Villanova Senior Ball last night requested the 'Dipsy Doodle' and so Leith and the boys will render it for them again." or words to that effect. Incidentally, if you haven't heard, Stevens and the boys have made a short on swing for Warner Brothers.

Introducing—

By JAMES F. DONOVAN

TO-DAY, we present to you one of those Villanovans who spend their time dissecting rabbits and chasing poor harmless amoebas all over the laboratory in search of that knowledge which will add an "M. D." to their names. To-day, we give you the last of the Troncelliti clan, the pride of Ardmore, the hope of the L. K. D. and the terror of all bacteria—Edward Troncelliti.

Played Football

Ed is not a native Pennsylvanian. He was born in the little town of Haddonfield, New Jersey, on September 14, 1915. In due time, however, the Troncelliti household crossed the Delaware and settled in Ardmore almost within sight of Villanova's twin spires. Our future L. K. D. pride attended Lower Merion High School where he was the backbone of all social committees and the bulwark of the football team.

We have heard many tales of how men have decided to come to Villanova. Some will tell you that they put all the Catholic colleges in a hat and then luckily pulled out Villanova. With Ed, however, it was a closed and settled affair. Five other Troncellities can't be wrong, and so Edward A. entered the lair of the Wildcat and settled down to four years of biology, chemistry and physics.

EDWARD TRONCELLITI

In his freshman year, the future medico was pledged to the pre-med fraternity, Lamda Kappa Delta. His work in the L. K. D. was so enthusiastic that he was elected to the Board of Governors of that society.

Was Council Member

In his Junior year the pride of Haddonfield began to branch out in his activities. When the Juniors looked about for a man to serve as decoration chairman of the Junior Prom Committee, this jovial premed filled the bill to perfection. Once more he was selected as a member of the Board of Governors of the L. K. D. and because of his enthusiastic and able participation in Villanova activity, he was chosen to represent the Junior Class on the Student Council.

His worth and ability could not be denied and accordingly he was elected vice-chairman of the Student Council. He was a very potential candidate for the position of guiding Lamda Kappa Delta. The chairmanship of the L. K. D. dance fell to him and he was given the position of chairman of the annual dinner-dance.

Such has been the record of Ed Troncelliti. "Tronce" will follow the family tradition and enter a Philadelphia medical school next year. We are sure that our Ardmore socialite and fraternity man will not let us down but will add another name to the long list of Wildcat medicos. So we give you Edward Troncelliti, chubby, jovial, smiling, the pride of Ardmore and the last of the Troncellitis (or are there more in line?)

TWENTY MEMBERS CHOSEN FOR JUNIOR PROM COMMITTEE

early beginning in the direction of actual work as made possible by the class officers, Chairman Furey has scheduled the first committee meeting for the latter part of this week. At this initial assembly the above mentioned 20 students will be directed to act on various sub-committees. Such groups will function individually, and will be concerned with solving the problems of advertising, the sale of tickets, a unique and attractive program of decoration, and other matters of a similar nature.

Chairman Chosen Earlier

However, as is quite evident, the foremost activity for the dance committee is centered chiefly in the selection and contracting of an orchestra. Because of the extreme importance of this matter, the entire committee will compare the bids submitted and make the final decision. Furey has made several inquiries concerning well-known swing bands in an unofficial and informal way during the time intervening between his appointment as chairman and the present. As a consequence of his efforts he has acquired much information that will greatly facilitate the ultimate choice.

Assessment Fixed

Simultaneous with the release of the Junior Promenade Committee members comes the notice of the assessment fee which covers all the social functions to be sponsored during Junior Week. The figure, as announced, is $11. Over and above the Junior Prom on May 6, the quoted price entitles the third year men to admission to the Junior Dinner Dance and the informal Blazer Ball. Payment of this assessment enables the Juniors to save a goodly amount on the three events.

The industry and seriousness with which both the class officers and the committee are working augurs well for the success of the Prom. It also brings to mind a former prophecy made by President Mackowski. At this time he stated with an air of mingled determination and finality that the Junior Class as a whole was bent on obtaining an early start on the preparations for Junior Week and making a decided and spectacular success of it.

More Committees Soon

With arrangement practically completed for the purchases of the traditional blazers, announcement of a Blazer Ball Committee has been promised for the very near future. Side by side with this exclusive news flash will come the names of still another committee, that for the Dinner Dance. All of which adds up to this—that the Juniors are working like beavers in preparation for their big week in May.

All Juniors who have not as yet made final payment on their class rings will please do so within the next two weeks. It is imperative that this matter be cleared up at this time.

Juniors Announce Blazer Selection

be accompanied by a deposit of five dollars. For the price of the blazers to remain at ten dollars it will be necessary for at least fifty orders be received in one lot.

Measurements will be taken Monday, March 77th, in the reception room of Mendel Hall from one until four o'clock.

OBITUARY

Students of Villanova College mourn with Paul Soentgen the passing of his beloved wife, Elizabeth. A member of the personnel of the college for a great number of years, Paul Soentgen has endeared himself to the students and faculty.

BELLE AIR PHOTOS

Group pictures of organizations for the 1938 Belle Air Year book will be taken next Monday and Tuesday. Notices will be posted on the various college bulletin boards no later than Friday.

Villanova Professor Terms Germans "Class Conscious"; Explains Nazism

Fr. Dwyer Presents Interesting Account of National Development; Claims People Attempting to Regain Original Social Status

that those persons support the Nazis.

National Barriers Broken

Fr. Dwyer went on to explain in brief the origin and rise of the Nazis in Germany. At the time of the Industrial revolution all nations were units in themselves. After that period, however, the barriers between nations were broken down and commercial intercourse occurred at an increasing rate. Because the structure of internationalism was based on that relationship, and because that relationship between countries is in itself unstable it stands to reason that internationalism was weak.

Following the world war Germany set up a Republic which was far from successful in the reorganization of Germany. At one time the parliament was composed of at least 72 different political parties. Also with the too rapid dissolutions and new elections of the parliament by the Republic's president, money was spent in great sums, money which Germany had borrowed and could not afford to spend. It was estimated that every election of a parliament incurred the expenditure of 30 billion marks, which makes the expense of an American election seem to be a comparatively inexpensive item.

It was at that time Nazism became established. The results of that government in Germany are well known to all the peoples of the world.

Fr. Dwyer concluded his address by stating that he had in no way attempted to explain the conditions or events occurring in Germany but merely attempted to present to the students the growth of the movement. Fr. Dwyer had spent four years in Germany during the greatest period of stress and rearrangement and secured his Doctorate degree from a German University. Thus it can be seen that his remarks are authentic and of first hand experience, with well thought and balanced opinions.

HISTORY PROFESSOR DISCUSSES VALIDITY OF LICENSING BILL

Dr. Hartman Declares O'Mahoney - Borah Act Is Constitutional

Dr. Harold F. Hartman, assistant professor of History and Political Science, has just published an article in THE CHRISTIAN FRONT, discussing the constitutionality of the O'Mahoney-Borah Corporation Licensing Bill.

In the last issue of THE CHRISTIAN FRONT, Senator J. O'Mahoney, sponsor of the bill, wrote an article epiaining the merits of his proposed legislation. Dr. Hartman now contributes a brilliant analysis of the proposed act in the light of constitutional principles.

Writes Doctor Hartman: "It will undoubtedly be argued before the courts that Congress has no constitutional authority to enact the legislation in question. If the courts were to recognize the validity of this argument, it would mean that they would have to declare that Congress, in enacting the statute, was not exercising its constitutional authority to regulate interstate commerce. Thus the courts would be compelled to subscribe to a judicial opinion calling the statute unconstitutional because it is violative of the constitutional provision giving to Congress the authority to regulate commerce between the states and foreign nations.

"An examination of some recent decisions of the Supreme Court relating to congressional exercise of the commercial power reveal that the Supreme Court is accepting a relatively broad interpretation of that commerce authority. The Court seems to have recognized that the existence of the constitutional authority to regulate is dependent upon a subject to be regulated. Denied the existence of the subject to be regulated, the congressional power would amount to a mere nullity. That appears to have been the essence of the judicial theory controlling the constitutional doctrine supporting the validity of the Wagner Labor Relations Act of 1935."

Concluding his learned discussion, Dr. Hartman says: "The practical expediency of controlling and regulating corporations, the general desirability of passing such a law during this period of business recession, and the economic motives of some congressmen . . . are not judicially determinable. The judges, in saying what the Constitution is, do not always accept this most important judicial theory intended . . . to make judges perform judicial functions."

Seminary Benefits

The annual card party and social is held on the second Tuesday after Easter; the proceeds are for the benefit of the Augustinian seminaries. Yearly this event has been the symbol of the good-will and family spirit of a society devoted to a cherished cause. The atmosphere of the meeting on Tuesday evening gave ample evidence of renewed emphasis upon this important phase of the coming social gathering.

Under the chairmanship of Rev. Charles P. Brown, O. S. A., Director of the Guild, the following Augustinian Fathers were named to take charge of committees: Rev. Francis Coan, Rev. Joseph Dougherty, and Rev. Emil Misson will be in charge of patrons, games, and prizes in the order named. The work of organizing the program will be directed by Rev. BLUE RINGMEN TAKE SECOND MATCH

Columbus University Drops Match To Villanova Squad

Duffy and Nojunas Win Fourth Consecutive Bouts; Mentzinger, Ariano, Killian and Morkum Contribue to Impressive 6-2 Victory

By SAUL WALLACH

Villanova's slugging ringmen punched out an easy 6-2 decision over a hard fighting and more experienced Columbus University boxing team, Saturday night in the home ring.

A crowd of 1600 odd spectators saw the Wildcats take the lead on Bob Mentzinger's win in the 155 pound tussle, never to relinquish it for the remainder of the tilt with the Washington collegians.

Duffy Shines

Featuring Villanova's second win of the season was the performance of Captain Bill Duffy in his lightweight scrap with Bert Parod, of Columbus. Duffy hammered his foe with everything but the kitchen sink in the first two rounds, but the visitor refused to fold up.

Groggy from the absorption of punches thrown by the Villanova leader, Parod still managed to land several telling blows. It was apparent that Duffy was carrying his man in the final canto, refusing to hit Parod when he had him stacked up against the ropes, a very bewildered boxer. The win was Duffy's fourth consecutive win of the year, and tied the match at 2-all.

Killian Thrills Crowd

Eddie Killian, 235 pound tackle, boxing in the unlimited class had the crowd on its feet in the last bout of the evening. After a slow start, Killian came back in the third round to shellack Jimmy Brown. The final gong saved Brown from being the victim of a knockout, as the Villanova mauler had him at his mercy, hammering him with both hands after he had been

DELAWARE DEFEATS VILLANOVA MERMEN

Greco, Barrett, Booth Timed in 3.25.2 to Set New Relay Pool Record

A new record was established by the crack Villanova 300 yard medley relay team in a dual meet with the natators from the University of Delaware, in the local pool, Thursday afternoon. The trio of Wilmer Booth, Toby Greco and Charley Barrett churned through the waters in the record time of 3:25.2, seven seconds faster than the old record for the pool. However Delaware won the meet 44-31.

Bill Bailey, Villanova swimmer carried off individual honors by carrying off first places in the 220 and 440 yard free style events. Ploeco's mermen dominated the back stroke by placing Eddie Leahy and Wilmer Booth in one, two order in that event.

Frank Holt, Delaware sprinter proved to be the visitor's ace in the hole. Holt easily coasted to victories in the 50 and 100 yard sprint events. Other Delaware first places are credited to Kenworthy and Swarts, who won the breast stroke and diving events. Kenworthy was hard pressed by Captain Toby Greco to win.

The closest race of the afternoon was the 440 yard free style, not until the final leg did Bailey or his opponent Hank Foster show any advantage, Bailey winning out in the last ten yards of the race.

VARSITY GRIDDERS TO MEET FIVE FOES IN HOME BAILIWICK

Four New Opponents Will Be Met by 'Clipper' Smith's 1938 Football Edition

Nine games grace Villanova's 1938 schedule which was finally released last Saturday, with a tenth pending. Contrary to many rumors that permeated this part of the Main Line the 'Cats will not be a traveling team this Fall, because five of the contests are scheduled for the Philadelphia vicinity.

Meet Four New Foes

Four new teams will be met this year including American International, Muhlenburg, Centre, and South Carolina, who was met in 1936, but was dropped last year. Among the 1937 opponents are Detroit, Manhattan, Auburn, Temple, and Boston University. Although this schedule may not appear difficult at the present time, it is surprising what proportions these teams may assume during the grid season.

Before criticizing this schedule, it will be well to keep in mind that it was compiled only after long and tedious effort during which Coach "Clipper" Smith left no stone unturned in an effort to book more high sounding name colleges. "Clipper" offered to play any team in the country, but it seems that the impressive Villanova record of 1937 caused all tentative opponents to shy away.

As has been the custom since the advent of Coach Smith, the home games, with the exception of the opener with American International, will be played at Shibe Park. All the home games, save Detroit, who will be met on Sunday, Oc-

CORNELL JOINS LEAGUE

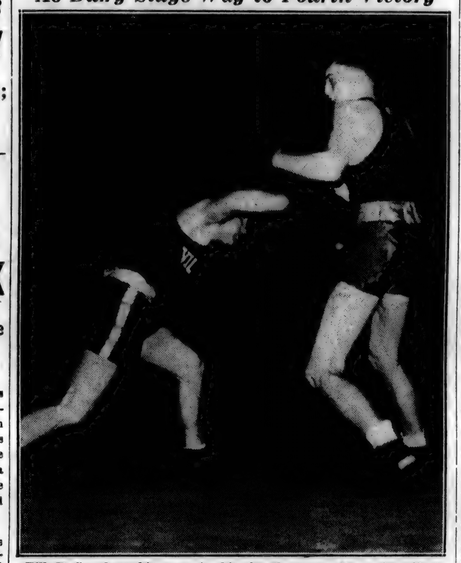
Gains Admission to 150 lb. Circuit As Seventh Member

Cornell University's application for membership in the Inter-Collegiate 150 pound league was granted the Ithaca school at a meeting of the league in New York, several days ago. At the same meeting Penn State was refused membership in the league.

Reason for the action which admitted Cornell and rejected State was passed off as "Cornell had already applied for membership one year in advance and had actually established the sport." "We felt that their application should take preference," a letter from the league secretary Henry W. Clark to Dean Carl P. Schott, of Penn State, explained. Other reasons given for the refusal of membership was that the expense of transporting teams to Penn State would be a burden upon the majority of the teams in the league.

With the addition of Cornell, the league now has seven members. The other teams are Villanova, Rutgers, Lafayette, Yale, Pennsylvania and Princeton.

As Duffy Slugs Way to Fourth Victory



Bill Duffy slugs his way to his fourth consecutive win. Bert Parod, Columbus U. 145-pounder, furnished the opposition.

SPORTORIAL

By BILL BOWKER, Sports Editor

(Editor's Note): This week this column is being conducted by Joseph Pagano, acting Sports Editor.

AN OLD saying running something like this "A poor beginning is generally followed by a good ending" seems to have held true in last week's Blue Sport Activities. Our Villanova quintet, riding along on a victory spree since the Fordham game, went down to defeat at the hands of City College and St. Francis, both of New York. In spite of these two reversals Al Severance's boys came back with a grandstand rally to emerge victorious over a scrappy Rutgers five last Saturday evening. The Wildcat five will be out to maintain an unblemished home floor record this week in court contests with Providence and the very tough St. John's outfit.

—V—

Ray Gadsby's boys outdid themselves to win their second meet of the season by outscrapping a formidable Columbus University foe. This defeat administered by the Wildcat ringmen marks the second reversal in 25 starts for the Columbus leather-pushers. It is interesting to note that again Jimmy Mulroy dropped another fight to an opponent, who after the fight approached the Villanova 115 pound scrapper and very earnestly and sincerely exclaimed, "I was very lucky to win that bout." In the Catholic U. meet after the referee had awarded the decision to Mr. Dave Bernstein; the Cardinal bantamweight sought Jimmy out to tell him that it was the toughest fight that he had in his intercollegiate boxing career. Incidentally, the announcer said that this bout between the two boys was one of the best bouts ever witnessed in that Auditorium. Evidently it appears that Jimmy has met some of the best in his class this season and as a result has not been so successful but our advice is this, "Don't let it bother you; you're only a Freshman and your heydey is at hand." Bouquets are in order for "Scrapping" Captain Bill Duffy and Johnny Nojunas, both of whom came through with their fourth victory of the season in the Columbus U. meet.

—V—

A bouquet is also in order to that relay trio of the Blue swimming squad composed of Captain Toby Greco, Charlie Barrett and Wilmer Booth for shaving off seven seconds off the old pool record and establishing the remarkable time of 3:25.2 minutes.

—V—

Invitations were mailed out last week to eleven colleges for the 14th annual tournament of the Eastern Intercollegiate Boxing Association. We noticed that Villanova was not included among the list. We weren't expecting a team invitation but we were hoping that the Officials would be courteous enough to extend invitations to Captain Bill Duffy and Bob Mentzinger, since one boy representing Villanova College, Tony Sala, won the Intercollegiate Championship for three consecutive years in the light-heavy weight division.

—V—

More dope garnered from local newspapers reveal the fact that All-American John Melius and John Wysocki have gone bowling on us. Both Villanova gridiron attractions participated in a feature bowling match at Munzer's Bowling Allies on Markley St., Norristown.

—V—

Again "Hank" Luisetti, Stanford Court Captain, makes the headlines since all he has to do is score 20 points to break the all-time record of 1583 points for individual scoring over a period of four years of intercollegiate basketball competition.

WILDCAT ROAD TRIP CLIMAXED BY WIN OVER RUTGERS FIVE

Krutulis Paces Blue in Scarlet Victory; Sinnott Stars in Beaver Fray

'CATS LICKED BY C. C. N. Y.

By HARRY MAZZEI

For the first time this year Villanova's rampant basketeers lost two games in one week of play. Encountering all their opponents on foreign soil, the Wildcats won only from the Scarlet and Black of Rutgers on Saturday night after being defeated by St. Francis and C. C. N. Y. earlier in the week.

3500 See Game

Playing before a crowd of 3500, the Main Liners handed Rutgers a 43-33 walloping after trailing the Scarlet through most of the fray. George Buttle started the scoring by garnering two field goas before "Joting" Johnny Krutulis broke the ice for the Wildcats with a beautiful one-hander from the side. Villanova continued to trail the Queensmen until Mike Lazorchak sank a bucket to knot the count at 13-all. This tie was short-lived, for at this point Buttle and Boris Schwartz led a brief sortie that gave Rutgers a 21-17 lead at half-time. Only Jim Montgomery's sensational mid-court marksmanship enabled Villanova to pull up as close as it did.

With the start of the second half, the contest took on a new complexion as the 'Cats settled down to normal and began to hit their true stride. Led by Krutulis and Duzminski, Villanova gradually cut down the lead of the lads from the Banks of the Raritan until it was 28-26 with ten minutes of play remaining. Ot this junc-

GRIDDERS WORK OUT TO PERFECT SHIFT

Backs and Centers Predominate Practice Under Assistant Coach McNally

Although it seems only yesterday that the Wildcats concluded a very successful football season, they are already preparing to open next year's schedule. The gym these days is the scene much activity, and the football squad—particularly the centers and backs—account for quite a bit of the action.

Backfield Men Report

Each day for the past two weeks Coach Vince McNally has had his backfield men down in the gymnasium, throwing the ball around and runing through shifts and plays. Vince is also trying to develop a center to aid Andy Chisick and Lou Dymond, holdovers from last year's squad. The principal contenders for this spot are Bill Cochrane, "Legs" Shedlosky, and Ronnie Tornwall, veterans at other positions who may be converted, and Collins, McKee, and Bove of the past season's Freshman team.

Several different combinations have been used in the backfield; and next season may find some of the backs in new positions. There have been changes already, but these are not definite early beginning in the direction of actual work as made possible by the class officers. Chairman Furey has scheduled the first committee meeting for the latter part of this week. At this initial assembly the above mentioned 20 students will be directed to act on various subcommittees. Such groups will function individually, and will be concerned with solving the problems of advertising, the sale of tickets, a unique and attractive program of decoration, and other matters of a similar nature.

The main idea of having workouts in the gym, it is understood, is

Chairman Chosen Earlier

However, as is quite evident, the foremost activity for the dance committee is centered chiefly in the selection and contracting of an orchestra. Because of the extreme importance of this matter, the entire committee will compare the bids submitted and make the final decision. Furey has made several inquiries concerning well-known swing bands in an unofficial and informal way during the time intervening between his appointment as chairman and the present. As a consequence of his efforts he has acquired much information that will greatly facilitate the ultimate choice.

Assessment Fixed

Simultaneous with the release of the Junior Promenade Committee members comes the notice of the assessment fee which covers all the social functions to be sponsored during Junior Week. The figure, as announced, is $11. Over and above the Junior Prom on May 6, the quoted price entitles the third year men to admission to the Junior Dinner Dance and the informal Blazer Ball. Payment of this assessment enables the Juniors to save a goodly amount on the three events.

The industry and seriousness with which both the class officers and the committee are working augurs well for the success of the Prom. It also brings to mind a former prophecy made by President Mackowski. At this time he stated with an air of mingled determination and finality that the Junior Class as a whole was bent on obtaining an early start on the preparations for Junior Week and making a decided and spectacular success of it.

More Committees Soon

With arrangement practically completed for the purchases of the traditional blazers, announcement of a Blazer Ball Committee has been promised for the very near future. Side by side with this exclusive news flash will come the names of still another committee, that for the Dinner Dance. All of which adds up to this: that the Juniors are working like beavers in preparation for their big week in May.

All Juniors who have not as yet made final payment on their class rings will please do so within the next two weeks. It is imperative that this matter be cleared up at this time.

be accompanied by a deposit of five dollars. For the price of the blazers to remain at ten dollars it will be necessary for at least fifty orders be received in one lot.

Measurements will be taken Monday, March 77th, in the reception room of Mendel Hall from one until four o'clock.

Villanova Professor Terms Germans "Class Conscious"; Explains Nazism

Fr. Dwyer Presents Interesting Account of National Development; Claims People Attempting to Regain Original Social Status

that those persons support the Nazis.

National Barriers Broken

Fr. Dwyer went on to explain in brief the origin and rise of the Nazis in Germany. At the time of the Industrial revolution all nations were units in themselves. After that period, however, the barriers between nations were broken down and commercial intercourse occurred at an increasing rate. Because the structure of internationalism was based on that relationship, and because that relationship between countries is in itself unstable it stands to reason that internationalism was weak.

Following the world war Germany set up a Republic which was far from successful in the reorganization of Germany. At one time the parliament was composed of at least 72 different political parties. Also with the too rapid dissolutions and new elections of the parliament by the Republic's president, money was spent in great sums, money which Germany had borrowed and could not afford to spend. It was estimated that every election of a parliament incurred the expenditure of 30 billion marks, which makes the expense of an American election seem to be a comparatively inexpensive item.

It was at that time Nazism became established. The results of that government in Germany are well known to all the peoples of the world.

Fr. Dwyer concluded his address by stating that he had in no way attempted to explain the conditions or events occurring in Germany but merely attempted to present to the students the growth of the movement. Fr. Dwyer had spent four years in Germany during the greatest period of stress and rearrangement and secured his Doctorate degree from a German University. Thus it can be seen that his remarks are authentic and of first hand experience, with well thought and balanced opinione.

HISTORY PROFESSOR DISCUSSES VALIDITY OF LICENSING BILL

Dr. Hartman Declares O'Mahoney - Borah Act Is Constitutional

Dr. Harold F. Hartman, assistant professor of History and Political Science, has just published an article in THE CHRISTIAN FRONT discussing the constitutionality of the O'Mahoney-Borah Corporation Licensing Bill.

Writes Doctor Hartman: "It will undoubtedly be argued before the courts that Congress has no constitutional authority to enact the legislation in question. If the courts were to recognize the validity of this argument, it would mean that they would have to declare that Congress, in enacting the statute, was not exercising its constitutional authority to regulate interstate commerce. Thus the courts would be compelled to subscribe to a judicial opinion calling the statute unconstitutional because it is violative of the constitutional provision giving to Congress the authority to regulate commerce between the states and foreign nations.

"An examination of some recent decisions of the Supreme Court relating to congressional exercise of the commercial power reveal that the Supreme Court is accepting a relatively broad interpretation of that commerce authority. The Court seems to have recognized that the existence of the constitutional authority to regulate is dependent upon a subject to be regulated. Denied the existence of the subject to be regulated, the congressional power would amount to a mere nullity. That appears to have been the essence of the judicial theory controlling the constitutional doctrine supporting the validity of the Wagner Labor Relations Act of 1935."

Concluding his learned discussion, Dr. Hartman says: "The practical expediency of controlling and regulating corporations, the general desirability of passing such a law during this period of business recession, and the economic motives of some congressmen . . . are not judicially determinable. The judges, in saying what the Constitution is, do not always accept this most important judicial theory intended . . . to make judges perform judicial functions."

VARSITY GRIDDERS TO MEET FIVE FOES IN HOME BAILIWICK

Four New Opponents Will Be Met by 'Clipper' Smith's 1938 Football Edition

Nine games grace Villanova's 1938 schedule which was finally released last Saturday, with a tenth pending. Contrary to many rumors that permeated this part of the Main Line the 'Cats will not be a traveling team this Fall, because five of the contests are scheduled for the Philadelphia vicinity.

Meet Four New Foes

Four new teams will be met this year including American International, Muhlenburg, Centre, and South Carolina, who was met in 1936, but was dropped last year. Among the 1937 opponents are Detroit, Manhattan, Auburn, Temple, and Boston University. Although this schedule may not appear difficult at the present time, it is surprising what proportions these teams may assume during the grid season.

Before criticizing this schedule, it will be well to keep in mind that it was compiled only after long and tedious effort during which Coach "Clipper" Smith left no stone unturned in an effort to book more high sounding name colleges. "Clipper" offered to play any team in the country, but it seems that the impressive Villanova record of 1937 caused all tentative opponents to shy away.

As has been the custom since the advent of Coach Smith, the home games, with the exception of the opener with American International, will be played at Shibe Park. All the home games, save Detroit, who will be met on Sunday, Oc-

CORNELL JOINS LEAGUE

Gains Admission to 150 lb. Circuit As Seventh Member

Cornell University's application for membership in the Inter-Collegiate 150 pound league was granted the Ithaca school at a meeting of the league in New York, several days ago. At the same meeting Penn State was refused membership in the league.

Reason for the action which admitted Cornell and rejected State was passed off as "Cornell had already applied for membership one year in advance and had actually established the sport." "We feit that their application should take preference," a letter from the league secretary Henry W. Clark to Dean Carl P. Schott, of Penn State, explained. Other reasons given for the refusal of membership was that the expense of transporting teams to Penn State would be a burden upon the majority of the teams in the league.

With the addition of Cornell, the league now has seven members. The other teams are Villanova, Rutgers, Lafayette, Yale, Pennsylvania and Princeton.

SPORTORIAL

By BILL BOWKER, Sports Editor

(Editor's Note): This week this column is being conducted by Joseph Pagano, acting Sports Editor.

AN OLD saying running something like this "A poor beginning is generally followed by a good ending" seems to have held true in last week's Blue Sport Activities. Our Villanova quintet, riding along on a victory spree since the Fordham game, went down to defeat at the hands of City College and St. Francis, both of New York. In spite of these two reversals Al Severance's boys came back with a grandstand rally to emerge victorious over a scrappy Rutgers five last Saturday evening. The Wildcat five will be out to maintain an unblemished home floor record this week in court contests with Providence and the very tough St. John's outfit.

—V—

Ray Gadsby's boys outdid themselves to win their second meet of the season by outscrapping a formidable Columbus University foe. This defeat administered by the Wildcat ringmen marks the second reversal in 25 starts for the Columbus leather-pushers. It is interesting to note that again Jimmy Mulrey dropped another fight to an opponent, who after the fight approached the Villanova 115 pound scrapper and very earnestly and sincerely exclaimed, "I was very lucky to win that bout." In the Catholic U. meet after the referee had awarded the decision to Mr. Dave Bernstein; the Cardinal bantamweight sought Jimmy out to tell him that it was the toughest fight that he had in his Intercollegiate boxing career. Incidentally, the announcer said that this bout between the two boys was one of the best bouts ever witnessed in that Auditorium. Evidently it appears that Jimmy has met some of the best in his class this season and as a result has not been so successful but our advice is this, "Don't let it bother you; you're only a Freshman and your heydey is at hand." Bouquets are in order for "Scrapping" Captain Bill Duffy and Johnny Nojunas, both of whom came through with their fourth victory of the season in the Columbus U. meet.

—V—

A bouquet is also in order to that zippy trio of the Blue swimming squad composed of Captain Toby Greco, Charlie Barrett and Wilmer Booth for shaving off seven seconds off the old pool record and establishing the remarkable time of 3:25.2 minutes.

—V—

Invitations were mailed out last week to eleven colleges for the 14th annual tournament of the Eastern Intercollegiate Boxing Association. We noticed that Villanova was not included among the list. We weren't expecting a team invitation but we were hoping that the Officials would be courteous enough to extend invitations to Captain Bill Duffy and Bob Mentzinger, since one boy representing Villanova College, Teny Saia, won the Intercollegiate Championship for three consecutive years in the light-heavy weight division.

—V—

More dope garnered from local newspapers reveal the fact that All-American John Mellus and John Wysocki have gone bowling on us. Both Villanova gridiron attractions participated in a feature bowling match at Munzer's Bowling Allies on Markley St., Norristown.

—V—

Again "Hank" Luisetti, Stanford Court Captain, makes the headlines since all he has to do is score 20 points to break the all-time record of 1583 points for individual scoring over a period of four years of Intercollegiate basketball competition.

WILDCAT ROAD TRIP CLIMAXED BY WIN OVER RUTGERS FIVE

Krutulis Paces Blue in Scarlet Victory; Sinnott Stars in Beaver Fray

'CATS LICKED BY C. C. N. Y.

By HARRY MAZZEI

For the first time this year Villanova's rampant basketeers lost two games in one week of play. Encountering all their opponents on foreign soil, the Wildcats won only from the Scarlet and Black of Rutgers on Saturday night after being defeated by St. Francis and C. C. N. Y. earlier in the week.

3500 See Game

Playing before a crowd of 3500, the Main Liners handed Rutgers a 43-33 walloping after trailing the Scarlet through most of the fray. George Buttle started the scoring by garnering two field goas before "Joting" Johnny Krutulis broke the ice for the Wildcats with a beautiful one-hander from the side. Villanova continued to trail the Queensmen until Mike Lazorchak sank a bucket to knot the count at 13-all. This tie was short-lived, for at this point Buttle and Boris Schwartz led a brief sortie that gave Rutgers a 21-17 lead at half-time. Only Jim Montgomery's sensational mid-court marksmanship enabled Villanova to pull up as close as it did.

With the start of the second half, the contest took on a new complexion as the 'Cats settled down to normal and began to hit their true stride. Led by Krutulis and Duzminski, Villanova gradually cut down the lead of the lads from the Banks of the Raritan until it was 28-26 with ten minutes of play remaining. Ot this junc-

GRIDDERS WORK OUT TO PERFECT SHIFT

Backs and Centers Predominate Practice Under Assistant Coach McNally

Although it seems only yesterday that the Wildcats concluded a very successful football season, they are already preparing to open next year's schedule. The gym these days is the scene of much activity, and the football squad—particularly the centers and backs—account for quite a bit of the action.

Backfield Men Report

Each day for the past two weeks Coach Vince McNally has had his backfield men down in the gymnasium, throwing the ball around and runing through shifts and plays. Vince is also trying to develop a center to aid Andy Chisick and Lou Dymond, holdovers from last year's squad. The principal contenders for this spot are Bill Cochrane, "Legs" Shedlosky, and Ronnie Tornwall, veterans at other positions who may be converted, and Collins, McKee, and Bove of the past season's Freshman team.

Several different combinations have been used in the backfield, and next season may find some of the backs in new positions. There have been changes already, but these are not definite

The main idea of having workouts in the gym, it is understood, is

Intramural Playoffs Between Austin And Fedigan Will Be Waged Tonight

LaBalbo, Wood and Dwyer Mainstays of Blue Shirt Quintet; Wood, Totin and O'Connell Lead Gigolo Attack

It's happened again! Those Gigolos have done it. For the second time this season the Intramural contests have finished in a stalemate. In both occasions Fedigan has been represented, first as the opponent of the Mendel Day Students and now with the redoubtable Austin clan under the expert tutelage of Father McKee.

"Battle of Century" Looms

Both teams are keyed up for the ensuing "Battle of the Century," and great plans are being made. With such able basketeers as Totin, Woods and O'Connell representing the West Enders and LaBalbo, Waad and Dwyer doing the sharpshooting for the Blue Shirts, a rare treat is in store for anyone witnessing this fracas. It is truly the "Dream Battle of Villanova."

While your writer was perusing over the abundant statistics, he noticed that the Fedigan quintet had won all their encounters by actual play, while the Austin contingent had garnered one game from the tough Mendel Day-Hops by virtue of a forfeit. In comparing the scores of the respective clubs it is interesting to note that there is little, if any difference, between them. This all points to a close and eventful court spectacle.

Pacing the Fediganites, we find Al Woods, third highest scorer in the league, whose fine cutting and expert passing has featured the West Enders' offense all season. In his Intramural ventures, he has been successful in collecting a total of 43 markers for the second half. In addition to Woods, we notice Gounoud, "Buzz" Hart, Johnny Costello, Mike Totin and Bud O'Connell who have been responsible for many of the West Enders' points. On Totin falls the responsibility of bringing up the ball while O'Connell cuts for the passes. It is largely through these lads, together with several others, that the Fedigan quintet has been able to finish where it has.

Austinites Improved

While the Fediganites have been gathering victories, their campus brothers from Austin Hall have not been idle. They have been annexing their share of the contests. Showing a greatly improved team over the first half the Austinites have been able to create a deadlock for that coveted first place spot.

Under the fine leadership of "Pete" LaBalbo, Tim Waad and Jimmy Dwyer, they have emerged from the depths of defeat in the first session of the league to the heights of glory in the final bracket. LaBalbo, who may be distinguished by his sharp cutting and accurate shooting, has been the leading scorer on the club. Following close at his heels are Dwyer and Waad who are no mean task to handle. Joe Bochetto, Frank Connors and Vic Sandor of the Blue Shirt quintet are also capable and dangerous. Fedigan will do well not to underestimate their rivals.

In looking back over the past year we are able to note the great success attained by both Halls, and can see what we may expect of the two dorms. Fedigan inaugurated the year by copping the Connelly plaque and making creditable showings in Amateur night, Swimming meet and the unfinished tennis tourney. On the other hand Austin has been doing themselves honorably by coming in second in both the Amateur night and Swimming meet. In the first half basketball competition they were not so fortunate, having to be contented with third position.

This Intramural spectacle will be played tonight prior to the Freshman game which precedes the Providence-Villanova contest.

BASKETEERS WIN RUTGERS GAME

ture Lou Dubino, cutting under the hoop, laid one up to tie the score at 28-28. From this point on it was all Villanova, as the Main Liners took the lead and increased it as the game continued.

Johnny Krutulis once again turned in a brilliant performance and led the Villanova scoring with 12 points. George Buttle, the elongated Rutgers' center, sparkplugged the home team's attack with a dozen markers.

Lose to C. C. N. Y.

On George Washington's birthday the Blue team travelled to New York and lost to the C. C. N. Y. quintet, 46-27 in their most disastrous rout of the season. Fifteen hundred rabid fans jammed the Beaver gym to see City take an early lead on double-deckers by Goldstein, Fliegal, Rosenberg, and Jarmon before Montgomery finally got loose underneath and scored the 'Cats' first markers on a layup. Goldstein and Fliegal continued their scoring jubilee and built up City's lead to 20-11 at the halftime.

Goldstein and Fliegal showed no intentions of slackening their pace during the second half, and as a result the Lavender ran the score to 34-19 despite the fine individual performance of Bill Sinnott.

Nat Holman's brilliant outfit, employing a fast cut with remarkable success, ran the score up to 46-22, when the Wildcats loosed a five-point splurge at the final whistle. Sinnott and Vigilante were high for the Blue with seven points apiece, while Fliegal and Goldstein tossed in 15 and 10 counters respectively.

St. Francis Met

St. Francis took the Wildcats on and over the following night in their bandbox court to the tune of 43-37. Villanova took an early lead on baskets by Dubino and Duzminski, but the Terriers tied the count at 9-all. From their on it was nip and tuck with St. Francis leading 22-20 at halftime through the fine shooting of Danny Lynch and Jim Naughton.

Vigilante's foul at the start of the last half pulled the Blue within one point of their adversaries, but it was the closest they came to the lead for the remainder of the embroglio. Lenowicz and Dzienkewicz led the Terriers to a 33-23 lead which Villanova quickly cut to 33-27, but seemed to shoot its bolt on the rally. From there St. Francis went on to win rather handily. Naughton laid up 12 points for the victors, while Jim Montgomery and Art Vigilante amassed 16 scores between them to lead the 'Cats.

In the opening bout of the evening, George Marker, Columbus 118 pounder received the verdict over Villanova's Jim Mulroy. Mulroy after losing the first two rounds, came off the floor to drop Marker for a short count in the final. The advantage, however was to great for him to overcome.

Things were evened up when Mike Ariano slammed Ray Morse from pillar to post in the next bout. It was evident that Ariano was in shape for the match, as Morse did not have a chance with him in the ring. Everything Ariano did seemed to be just right.

Pantaleo Loses

The 135 pound class had Carl Pantaleo making his debut in the squared circle after a two years lay off, against lanky Jim Willis who made short work of the little Villanova battler.

Pantaleo had too much to contend with, as his foe towered above him. However he did land several nice punches in the early moments of the fight. Willis took things easy, as his long reach enabled him to chalk up points by the dozen.

A hot scrap developed in the middleweight battle with Bob Mentzinger claiming the winner's honors. The Germantown gunner started off by pinning Bill Crum against the ropes early in the first round, and landing effectively in the remainder of the round. Both boys came back in the second round, and the third found them slugging it out in mid ring with neither gaining the advantage.

Johnny Nojunas continued on the unbeaten path with a laudable win over a more experienced fighter in the visiting Dave Schlaifer. The local boy's aggressiveness served him well in winning the tilt. Schlaifer was content with a fancy display of weaving and ducking, sometimes landing hard on Nojunas' face. A hard blow which drew blood from Schlaifer's nose in the final round contributed to the Villanovan's cause.

A mild surprise was in store for Villanova rooters in the semi-final. The two fighters Ben Morkun, local standard bearer in the lightheavy weight division, and Lou Hayman fought evenly from the opening gong to the final. However, Referee Frank Floyd, in the splendor of a tuxedo, awarded the decision to Morkun.

Both boys were out on their feet in the third and then climaxed the action by sprawling on the ring floor, tired from throwing haymakers that seldom landed.

The scheduled match with Temple University carded for the Main Line on March 2, was cancelled by the Philadelphians. Coach Ray Gadsby has been burning the wires in an attempt to secure an opponent for that evening, and it is a certainty that the 'Cats will be in action against a suitable foe.

ST. FRANCIS PREP HOLDS SCHOLASTIC SWIMMING DIADEM

Brooklyn School Retains Crown Won Last Year in Catholic Meet

By JOHN L. SIMONS

For the second time in as many years the swimming team of St. Francis Prep of Brooklyn captured the National Catholic Interscholastic Swimming Championship. In the meet held in the Villanova pool last Tuesday the St. Francis natators gained a one-sided victory at the expense of the most brilliant field in the meet's four year history. The competition was keen in all the events, and five new records were written into the books.

Steingass Breaks Records

Henry Steingass, lanky 17-year-old freestyler from La Salle Prep in Philadelphia, was the outstanding individual performer. Not only was he a double winner, but he broke two records in winning the 50 and 100 yard freestyle races. In the opening event he sped through the 50 yard race in the fast time of 24.9 seconds, setting a new meet and pool record. Then he came back a few minutes later with a 55.8 100 to lower the meet standard for that distance.

With all this brilliance and another first place by Joe Gavaghan in the 220, La Salle could do no better than fourth in the meet. St. Francis' winning total was 54 points; West Catholic gained the runnerup position with 25½, and North Catholic nosed La Salle out for third with 22 to La Salle's 20. Regis High School of New York, Brooklyn Prep, South Catholic, St. Joe's, Roman Catholic, and St. Thomas More were the also-rans.

From Steingass' thrilling performance in the meet's opener till the end the races were hotly contested with few exceptions. Immediately after the record-breaking 50 Ed Vacca smashed the meet record for the 100 yard breaststroke to start St. Francis on the way to victory. DeLone of St. Joe's pushed him hard.

La Salle Gains Lead

Joe Gavaghan gave La Salle a temporary lead when he swam a good, steady race to take the 220 freestyle. Jim Fiedler, co-captain of North Catholic and defending champion in the backstroke, repeated his victory of last year but couldn't hit the record of 1:07.2 set in 1936 by Lynch, the one-legged swimme. from St. Francis.

After the 100 yard freestyle, in which Steingass romped home 30 feet ahead of his nearest foe, came the diving competition. Hugh Quinn of the victorious Franciscans gave a great exhibition, amassing a winning total of some 60 points in the fact of very critical judging.

ST. JOHN'S QUINT MEETS BLUE FIVE IN SATURDAY TILT

Red Men to Test 'Cat Defense in Final Home Contest; Bush Leads at Back

By TOM O'MAHONEY

Villanova's basketball Wildcats meet their sternest test of the home season Saturday night when the Redmen from St. John's University invade the Main Line Field House in what promises to be a fitting climax to the most successful season in years.

As Strong As C. C. N. Y.

Winners of 13 out of 17 games to date, the Redmen look to be as strong as City College, a team they defeated in January. In their only Philadelphia appearance to date, the Warriors from Flatbush crushed St. Joseph's Mighty Mites at Convention Hall. Also listed among the Redmen conquests are Fordham, Seton Hall, Duke, and Illinois Wesleyan.

Leading the invaders' strong attack will be Captain Gerry Bush, one of the standout performers in the New York area for three years. The tall pivot man has scored 184 points in 16 games to date, and is generally conceded to be the finest ball-handler in the city. George Palmer, flashy junior, and the tallest man on the squad, is noted for his uncanny accuracy at the foul line, while his running mate Ralph Dolgoff is the playmaker of the paleface Indians, and will be out to flim-flam the 'Cat defense in new and different ways all night. Willie McKeever, second only to Bush as a crowd pleaser, is the only sophomore to crack the starting five, and is to be watched carefully in close. Big Bill Lloyd and Jim Gorman, both juniors, will battle for the other starting post.

Indians Lead Blue

Joe Lapchick, Redmen mentor, was a member of the Original Celtics, and perennially turns out a fast, smart team as is shown to the 'Cats discomfiture in the all time records of the series between the Blue and the Indians. Since 1925, the teams have met 14 times, with the Brooklynites winning ten game, and the 'Cats on top in only four.

Coach Al Severance will probably start Jim Montgomery, Duke Duzminsky, Art Vigilante, Johnny Krutulis and Mike Lazorchak, with big Lou Dubino and Bill Sinnott slated to see plenty of action before the final buzzer. This combination has clicked well in the past, and can be counted on to turn in a good game Saturday. During the past week both Duzminski and Montgomery have been in a scoring slump, though still leading Philadelphia District point-getters. It is hoped that the return to friendly surroundings will allow them to get back into stride.

MILE RELAY TEAM RUNS SECOND TO SETON HALL

Gueteras Makes Strong Bid For First As He Overtakes Owl Anchor Man

Villanova's mile relay team scored again over the trackmen from Temple but finished second to Seton Hall in the latter's annual Indoor track meet held in Newark last Monday night, February 21.

Barney Bellew ran first man for the Wildcats and finished close second to the Seton Hall runner. Tom McCabe ran the second leg for Villanova and Bill Dobbins carried the baton the third leg. Dobinns warded off Temple's only bid for second place with a burst of speed near the finish of his lap.

When Bill Gueteras took the baton from Dobbins he was about ten yards behind the Seton Hall anchor man. Bill made a noble bid for first place but fell short only by a few inches at the finish line.

Johnnie Maher, sprint man for Villanova, was eliminated in the semi-finals of the 60-yard handicap dash. Maher also entered the 300-yard dash but his handicap proved too much to overcome and John was eliminated in the trial heat.

the record breakers got to work again. In the 150 yard medley relay a St. Francis team, led by Ed Vacca, ace breaststroker, hung up a new mark.

The meet ended with the most thrilling event of the meet, the 200 yard freestyle relay, won by North Catholic in record time. For the first three legs of the race, North Catholic, West Catholic, and St. Francis were neck and neck. Then the Falcon anchorman, Jack Lumsden, pulled away from the field to win with a "killer-diller" dash down the stretch.

Gridders Work Out To Perfect Shift

to smooth the edges off the shift. "Clipper" Smith's idea of the Notre Dame shift necessitates a great deal of practice before perfection can be achieved, and so the backs must begin practice earlier than the rest of the squad.

Reliable sources report that the entire team will begin Spring training as soon as weather permits. With such an early start, the football team, the coaches, the faculty, and the student body are looking forward to another successful season with another great team.

tober 23, will be played on Saturday.

American International will be the first of the newcomers to be met by the Blue eleven. Although not a football powerhouse, this team from New England is steadily improving and should be a stiff opening- test for the Villanova gridders.

Centre a Strong Team

Muhlenburg and Centre, both newcomers, will be met on successive Saturdays, and both teams are being counted upon to more than extend the Main Line eleven. Muhlenburg has always been one of the strongest of the smaller Colleges in the East, while Centre's Praying Colonels have pulled more than one upset since their immemorial victory over Harvard nearly two decades ago.

Following Centre will be Detroit, who even without "Anvil" Andy Farkas, will be as strong as they usually are. There are Villanova fans who still have not recovered from the last quarter drive the Titans uncorked in last year's fray to almost jeopardize the 'Cats' ranking.

After this contest the Blue will travel to Orangeburg, South Carolina Gamecocks will be met in the sport feature of the Orangeburg County Fair. This contest will mark the first night game of Villanova under "Clipper" Smith's regime; it will take place on Friday, October 28.

Plainsmen Met Here

Auburn's vaunted Plainsmen are the Main Liners next opponents and they will bring a smart fast team, composed mainly of last year's brilliant squad. Jimmy Hitchcock may be gone, but "Spec" Kelly, who replaced Hitchcock when the latter was injured in the middle of the season, will be an even bigger headache. Auburn has been met twice before by the 'Cats, and both games have resulted in ties. This year may see one team finally emerge victorious.

The Temple game comes next and with it the climax of both teams' seasons. Temple, with an all veteran array, will be very much cognizant of last year's 33-0 lacing and will be gunning to avenge that drubbing. Pop Warner is probably planning his strategy now for this one.

Boston U. and Manhattan appear in the last two games, but there is a possibility that the Blue may travel to the sunny climes of California and again meet Loyola. This contest is dependent on the records of the two teams. Boston will again be met in the Hub City, while Manhattan's scalp will be contested for in New York. The Jaspers will be met in either the Polo Grounds or the Yankee Stadium on Thanksgiving day.

GADSBY COMMENTS
on Columbus U. Bouts

AN UNDERRATED Villanova Boxing Team defeated the strongest rival ever met in a series of thrilling matches in the Villanova Field House. I would have been satisfied with a draw, but the manner in which the Villanova boys came through was an agreeable surprise. From their performance Villanova should be represented in the squared circle in the future against any collegiate team in the country.

Big Schools Shy

Efforts have been made to meet practically all of the important schools in the country, but so far I have not had the success in contacting them that I anticipated. It seems as thought one must not have too good a squad if one expects to meet the older and larger institutions.

In Saturday night's matches, the performances of Duffy, Mentzinger, Nojanas, and Killian, Villanova's giant heavyweight, were outstanding.

Duffy met a Tartar in Parod, but after a strongly-contested first round, he had easy going as he won his fourth consecutive victory. It is my earnest hope that he will be invited to the National Intercollegiates at the University of Virginia held in Charlottesville.

Mentzinger Improves

Mentzinger showed improved form as he emerged victorious over a very stalwart opponent, Crum, Columbia's middleweight representative. Mentzinger had a clear-cut margin and I am happy to say shows improvement with each appearance in the ring.

Nojunas met an erpericed man in the 165-pound class in Schlaifer, who knew all the tricks of the game and carried a very dangerous right-hand punch. Nojunas won the bout, but his anxiety caused him to suffer some damages that were not necessary.

Ed. Killian received an acid test when he met the rough, rugged and hard punching southpaw, Jim Brown, Columbus' heavyweight representative. After a rather slow two rounds, Eddie woke up, upon receiving a terrific left to the chin at the beginning of the third and then proceeded to administer a trouncing to his opponent. It seems as though Killian must be hurt before he realizes that he has a battle on his hands. I am quite pleased with his performance and I am quite sure that my early predictions about his boxing future will be realized.

The Morkum-Haymann bout was a rough and tumble scrap but both boys were trying all the way. By dint of a rally in the third round, Morkum received the decision.

Carl Pantaleo should be commended on his thrilling exhibition of real college spirit in his bout with Willis, C. U.'s outstanding lightweight. Although Carl was at a disadvantage in height and weight, he caused plenty of trouble and only lost the match by a slim margin.

Jimmy Mulroy received a tough one in my honest opinion, as I thought he ought to have received at least a draw. Jimmy has improved with each appearance and I know he will be one of the bright stars of the Villanova boxing team in the future.

Mike Ariano, Villanova's 125 pound representative, won his bout easily enough. (till) I am not satisfied for he capable of a better performance than he showed Saturday night. He is a superb boxer and carries a lethal wallop in both hands, but lack of confidence has hindered him. However, he is just a young lad, and I am sure that he will find himself.

Doctor Fitzpatrick, Dean of the Columbus Law School, was up with the squad and we found him a most genial rival. I am looking forward to the meet next year with Coach McNamara's squad in their own ring at Washington, D. C.

SCALP THE SCALPERS

Ticket scalping at the Harvard-Yale football game was picketed by student "sandwich men" whose signs read "Scalp the Scalpers, Scalpers Unfair to Harvard Men." Students reported speculators were asking as much as $50 for a pair of seats for the game.

Intramural Playoffs Between Austin And Fedigan Will Be Waged Tonight

LaBalbo, Wood and Dwyer Mainstays of Blue Shirt Quintet; Wood, Totin and O'Connell Lead Gigolo Attack

It's happened again! Those Gigolos have done it. For the second time this season the Intramural contests have finished in a stalemate. In both occasions Fedigan has been represented, first as the opponent of the Mendel Day Students and now with the redoubtable Austin clan under the expert tutelage of Father McKee.

"Battle of Century" Looms

Both teams are keyed up for the ensuing "Battle of the Century," and great plans are being made. With such able basketeers as Totin, Woods and O'Connell representing the West Enders and LaBalbo, Waad and Dwyer doing the sharpshooting for the Blue Shirts, a rare treat is in store for anyone witnessing this fracas. It is truly the "Dream Battle of Villanova."

While your writer was perusing over the abundant statistics, he noticed that the Fedigan quintet had won all their encounters by actual play, while the Austin contingent had garnered one game from the tough Mendel Day-Hops by virtue of a forfeit. In comparing the scores of the respective clubs it is interesting to note that there is little, if any difference, between them. This all points to a close and eventful court spectacle.

Pacing the Fediganites, we find Al Woods, third highest scorer in the league, whose fine cutting and expert passing has featured the West Enders' offense all season. In his Intramural ventures, he has been successful in collecting a total of 43 markers for the second half. In addition to Woods, we notice Goumey, "Buzz" Hart, Johnny Costello, Mike Totin and Bud O'Connell who have been responsible for many of the West Enders' points. On Totin falls the responsibility of bringing up the ball while O'Connell cuts for the passes. It is largely through these lads, together with several others, that the Fedigan quintet has been able to finish where it has.

Austinites Improved

While the Fediganites have been gathering victories, their campus brothers from Austin Hall have not been idle. They have been annexing their share of the contests. Showing a greatly improved team over the first half the Austinites have been able to create a deadlock for that coveted first place spot.

Under the fine leadership of "Pete" LaBalbo, Tim Waad and Jimmy Dwyer, they have emerged from the depths of defeat in the first session of the league to the heights of glory in the final bracket. LaBalbo, who may be distinguished by his sharp cutting and accurate shooting, has been the leading scorer on the club. Following close at his heels are Dwyer and Waad who are no mean task to handle. Joe Bochetto, Frank Connors and Vic Sandor of the Blue Shirt quintet are also capable and dangerous. Fedigan will do well not to underestimate their rivals.

In looking back over the past year we are able to note the great success attained by both Halls, and can see what we may expect of the two dorms. Fedigan inaugurated the year by copping the Connelly plaque and making creditable showings in Amateur night, Swimming meet and the unfinished tennis tourney. On the other hand Austin has been doing themselves honorably by coming in second in both the Amateur night and Swimming meet. In the first half basketball competition they were not so fortunate, having to be contented with third position.

This Intramural spectacle will be played tonight prior to the Freshman game which precedes the Providence-Villanova contest.

BASKETEERS WIN RUTGERS GAME

Drop C. C. N. Y. and St. Francis Contests on Metropolitan Trip

ture Lou Dubino, cutting under the hoop, laid one up to tie the score at 28-28. From this point on it was all Villanova, as the Main Liners took the lead and increased it as the game continued.

Johnny Krutulis once again turned in a brilliant performance and led the Villanova scoring with 12 points. George Buttle, the elongated Rutgers' center, sparkplugged the home team's attack with a dozen markers.

Lose to C. C. N. Y.

On George Washington's birthday the Blue team travelled to New York and lost to the C. C. N. Y. quintet, 46-27 in their most disastrous rout of the season. Fifteen hundred rabid fans jammed the Beaver gym to see City take an early lead on double-deckers by Goldstein, Fliegal, Rosenberg, and Jarmon before Montgomery finally got loose underneath and scored the 'Cats' first markers on a layup. Goldstein and Fliegal continued their scoring jubilee and built up City's lead to 20-11 at the halftime.

Goldstein and Fliegal showed no intentions of slackening their pace during the second half, and as a result the Lavender ran the score to 34-19 despite the fine individual performance of Bill Sinnott.

Nat Holman's brilliant outfit, employing a fast cut with remarkable success, ran the score up to 46-22, when the Wildcats loosed a five-point splurge at the final whistle. Sinnott and Vigilante were high for the Blue with seven points apiece, while Fliegal and Goldstein tossed in 15 and 10 counters respectively.

St. Francis Met

St. Francis took the Wildcats on and over the following night in their bandbox court to the tune of 43-37. Villanova took an early lead on baskets by Dubino and Duzminski, but the Terriers tied the count at 9-all. From their on it was nip and tuck with St. Francis leading 22-20 at halftime through the fine shooting of Danny Lynch and Jim Naughton.

Vigilante's foul at the start of the last half pulled the Blue within one point of their adversaries, but it was the closest they came to the lead for the remainder of the embroglio. Lenowicz and Uziekewicz led the Terriers to a 33-23 lead which Villanova quickly cut to 33-27, but seemed to shoot its bolt on the rally. From there St. Francis went on to win rather handily. Naughton laid up 12 points for the victors, while Jim Montgomery and Art Vigilante amassed 16 scores between them to lead the 'Cats.

In the opening bout of the evening, George Marker, Columbus 118 pounder received the verdict over Villanova's Jim Mulroy. Mulroy after losing the first two rounds, came off the floor to drop Marker for a short count in the final. The advantage, however was to great for him to overcome.

Things were evened up when Mike Ariano slammed Ray Morse from pillar to post in the next bout. It was evident that Ariano was in shape for the match, as Morse did not have a chance with him in the ring. Everything Ariano did seemed to be just right.

Pantaleo Loses

The 135 pound class had Carl Pantaleo making his debut in the squared circle after a two years lay off, against lanky Jim Willis who made short work of the little Villanova battler.

Pantaleo had too much to contend with, as his foe towered above him. However he did land several nice punches in the early momeats of the fight. Willis took things easy, as his long reach enabled him to chalk up points by the dozen.

A hot scrap developed in the middleweight battle with Bob Mentzinger claiming the winner's honors. The Germantown gunner started off by pinning Bill Crum against the ropes early in the first round, and landing effectively in the remainder of the round. Both boys came back in the second round, and the third found them slugging it out in mid ring with neither gaining the advantage.

Johnny Nojunas continued on the unbeaten path with a laudable win over a more experienced fighter in the visiting Dave Schlaifer. The local boy's aggressiveness served him well in winning the tilt. Schlaifer was content with a fancy display of weaving and ducking, sometimes landing hard on Nojunas' face. A hard blow which drew blood from Schlaifer's nose in the final round contributed to the Villanovan's cause.

A mild surprise was in store for Villanova rooters in the semi-final. The two fighters Ben Morkun, local standard bearer in the light-heavy weight division, and Lou Hayman fought evenly from the opening gong to the final. However, Referee Frank Floyd, in the splendor of a tuxedo, awarded the decision to Morkun.

Both boys were out on their feet in the third and then climaxed the action by sprawling on the ring floor, tired from throwing haymakers that seldom landed.

The scheduled match with Temple University carded for the Main Line on March 2, was cancelled by the Philadelphians. Coach Ray Gadsby has been burning the wires in an attempt to secure an opponent for that evening, and it is a certainty that the 'Cats will be in action against a suitable foe.

ST. FRANCIS PREP HOLDS SCHOLASTIC SWIMMING DIADEM

Brooklyn School Retains Crown Won Last Year in Catholic Meet

B JOHN L. SIMONS

For the second time in as many years the swimming team of St. Francis Prep of Brooklyn captured the National Catholic Interscholastic Swimming Championship. In the meet held in the Villanova pool last Tuesday the St. Francis natators gained a one-sided victory at the expense of the most brilliant field in the meet's four year history. The competition was keen in all the events, and five new records were written into the books.

Steingass Breaks Records

Henry Steingass, lanky 17-year-old freestyler from La Salle Prep in Philadelphia, was the outstanding individual performer. Not only was he a double winner, but he broke two records in winning the 50 and 100 yard freestyle races. In the opening event he sped through the 50 yard race in the fast time of 24.9 seconds, setting a new meet and pool record. Then he came back a few minutes later with a 55.8 100 to lower the meet standard for that distance.

With all this brilliance and another first place by Joe Gavaghan in the 220, La Salle could do no better than fourth in the meet. St. Francis' winning total was 54 points; West Catholic gained the runnerup position with 25½, and North Catholic nosed La Salle out for third with 22 to La Salle's 20. Regis High School of New York, Brooklyn Prep, South Catholic, St. Joe's, Roman Catholic, and St. Thomas More were the also-rans.

From Steingass' thrilling performance in the meet's opener till the end the races were hotly contested with few exceptions. Immediately after the record-breaking 50 Ed Vacca smashed the meet record for the 100 yard breaststroke to start St. Francis on the way to victory. DeLone of St. Joe's pushed him hard.

La Salle Gains Lead

Joe Gavaghan gave La Salle a temporary lead when he swam a good, steady race to take the 220 freestyle. Jim Fiedler, co-captain of North Catholic and defending champion in the backstroke, repeated his victory of last year but couldn't hit the record of 1:07.2 set in 1936 by Lynch, the one-legged swimmer from St. Francis.

After the 100 yard freestyle, in which Steingass romped home 30 feet ahead of his nearest foe, came the diving competition. Hugh Quinn of the victorious Franciscans gave a great exhibition, amassing a winning total of some 60 points in the fact of very critical judging.

ST. JOHN'S QUINT MEETS BLUE FIVE IN SATURDAY TILT

Red Men to Test 'Cat Defense in Final Home Contest; Bush Leads at Back

By TOM O'MAHONEY

Villanova's basketball Wildcats meet their sternest test of the home season Saturday night when the Redmen from St. John's University invade the Main Line Field House in what promises to be a jitting climax to the most successful season in years.

As Strong As C. C. N. Y.

Winners of 13 out of 17 games to date, the Redmen look to be as strong as City College, a team they defeated in January. In their only Philadelphia appearance to date, the Warriors from Flatbush crushed St. Joseph's Mighty Mites at Convention Hall. Also listed among the Redmen conquests are Fordham, Seton Hall, Duke, and Illinois Wesleyan.

Leading the invaders' strong attack will be Captain Gerry Bush, one of the standout performers in the New York area for three years. The tall pivot man has scored 184 points in 16 games to date, and is generally conceded to be the finest ball-handler in the city. George Palmer, flashy junior, and the tallest man on the squad, is noted for his uncanny accuracy at the foul line, while his running mate Ralph Dolgoff is the playmaker of the paleface Indians, and will be out to flim-flam the 'Cat defense in new and different ways all night. Willie McKeever, second only to Bush as a crowd pleaser, is the only sophomore to crash the starting five, and is to be watched carefully in close. Big Bill Lloyd and Jim Gorman, both juniors, will battle for the other starting pos".

Indians Lead Blue

Joe Lapchick, Redmen mentor, was a member of the Original Celtics, and perennially turns out a fast, smart team as is shown to the 'Cats discomfiture in the all time records of the series between the Blue and the Indians. Since 1925, the teams have met 14 times, with the Brooklynites winning ten game, and the 'Cats on top in only four.

Coach Al Severance will probably start Jim Montgomery, Duke Duzminski, Art Vigilante, Johnny Krutulis and Mike Lazorchak, with big Lou Dubino and Bill Sinnott slated to see plenty of action before the final buzzer. This combination has clicked well in the past, and can be counted on to turn in a good game Saturday. During the past week both Duzminski and Montgomery have been in a scoring slump, though still leading Philadelphia District point-getters. It is hoped that the return to friendly surroundings will allow them to get back into stride.

MILE RELAY TEAM RUNS SECOND TO SETON HALL

Gueteras Makes Strong Bid For First As He Overtakes Owl Anchor Man

Villanova's mile relay team scored again over the trackmen from Temple but finished second to Seton Hall in the latter's annual indoor track meet held in Newark last Monday night, February 21.

Barney Bellew ran first man for the Wildcats and finished close second to the Seton Hall runner. Tom McCabe ran the second leg for Villanova and Bill Dobbins carried the baton the third leg. Dobbins warded off Temple's only bid for second place with a burst of speed near the finish of his lap.

When Bill Gueteras took the baton from Dobbins he was about ten yards behind the Seton Hall anchor man. Bill made a noble bid for first place but fell short only by a few inches at the finish line.

Johnnie Maher, sprint man for Villanova, was eliminated in the semi-finals of the 60-yard handicap dash. Maher also entered the 300-yard dash but his handicap proved too much to overcome and John was eliminated in the trial heat.

the record breakers got to work again. In the 150 yard medley relay a St. Francis team, led by Ed Vacca, ace breaststroker, hung up a new mark.

The meet ended with the most thrilling event of the meet, the 200 yard freestyle relay, won by North Catholic in record time. For the first three legs of the race, North Catholic, West Catholic, and St. Francis were neck and neck. Then the Falcon anchorman, Jack Lumsden, pulled away from the field to win with a "killer-diller" dash down the stretch.

to smooth the edges off the shift. "Clipper" Smith's idea of the Notre Dame shift necessitates a great deal of practice before perfection can be achieved, and so the backs must begin practice earlier than the rest of the squad.

Reliable sources report that the entire team will begin Spring training as soon as weather permits. With such an early start, the football team, the coaches, the faculty, and the student body are looking forward to another successful season with another great team.

tober 23, will be played on Saturday.

American International will be the first of the newcomers to be met by the Blue eleven. Although not a football powerhouse, this team from New England is steadily improving and should be a stiff opening test for the Villanova gridders.

Centre a Strong Team

Muhlenburg and Centre, both newcomers, will be met on successive Saturdays, and both teams are being counted upon to more than extend the Main Line eleven. Muhlenburg has always been one of the strongest of the smaller Colleges in the East, while Centre's Praying Colonels have pulled more than one upset since their immemorial victory over Harvard nearly two decades ago.

Following Centre will be Detroit, who even without "Anvil" Andy Farkas, will be as strong as they usually are. There are Villanova fans who still have not recovered from the last quarter drive the Titans uncorked in last year's fray to almost jeopardize the 'Cats' ranking.

After this contest the Blue will travel to Orangeburg, South Carolina Gamecocks will be met in the sport feature of the Orangeburg County Fair. This contest will mark the first night game of Villanova under "Clipper" Smith's regime: it will take place on Friday, October 28.

Plainsmen Met Here

Auburn's vaunted Plainsmen are the Main Liners next opponents and they will bring a smart fast team, composed mainly of last year's brilliant squad. Jimmy Hitchcock may be gone, but "Spec" Kelly, who replaced Hitchcock when the latter was injured in the middle of the season, will be an even bigger headache. Auburn has been met twice before by the 'Cats, and both games have resulted in ties. This year may see one team finally emerge victorious.

The Temple game comes next and with it the climax of both teams' seasons. Temple, with an all veteran array, will be very much cognizant of last year's 33-0 lacing and will be gunning to avenge that drubbing. Pop Warner is probably planning his strategy now for this one.

Boston U. and Manhattan appear in the last two games, but there is a possibility that the Blue may travel to the sunny climes of California and again meet Loyola. This contest is dependent on the records of the two teams. Boston will again be met in the Hub City, while Manhattan's scalp will be contested for in New York. The Jaspers will be met in either the Polo Grounds or the Yankee Stadium on Thanksgiving day.

GADSBY COMMENTS
on Columbus U. Bouts

AN UNDERRATED Villanova Boxing Team defeated the strongest rival ever met in a series of thrilling matches in the Villanova Field House. I would have been satisfied with a draw, but the manner in which the Villanova boys came through was an agreeable surprise. From their performance Villanova should be represented in the squared circle in the future against any collegiate team in the country.

Big Schools Shy

Efforts have been made to meet practically all of the important schools in the country, but so far I have not had the success in contacting them that I anticipated. It seems as thouught one must not have too good a squad if one expects to meet the older and larger institutions.

In Saturday night's matches, the performances of Duffy, Mentzinger, Nojanas, and Killian, Villanova's giant heavyweight, were outstanding.

Duffy met a Tartar in Parod, but after a strongly-contested first round, he had easy going as he won his fourth consecutive victory. It is my earnest hope that he will be invited to the National Intercollegiates at the University of Virginia held in Charlottesville.

Mentzinger Improves

Mentzinger showed improved form as he emerged victorious over a very stalwart opponent, Crum, Columbia's middleweight representative. Mentzinger had a clear-cut margin and I am happy to say shows improvement with each appearance in the ring.

Nojunas met an erpericenced man in the 165-pound class in Schlaifer, who knew all the tricks of the game and carried a very dangerous right-hand punch. Nojunas won the bout, but his anxiety caused him to suffer some damages that were not necessary.

Ed. Killian received an acid test when he met the rough, rugged and hard punching southpaw, Jim Brown, Columbus' heavyweight representative. After a rather slow two rounds, Eddie woke up, upon receiving a terrific left to the chin at the beginning of the third and then proceeded to administer a trouncing to his opponent. It seems as though Killian must be hurt before he realizes that he has a battle on his hands. I am quite pleased with his performance and I am quite sure that my early predictions about his boxing future will be realized.

The Morkum-Haymann bout was a rough and tumble scrap but both boys were trying all the way. By dint of a rally in the third round, Morkum received the decision.

Carl Pantaleo should be commended on his thrilling exhibition of real college spirit in his bout with Willis, C. U.'s outstanding lightweight. Although Carl was at a disadvantage in height and weight, he caused plenty of trouble and only lost the match by a slim margin.

Jimmy Mulroy received a tough one in my honest opinion, as I thought he ought to have received at least a draw. Jimmy has improved with each appearance and I know he will be one of the bright stars of the Villanova boxing team in the future.

Mike Ariano, Villanova's 125 pound representative, won his bout easily enough. Still I am not satisfied for he capable of a better performance than he showed Saturday night. He is a superb boxer and carries a lethal wallop in both hands, but lack of confidence has hindered him. However, he is just a young lad, and I am sure that he will find himself.

Doctor Fitzpatrick, Dean of the Columbus Law School, was up with the squad and we found him a most genial rival. I am looking forward to the meet next year with Coach McNamara's squad in their own ring at Washington, D. C.

SCALP THE SCALPERS

Ticket scalping at the Harvard-Yale football game was picketed by student "sandwich men" whose signs read "Scalp the Scalpers, Scalpers Unfair to Harvard Men." Students reported speculators were asking as much as $50 for a pair of seats for the game.

SODALITY PROJECT CONTINUES ANNUAL LENTEN DISCUSSION

Western New York Colleges Inaugurate Eighth Symposium at Hotel Statler

PROGRAM BEGINS MARCH 6

New York, Feb. 24 (CU)—The ballroom of the Hotel Statler will be the scene of the first presentation of the 1938 Catholic Collegiate Symposium when the annual Western New York Sodality project inaugurates its eighth season of Lenten activity on Sunday afternoon, March 6.

The Statler presentation will be the first of a series of six appearances to be made by the seven collegiate speakers of the district who form the symposium group. Speaking this year on "The Supremacy of the Spiritual," a discussion of the Church and the State, the collegians will undertake an ambitious and extensive program of Lenten presentations.

Featured on this program will be five performances which the collegians will give in various localities whose invitations to the local speakers to present their discussions on the remaining Sundays of Lent have been accepted.

Following the opening session at the Hotel Statler, the symposium will move to Rochester where, on Sunday evening, March 13, the speakers will appear in the auditorium of the Nazareth Academy. The following Sunday, the group will appear in Pittsburgh. March 27 will see the group appearing for discussion in Erie, Penna. The symposium will then move to Hamilton, Ontario, and give its final Lenten appearance in Albany on Sunday, April 10.

Buffalo, Rochester, and Erie have long been customary scenes of symposium presentations, and it was these three localities that originally comprised the circuit of the speakers' activity.

As has been the yearly custom, the nucleus of the symposium personnel will be made up of the seven district colleges and universities—Canisius, Niagara, St. Bonaventure, D'Youville, Nazareth, Villa Maria and Mercyhurst. This year two other institutions will supply orators when the symposium makes two of its out-of-town appearances. In Albany, St. Rose College will be presented on the program, and on the occasion of the Pittsburg presentation, Mt. Mercy College of that city will supply a local collegiate speaker.

New York, Feb. 24 (NC)—Founding of a proposed Metropolitan Association of Catholic College Editors was brought closer to realization here Wednesday when an organization committee of five reported favorably on the project.

Howard Freshman Invents High Speed Camera For Action Shots

A freshman student at Howard University has developed a process of photographing at a speed more than twice as fast as hitherto possible.

Speeds ranging from 1-1000 to 1-1,500,000 of a second are attained by the new method. Although the general principles of the process have been known for many decades, refinements developed by the student, F. Behn Riggs, Jr., make much higher speeds obtainable.

Riggs has taken pictures with his machine of a golf ball compressed by a golf club, and a bullet stopped in flight as it shattered a bulb. Despite the terrific speeds of the objects, the pictures show very little distortion.

NOTED TECHNICIANS TO CONFER AT N. D.

Notre Dame, Ind., Feb. 24 (NC)—More than 50 of the world's eminent mathematicians, convening here from all parts of the country and from European university centers, have concluded their discussions on algebraic geomtry in a two-day mathemathics symposium sponsored by the University of Notre Dame.

Yale, Harvard, Princeton, the University of Louvain, the Universities of Vienna and Hamburg were among the institutions represented.

Combined Organizations Prepare Initial Concert

Symphonic Band and Glee Club Nearly Ready For Thursday, April 7; Musicians Have Been Practicing Since January

UNDER DIRECTION OF PAUL G. TEEL

By BERT PASSANANTE

Making its initial appearance as a symphonic organization, the Villanova Band will combine in a joint concert with the Glee Club in the Field House on Thursday evening, April 7, according to a recent announcement made by Rev. Joseph I. Boyle, O. S. A., moderator.

Directed by Paul Teel

This will mark the first united effort of the band and the choral group, previously independent organizations. The symphonic band has been in rehearsal since January, under the direction of Paul D. Teel. Included in its musical program are selections from the works of Victor Herbert, along with other semi-classic and novelties.

The Villanova Glee Club has been functioning at various events during the past year. Its music includes a variety of semi-classics, negro spirituals and novelty arrangements. Its thirty members were featured at the annual football banquet conducted at the Bellevue-Stratford in Philadelphia, and at numerous other occasions. The Glee Club will conduct its next concerts on St. Patrick's Day at Mount Carmel Parish and on April 12 at John Wanamaker's. On the latter occasion the Glee Club will render Easter selections.

Villanova has had a marching band since 1876. In 1933, under Rev. Bernard M. Albers, O.S.A., vice-president, it was given new impetus when the services of Paul D. Teel were obtained as director. Under his direction, the band has advanced rapidly until now it ranks on a par with other Eastern colleges.

Mr. Teel has had associations with

SPANISH CLUB PREXY

OLIVER J. VOLPE

VOLPE ELECTED TO FILL VACANCY IN LANGUAGE GROUP

Spanish Club Ballots Senior Education Student to Presidency

Oliver Volpe, senior in the school of Education, was recently elected to the presidency of the Villanova Spanish Club. The reason for a special election was to fill the vacancy left by Alfredo Melian who left a few days ago to attend to some urgent business for his father. His resignation was accepted at the last meeting before his withdrawal.

Club Gets Guitar

Correspondent with this announcement the Rev. Lorenzo, O. S. A. moderator of the group announced that the former president had given his guitar to the club and that the members had decided to learn to sing some Spanish songs.

It was also announced that a committee will be appointed in the near future to investigate the possibility of a Spanish play to be held towards the end of the year in conjunction with the members of the Rosemont Spanish club. Although this has been tried before it has never been planned as definitely as is the case now.

Further meetings of the group are to be held henceforth on Monday evenings immediately after chapel services in room 104.

AUGUSTINIAN GUILD SOCIAL APRIL 26

Committees Meet to Formulate Plans for Annual Card Party, Dance

Plans for the annual Augustinian Seminary Guild card party and dance to be held in the Villanova College gymnasium on April 26 are rapidly nearing completion. Various sub-committees are beginning to function under the able direction of Rev. Edward Dwyer, O.S.A., who has charge of publicity for the affair.

Reports Offers

At a recent meeting of the committees interested in the social Rev. Thomas Gilligan, O.S.A., reported that many generous offers for an extensive advertising program have been submitted by several business and professional friends of the Augustinian Order. A special committee has been appointed to obtain patrons for an unusually attractive printed program for the affair.

It was also announced at this meeting that there would be a special meeting of the men's publicity unit this Thursday evening at eight-thirty in the college gymnasium. Several business and professional men have been contacted and have signified their intention of attending.

When approached for a statement concerning the progress of the plans for the annual party Father Dwyer said: "The results of the organization planned at the first meeting of the members and

SQUIBB LABS TRIP PLANNED BY LOCAL PRE-MEDICAL FRAT

Lambda Kappa Delta Contacts New York Pharmaceutical Company

PINS ARRIVE MONDAY

Members of the Lambda Kappa Delta fraternity discussed plans for a proposed trip to New York in the last week of March as guests of the E. R. Squibb Co.

Conflict Delays Decision

Conflicts between the schedules of the representative freshman and junior members of the organization created difficulty in determining the exact date of the trip. It was, however, definitely agreed upon that Wednesday or Thursday of the last week in March, the week following quarterly examinations, was the best date.

Leonard Flinkman, junior member, who is conducting the negotiations for the trip announced that he would contact the Squibb Company immediately and attempt to definitely determine the date of the trip.

The Squibb Company offers this trip principally to students of the various pharmacy schools in the surrounding area. The Villanova pre-meds, however, have been fortunate in being given this opportunity to visit the laboratories and plant of the company in order to become acquainted with the various phases in the production of commercial drug articles.

Annual Visit

Last year the organization visited the Sharpe and Dohme Mulford laboratories in Glenolden. It seems therefore, that an annual visit to some such laboratory will be a regular feature of the fraternity's activities.

The Squibb Company trip consists of a visit in the morning to the biological laboratories in New

SEMINAR DISCUSSES FOREIGN SITUATION

History Group Presents Arguments on Hitler's Recent Ultimatum to Austria

Dr. Harold F. Hartman, professor of History, led a lively discussion on the present political situation in Europe at the last meet of the history seminar on Wednesday afternoon. The main topic under consideration was the course of events in Austria following the ultimatum of Hitler and the reaction which seems to be a compromise between Germany and Austria.

Discuss Submission

The question was whether the complete submission of Austria to Germany would be favorable or unfavorable to internal and international peace. Various arguments, based on the accounts of the situation in the newspapers, were given for both sides of the argument. Since neither of the arguments were entirely convincing, it was decided that this question should be held over to the next meeting, thus giving the members more time to prepare their materials. This next meeting will be held on Wednesday afternoon, March 16 in the reception room of Mendel Hall.

GIVE BACK ISSUES

Thomas Carbine Selected Chairman Of Junior Week

Third Year Arts Student Will Have Control Over All Class Functions; Open House Omitted; Mother's Day Monday

COMPLETE SOCIAL PROGRAM OUTLINED

JUNIOR WEEK HEAD

THOMAS J. CARBINE

By ROBERT HOWE

Thomas J. Carbine, student in the School of Arts and Philosophy, has been appointed Junior Week Chairman it was disclosed by class officials yesterday. Carbine will have direct supervision over the activities of all committees concerned with the presentation of the annual Junior Week program in May.

Program Announced

Assuming his duties immediately upon his appointment, Chairman Carbine announced that the Junior Week program, as presented by the Class of 1939 this year, will not adhere to the traditional methods as employed by previous classes at Villanova. In order to assure a better harmony in scholastic activity at the college, it has been decided that the annual Open House, presented annually by the students, be omitted from the Junior Week program.

This decision was reached after a consideration of the irregularity that Open House has caused in the functioning of laboratory work in the Science and Technology Schools. In the past experimental and thesis work in both departments have been interrupted by the Open House program. It has been favored that the omission of Open House from the Junior program will assure satisfactory laboratory conduction without detracting from the usually glamorous social presentations of the Junior Class. Carbine explained that it is probable that in the future Villanova Open House events will be presented at a more opportune time so that it will not interfere with scholastic endeavor.

ALL DEPARTMENTS RELEASE SEMESTER HONOR RANKINGS

10% of Entire Enrollment Attains Excellence in Studies

Although the semester examinations are but memories now, the names of the honor men of each school have only been recently released. The complete lists as viewed on the bulletin boards of the respective schools show that progress has been made both in respect to the number on the various honor rolls and to the actual averages. In a rough an unofficial survey which used the figure nine hundred as the approximate total enrollment of Villanova College it was estimated that ten per cent of the whole student body have grades of honor calibre. An this is not at all a poor percentage.

Arts, Education Separate

The Rev. John Burns, O.S.A., and Dr. Joseph McHugh, respective deans of the combined schools of Arts and Education, have issued separate rating lists for their schools. However, officially no honor roll is compiled, due to the small enrollments and other reasons best known to the deans. To partially supply this need the names of the three leading students in each class were revealed, regard-

BANMILLER TO ADDRESS SEVERAL HIGH SCHOOLS

Will Attend College Night Programs of Hammontown and Norristown

Paetrus Banmiller, registrar of the college, is busy filling speaking engagements and attending College Nite programs at several nearby high schools.

He attended the College Nite program at Moorestown, New Jersey High School on Friday, March 4th. On Wednesday, March 9th, he is to speak on "The Value of a College Education" before the students of Hammonton, N. J. High School.

Mr. Banmiller has also accepted an invitation to attend the College Nite program at Norristown Senior High School.

BETA GAMMA PLANS NEW JERSEY TRIP

Visit Georgian Court, Rutgers, Upsala March 16 and 17

Three debates have been definitely arranged by the Beta Gamma Debating Society for Tuesday and Wednesday, March 15th and 16th. All will take place on one extended trip to New Jersey. Georgian Court will be met at Lakewood; Rutgers at New Brunswick; and Upsala at East Orange. Joseph McNarama, Thomas Delate and Fred Waters will make the three day trip. At each of the Colleges to be visited, the Villanova team will uphold the negative side of the National Labor Relations Board question.

Debate Shippensburg

During the past week a very interesting debate, conducted on the Oregon style, was held at Villanova with a visiting team from Shippensburg State Teachers College. Robert E. O'Brien and John J. Harrington represented Villanova.

That the Oregon style adds greatly to the interest in a debate from the spectator's viewpoint became very evident during the course of the discussion. A cross-examination, growing very heated at times, provided much entertainment for the audience. In this debate Villanova spoke for the affirmative on the National Labor Relations Board question.

This afternoon Dayton University of Ohio, will engage a home team consisting of John Simons, John Harrington, and Joseph Me-

REGISTER FOREIGN PROPAGANDA

A GREAT part of foreign propaganda is false, put forth by irresponsible forces.

The new method of warfare is attack from within. Appealing to dissatisfied elements, racial pride, promising friendship, economic reward, higher social standing, and playing on prejudices, a foreign nation with dishonorable intentions will bore from within the proposed victim.

To mention a few examples, we mention the propaganda wars now in progress in South America, Austria, Asia Minor. Our own United States is not free from this menace. Daily Communists and Fascists pour forth fulminations inconsistent with our principles of government. The danger of such propaganda is that it weakens our country, endangers our neutrality, and tends to revolution.

The Committee on Un-American Activities found that "the National Socialist German Labor Party, through its various agencies, furnished tons of propaganda literature, which in most cases was smuggled into the country. Some of it, however, came through our Customs because there is no law against it."

Communist propaganda mills admit taking orders from Moscow, and desiring a revolution in the U. S.

The Congressional Committee did not investigate Fascist propaganda from Italy, for fear of alienating the Italian vote, but one may be sure that a goodly portion of the 154,000,000 lire budgeted for propaganda abroad was used for the U. S.

Every bit of foreign propaganda should be registered with the name of the one responsible for it. If it is true, there is no reason why propagandists should be afraid to stand in back of it. Rather they should welcome the opportunity to show their good faith. Then why do foreign representatives oppose the proposed measure?

We do not advocate that propaganda be barred entirely from the country, for that would be an undesired censorship, but we can have agencies of foreign propaganda register their material in Washington so that there will be somebody responsible for the truth or falsity of such literature.

ST. THOMAS AQUINAS

YESTERDAY was celebrated the Feast of St. Thomas Aquinas, the greatest of the doctors of the Catholic Church and one of the greatest of all men of all time.

Thomas, son of the Count of Aquino, was sent to a Benedictine monastery at the age of five years. When a young man, he chose the life of a monk-scholar. Noted for his simplity, his wisdom, and his purity, Thomas died at Fossa Nuova, in Italy, on March 7, 1274.

Six hundred sixty-four years have passed since Thomas returned to the God who inspired him while in this world. Six hundred sixty-four years have passed since the "dumb-ox of Sicily" (as his unappreciative school chums used to call him) finished his laborious undertaking of writing the monumental Summa Theologica, Summa Contra Gentiles, De Vera Religione, and De Regimine Principum . . . not to mention countless other smaller works. Philosophers have come and gone since the times of Thomas. Nations have risen, crumbled, and risen again from the dust since the time of Thomas.

Today, out of the valley of the shadow, the figure of Thomas looms greater than ever before. It is the particular character of Thomistic philosophy that today it has a following perhaps larger than ever before. And this following is not limited to Catholics, but includes many outside the Catholic faith. Truly, Thomas, the Common Doctor, wrote a philosophy universal.

The importance of Thomas to the Catholic college student of today is that he offers the philosophical rock rising out of the sea of Marxian dialectical materialism. Against the blind determinism of the Marxian philosophers who see man as an economic animal acting as economic forces predestine him, Thomas raises the exalted position of man by showing what a magnificent creature is this man of reason. The Marxist see the world as a center of chaos and ceaseless class struggle. Thomas had the sublime vision of a world perfectly coordinated. Order is the very keynote of the philosophy of Thomas. Everything has its place, its function, its final end. Everything in the universe is part of a hierarchial system progressing orderly toward perfection for the glory of God Almighty.

Well might the Catholic college student pause each evening before studies commence and reverently murmer: "St. Thomas Aquinas, patron of scholars, pray for us." Thomas, champion of Christian philosophy, is our stronghold. Let us use him.

CONGRATULATIONS

Students, you have again shown yourselves as true Villanova men by your excellent co-operation with the authorities in regard to your attitude and attire in the dining hall. Because of your earnestness and sincerity, conditions have been greatly improved and give every indication of continuing. Congratulations, and keep up your good work.

ODDS and ENDS

By Tom O'Mahoney

DID YOU know that there is an aeroplane funelage lying under the stadium? Neither did we, and so far we can't find anyone who does know anything about it. Being curious we've decided to offer a brand new package of Lifesavers, any flavor, to the one who can best explain the whole thing. So get to work and win this valuable prize, you amateur sleuths. There is only one condition. All entrants must produce a piece of Jim Dwyer's afghan as evidence of good faith.

We were shocked no end when we saw that typographical error in this column made Jim Quigley's current pash seem a rather grim number. It all came about when the linotyper set up "not-so-lovely" where we had written "not-so-lonely" in reference to the up-state lad's present heartburn.

Manager, Earle Theatre: Not all those Benny Goodman fans who stood in line outside your box-office last week were high school lads. Our own frosh swing bugs made up a good part of the queue that extended two blocks. Joe McHugh: Who and what is preventing your roomie, "Pop" Moynihan, from thinking of eating and sleeping and is turning him to the classics? Add Suggestions: The one which asserts the Pie Shop should install straps hanging from the ceiling so that noon-time diners could dangle a la subway as they eat.

Le Jass Hot

Those nickel-in-the-slot jive artists certainly seem to go for the Benny Goodman records in the Pie Shop. From a swing standpoint, however, it does seem odd that such platters as "Camel Hop" and "Life Goes To A Party" should bring down the house. Both are strictly commercial waxings with little to commend them. On neither are the truly fine capabilities of Goodman's men shown, but rather these disks blast out some very wet clarinet and traps with very ordinary work by the brass team of the self-styled "Greatest Swing Band." On the other hand, the same ork, obviously under a Fletcher Henderson influence, turns in two nice performances on "Don't Be That Way" and "One O'Clock Jump." Only a bit of very minus work by Goodman himself mars the former cutting, the melody being one of those catchy Henderson riffs repeated again and again. Teddy Wilson gives on a solid piano introduction to "One O'clock," and there are good trombone and trumpet passages in the same release.

College Chatter

By Joe Alessandroni

DARK desolation grips college
Depression, recession; taxes
men today,
few can pay.
Democracy despairs the useless war
it fought,
Dictators defeat the lessons it taught.
Disheartened, downcast men are unemployed,
Dreams declared in college are only a void.
Degeneracy deface society in thought and word,
Deletorious demagogues demand to
be heard.
Discrimination dies; ephemeral artifices are worshipped,
Divertisement displays retrogressions, 'tis whispered.
Duplicity drinks hope from drugged
hearts,
Daily, deathly dirges, like this, are bitter tarts.
Denoting decrepit minds that should stop and reflect,
Doleful ditties dismember, what optimism may perfect.

The Observer

"FALSEHOOD is a recognized and extremely useful weapon in warfare and every country uses it quite deliberately to deceive its own people, to attract neutrals, and to mislead the enemy," writes Sir Arthur Ponsonby in his famous FALSEHOOD IN WAR-TIME.

We might easily apply this to any European country, but to be more specific, we'll fry ole' John Bull. As everyone knows (except Americans) England is notorious for her suave diplomatic corps. They can promise more and give less than an American politician. For an example of this, we refer to the World War. During that War, England had control of all cables coming to America; she was good enough to give us several of her ace reporters; and she even sent over a couple of nice German spies for our spy scares.

To ease her own conscience, England invented the story of poor, bleeding, defenceless Belgium. Helpless Belgium attacked by the Gray German hordes. Hmph . . . France had the same intentions but she would have flooded Belgium with Blue hordes.

What's the difference? One just of a darker color. No other.

The main, the real difference is that of American support. American Money! American boys!

We were suckers for that in Seventeen!

Today?

To revert to Mr. Ponsonby, here is his opinion (and ours, too): "Finding now that elaborate and carefully staged deceptions were practiced on them, they feel a resentment which has not only served to open their eyes but may induce them to make their children keep their eyes open when the next bugle sounds."

We hope that America has learned her lesson. Have you?

Student One: "First Hitler says that the women must have larger families. He even gives them a bonus for having extra flush families. Well, that's fine. But a few years later this same Austrian paper hanger says he must have colonies to take care of the expanding population. It seems to me that Hitler is putting the cart before the horse."

Student Two: "That's just a blind. You can't read the truth in most papers . . . they just print propaganda. The real reason for the unrest in Europe is simply a great need by Hitler for youngsters who can be used as cannon fodder. All this noise about colonies is just the back stage setting for the Second World War."

Student One: "Second World War! Say, fellow, don't say things like that. Second World War indeed! You speak as if it were coming real soon."

Student Three: "Yessir, the War is almost here. Congress just appropriated more than a billion dollars for the Navy alone. We aren't spending money for nothing."

Student One: "Yep, like Hitler's little brown babies, we'll all be marching away . . . and soon."

Student Three: "They'll not get me."

Student Two: "Nor me, either!"

Student One: "Brother, you ain't got a thing to say about it. When you're called, you go . . . that's all there is to it."

Student Three: "I know one way . . . it's sure. All you do is pick some country like Argentina, work your way dow nnon a boat, learn Spanish, and then become a citizen of Argentina. You're lots safer down there, and anyhow I always had a soft spot in my heart for the Spanish . . . especially the senoritas."

Student One: "Did you say that the Argentine Consul's address is 17 Battery Place, New York?"

Student Two: "Okay boys, I'm writing too."

Student Four: "Heck with that, I'm going joining the R. O. T. C. today."

Student One: "That's what a lot of dead college boys thought 20 years ago. What's left of them is now food for poppies in Flanders Fields."

Half an hour passes while Students One, Two, and Three talks with Student Four. Finally. . . .

Student Four: "17 Battery Place, eh? Hmmmmm . . . not a bad idea. Not at all a bad idea."

USELESS INFORMATION FROM HERE AND THERE: The four outside pillars of the Lincoln Memorial are wider than any of the others. The reason for this is found in the fact that those pillars have a background against the horigon, while the pillars are set in front of the stone memorial. Therefore when one looks at the memorial, an optical illusion makes it appear that the end pillars are the same size as the middle pillars.

One of the most interesting parts of the Washington Monument is the walk down. The Observer tried this. Step by step, as we pass down the stairs, the States are represented by popular native stone blocks set in the walls of the monument.

A one-cent piece dropped from the top of the Empire State Building will sink approximately one and one-half inches into the skull of a normal human being. (Engineers: when checking, please use dummies.)

The English General, Cornwallis, vanquished by the American troops at Yorktown, never surrendered to General Washington, leader of the Revolutionary forces. Washington, wishing to cause the English General no further embarrassment (after fighting with him for seven years) feigned illness and had an aide received the sword of Cornwallis.

Ferdinand Lundberg, in the now celebrated AMERICA'S 60 FAMILIES, tells the following bit of gossip: "When Mrs. Marjorie Post Close Hutton married Joseph E. Davies, Washington corporation lawyer and later Ambassador to Russia, her huge apartment was bedecked with 5000 chrysanthemums that had been dyed blush-pink at a cost of $2000 to match the icing on the 300-pound wedding cake which the establishment's 25 servants, assisted by three caterers, served to 80 wedding guests. The flowers themselves cost $6000. When the Hutton-Davies menage removed to Moscow, it was reported that it ordered transported several carloads of specially prepared foods as well as furniture, iceboxes, electric fans, and other equipment. Several hundred quarts of frozen cream were brought along, to the astonishment of the Russians who pointed out that the country still had cows. During the Summer of 1937, Mrs. Davies ordered two tons of frozen food sent to Moscow for a cruise she and her husband were taking. Mrs. Davies happens to own the major interest in the General Foods Corporation, which specializes in frozen fresh products that are preserved indefinitely."

GIVES SERMON

REV. EDWIN T. GRIMES

PENANCE TOPIC OF TONIGHT'S SERMON

Rev. Edwin T. Grimes, O.S.A., Second Speaker in Lenten Series

Rev. Edwin T. Grimes, O.S.A., will tonight give the regular Tuesday evening conference This new innovation, the Tuesday evening conference, will continue all through the holy season of Lent. The topic on which Father Grimes will speak this evening will be on the Sacrament of Penance, "Give Peace, Oh Lord."

Sin Destroys Peace

The subject matter of Father Grimes' talk will embody the idea and true philosophy that every man wants the peace and the joy of a good conscience. Mortal sin is the only factory of evil that can destroy this peace and joy.

Christ out of His great love and passion for man has instituted the Sacrament of Penance. By this sacrament man can regain the peace of mind and the joy of a good conscience that he de ires if he has lost them through mortal sin. The confessional is not to be thought of as an ordeal, but must be held rather as a source of peace and comfort. We are to remind ourselves of the joy received by Mary Magnalean and the Poor Thief on the Cross, for they found joy and peace in penance.

Varieties

MONDAY: Monday is always a bad day. That old dejected feeling always prevails —working a a bore. While glancing thru exchange papers that arrived that morning we came across a few incidents concerning our boys. For instance, gossip mentions in the "Rambler" of Rosemont, that, "distance may lend enchantment, but Rita Higgins is now perfectly satisfied with the distance between here and Villanova." We wonder why. In the afternoon we came across the following in the "Fournier News" of the "Mount." It says: "After the Home Ec tea, Kay Maher finished dessert and then began all over again—Speaking of Kay, it seems that Isabel McGlynn is not the only Mountie to succumb to the charms of that blond O'Mahony at Villanova—Maker thinks he rates, too—". Continuing we read, "Alberta Slickes not only carries a full roster at the Mount, but also finds time, plenty of time, to major in "Art" at Villanova."

TUESDAY: Morning. Took time to read the VILLANOVAN. We came across a very interesting article concerning Junior activities, exactly, the Blazers. In the article we notice that the committee accepted bids from various houses in Philadelphia and London. Philadelphia and London. Philadelphia. London. London. Hmmm. Oh me!

For the afternoon; Read thru a magazine called "Shear Wit." Exerpts. "A small boy was asked to write an essay in as few words as possible on two of life's greatest problems, He wrote: "Twins."

"And when Mrs. Grubbins sez you wasn't no lidy, wot did you say?" "I sez, two negatives means an infirmary, and I knocks 'er down. She is now in the 'orspital."

At nine o'clock, in the evening of the same day we took time out to listen to Horace Heidt. Now there is swell swing music, as swing should be played. Horace is at complete ease with the mike and presents a homy atmosphere. Larry Cotton is one of the best vocalists I've heard in a long time. While listening to the broadcast we were reading the evening papers (columnists must be versitile) and we noticed that our good friend Kirby Cushing has been appointed public relations director of Villanova College. Kirby will be remembered as the fellow who wore that lucky sweater of a former Villanova footballer at all away games. Incidentally, the sweater now belongs to Mrs. Thommy Lovett.

WEDNSDAY: Wednesday morning always brings in some information for the column from our various scouts thruout the country, (Believe it or not) One piece mentioned that WCAU of Philly is a talent mill for radio. We investigated the matter and present the results. Back in 1922 Wilson Durham directed activities for the station and he started the parade of talent. Ever since he's been picking 'em up and watching 'em waft away. He obtained his talent from four sources; Curtis Institute of Music, Horn and Hardart Kiddy Show (possibly first of kind in history), a weekly open hour on which anybody who wanted to try one of those new fangled microphone things was welcome, ant the nite spots. Curtis provided Mr. Durham with Conrad Thibault, Helen Jepson, Natalie Bodanya and Eugene Lowenthal, now conductor of the CBS choir. Kiddy hour sent up George Brakestone, now in Hollywood, Nicholas Brothers, and Ezra Stone, George Abbott's handyman, Best known of the nitery product is Arthur Tracy who emceed at the Club Lido when you knocked twice and whispered "Charley sent me." Going down the list we find such names as Lyn Murray, Three Keys, Jan Savitt, Shirley Howard, Eddie Garr, Al Bernie, Vincent Travers and Alex. Kelbernie.

The "Daniel Boone" for most of this talent was Stan Lee Broza, program director since 1928. Like other scouts, however, he has one list, a select one which he just doesn't talk about. Included on it is Paul Douglass, Chesterfields smooth garbler, Jean Sargent, Ed Rooker of "Pick and Pat." Of WCAU's most touted progeny, Boake Carter, WPEN can say, "He first did English character bits for us."

THURSDAY: Read a newspaper account of a disastrous shipwreck which stated; "The vessel sank with all aboard except one lady passenger. She was insured for a large sum and loaded with pig iron."

That's enough for one day.

Tickertype brought in following information. "Effective March 23, 'Your Hollywood Parade' goes off the ozone and instead brings Kay Kyser to do his Kay Kyser Musical Klass starting on the 30th." The original program was o. k. and we couldn't understand this action. Investigation showed that the program was a case of nobody being too happy due to the restrictions placed on the show by George Washington Hill, prez of the co. Resentment was expressed several times over Hill's insistence on bringing in outside players and each week listing the song numbers that could be used on the air. First intimation of the rift between the studio and Hill came several weeks ago Powell let Hill know in so many words that he didn't care to be told how and when to sing a song.

It is also understood that Hill objected to Powell's rendition of "Dinah." Another objection by Powell was that songs were changed on the afternoon of the program and not allowing enough time for rehearsal.

OF COURSE America was entering the war, Washington was in political upheaval, and President Wilson was having tantrums but the actual cause of the commotion was really the birth of Joseph Alessandroni in the little town of Washington, D. C. At least that is what J. A. modestly informs us.

For the first seven years of his education Joe hibernated in Washington picking up bits of knowledge at the Wilson Normal School. At this point the Alessandroni clan migrated to Philadelphia where Joe finally found himself breaking feminine hearts at Overbrook High School. This phase of his life was short lived however, and after two years he joined the elite group at Friends Central.

Three Letter Man

Although Joe's real talents seem to verge in the direction of delivering (and collecting) addresses he has somewhat of an athletic past. At Overbrook his worth was hidden under the bushel of the Junior varsity teams but he finally broke the letter man's column at Friends Central by making the varsity in football, basketball, and baseball. Here may we issue a warning to his friends not to refer to this past because Joe, modestly of course, claims he once pitched a no-hit, no-run game in 1933. Of course, if you have several hours to spare . . .

Being born in a town bulging with politics and coming from a family obsessed with law Joe very naturally turned to the bar (no cracks) as his destination. With this thought in mind Joe sprawled his John Hancock on the dotted line of a Villanova registration blank.

His first two years were spent "over the hill" in the Commerce and Finance school from which he changed to the Arts school. Always attaining honors in his subjects, J. A. still found time to divulge in extra-curricular activities. Another red letter day in this field is when he pitched a complete inning against Ursinus for the Freshman baseball team.

JOSEPH ALESSANDRONI

Active Student

Joe, entered into every activity afforded and accumulated friends by the bushels. His name has been significant on the campus in connection with the Belle Masque, Debating, 150 lb. football team, VILLANOVAN newspaper, and many others extra curricular activities. His ability as a debater against coed colleges has not been attributed merely to his eloquence as a speaker. (Need we say more).

Now we find Joe rounding out his college career with a Bachelor of Arts as his next goal to be reached. For the last few years he has been conspicuous by his "Beau Brummel" attire but now that the Upper Darby High School girls are calling him "Mister," "Beau Brummel" can be considered extinct.

In his Senior year he reached the position on the VILLANOVAN staff as a columnist and his College Chatter became widely read for its originality and humor. Poetry is another talent that beams forth in Joe's journalistic capacity.

So now we leave Joseph Alessandroni with his contagious smile, easy winner, and fluent speech, hopefully waiting for news of his acceptance of law school. Also we leave him with our assurance that he will succeed in the field of law . . . whether they retain women jurors or not.

REGISTER FOREIGN PROPAGANDA

A GREAT part of foreign propaganda is false, put forth by irresponsible forces.

The new method of warfare is attack from within. Appealing to dissatisfied elements, racial pride, promising friendship, economic reward, higher social standing, and playing on prejudices, a foreign nation with dishonorable intentions will bore from within the proposed victim.

To mention a few examples, we mention the propaganda wars now in progress in South America, Austria, Asia Minor. Our own United States is not free from this menace. Daily Communists and Fascists pour forth fulminations inconsistent with our principles of government. The danger of such propaganda is that it weakens our country, endangers our neutrality, and tends to revolution.

The Committee on Un-American Activities found that "the National Socialist German Labor Party, through its various agencies, furnished tons of propaganda literature, which in most cases was smuggled into the country. Some of it, however, came through our Customs because there is no law against it."

Communist propaganda mills admit taking orders from Moscow, and desiring a revolution in the U. S.

The Congressional Committee did not investigate Fascist propaganda from Italy, for fear of alienating the Italian vote, but one may be sure that a goodly portion of the 151,000,000 lire budgeted for propaganda abroad was used for the U. S.

Every bit of foreign propaganda should be registered with the name of the one responsible for it. If it is true, there is no reason why propagandists should be afraid to stand in back of it. Rather they should welcome the opportunity to show their good faith. Then why do foreign representatives oppose the proposed measure?

We do not advocate that propaganda be barred entirely from the country, for that would be an undesired censorship, but we can have agencies of foreign propaganda register their material in Washington so that there will be somebody responsible for the truth or falsity of such literature.

ST. THOMAS AQUINAS

YESTERDAY was celebrated the Feast of St. Thomas Aquinas, the greatest of the doctors of the Catholic Church and one of the greatest of all men of all time.

Thomas, son of the Count of Aquino, was sent to a Benedictine monastery at the age of five years. When a young man, he chose the life of a monk-scholar. Noted for his simplity, his wisdom, and his purity, Thomas died at Fossa Nuova, in Italy, on March 7, 1274.

Six hundred sixty-four years have passed since Thomas returned to the God who inspired him while in this world. Six hundred sixty-four years have passed since the "dumb-ox of Sicily" (as his unappreciative school chums used to call him) finished his laborious undertaking of writing the monumental Summa Theologica. Summa Contra Gentiles, De Vera Religione, and De Regimine Principum . . . not to mention countless other smaller works. Philosophers have come and gone since the times of Thomas. Nations have risen, crumbled, and risen again from the dust since the time of Thomas.

Today, out of the valley of the shadow, the figure of Thomas looms greater than ever before. It is the particular character of Thomistic philosophy that today it has a following perhaps larger than ever before. And this following is not limited to Catholics, but includes many outside the Catholic faith. Truly, Thomas, the Common Doctor, wrote a philosophy universal.

The importance of Thomas to the Catholic college student of today is that he offers the philosophical rock rising out of the sea of Marxian dialectical materialism. Against the blind determinism of the Marxian philosophers who see man as an economic animal acting as economic forces predestine him, Thomas raises the exalted position of man by showing what a magnificent creature is this man of reason. The Marxist see the world as a center of chaos and ceaseless class struggle. Thomas had the sublime vision of a world perfectly coordinated. Order is the very keynote of the philosophy of Thomas. Everything has its place, its function, its final end. Everything in the universe is part of a hierarchial system progressing orderly toward perfection for the glory of God Almighty.

Well might the Catholic college student pause each evening before studies commence and reverently murmer: "St. Thomas Aquinas, patron of scholars, pray for us." Thomas, champion of Christian philosophy, is our stronghold. Let us use him.

CONGRATULATIONS

Students, you have again shown yourselves as true Villanova men by your excellent co-operation with the authorities in regard to your attitude and attire in the dining hall. Because of your earnestness and sincerity, conditions have been greatly improved and give every indication of continuing. Congratulations, and keep up your good work.

ODDS and ENDS

By Tom O'Mahoney

DID YOU know that there is an aeroplane fuselage lying under the stadium? Neither did we, and so far we can't find anyone who does know anything about it. Being curious we've decided to offer a brand new package of Lifesavers, any flavor, to the one who can best explain the whole thing. So get to work and win this valuable prize, you amateur sleuths. There is only one condition. All entrants must produce a piece of Jim Dwyer's afghan as evidence of good faith.

We were shocked no end when we saw that typographical error in this column made Jim Quigley's current push seem a rather grim number. It all came about when the linotyper set up "not-so-lovely" where we had written "not-so-lonely" in reference to the up-state lad's present heartburn.

Manager, Earle Theatre: Not all those Benny Goodman fans who stood in line outside your box-office last week were high school lads. Our own frosh swing bugs made up a good part of the queue that extended two blocks. Joe McHugh: Who and what is preventing your roomie, "Pop" Moynihan, from thinking of eating and sleeping and is turning him to the classics? Add Suggestions: The one which asserts the Pie Shop should install straps hanging from the ceiling so that noon-time diners could dangle a la subway as they eat.

Le Jass Hot

Those nickel-in-the-slot jive artists certainly seem to go for the Benny Goodman records in the Pie Shop. From a swing standpoint, however, it does seem odd that such platters as "Camel Hop" and "Life Goes To A Party" should bring down the house. Both are strictly commercial waxings with little to commend them. On neither are the truly fine capabilities of Goodman's men shown, but rather these disks blast out some very wet clarinet and traps with very ordinary work by the brass team of the self-styled "Greatest Swing Band." On the other hand, the same ork, obviously under a Fletcher Henderson influence, turns in two nice performances on "Don't Be That Way" and "One O'Clock Jump." Only a bit of very minus work by Goodman himself mars the former cutting, the melody being one of those catchy Henderson riffs repeated again and again. Teddy Wilson gives on a solid piano introduction to "One O'clock," and there are good trombone and trumpet passages in the same release.

College Chatter

By Joe Alessandroni

DARK desolation grips college
Depression, recession; taxes
men today,
few can pay.
Democracy despairs the useless war
it fought,
Dictators defeat the lessons it
taught.
Dishcartened, downcast men are unemployed,
Dreams declared in college are only
a void.
Degeneracy deface society in thought and word,
Deletorious demagogues demand to
be heard.
Discrimination dies; ephemeral artifices are worshipped,
Divertisement displays retrogressions, 'tis whispered.
Duplicity drinks hope from drugged
hearts,
Daily, deathly dirges, like this, are bitter tarts.
Denoting decreoit minds that should stop and reflect.
Doleful ditties dismember, what optimism may perfect.

The Observer

"FALSEHOOD is a recognized and extremely useful weapon in warfare and every country uses it quite deliberately to deceive its own people, to attract neutrals, and to mislead the enemy," writes Sir Arthur Ponsonby in his famous FALSEHOOD IN WAR-TIME.

We might easily apply this to any European country, but to be more specific, we'll fix ole' John Buil. As everyone knows (except Americans) England is notorious for her suave diplomatic corps. They can promise more and give less than an American politician. For an example of this, we refer to the World War. During that War, England had control of all cables coming to America; she was good enough to give us several of her ace reporters; and she even sent over a couple of nice German spies for our spy scares.

To ease her own conscience, England invented the story of poor, bleeding, defenceless Belgium. Helpless Belgium attacked by the Gray German hordes. Hmph . . . France had the same intentions but she would have flooded Belgium with Blue hordes.

What's the difference? One just of a darker color. No other.

The main, the real difference is that of American support. American Money! American boys!

We were suckers for that in Seventeen!

Today?

To revert to Mr. Ponsonby, here is his opinion (and ours, too); "Finding now that elaborate and carefully staged deceptions were practiced on them, they feel a resentment which has not only served to open their eyes but may induce them to make their children keep their eyes open when the next bugle sounds."

We hope that America has learned her lesson. Have you?

Student One: "First Hitler says that the women must have larger families. He even gives them a bonus for having extra flush families. Well, that's fine. But a few years later this same Austrian paper hanger says he must have colonies to take care of his expanding population. It seems to me that Hitler is putting the cart before the horse."

Student Two: "That's just a blind. You can't read the truth in most papers . . . they just print propaganda. The real reason for this rumpus is simply a great need by Hitler for youngsters who can be used as cannon fodder. All this noise about colonies is just the back stage setting for the Second World War."

Student One: "Second World War! Say, fellow, don't say things like that. Second World War indeed! You speak as if it were coming real soon."

Student Three: "Yessir, the War is almost here. Congress just appropriated more than a billion dollars for the Navy alone. We aren't spending money for nothing."

Student One: "Yep, like Hitler's little brown babies, we'll all be marching away . . . and soon."

Student Three: "They'll not get me."

Student Two: "Nor me, either!"

Student One: "Brother, you ain't got a thing to say about it. When you're called, you go . . . that's all there is to it."

Student Three: "I know one way . . . It's sure. All you do is pick some country like Argentina, work your way dow mon a boat, learn Spanish, and then become a citizen of Argentina. You're lots safer down there, and anyhow I always had a soft spot in my heart for the Spanish . . . especially the senoritas."

Student One: "Did you say that the Argentine Consul's address is 17 Battery Place, New York?"

Student Two: "Okay boys, I'm writing too."

Student Four: "Heck with that, I'm going joining the R. O. T. C. today."

Student One: "That's what a lot of dead college boys thought 20 years ago. What's left of them is now food for poppies in Flanders Fields."

Half an hour passes while Students One, Two, and Three talks with Student Four. Finally, . . .

Student Four: "17 Battery Place, eh? Hmmmmm . . . not a bad idea. Not at all a bad idea."

USELESS INFORMATION FROM HERE AND THERE: The four outside pillars of the Lincoln Memorial are wider than any of the others. The reason for this is found in the fact that these pillars have a background against the horizon, while the pillars are set in front of the stone memorial. Therefore when one looks at the memorial, an optical illusion makes it appear that the end pillars are the same size as the middle pillars.

One of the most interesting parts of the Washington Monument is the walk down. The Observer tried this. Step by step, as we pass down the stairs, the States are represented by popular native stone blocks set in the walls of the monument.

A one-cent piece dropped from the top of the Empire State Building will sink approximately one and one-half inches into the skull of a normal human being. (Engineers: when checking, please use dummies.)

The English General, Cornwallis, vanquished by the American troops at Yorktown, never surrendered to General Washington, leader of the Revolutionary forces. Washington, wishing to cause the English General no further embarrassment (after fighting with him for seven years) feigned illness and had an aide received the sword of Cornwallis.

Ferdinand Lundberg, in the now celebrated AMERICA'S 60 FAMILIES, tells the following bit of gossip: "When Mrs. Marjorie Post Close Hutton married Joseph E. Davies, Washington corporation lawyer and later Ambassador to Russia, her huge apartment was bedecked with 5000 chrysanthemums that had been dyed blush-pink at a cost of $2000 to match the icing on the 300-pound wedding cake which the establishment's 25 servants, assisted by three caterers, served to 50 wedding guests. The flowers themselves cost $8000. When the Hutton-Davies menage removed to Moscow, it was reported that it ordered transported several carloads of specially prepared foods as well as furniture, ice-boxes, electric fans, and other equipment. Several hundred quarts of frozen cream were brought along, to the astonishment of the Russians who pointed out that the country still had cows. During the Summer of 1937, Mrs. Davies ordered two tons of frozen food sent to Moscow for a cruise she and her husband were taking. Mrs. Davies happens to own the major interest in the General Foods Corporation, which specializes in frozen fresh products that are preserved indefinitely."

GIVES SERMON

REV. EDWIN T. GRIMES

PENANCE TOPIC OF TONIGHT'S SERMON

Rev. Edwin T. Grimes, O.S.A., Second Speaker in Lenten Series

Rev. Edwin T. Grimes, O.S.A., will tonight give the regular Tuesday evening conference This new innovation, the Tuesday evening conference, will continue all through the holy season of Lent. The topic on which Father Grimes will speak this evening will be on the Sacrament of Penance, "Give Peace, Oh Lord."

Sin Destroys Peace

The subject matter of Father Grimes' talk will embody the idea and true philosophy that every man wants the peace and the joy of a good conscience. Moral sin is the only factory of evil that can destroy this peace and joy.

Christ out of His great love and passion for man has instituted the Sacrament of Penance. By this sacrament man can regain the peace of mind and the joy of a good conscience that he desires if he has lost them through mortal sin. The confessional is not to be thought of as an ordeal, but must be held rather as a source of peace and comfort. We are to remind ourselves of the joy received by Mary Magnalean and the Poor Thief on the Cross, for they found joy and peace in penance.

Varieties

MONDAY: Monday is always a bad day. That old dejected feeling always prevails—working is a bore. While glancing thru exchange papers that arrived that morning we came across a few incidents concerning our boys. For instance, gossip mentions in the "Rambler" of Rosemont, that, "distance may lend enchantment, but Rita Higgins is now perfectly satisfied with the distance between here and Villanova." We wonder why. In the afternoon we came across the following in the "Fournier News" of the "Mount." It says: "After the Home Ec tea, Kay Maher finished dessert and then began all over again—Speaking of Kay, it seems that Isabel McGlynn is not the only Mountie to succumb to the charms of that blond O'Mahony at Villanova—Maker thinks he rates, too—". Continuing we read, "Alberta Slickes not only carries a full roster at the Mount, but also finds time, plenty of time, to major in "Art" at Villanova."

TUESDAY: Morning. Took time to read the VILLANOVAN. We came across a very interesting article concerning Junior activities, exactly, the Blazers. In the article we notice that the committee accepted bids from various houses in Philadelphia and London. Philadelphia and London. Philadelphia. London. London. Hmmm. Oh me!

For the afternoon; Read thru a magazine called "Shear Wit." Exerpts. "A small boy was asked to write an essay in as few words as possible on two of life's greatest problems. He wrote: "Twins."

"And when Mrs. Grubbins sez you wasn't no lidy, wot did yer say?" "I sez, two negatives means an infirmary, and I knocks 'er down. She is now in the 'orspital."

At nine o'clock, in the evening of the same day we took time out to listen to Horace Heidt. Now there is swell swing music, as swing should be played. Horace is at complete ease with the mike and presents a homy atmosphere. Larry Cotton is one of the best vocalists I've heard in a long time. While listening to the broadcast we were reading the evening papers (columnists must be versitile) and we noticed that our good friend Kirby Cushing has been appointed public relations director of Villanova College. Kirby will be remembered as the fellow who wore that lucky sweater of a former Villanova footballer at all away games. Incidentally, the sweater now belongs to Mrs. Thommy Lovett.

WEDNSDAY: Wednesday morning always brings in some information for the column from our various scouts thruout the country. (Believe it or not) One piece mentioned that WCAU of Philly is a talent mill for radio. We investigated the matter and present the results. Back in 1922 Wilson Dunham directed activities for the station and he started the parade of talent. Ever since he's been picking 'em up and watching 'em waft away. He obtained his talent from four sources; Curtis Institute of Music, Horn and Hardart Kiddy Show (possibly first of kind in history), a weekly open hour on which anybody who wanted to try one of those new fangled microphones was welcome, and the nite spots. Curtis provided Mr. Durham with Conrad Thibault, Helen Jepson, Natalie Bodanya and Eugene Lowenthal, now conductor of the CBS choir. Kiddy hour sent up George Brakestone, now in Hollywood, Nicholas Brothers, and Ezra Stone, George Abbott's handyman, Best known of the nitery product is Arthur Tracy who emceed at the Club Lido when you knocked twice and whispered "Charley sent me." Going down the list we find such names as Lyn Murray, Three Keys, Jan Savitt, Shirley Howard, Eddie Garr, Al Bernie, Vincent Travers and Alex. Kelbernie.

The "Daniel Boone" for most of this talent was Stan Lee Broza, program director since 1923. Like other scouts, however, he has one link, a select one which he just doesn't talk about. Included on it is Paul Douglass, Chesterfields smooth garbler, Jean Sargent, Ed Roeker of "Pick and Pat." Of WCAU's most touted progeny, Boake Carter, WPEN can say, "He first did English character bits for us."

THURSDAY: Read a newspaper account of a disastrous shipwreck which stated; "The vessel sank with all aboard except one lady passenger. She was insured for a large sum and loaded with pig iron." That's enough for one day.

Tickertype brought in following information. "Effective March 23, 'Your Hollywood Parade' goes off the ozone and instead brings Kay Kyser to do his Kay Kyser Musical Klass starting on the 30th." The original program was o. k. and we couldn't understand this action. Investigation showed that the program was a case of nobody being too happy due to the restrictions placed on the show by George Washington Hill, prez of the co. Resentment was expressed several times over Hill's insistence on bringing in outside players and each week listing the song numbers that could be used on the air. First intimation of the rift between the studio and Hill came several weeks ago Powell let Hill know in so many words that he didn't care to be told how and when to sing a song.

It is also understood that Hill objected to Powell's rendition of "Dinah." Another objection by Powell was that songs were changed on the afternoon of the program and not allowing enough time for rehearsal.

SATURDAY: In the last issue of the VILLANOVAN congrats were proffered to Harold McGrath, '35, on his marriage to Miss Margaret Hattenbach. Well, now we add a few lines.

SCENE: Bowman Room, Hotel Biltmore, New York.

Time: 11:37 P. M., Saturday, February 26.

Occasion: Horace Heidt Program.

HORACE: And now folks we have a very attractive young lady here to interview — what is your name please?

Donahue And Barrett Win Male Lead Parts For "Winterset"

Rosemont Senior Playing Part of Tenement Girl Becomes First Co-Ed to Act in Villanova Presentations

CAST SEES FILM PRODUCTION SATURDAY

By JOHN HARRINGTON

It has recently been announced by Mr. Anthony J. Frayne, director of dramatics at Villanova College that the leads for the annual Belle Masque production "Winterset" have been definitely determined.

In the role of Judge Gaunt, the erring arbiter between right and wrong who drowns Mio's father and suffers in mental anguish to the end of his life, is John Donahue of Mahanoy City, a senior in the School of Commerce and Finance, and president of the dramatic society. He will be remembered for his portrayal of Lieutenant Osborne in the successful "Journey's End" by R. C. Sheriff.

Barrett Is Mio

The character of Mio, a young man out to vindicate the name of his father who died the victim of a vicious gang plot, a cold-blooded judge, and a jury influenced by mob hysteria will be filled by Robert Barrett of Philadelphia, a junior in the School of Arts. He was Captain Stanhope in the "Journey's End." Both the Villanova boys now in rehearsal for the May presentation have considerable experience, including roles in "Cradle Song," produced by the Harcum School for Girls, and "Accent on Youth," produced by the Philadelphia Guild Players.

As the beautiful tenement girl who falls in love with the boy before learning that her own brother was involved in the crime for which Mio's father was executed is Anita Argentieri of New York, a senior from the Rosemont "Jest and Gesture Club."

The actual killer, Trock, demoniacally determined to make the most of the six months he has yet to live upon his release from jail on a minor charge, is being prepared by Robert E. O'Brien, a New Yorker, a sophomore in the School of Commerce and Finance.

Last Saturday afternoon through the courtesy of RKO, producers of the motion picture, a special private showing of "Winterset" was held for thirteen members of the Belle Masque at the Film Center Building in Philadelphia. The full-length picture was enjoyed by Murray Zealor, Joseph MacNamara, Robert Barrett, Ralph Fioretti, Robert O'Brien, Robert Wilderotter, Basil Dobrowolski, Fred Waters, John Harrington, Miss Anita Argentieri, Mr. Anthony Frayne, and Rev. Joseph Boyle, O.S.A.

Brunswick, New Jersey, followed by a trip in the afternoon to Brooklyn, New York to visit the production plant.

Orders for pins and keys were also discussed at the meeting. It was announced by Martin B. Kassell, junior member of the organization, who is in charge of the purchase of these articles, that the pins would be ready for distribution this week.

Fraternity keys, however, will not be distributed at that time, but will be presented to the organization's senior members at its annual dinner dance.

Plans for the dinner dance were seriously considered. It was suggested by some that since the senior class dinner dance, held at the Arcadia International Restaurant, was successful, that the fraternity might also hold its function there. The matter was considered merely as a tentative scene for the function.

The meeting was closed with the announcement that a prominent Philadelphia specialist would be guest speaker at the next meeting of the fraternity two weeks hence.

MUSIC SEMINAR HEARS PIANIST

The Villanova Music Appreciation Seminar will meet this Thursday evening at 7:30 for a hearing of recordings by Paderewski and orchestras playing the works of Rudolph Friml.

The great Polish pianist will be heard at his best in Beethoven's work popularly known under the title of the "Moonlight Sonata." This romantic title is derived from a legend growing around Beethoven's composition. Those who attend the meeting will learn the legend.

Paderewski's rendition of the "Minuet in G" may also be played, for this blind musician's technique is especially loved by the members as well as Rev. John J. Vrana, O. S. A., moderator.

Students Offered Flight Training Aviation Courses

Naval Reserve Unit in Philadelphia Outlines Rules and Regulations

Flight training aviation courses have been offered to candidates from the alumni and senior class of Villanova college by the Naval Reserve Aviation Unit in Philadelphia.

Last year a similar course was offered. The candidate is first subjected to a month of elimination flight at the Naval Reserve Base in Philadelphia followed by a year of advanced flight and ground training at Pensacola, Florida. This rigorous training is culminated with three years of active duty in the aircraft squadron of the fleet.

Must Be Citizens

Candidates must be citizens of the United States between twenty and twenty-eight years of age. Upon entering the course the applicant agrees to remain on active duty for a period of four years including the time spent in training at Pensacola.

After a student has accepted the appointment he should agree to maintain flying efficiency so far as is practicable by associating himself with a Naval Reserve Aviation Unit, after completing his training and required active duty.

College graduates, particularly those who have pursued the engineering course, are preferred for appointment. If however, a student is not a graduate he may be accepted upon the presentation of a certificate signed by the registrar of a recognized college. This certificate should show that the candidate has satisfactorily completed one half or more of the necessary credits leading to a degree. Among these necessary credits must be a certain number of mathematic credits such as: a complete treatise as set forth in Robinson's "New Higher Arithmetic," Wentworth's "College Algebra," Wentworth's "Plane and Solid Geometry," plane trigonometry as set forth in Wentworth's "New Plan and Spherical Trigonometry," and Milliken and Gales' "practical Physics," or in other similar recognized standard textbooks of equivalent scope.

Officers To Decide

The name of candidates shall be submitted by the Commandants of the various naval districts throughout the United States to the Bureau of Navigation in Washington. If considered practicable by the Commandant, students will be selected by a board of at least three officers.

On Wednesday evening, May 4, the Class of 1939 will fete the students and alumni with a semi-formal dance. The Blazer Ball will be conducted in the Villanova Field House, featuring the music of the Villanovans.

Highlighting all Junior activity, the Juuior Promenade will be presented in the Field House on Friday night. Preparations for this annual formal are being handled by the Promenade Committee under the chairmanship of Thomas J. Furey. Transactions for this social have been under way since Furey's appointment in December.

Dinner Dance Saturday

The close of Junior week will be celebrated on Saturday evening with a formal Dinner-Dance conducted exclusively for the members of the Class of 1939. Negotiations for this affair have not been initiated as yet. The committee to direct the affair will be released in a subsequent issue of the VILLANOVAN.

The newly appointed Junior Week Chairman will be in contact with the chairmen of the various committees during their functionings. Carbine has been active in class endeavor during his three years on the Villanova campus. In extra-curricular activity Carbine has been featured in dramatics, sports, and journalism.

'CAT COURTMEN SPLIT TWO FRAYS

Sportorial

By BILL BOWKER
Sports Editor

AL SEVERANCE'S boys may have lost the St. John's game, but they played a better brand of ball than they did in many of the games they won on the home floor. It must be remembered that the Redmen are the cream of the metropolitan court aggregations, and a loss to them is not a disgrace, by any means. It certainly was a tough one to lose. If a couple of those hard luck shots of Montgomery's had connected, the story would have been different. The boys turned in an A-1 performance.

—V—

Those who bemoan the small crowds at the Villanova court contests should be well satisfied with the attendance at Saturday's game. For the first time in our four years at Villanova, they had to put chairs around on the auditorium floor to handle the crowd at a collegiate game. It just goes to show that the people will come to see a good team play. We venture to say that if Fordham had been played out here, the Field House would have seen a capacity crowd. Conditions are certainly better than those at the Arena, and ample parking facilities are available for those who find it necessary to come out by car. As for playing the big foes in Philadelphia, the only advantage to be gained is the prestige of having played part of a double bill. People will travel quite a distance to see a good game, so why not play the "big" teams on the court schedule in the Main Line Field House?

—V—

Incidentally, the cheering was not all it could have been especially since the boys were putting up such a stellar brand of ball. One of the most feeble cheers ever heard by yours truly came when Toland called for a "Yeow, Wildcats" during the time out after St. John's took that one-point lead near the end of the contest. It looked as though the Villanova rooters had given up the ghost, when cheering from the supporters is what the boys needed most.

—V—

This week sees the intramural court season come to a close with Austi nand Fedigan battling it out for the title in a two-out-of-three series, the games to be played in the Alumni gym on successive nights, beginning Tuesday. Father McKee had originally planned to contest the games in the big gym, but other things intervened, and the boys will have to be content with the small floor.

—V—

It won't be long now, with the weather definitely showing signs of Spring, until the intramural baseball and soft ball enthusiasts will be warming up for the pennant chase. In the hardball division, Fedigan looks to have the edge again this year as Ben Pawlowski and Ted Goumy are ready to take up their hurling duties for the West Enders. Goumy, pitching for Austin last year, was one of the league's standouts, and with a bit more hitting behind him, would have brought the East Enders higher in the standings. Pawlowski is to be remembered for his no-hit game against Alumni. If either of these two should falter, the Fediganites can call on Johnny Costello, another fine hurler. So, on the first glance, it looks like Fedigan to repeat its last year's performance.

FROSH DRIBBLERS DEFEAT TWO CLUBS IN WEEK'S ACTION

Subdue Conshohocken and Hayward Teams by 38-27, 47 - 30 Scores

NUGENT AND MORRIS STAR

With two more wins added to their string of victories the Frosh basketeers are pointing for their final game of the season against Temple to be held Wednesday afternoon in the Main Liners' gymnasium.

Conshohocken Falls

Conshohocken Hi Club, an annual Frosh rival, fell victim to the undefeated Kittens Tuesday night in the preliminary game to the Villanova-Providence tilt. This was the second meeting of the teams this season. A few weeks ago the Freshmen handed the Conshohocken Club a setback on the latter's home court. Tuesday night saw them victorious again over the local semi-pro team, being paced by Chuck Morris, Tony Vinci and Charlie Yund who had eight points apiece. The final score was 38-27.

Saturday night the Frosh cagemen won another victory at the expense of the Hayward Catholic Club. Leading by a slim margin at halftime, the Kittens put on the pressure in the second half to score an over-whelming victory by the score of 47-30. Chick Nugent, high-scoring center, ripped the cords for four field goals and four charity tosses to lead the scoring for the night with 12 points. He was closely followed by Yund who sank five field goals for a total of ten points.

TRACK SQUAD MEETS CARDINAL RUNNERS

Catholic U. Plays Host to Elliot's Squad Saturday Night

This Saturday Jumbo Elliot's tracksters take a trip to Washington over the week-end to compete in a dual meet against the fast-stepping Catholic U. runners. A hard contest awaits the boys and in view of this they have been training intensely both outdoors and in, according to the weather.

Eight May Make Trip

As to the number of men who will make the trip, no announcement has been made as yet, but it is expected that eight will depart for the Capital City. Captain Harry Buck, Bill Guiteras, Barney Bellew, Johnny Maher, Bill Dobbins, Bill Meehan and Art Murphy are pretty certain to go. The other runner to make the trip has yet to be picked. Two of the boys who are battling for the coveted post are Tom McCabe and Tom Delate.

Buck, as usual, will handle the hurdles, with a bit of assistance from Meehan, while the relay team, in all probability, will consist of Bellew, Dobbins, Guiteras, and the unnamed eighth man. Art Murphy will take care of the jumping events, and with the fine condition the boys are in at present, they are confident of giving a good account of themselves.

Gerry Bush (No. 4) and Duke Duzminski go up after the ball. Johnny Krutulis (No. 7) and two St. John's men await the results before going into action.

Wildcat Tankmen Lose To Diplomats; Frosh Swimmers Down Swarthmore

Three Records Broken As M. and M. Wins By 55 - 20 Count

Last Monday afternoon Franklin and Marshall's swimming team invaded the Main Line Field House to hang a disastrous set-back on the Blue mermen. The Diplomats were one of the classiest groups of natators seen performing in the college pool in many a moon. No less than three pool records were set up and one tied by the flashy splashers from Lancaster. It was the fourth victory of the season for the victors while for the vanquished it was the third straight loss of the present campaign. The victors showed little appreciation for Villanova's hospitality for when the final figures were tabulated the 'Cat swimmers were on the short end of a 55-20 score.

New Marks Set

The new marks were made in 300 medley relay, 100 freestyle, and the 200 yard breast-stroke. Jack Miller, lightning sprint-man for the Diplomats, was the outstanding performer in the visiting line-up. He established the new record for

Defeat Garnet J. V. By 37-29 Score For Initial Triumph

In their greatest triumph of the year, the Frosh natators succeeded in vanquishing the highly touted swimmers from Swarthmore last Saturday in the loser's tank, to the tune of a 37-29 count. Swimming in the newly erected field house of the Garnet hordes, the Blue yearlings showed better form than they have all season.

Moore Stars

Leading scorer for the Villanova charges was Tom Moore, former captain of Northeast Catholic High, with ten points, a first in both the 100 yard breast-stroke and in the diving contests. This lad has rounded into a diver of no mean promise since he first started taking his board work seriously this year. Previously he starred in the swim events.

Adding five more points to the aggregate of the Kittens was Paul Farnsworth, a former member of the West Catholic High team and an Engineering student at Villanova. He was hard-pressed by the Swarthmore representative but

ST. JOHN'S CLOSING RALLY CAUSES 1ST BLUE HOME DEFEAT

Bush Leads Redmen Victory; Duzminski and Montgomery Pace Main Liners

FRIARS DEFEATED, 50-33

By HARRY MOZZEI

Eighteen hundred rabid basketball fans jammed the Villanova Field House last Saturday night and saw the St. John's Redmen come from behind in the closing minutes to eke out a 31-28 win over the Wildcats in the most thrilling fray contested all season. This defeat was the first suffered by the Main Liners on their home court this year and also closed their home stay. Previously in the week the 'Cats walloped the Providence Friars 50-33.

Bush Paces Winners

Pacing the Brooklyn outfit was a blond giant answering to the name of Gerry Bush, who did everything that could be done with a basketball except eat it. Besides scoring seven points, Bush set up many scoring plays and retrieved the ball off both backboards all evening. However, "Duke" Duzminski and Jimmy Montgomery were equally as brilliant, the former once again leading the Blue attack as he notched 11 digits, and the latter digging for loose ovals all over the court and under the baskets.

Palmer notched a two-pointer soon after the opening whistle to give the Indians a temporary lead, but Duzminski with two baskets and a foul, and Johnny Krutulis,

Hurlers Working

The pitching corps has been working steadily as "Doc" Jacobs centers his attentions around the gang of flingers he hopes will bring the first undefeated season to Villanova, a thing which is not unlikely, as Coach Jacobs, has as fine a bunch of athletes as could be found on any campus.

Working out each day are pitchers Frank Escott and Bill McLaughlin, two boys who carried the brunt of the twirling chores in 1937. Joe Desmond, and Jim Schelle, relief hurlers last season, are in the midst of a hard fight for a starting position with Cliff Choquette and Andy Sisco, the lads who contributed more than a little to the success of the frosh team last season.

Escott, who answers to the name of "Quack," is a Senior Arts student. In his sophomore year he patrolled the outfield for the entire season. The following year saw "Doc" Jacobs converting him into a pitcher. In the latter role has Escott blossomed into a leading col-

AUSTIN WINS SECOND HALF PLAY-OFF

TAKES CLOSE FRAY TO EARN POSITION IN CHAMPIONSHIPS

Sandor Leads Blue to Victory With 10 Points; Final Score 25-28

PLAY-OFFS START TONIGHT

By TOM O'MAHONEY

Austin Hall's rejuvenated court squad swept to the championship of the second half instramural basketball schedule last Tuesday night by nosing out Fedigan Hall in a thriller on the main gym floor, 25-23. The win for the blue shirts broke the first place tie which had occurred when each team ended the regular race with 8 victories and 2 defeats. A play-off to decide the year's championship will be held shortly, with Fedigan, first half kings, meeting Austin again.

Game Closely Contested

The game was a see-saw battle from start to finish, neither team being able to maintain more than a three point lead at any time in the fray. Austin jumped into the lead early when Mickey Guskey and Tex Connor scored double-deckers, but these were offset by markers by Fedigan's Mike Totin, high scorer for the night with 11 points, Al Wood and Jack Dunigan. The Gigolos never allowed Austin Hall to get too far in front, and all during the first half the red team swept up the floor to sink long shots after the Austinites had worked the ball in on clever passing to a score.

Big Buzz Hart spent this period under the Austin basket feeding passes to Totin, Hal Murphy and Bud O'Connell for scores, and used his height to advantage in retreiving the ball off the backboard. Vic Sandor, the blue shirt's ace, was held scoreless this half by the dogged defensive play of Fedigan's Johnny Costello, but the Pawnee kid managed to get off some nice passes to LaBalba and Joe Bochetto on scoring plays. The initial canto ended with the score 12-10 in favor of Austin after Bradshaw sent a lay-up shot to break a 10-10 deadlock with less than two minutes to go.

Goumy Ties Score

At the start of the second stanza, Austin kept the ball away from the red shirts until finally Ted Goumy broke clear for the basket that tied it up again. Mike Totin racked one up for Fedigan shortly after Sandor counted for the first time on a long shot from the corner. But, unfortunately for Fedigan hopes, this was but the first of five goals the irrepressible "Pawnee" was to sink during this period. "Ostrich" Totin came back to count for the West Enders, but Carl Pantaleo heaved in a foul shot and a basket to put the east-enders out in front once more. Al Wood stuck up his second goal of the evening, only to see Perth Amboy's pride, Vic Sandor, repeat from close in. From here in it was a race between Totin and Sandor for scoring honors, as the short Austinite hurled in three more baskets from all angles of the floor, and Mike converted acharity toss, a goal and another free throw to bring up his total to 11 points for the whole game.

Austin clicked as a team in its best showing of the year, working the ball in close on fast, accurate passing, and also registered on set screen shots from the corners. The red team, on the other hand, counted most on individual efforts and brilliant solo dashes. Both teams tired during the final minutes of the game as the size of the court began to tell on the mural boys. The class of play was better on the whole, however, as the large floor allowed more freedom of movement and encouraged passing instead of wild long-shots at the hoop.

Sandor led the Austin attack by virtue of his five goals tossed up during the torrid final period with an even 10 markers, while Joe Bochetto's 4 for Austin helped clinch the victory.

GRIDDERS STAR

"Nickels" Basca and Len Kolenda, freshman passing and receiving duo, are playing stellar ball for Olympia A. C. against local quintets in the Norristown area.

Bob Spangler, F. & M.'s breast-stroker extraordinary, clipped five second off the record for the 200 yards when he churned the course in 2:43.3. He was also a member of the trio that erased the mark for the 300 yard medley relay which was only set last week by Villanova in their meet against Delaware. The time of 3:12.2 cut fully 13 seconds off the old mark.

Anecdota Athletica

By BILLY SINNOTT

Lloyd Rice, who claims that Frederick, Maryland, is a city, tells the one about the ball game he played up among the hill-billies near Cumberland. It seems the game was close going into the last innings. Rice's outfit got three men on base and "Food for the mouths of China" himself came up. The pitcher hurled four straight balls, none of which came within one yard of the plate. Rice waited for the umpire to call "take your base." The umpire strolled in to home plate, looked around at the filled bases and then walked up to Rice and said in a drawl: "Yer out, Son, we got no place to put you."

"Cowboy" Crawley, the sage of Austin Hall, brings one from the mountains of Massachusetts. It seems Cowboy was playing in a torrid tussle with a bunch of country giants and feeling was running very high as it usually does in a village ball game. Crawley, playing second base, forgot his manners and angered the opposing second baseman. For this he was rewarded with flying spikes and a badly cut leg on the next play. Excited and peeved he ran up to the umpire and shouted "Time, time." Calmly the umpire looked at his wrist watch and said "Quarter after four." "Thanks," Cowboy puffed and waddled back to his position.

Ask Johnny Krutulis about this one. Down at the Convention Hall the night we played Temple it happened. Jimmy Montgomery, angered by a decision rendered by the inimitable Pat Kennedy, slammed the ball at the floor and watched it bounce straight up into the smoke-laden loftiness of the hall. He heard the voice of Pat Kennedy in his ear, it was in a whisper: "If it stays up there it's nothing; if it comes down it's a personal foul." Montgomery looked around amazed. After the game Monty strode up to Al Severance and chirped: "Now wouldn't it have been sensational if that ball had become suspended in the air and didn't come down?" "Certainly would," Al answered, "but it sure would look queer all the way up there by itself.

Freshman Natators Defeat Swarthmore

managed to emerge the victor covering the prescribed distance in approximately 1:16. However, due to a bad turn on the first lap, he lost several seconds and would probably have done 1:14 with his usual form.

Another pleasing thing which may be noted is that the tank-men were successful in garnering many second and third berths. In order to have a good swimming squad it is necessary that seconds and thirds be taken; not only first places.

Burns Places Twice

Some of the lesser stars may be noted for their efforts. Burns was successful in gathering six markers toward the final score when he annexed two second berths, namely, the 50 and 100 yard freestyle. He showed good form but was beaten by an extra-ordinary swimmer in the Swarthmore representative.

Among the surprises offered in the meet we see the usually dependable Phoieric taking only a third place. Also, the Floccomen were able to annex only one spot in the breast-stroke meet due to a dearth of swimmers for the Blue.

The medley relay team showed a great burst of speed in gaining the nod over the Garnet. This leads us to believe that the Varsity squad may expect plenty of useful swimming timber next year upon which Roggerio Flocco may be able to mold a stellar team to meet the higher class opposition which is being scheduled for the natators.

Although the Frosh lost the free-style relay—the last event of the meet — the result still remained in favor of the Kittens.

Earlier in the past week the Frosh were defeated by a far superior Germantown Y. M. C. A. team at the latter's pool. The Germantown natators boasted men such as Calhoun who are far more versed in the ways of the tank than the first year mermen. However, this defeat does not in any way detract from the victory which the swimmers gained over the Swarthmore club.

VILLANOVA QUINTET LOSES TO INDIANS

St. John's Comes From Behind in Closing Minutes to Win, 31-28

with a basket, sent the 'Cats hurtling to a 7-2 lead. Palmer's foul, sandwiched between McKeever's pivot toss, and Bush's long arching ironringer tied the count at 7-all. Duzminski and McKeever matched fouls to keep the score tied. However, after Bush's long shot once again gave the Redmen the lead, the Main Liners unleashed a brief scoring sortie that gave them a 16-14 lead at halftime.

Vigilante Scores

Art Vigilante opened the second half with a charity toss, and a few minutes later Johnny Krutulis looped one in from the middle of the court to give the Blue a 19-14 advantage. Vigilante scooped up a free ball, after Haggerty had converted two free tosses, and dribbled the length of the court for a lay-up score. Haggerty, McKeever and Bush then rattled shots in from underneath to send the Indians to the fore, 22-21. Once again the "Duke" came through, this time popping one in from a few feet in front of the basket to regain the lead for the Blue at 23-22.

A few seconds later Jim Montgomery, cutting at terrific speed, made a beautiful twister and added to the Villanova lead. Haggerty and Duzminski matched double deckers and "Monty" added a foul with about three minutes of play remaining. After Vocke scored for St. John's, the Blue team received a stunning blow when Art Vigilante, who guards better than a watchdog, was rejected from the contest on personal fouls, with the roar of the crowd dinning in his ears.

Frank Haggerty, who led the Redmen in scoring with nine points, converted on the toss, and the Villanova lead was shaved to one point. Then, with a little more than a minute to play, Dill Lloyd, a substitute, looped one in on a pivot from the bucket to give St. John's a 29-28 advantage, which was increased on Howie Vocke's basket shortly before the end of the fray.

Friars Fall

On Tuesday night the Providence Friars invaded the Wildcats' lair and fell before a 50-33 onslaught of the Felines. Leading the Villanova attack was "Jungle" Jim Montgomery, who rolled up 21 points on ten field goals and a foul for his most prolific scoring exhibition of the season.

Spinnler's foul sent the Black and White into a very brief lead, which vanished when Krutulis arched one in from the center of the court. Villanova, although not moving the ball very well, stretched this lead to 19-12 at halftime mainly through the fine play of Montgomery.

With the start of the second half all doubts as to the probable outcome were erased when the Main Liners turned on the heat and made the red lights seem like a moving picture. In jig time, Montgomery, Krutulis, and Duzminski rattled in enough baskets to send the Wildcats out in front, 38-17. The Friar defense stiffened at this point, and they, in turn, began a drive of their own led by Johnny Crowley, who notched six double deckers for a total of 12 marker. The splurge netted Providence nothing save balm, however, for the contest close soon after.

In the Sportlight

By JOHN L. SIMONS

WINDING up this series of the life histories of the respective members of Villanova's football team of last season, we present Mr. W. Francis Nye, the "hard luck" player. Due to a most unfortunate injury at the beginning of the P. M. C. game last September, his athletic activities at Villanova were greatly curtailed. However, before his injury Frank had established himself as one of Villanova's foremost athletes.

He was born in Harrisburg, the capital of Pennsylvania, on January 21, 1915. Frank was a hardy youngster and wasted no time growing up. By the time he was a sophomore in high school he had the physical attributes of a college ball player and also a lot of the abilities of an older one.

During his second year at Harrisburg Catholic High School, Frank together with a few other boys, established that school's first football team. The boys struggled along that season without a coach and managed to make such a success of it that football became a regular sport at Harrisburg Catholic.

Under a coach the following year Frank was transferred from the guard position which he had been playing to fullback. In addition he was named captain. That season and the next one, during which he again captained the eleven, established our good friend as one of the standout schoolboy stars of the East.

Naturally he was approached by representatives of various colleges but at the time of his graduation in June of 1933 he preferred to go to West Point. Once he got there he found that life at the Point was not to his liking, and he returned home.

That Fall Frank traveled across the country to matriculate at the University of Oregon. Although he was there but one year his athletic career was a noted one. As a freshman halfback his play was good enough and spectacular enough, to get him mentioned by Football Annual as one of the most promising prospects for the 1935 season.

He Puts the Shot

In the Spring of the year he divided his time between the varsity football Spring practice and the track. By the end of the drills he was first string right halfback. His achievements on the track were also of note. Being a rugged lad, he took up shot-putting and after a week of training heaved the 12 pound iron ball 50 feet.

Still Frank wasn't satisfied with his choice of a college. He felt that he wanted to go to a place nearer home. During the Summer of 1934 he received among others, offers from Villanova and Pitt. As you all know by now he accepted the former.

As a Villanova frosh Frank kept pretty much in the athletic background. But in the Spring he took a day off from the rigors of Coach Stuhldreher's daily grind and with no practice at all went out and tossed the shot 46 feet to cop the intramural championship.

The football season in his sophomore brought Frank into prominence on the Villanova campus. That year he alternated at right halfback with his roomate, Ray Stoviak, and turned in a good job. He reached his peak in the brilliant victory over Temple. In the final quarter with the score tied at 14-14 Frank grabbed a pass in the end zone for the touchdown that defeated the Owls.

As a Junior Frank was asked to do something that has established him on this campus as a real unselfish fellow who worked for the best interests of his teammates at heart. He was coming along fast as a right halfback, but Clipper had three or four other capable men for that position. And there was a dearth of experienced quarterbacks, the Clipper asked Frank if he would fill in. Frank complied. As a signal caller our man Nye came along very well. His natural ability as a blocker and especially his keen football sense stood him in good stead. By the end of the season he was alternating with the veteran Bill Christopher as the regular quarter. He started three of the last four games.

All of which brings the biography up to the present year. Since his unfortunate accident Frank has been considering the possibility of his returning next year if it can be fixed up with the football opponents, but he is still undecided. In case he should find it possible to return the Wildcats will have as signal caller a shrewd and competent footballer and real man who has the best interests of the team at heart.

legiate moundsman. Among the many victories the five foot ten inch hurler turned in last season, was a beautiful five hit shutout over the University of Pennsylvania as his mates pushed over eight runs at Franklin Field.

McLaughlin Ready

McLaughlin, who hails from Camden is the veteran of the present pitching staff having served since his coming to Villanova, three and a half years ago. McLaughlin did very little pitching last year. His most notable performances were victories over Providence and Temple.

Desmond and Schelle, both juniors served well in their capacity as relief men. Desmond turned in a victory over Ursinus in his only start, and did a splendid job when called in to save a game. Schelle, Jim or Gerard to local fandom, did not see much action, but on the few occasions he showed his wares, he did well. In the light of his splendid record in the Main Line and Twi-Light loops this last Summer, in which he was labeled the leading pitcher of both leagues, Schelle must be considered as the best prospect of the coming season.

Behind the bat, towering Mike Garbark, who looks every inch a major leaguer, has been working up a sweat, catching all candidates for the pitching staff. It will be at least a week before Art Vigilante will change his basketball uniform for the mask and protector. Peppery Art will be pushing Garbark for catching honors again.

Others taking part in the daily sessions are Bob Bond, first sacker; Frank Crawley, veteran second basemen; "Silent man" Len Merullo, the boy with the bullet peg, and an outstanding short stop; Captain Ray Stoviak, George Flood, sophomore fly chaser, Buzz Howlett, who promises to do greater things on the diamond than on the grid, also a candidate for the outfield, and Wally Sheftic who parolled the outergardens last time and may be holding down the hot corner due to the withdrawal of Charlie Dell Uomo, from school.

TAKES CLOSE FRAY TO EARN POSITION IN CHAMPIONSHIPS

Sandor Leads Blue to Victory With 10 Points; Final Score 25-28

PLAY-OFFS START TONIGHT

By TOM O'MAHONEY

Austin Hall's rejuvenated court squad swept to the championship of the second half instramural basketball schedule last Tuesday night by nosing out Fedigan Hall in a thriller on the main gym floor, 25-23. The win for the blue shirts broke the first place tie which had occurred when each team ended the regular race with 8 victories and 2 defeats. A play-off to decide the year's championship will be held shortly, with Fedigan, first half kings, meeting Austin again.

Game Closely Contested

The game was a see-saw battle from start to finish, neither team being able to maintain more than a three point lead at any time in the fray. Austin jumped into the lead early when Mickey Guskey and Tex Connor scored double-deckers, but these were offset by markers by Fedigan's Mike Totin, high scorer for the night with 11 points, Al Wood and Jack Dunigan. The Gigolos never allowed Austin Hall to get too far in front, and all during the first half the red team swept up the floor to sink long shots after the Austinites had worked the ball in on clever passing to a score.

Big Buzz Hart spent this period under the Austin basket feeding passes to Totin, Hal Murphy and Bud O'Connell for scores, and used his height to advantage in retrieving the ball off the backboard. Vic Sandor, the blue shirt's ace, was held scoreless this half by the dogged defensive play of Fedigan's Johnny Costello, but the Pawnee kid managed to get off some nice passes to LaBalba and Joe Bochetto on scoring plays. The initial canto ended with the score 12-10 in favor of Austin after Bradshaw sent a lay-up shot to break a 10-10 deadlock with less than two minutes to go.

Goumy Ties Score

At the start of the second stanza, Austin kept the ball away from the red shirts until finally Ted Goumy broke clear for the basket that tied it up again. Mike Totin racked one up for Fedigan shortly after Sandor counted for the first time on a long shot from the corner. But, unfortunately for Fedigan hopes, this was but the first of five goals the impressible "Pawnee" was to sink during this period. "Ostrich" Totin came back to count for the West Enders, but Carl Pantaleo heaved in a foul shot and a basket to put the east-enders out in front once more. Al Wood stuck up his second goal of the evening, only to see Perth Amboy's pride, Vic Sandor, repeat from close in. From here in it was a race between Totin and Sandor for scoring honors, as the short Austinite hurled in three more baskets from all angles of the floor, and Mike converted achairty toss, a goal and another free throw to bring up his total to 11 points for the whole game.

Austin clicked as a team in its best showing of the year, working the ball in close on fast, accurate passing, and also registered on set screen shots from the corners. The red team, on the other hand, counted most on individual efforts and brilliant solo dashes. Both teams tired during the final minutes of the game as the size of the court began to tell on the mural boys. The class of play was better on the whole, however, as the large floor allowed more freedom of movement and encouraged passing instead of wild long-shots at the hoop.

Sandor led the Austin attack by virtue of his five goals tossed up during the torrid final period with an even 10 markers, while Joe Bochetto's 4 for Austin helped clinch the victory.

GRIDDERS STAR

Wildcat Tankmen Lose to F. and M.

JOHNNY KRUTULIS

the century of 55.5 and tied the existing record of 24.9 for the 50.

Bob Spangler, F. & M.'s breaststroker extraordinary, clipped five second off the record for the 200 yards when he churned the course in 2:43.3. He was also a member of the trio that erased the mark for the 300 yard medley relay which was only set last week by Villanova in their meet against Delaware. The time of 3:12.2 cut fully 13 seconds off the old mark.

Coach Flocco's proteges were only able to garner one first while their opponents carried off the bacon on eight occasions. To gallant Bill Bailey goes the honor for splashing home first for the Wildcats in the 400 yard freestyle.

ALUMNUS STARS

Harold J. "Scoop" Keating, former VILLANOVAN scribe, took part in the Main Line Table Tennis championships twice last week. Tuesday night he faced the sin-les champ George McHenry, and Friday night he took part in the doubles against McHenry and Kline, pairing with Al Collie.

Freshman Natators Defeat Swarthmore

managed to emerge the victor covering the prescribed distance in approximately 1:16. However, due to a bad turn on the first lap, he lost several seconds and would probably have done 1:14 with his usual form.

Another pleasing thing which may be noted is that the tank-men were successful in garnering many second and third berths. In order to have a good swimming squad it is necessary that seconds and thirds be taken; not only first places.

Burns Places Twice

Some of the lesser stars may be noted for their efforts. Burns was successful in gathering six markers toward the final score when he annexed two second berths, namely the 50 and 100 yard freestyle. He showed good form but was beaten by an extra-ordinary swimmer in the Swarthmore representative.

Among the surprises offered in the meet we see the usually dependable Pholeric taking only a third place. Also, the Floccomen were able to annex only one spot in the breast-stroke meet due to a dearth of swimmers for the Blue.

The medley relay team showed a great burst of speed in gaining the nod over the Garnet. This leads us to believe that the Varsity squad may expect plenty of useful swimming timber next year upon which Roggerio Flocco may be able to mold a stellar team to meet the higher class opposition which is being scheduled for the natators.

Although the Frosh lost the free-style relay—the last event of the meet — the result still remained in favor of the Kittens.

Earlier in the past week the Frosh were defeated by a far superior Germantown Y. M. C. A. team at the latter's pool. The Germantown natators boasted men such as Calhoun who are far more versed in the ways of the tank than the first year mermen. However, this defeat does not in any way detract from the victory which the swimmers gained over the Swarthmore club.

Anecdota Athletica

By BILLY SINNOTT

Lloyd Rice, who claims that Frederick, Maryland, is a city, tells the one about the ball game he played up among the hill-billies near Cumberland. It seems the game was close going into the last innings. Rice's outfit got three men on base and "Food for the mouths of China" himself came up. The pitcher hurled four straight balls, none of which came within one yard of the plate. Rice waited for the umpire to call "take your base." The umpire strolled in to home plate, looked around at the filled bases and then walked up to Rice and said in a drawl: "Yer out, Son, we got no place to put you."

"Cowboy" Crawley, the sage of Austin Hall, brings one from the mountains of Massachusetts. It seems Cowboy was playing in a torrid tussle with a bunch of country giants and feeling was running very high as it usually does in a village ball game. Crawley, playing second base, forgot his manners and angered the opposing second baseman. For this he was rewarded with flying spikes and a badly cut leg on the next play. Excited and peeved he ran up to the umpire and shouted "Time, time." Calmly the umpire looked at his wrist watch and said "Quarter after four." "Thanks," Cowboy puffed and waddled back to his position.

Ask Johnny Krutulis about this one. Down at the Convention Hall the night we played Temple it happened. Jimmy Montgomery, angered by a decision rendered by the inimitable Pat Kennedy, slammed the ball at the floor and watched it bounce straight up into the smoke-laden loftiness of the hall. He heard the voice of Pat Kennedy in his ear, it was in a whisper: "If it stays up there it's nothing; if it comes down it's a personal foul." Montgomery looked around amazed. After the game Monty strode up to Al Severance and chirped: "Now wouldn't it have been sensational if that ball had become suspended in the air and didn't come down?" "Certainly would," Al answered, "but it sure would look queer all the way up there by itself.

legiate moundsman. Among the many victories the five foot ten inch hurler turned in last season, was a beautiful five hit shutout over the University of Pennsylvania as his mates pushed over eight runs at Franklin Field.

McLaughlin Ready

McLaughlin, who hails from Camden is the veteran of the present pitching staff having served since his coming to Villanova, three and a half years ago. McLaughlin did very little pitching last year. His most notable performances were victories over Providence and Temple.

Desmond and Schelle, both juniors served well in their capacity as relief men. Desmond turned in a victory over Ursinus in his only start, and did a splendid job when called in to save a game. Schelle, Jim or Gerard to local fandom, did not see much action, but on the few occasions he showed his wares, he did well. In the light of his splendid record in the Main Line and Twi-Light loops this last Summer, in which he was labeled the leading pitcher of both leagues, Schelle must be considered as the best prospect of the coming season.

Behind the lofty towering Mike Garbark, who looks every inch a major leaguer, has been working up a sweat, catching all candidates for the pitching staff. It will be at least a week before Art Vigilante will change his basketball uniform for the mask and protector. Peppery Art will be pushing Garbark for catching honors again.

Others taking part in the daily sessions are Bob Bond, first sacker; Frank Crawley, veteran second basemen; "Silent man" Len Menullo, the boy with the bullet peg, and an outstanding short stop; Captain Ray Stoviak, George Flood, sophomore fly chaser, Buzz Howlett, who promises to do greater things on the diamond than on the grid, also a candidate for the outfield, and Wally Sheftic who patrolled the outergardens last time and may be holding down the hot corner due to the withdrawal of Charlie Dell Uomo, from school.

bands for the past seven years. His studies include two years of preparation in instrumental work at the University of Pennsylvania and a year of band and choral technique at North Western University. The Radnor High School band, has, through his untiring effort, won prizes in national competition.

The concert on April 7 will witness selections by the band along with vocal arrangements by the Glee Club. This new mode in musical entertainment is making its first appearance on the Villanova campus. Both organizations are under the directorship of Mr. Teel, and enjoy the supervision of Fr. Boyle as moderator.

It is probable that this new concert arrangement will be sponsored at numerous activities centered about the college.

FROSH DEBATERS MEET PRINCETON

Before a host of freshmen, mostly from the Mendel "penthouse," a hot and loud debate was held on whether the policies and actions of the C. I. O. should be approved last Friday afternoon in the amphitheatre. Upholding the negative were two freshmen from Princeton University, Mr. Forbes and Mr. Rice.

Defending the C. I. O. were Murray Zealor and James Donovan, members of the Villanova Freshman debating society. John J. Harrington, a member of the varsity debating society, was chairman. The occasion was graced by the presence of Mr. Frayne, Miss Argentieri, and other members of Belle Masque.

VILLANOVA SENIORS INAUGURATE FIRST INVITATION SOCIAL

Class of 1938 Sponsors Huge Entertainment Program in Field House April 5

LOCAL COLLEGES INVITED

Villanova's Senior Class will inaugurate a new mode in campus socials when it combines three entertainment features in the presentation of an Invitation Social in the Field House on Tuesday evening, April 5.

Present Symphony Concert

Highlighting this unique program will be the first campus appearance of the Villanova Band, choral selections by the college Glee Club, and a popular, full-length motion picture showing. This will mark the first attempt at the presentation of an affair of this nature in the history of the college.

During the course of the evening refreshments will be served by the entertainment committee.

Invitations will be extended to the young women attending the colleges of Immaculata, Rosemont, and Mt. St. Joseph's. It is proposed that the men of Villanova act as escorts to the young ladies invited from these colleges. Those men wishing to do so may make their own arrangements for attending this function. The Seniors expect, however, that every student will escort some young lady to the affair.

To facilitate matters the Class of '38 intends establishing a dating-bureau. This bureau will be for the benefit of those students desiring to escort a young lady from any of the three colleges mentioned. Arrangements will be made to have buses call for the girls and return them to their respective colleges at the end of the evening.

Last week it had been announced that an affair similar to this would be held Thursday, April 7. That concert has been cancelled in favor of this Invitation Social. The purpose behind this social is to foster better relations with these colleges as well as to provide a suitable night of entertainment during the Lenten Season.

The Seniors hope that this innovation will become a permanent part of Villanova's social life. It is their aim that evenings such as these be frequent in the future.

Wilkes-Barre Club Selects Bonner As Dinner-Dance Head

Sophomore Science Student Appointed to Chairmanship of Easter Affair

Robert A. Bonner, sophomore Pre-Medical student, has been appointed chairman of the annual Easter Dinner Dance Committee, it was announced by Witold Krzywicki, president of the Wilkes Barre Club. The dance will be held on Easter Monday, April 18.

Site Not Decided

No selection of a definite site for the annual social has been determined by the campus group as yet. Hotel German, Scranton, and the Hotel Torleton, Hazelton, are under consideration of the dance committee. Jack Bogash and his Orchestra have been contracted by the Wilkes Barre Club to feature the musical entertainment at the affair.

The Easter Dance marks the annual presentation of the Wilkes Barre Club in celebration of the holiday season. The dance will be a closed affair. Novel entertainment is to be arranged for the occasion. Frank Bukofski, Commerce and Finance student sophomore and member of the club, will be featured in an exhibition dance.

Carl Pantaleo Named Head Head of Connecticut Club's Easter Social

Carl Pantaleo, chairman of the annual Easter Dinner-Dance presentation of the Connecticut Club of Villanova College, has secured the Hotel Gade, New Haven, for the occasion of the social April 18.

At a meeting of the organization last week, Harry L. Luzzie, president of the club, expressed the hope that the dance will be well attended. The banquet and dance is presented yearly during the Easter season by the members of the Connecticut Club as a means of bringing together past members and alumni. The alumni groups of Stanford and New Haven have been informed of the affair with the intention of securing support from these alumni groups.

Chairman Pantaleo has also made arrangements to have the details of the dinner-dance over a local radio station in New Haven. The Easter Dinner-Dance is the highlighting activity of the campus organization in its social trends.

The Connecticut Club, one of the oldest active organizations on the Villanova campus, is represented in membership by a large number of students from the New England area.

Committee Appointed for Annual Technology Social; Date Set for April 26

By JAMES COLLINS

Following fast on the heels of the appointment of Thomas J. Carbine as chairman of Junior Week comes word from Donald E. Mackowski, leader and president of the Class of 1939, a choice bit of news. Rene Cailliet, day student in the Science School, will direct the preparations for the Junior Dinner - Dance whereas the destiny of the Blazer Ball will rest in the hands of a Commerce and Finance student, John B. D'Ippolito.

Social Concludes Week

The lofty position which this social holds in the annual May festivities of the Juniors already is common knowledge. It is the finale of the celebrations for the third year men, and is only over-shadowed by the Promenade. Indeed this social, the date of which is Saturday, May 7, in all its formality will prove a fitting climax to the entire Junior Week program. However, all of these factors were known and taken into consideration by Mackowski when Cailliet was named to the post.

Always an important figure in the activities of the Lambda Kappa Delta Fraternity, this newly-elected chairman has contributed his literary talents to the VILLANOVAN for the past three years and has won a position as feature writer on the college staff. Undoubtedly his abilities have been tried and not found wanting, all of which points to a well-managed, exclusive Junior Dinner-Dance.

Site Not Chosen

Of course, no arrangements whatsoever have as yet been made concerning the site of the dance. Nevertheless, it has been learned that the scene of last year's affair, the Hotel Philadelphian in the center of Billy Penn's City, proved quite a popular one to those who attended the event and should be brought up for consideration by Cailliet. Then again the Arcadia International Restaurant supplied an excellent background for the very successful Senior Dinner - Dance, and would be a good choice. But all these arrangements will be Phi Kappa Pi, Villanova technology fraternity, has announced the appointment of John P. Kelly, senior chemical engineering student, as Chairman of the annual Dinner Dance Committee.

Eight Committeemen Named

Appointed with Chairman Kelly, was a committee of eight fraternity members who will assist in the presentation of the annual banquet and dance conducted by the engineering society. The committee, as disclosed to the VILLANOVAN yesterday, includes: Joseph J. Sanborn, Cyril E. Daly, Raymond A. Sheik, Thomas A. Carlin, George J. Bourua, Edward J. Jurkowski, and John J. Skelly.

The annual P. K. P. Dinner-Dance has been a traditional social function of the fraternity, and has been conducted regularly for a number of years. Marking the fraternity's farewell to its graduating members, the Dinner-Dance also features the presentation of fraternity keys to members of four years' good standing.

Oldest Campus Fraternity

Phi Kappa Pi is the oldest fraternity on the Villanova campus. Its membership includes the majority of students in the Technology School, thereby accrediting it as being the most active. The fraternity features many important sidelights on engineering topics, and its members make regular tours to many leading technical establishments.

The newly appointed committee

Music Brightens Winterset Plans; Two More Rosemont Girls Casted

Enlivened by hurdy-gurdy, accordian, and violin music, a feature of the Villanova presentation of "Winterset" will be the street dance scene developed to afford opportunity for display of student musical talent.

Fioretti Plays Organ

The organ grinder cranking the big piano organ will be Ralph Fioretti, Sophomore in Science. The slum dweller singing to the strains of its melodies will be Edward R. Lucente, Junior in School of Science. Italo de Bartolomeis, Junior Science student and Walter Shefstic, Senior in Education department, will play violins. Robert Pancaire, Freshman in the Science School, will play the accordian.

Various inhabitants drift to the scene attracted by the tones of the hurdy-gurdy and the prospect of shelter under the bridge from the approaching winter rain storm. Among these are the three co-operating young women from Rosemont College, Miss Anita Argentieri, who, enacting the unschooled Jewish slum dweller, is an honor student and fluent in French conversation; Miss Rita Wolfington, the perennial promenade chairman, basketball star, and president of the Jest and Gesture Club, and Miss Marian O'Brien, Junior honor student and student counselor.

In addition to the intensive rehearsals, work is being forwarded on other fronts, notably the art production.

New Posters Developed

Two new types of posters have been developed. One type will appeal to those who enjoy the gangster motif in the drama, the other, to those who are attracted by the show's great success on the stage and screen. The original idea was designed to awaken response in those who were sociologically minded. These posters are now on view in Room 120. They will soon be highlighted in public display.

Preparations are being made also for a painting of the billboard on the Lincoln Highway. Done by Alfred Iberguen, it will carry a huge advertisement for "Winterset."

Vincent La Brasca has worked out plans for the painting of the sets. To give the effects of the brooding bridge and the dank river front he will use a medley of white, black, gray, green, and purple paints.

Price Cut

Reduced Student Rates For Academy Concerts

Tickets for concerts to be held at the Academy of Music in Philadelphia on March 16, 25, 31, and April 25 are available to Villanova students and faculty members at reduced rates. $2.85 and $2.28 tickets may be had for $1.35, tax included. Subscription to the four concerts will cost $5.00.

Elizabeth Rethberg, noted soprano, and Ezio Pinza appear jointly at the first concert March 16. Gladys Swarthout, famed American mezzo-soprano, Nino Martini, brilliant tenor of the opera, screen and radio, and Albert Spaulding, distinguished violinist, are scheduled in that order for the remaining concerts.

Subscriptions and tickets may be obtained at the Subscription and Ticket Offices, Professional Building, S. E. Cor. 20th and Chestnut Sts., Philadelphia.

Glee Club Scheduled To Perform Over WIP And At Mount Carmel

Following a long standing custom, the Villanova Glee Club will journey to South Philadelphia to present its annual concert at Mount Carmel Auditorium. A gay and lively program has been prepared by the Rev. John McDonald to celebrate the feast-day of the patron Saint of Ireland on March 17.

Dance Follows Concert

The festivities will be climaxed by the concert of the Villanova choral organization. Entertainment has always been provided for the visiting choral group and this year will be no exception. Dancing, sponsored by the Young Ladies' Sodality, will follow the concert. Father McDonald is looking forward to the annual visit of the collegiate group to the Mount Carmel Parish.

It was also announced that the Glee Club will present a concert over radio station WIP, Philadelphia, on the same evening. The Gimbel Brothers' Department Store, in arranging its annual St. Patrick's Day program, has invited Villanova Glee Club to participate. The broadcast will be conducted for a fifteen minute period beginning at 7:45 P. M.

At the radio concert, the Glee Club will render numerous semi-classic selections. "The Rosary," "Walls of Jerusalem," and "Duna" are among the pieces which in all probability will be presented. The concert will be concluded with the singing of the "Villanova Alma Mater." Paul D. Teel will direct the Glee Club on both occasions.

According to all indications this event will mark the zenith of the spring season for the Glee Club. It will also be the second opportunity for Villanova students to hear this organization over a radio network. The Glee Club was included in a program along with Maurice "Clipper" Smith, when the Villanova football mentor introduced his views to local fans in September. At this occasion, the club rendered the "Alma Mater."

In the past year the Villanova Glee Club has expanded its activities so that at present it enjoys distinction comparable to other similar collegiate organizations. The club has always been a prominent organization, and the activities of the group as planned for this season are expected to increase

GET BUSY

EDUCATORS for centuries and hence fervent supporters of the theory that a well rounded man is a well educated man, the Augustinian Fathers have instituted here at Villanova College many more extra-curricular activities than are to be found at many colleges twice our size. For the most part these activities are very well taken care of. This program is so well developed here at the college that there is no student who could not find some activity to his liking.

But an appalling thing about these activities is that the same few are represented in all of them. While our college supports more than 50 extra-curricular activities which certainly are varied enough to offer diversion and amusement for every student, the lack of co-operation on the part of some is surprising.

Extra-curricular activities, besides being interesting, have a definitely educational value. They inspire initiative, overcome inferiority and tend to develop responsibility. Participation in them enables a student to better cope with the situations to be met later in life and provides for him some necessary diversion from the hum-drum work of life.

Villanova offers each student something along his line of interest. Students need only exert themselves to show interest and they are welcomed in whatever activity they have chosen. You owe it to yourself to belong to one of these many campus clubs. It is not too late in the year. Chose an activity and get busy.

THE LITTLE RED SCHOOL HOUSE

IT IS not surprising then to find publications printed by students of certain institutions of so-called higher learning copying the literary antics of conscienceless newswriters in printing calumnies and half-truths about reputable persons and revered traditions. The latest examples of collegiate slurs and slanders appeared in recent edition of the C. C. N. Y. Mercury and Quarterly. The vicious remarks were directed toward Catholic nuns and the Catholic doctrine of the Immaculate Conception.

The City College of New York is an institution supported by the taxes of the citizens of that locality. This latest sample of unrestrained expression of polluted thought of students connected with this particular college, causes little surprise. City College is a hotbed of juvenile Communism. It is a little RED schoolhouse. The students have learned their lessons well, and are now publicy printing the lies and the prejudiced propaganda on which their minds have been fed. The sad part of the whole affair is that loyal Americans and true Catholics are paying the taxes to produce such un-American and indecent scoundrels.

When criticism is directed towards this type of depraved journalism, the cry is loud and long that the freedom of the press is being oppressed. Freedom does not imply license. Freedom of the genuine variety is limited by the reasonable laws of truth and decency. The naughty young men on the staffs of the City College papers should begin to realize that honest Americans are sick and tired of the Moscow-methods corrupting the body of modern journalism. Americans want the truth, and nothing but the truth, even in student publication. "The Griffin"— Canisius College.

UNSEAT MONEY DICTATOR

THE crash of the House of Whitney in Wall Street reveals an example of the Savings Dictator in action. There is now one less, but we may be sure that there are others of the species preying, but not yet destroyed by their own greed. The event recalls a passage printed in these columns just one week before the million-dollar collapse: "The Savings Dictator is the man who recklessly uses other people's money for his own purposes. The trouble comes when he fails, thus ruining those whose money he was using." Fortunately in this case his investors are protected to some degree by the very laws he fought.

However important it may be to outlaw the Savings Dictator, and it must be done, it is far more important to unseat the Money Dictator for he is the most perniciously powerful of them all. This man controls the value of money so that he can make prices go up or down. When he produces drastic fluctuations in prices, depressions result.

Writing on the Money Dictator, Pius XI in Quadragesimo Anno, says: "This power becomes particularly irresistible when exercised by those who, because they hold and control money, are able also to govern credit and determine its allotment, for that reason supplying, so to speak, the lifeblood to the economic body, and grasping, as it were, in their hands the very soult of production, so that none dare breathe against their will."

Economic difficulties are at the core of international unrest. We find the Holy Father far in the lead of those exposing the international banker. The encyclical is an answer to those who say the Catholic Church has no program. It is not mere theory. Read it. Think it over. Let it lead to intelligent action.

For the task of carrying out the remedy the Pope is happy to note that "many young men, destined soon by reason of their talents or their wealth to hold distinguished places in the foremost ranks of society, are studying social problems with growing earnestness." We are happy, too, if we are correct in our belief that a goodly number of Villanova youths are included in that group.

ODDS and ENDS

By Tom O'Mahoney

BEING ONCE MORE of an inquisitive mood, we'd like to know the story on the boxing ring down in the gym. Is it, or is it not, the ring in which Gene Tunney dethroned Jack Dempsey in 1926?

ON THE CAMPUS:

Scribners: You may not get the first call on Frank O'Neill's "Frank Buck" stories, Ale.. Bell, Villanova footballer, likes them so much he's thinking of buying them for himself. Davis Cup Committee: Austin's Donald Budge, "Baldy" Krzywicki, is having a tough time keeping up with the "Tulsa Kid" and his racket at one and the same time. Registrar, Rosemont College: Harry McGrath and Bill Joseph are considering filing room reservations at your fair college for the year '38-'39. Simons Mattress Co.: Villanova's Horizontal Club has admitted a new member in the person of Oliver Tolpe. Strange As It Seems: Ed Tirrell has become a fairly proficient punner. His latest came in the philosophy class this past week. Everyone was so surprised they forgot to laugh, but Ed made up for it. HE laughed. This Amuses Georgetown Students: (From the "Hoya")—Quote of the week—What's that in the road—ahead? Hmm.

LE JASS HOT:

Bit by bit we're coming to the opinion that several Villanovans are unable to understand the English. Our criticism of sertain Benny Goodman records was berated soundly all around as a blast at Mr. B. G. And, we might add, it was interpreted as a very unfair blast. Sorry if we conveyed that impression, but we still stick to our statements. Goodman has a great band, but he has definitely deteriorated in the past year. If you doubt it, listen to his recording of "Sometimes I'm Happy," or "King Porter" made about a year ago. And to Tommy Haynes—here are a few clarinet men who rate with or above B. G.: Joe Marsala, who made several great records with the old Delta Four, and whose rythms at the Hickory House got five stars from Mr. John Hammond. Again, there is Matty Matlock, of Bob Crosby's band and later of Bunny Berigan's outfit. He can't be touched for tone. Finally, how about Jimmy Dorsey? Leopold is on record as saying that Dorsey could play with any Symphony Ork in the country.

College Chatter

By Joe Alessandroni

THE tramp, tramp, tramp, of marching feet throughout the battle-scarred turf of warworn Europe has finally found voice in many college columns, and echoes may be distinctly heard in the bitter dog-fights that culminate in attack and counter attack, as colleges of diametrically opposed religious and political leanings bitterly charge each other in editorials that bark biting words conceived in anger. These words spoken by American college men show that we are not interested in pointless particles of so called wit alone, and social flourishes which promote nothing except newly invented methods of deleterious divertissement. These thoughts, thus expressed, speak of a thinking, if misguided young America, which connects freedom with license and taangles American traditions with European intrigue.

Our objective should be to observe moderation in all things including discussions of Communism, Facism, or any other current political philosophy, unless they directly effect our country.

The bitterness which is being intensified by false demagogues should make thinking college men realize that hasty words spoken in anger soon die and remain as worthless as the ashes which result from the quick fire of hate which flares before it has found factual fuel to substantiate its truth or falsity.

Harmony is expressed today in one thing alone—Peace. We must have peace at any cost and juvenile diplomats fired by what may often be justifiable horror at the antics of old world schemers, must reflect that there can be no permanent peace, unless American college men lad the way in constructive rather than destructive criticism of time-honored traditions and institutions. There can be no peace, where there is no God, and there can be no harmony among college newspapers until we divest ourselves of European burdens and consider our own problems in democratic America.

The Observer

I CAME WALKING into the Observer's room the other day and found him, as usual, scribbling away at the column for the next week.

"Observer," I said, "H'ye doing?"

"Shucks," he retorted, "I can't seem to do anything with the column this week. Nothing seems to click. He're I've been working away at it for a couple of hours, and what do I have? Here, you look for yourself."

I peered over his shoulder and read: "THE OBSERVER." The rest of the paper was blank save for the scribbled crosses, faces, and pictures of little sparrows.

"Hmmm," I murmured, "been to logic class again, eh? Oh, well, don't you worry about the column this week. Why not take a holiday, Son, and let an old hand at the game take a trick at the column?"

"What do you mean," retorted the Observer. "You're no old hand. What have you ever written?"

"Son, I've been writing books for years. No one except my Mother ever reads them, but at least I write them."

"What do you write about?" the Observer said as he reached for the shovel and then opened the door.

"Oh, I write stuff."

"So it would seem," said the Observer as he started to shovel the stuff out of the door. "What kind of stuff do you write?"

"Do you want to let me write the column? Will you give me a try? Come on, kid, give me a break. He're I've been trying to make one of the big sheets for years and I've never had a break."

"Okeh, my writer-friend, shoot away. But don't kill me if the boys raise a yap."

And what follows is a sample of the stuff which an Observer of the Observer writes. If you like it, write Editor Joe Toland a letter and I'll take the column over.

Are you listening? Huh?

It all happened as I drove downtown in a taxi.

"Driver," I said, "don't your wheels make a lot of noise?"

"Noise," he retorted angrily, "Heck, them was a couple of kids we ran over back a few blocks. You'll get used to that stuff, though."

Waving hello to the cop whose right arm we had just knocked off, I commented to the driver: "Say, they sure have high buildings here, don't they?"

"Buildings, what do you mean? Them is cottages. You ain't seen nothing yet. Say, Buddy, where do you hail from?"

"Hail, hail the gang's all here . . . oh yes, where do I hail from? Hail comes from the sky, driver. It is hard and glossy. You know it derives from the bouncing of little drops of water which are carried from a warm current of air upwards into a cold layer of air. When the little droplets, which are now more than droplets because of the effect of the Heaviside layer, when the little droplets reach the cold layer they freeze. They bounce up and down in the sky and become rather large. Yes, rather large is just the way to describe them."

"Oh, fudge, man!" screamed the driver. "What are you talking about? I said where do you hail from? What part of the country do you live in?"

"Country," I gasped as we drove through a Liggett's Drug Store and knocked over the cash register, "Country? All Gaul is divided into three parts. You know, three is a mystical number. There are many peculiar incidents connected with that number. Did you ever hear the story about the Three Wise Men-"

"Listen, guy, either I'm nuts or you're crazy. Someone is looney. I said where do you hail from? Who asked you about Three Wise Men?"

"Oh, yes. Hell. Heil Hitler. Those Germans are sure kicking it up over there in Europe. Yesterday I read by the paper that Hitler has Austria under his thumb. He has had Anschluss (Ahn-schluss, with a broad 'ahn') with the Austrian Chancellor. I wonder what Anschluss means? Do you possibly conceive, my dear fellow, that it is an Austrian cheese? Or perhaps, on other considerations, it is a good type of beer. Beer is a lovely beverage, driver. Ever been to Norristown?"

Brrrrrng . . .

"What is the matter, driver?" I said innocently.

"Oh, nothing much. The meter just went screwy. It couldn't stand the gaff. I wonder where I am going?" moaned the driver as he brought the cab to a jolting stop at the foot of the East River.

"Say, where are we going? What kind of a trick are you trying to pull on me? You've driven me all over New York City and now you ask me where we are going. Who is driving this cab? Who is crazy? By golly, I'm going to call the police. I think you're crazy."

"Police," said the driver, "don't get the police. Get a doctor. I'm nuts. You're right mister. Heil heil Hitler. Anschluss beer . . . get a free drink at the tall buildings. Where are we going? Meter clinging . . . tinkle, tinkle. All Gaul is divided into where are we going. Oh, Lord, what's the use? . . ."

I climbed out of the cab. It was quite battered up. I forgot to say that when we reached the end of the street we drove right into a concrete wharf. You know, a wharf all made of stone, and big and large and all strong. They do a lot of damage. You should have seen that cab. My, but it was funny.

I walked into the station.

"Tea, Sir?" questioned the major.

"No thanks, not right now. Where is the Captain?"

"He'll be right down. He is in search of further information about the missing madman from Russia."

"Tell him his problems are solved. I'll talk to him at once."

The four-foot-ten major clicked his ears and walked up the stairs on his hands. Clever, these cops. These modern police schools teach a man almost anything.

Feverishly, with hair streaming out of his mouth, the Captain rushed in.

"Where is he? Call National 1717. Ask for Edgar Hoover. Where is the madman from Russia?"

"He's in Villanova," said feebly. I felt quite faint now.

"Villanova," shrieked the Captain. "Where is that?"

"Villanova? Anschluss — Norristown — Wharf. You're bats, too, Captain."

IRISH PATRON SAINT TOPIC OF TUESDAY LENTEN DISCUSSION

Rev. Daniel Falvey, O. S. A., to Address Student Body on 'St. Patrick and the Faith'

THIRD SERMON IN SERIES

Rev. Daniel Falvey, O. S. A., assistant librarian of the college will speak this evening in the regular Tuesday series of Lenten sermons. Father Falvey has selected a very timely topic of interest to all Catholic college men, "' St. Patrick and the Faith."

Birthplace Unknown

St. Patrick, patron saint of the Gaelic, it is believed, was born in the year 389 in an unknown Briton village under the rule of the Roman Empire. In this way he received a Christian training which later prompted him to become a disciple of God. He was removed to Ireland in his 16th year by a group of brigands who terrorized the countryside. After several years in bondage he escaped to Gaul and entered a Gallic monastery.

Leaving here for home, his religious fervor induced him to return to Ireland and attempt to convert the heathen Irish to Christianity. Because of his personal magnetism he was instrumental in gaining the friendship and allegiance of the majority of the tribal chieftans of the country. This strong backing aided him greatly in founding churches and converting heathens.

Established Churches

He established several churches in Connaugh and Ulster, and the famous monastary and church he founded in Armagh in about 444 became the center of ecclesiastical authority in Ireland. St. Patrick was also Bishop of Armagh, but resigned his position to a disciple in order to devote the remainder of his life to meditation and worship. He died in 461 probably at Downs in Ulster.

A special indulgence is granted to all Catholics who attend Confession and receive Holy Communion on St. Patrick's Day, March 17.

NOTICE

All group pictures not taken last week will be taken Monday, March 21. Watch bulletin board for further notices.

THE AWFUL TRUTH: By now the average collegian knows that Gene Krupa vamoosed from Benny Goodman's band for reasons which were made public several weeks ago. Little is it known that Krupa and Goodman have been "beefing" to each other other for some time. The climax reached its highest point when they appeared at the Earle Theatre, and it was backstage before the group departed that Gene told Benny in no uncertain terms what he thought of him. Reasons are obvious. Krupa was the attraction of the band with Lionel Hampton a somewhat close second. After each performance the stage door entrance was mobbed with jitterbugs and ickeys to get Gene Krupa's sig, little or none for Benny. That was one reason, and it was sufficient enough to tickle Benny's pride. Another, Goodman was knocking down 100,000 dollars a year, and our Gene was getting the paltry sum of $500 per week which amounts to the mere sum of $26,000 per year. Well, thus it stood and now it stands. Gene has now asked Rockwell-O'Keefe to help him build a dance combination around him and also to manage the proposed organization. We're neutral in this mixup, but we would like to say to Gene, you were better off than lots of college boys with degrees who are now working as gas station attendants, WPA or the like. $25,000 is no sum of pecuniary measure to argue over. Anyhow, here's success.

TRUE CONFESSION: We're thru our two cents in concerning the above blow-off. However, Benny Goodman still has Martha Tilton, a blonde, petite and born November 14, 22 years ago in Corpus Christi, Texas. She left Texas at the age of seven to live in Los Angeles and started her singing career at the age of 18. The manager of station KELW heard her sing at a small private party, signed her up and presented her on the air for several weeks. Then Martha had great success for a year at the Cocoanut Grove. Hal Grayson was looking for a vocalist and Martha popped into the picture. She didn't stay long with Hal, becoming a member of Jack Oakie's chorus on the Caravan over CBS. Benny Goodman then invited her to join his band and she came to New York with him. She has blue eyes, is five feet, one and a half inches in a vertical posture. Weight equals 90 pounds according to Avocadro's theory. She says she can swing 24 hours a day and believes swing is the only real American expression of music.

LOVE AND HISSES: If you've wondered what other camus columnists talk about, as we have so often, you'll be interested in these gems from those who tell other campusites what it's all about. On our honor, they're all clipped verbatim.

No. 1; "In the coming month, when candidates start campaigning, remember this: The walking brief case, derby and doublebreasted suit (lawyer), is also likely to be a stuffed shirt."

No. 2; At any rate, the frost is coming out of the ground and the only solid things about the camus are the sidewalks and the roads."

No. 3; "The ideal professor is just one of our straight 'A' students grown up. However, he forgets to change his suit from year to year. The student doesn't do that."

No. 4; "The girls speaks first. Yes, this is her obligation, and she must fill it."

No. 5; "And so, while the silk worms and the lisle worms rear their heads, time passes and Summer anklets will run them both into eclipse."

No. 6; "Public schools are undoubtedly marvelously fine and worthy things, but, somehow, after graduating from those mills of standardized culture, one feels as though he had been labeled, 'Made in the U. S. A.' What do you think? Wanna write a column?

COME UP AND SEE ME SOME TIME: Congregational minister's son in Manchester Vermont is credited with the following gag. His Sunday School teachers asked how many pupils in the class knew the story of Creation. Minister's moppet said he did, adding; "That's the story Mae West told on the radio."

SLIGHT CASE OF MURDER: Eddie Cantor was discussing different themes for his next picture and asked for suggestions. It was remarked that Eddie in the next picture should stay awake and let the audience dream. . . . Harry Hershfeld saw a guy getting slugged on a Broadway center. Rushing over to him he asked what was the cause. The injured one said, "S'help me, I was standing on the corner minding my own business in a loud voice." . . . Billy Rose said the other day, "The only men doing business on a large scale are the coal dealers." . . . No ordinary, monosyllabic radio producer is British born Fred Ibbett, who holds rein on Hollywood Hotel. When he wants the tympanist in Raymond Paige's crew to give the drum a good hefty sock, he addresses him, "I say, my good man, deal that instrument a shrewd buffet."

SMOKE GETS IN MY EYES: Before warbling guests are booked for Lucky Strike "Hit Parade" programs they must personally attest they smoke the brand. It's a new policy just put into effect. All guests endorse the eggie over the ozone if they appear on a program, which accounts for the high pay the show gives — around $1000 per performance. Last week two singers offered "Parade" by NBC Artists Service were disqualified even before auditions because the pipers did not smoke the brand.

Utopia—Hollywood.

Sterilized Gold—Detroit.

DEAD END:

A school paper is a great invention.
The school gets all the fame;
No one gets any money.
But the staff gets all the blame.

Introducing—

By FRED WATERS

Way back in the early thirties, our man of the week, Mr. Robert (Bob) Connolly, entered the then up-and-coming La Salle Prep, over Olney way in Philadelphia.

From the very start Mr. Connolly's pursuit of the intricacies of higher education was crowned with the garland of success. After winning a competitive scholarship, Bob immediately proceeded during the following four years to accumulate every scholastic honor in sight. His collection of "gold cards" given weekly to honor students, if laid end on end would reach from Bob's home in North Philadelphia, to—what have you? As for extra-curricular activities,—he participated in debating, and was one of a small group of ambitious fellow students who succeeded in establishing a school weekly.

First in Examination

Shortly after graduating from La Salle, Bob dropped in at Villanova one sweltering summer day, to take part in the competitive scholarship examinations.

He had not changed his days. When the exam results were announced, Robert Connolly held first place by a good margin.

Then, as per his high school record, he proceeded to go to town. As a freshman, he could never manage better than second place in his class rating, first being monopolized by that student-footballer supreme, Jordan Olivar. From his sophomore year to the present time however, Bob has always garnered the top position.

In addition to his scholastic achievements, Bob has engaged in groups on the campus. Bob is a card shark. He is regularly to be many extra-curricular activities. Among these are the Spanish Club, Junior Blazer Committee, and participation as Villanova representative in the inter-collegiate Spelling Bee held over radio station WIP last year.

Not to be forgotten is another "extra." This one has no set meeting times, no definite organization, no recognition in the various school publications, yet it is probably one of the most active and largest found (much to the detriment of all other participants) at those daily in-between-class, and free period bridge — and et cetera sessions over in the Commerce and Finance recreation rooms.

Belle Air Editor

When Bob was appointed Copy Editor of the Belle Air, he didn't realize what he was letting himself in for.

On the job since last October, his work is still far from finished.

It is his duty to read and correct or rewrite every story submitted by staff members for publication in the annual Belle Air.

Early this year, upon request of Rev. Daniel P. Falvey, O.S.A., faculty advisor of the Belle Air, he succeeded in establishing an accounting system for that publication that has proved to be very efficient in its operation to date. Recently he was asked by the Librarian to install a similar system in the school library.

Bob is majoring in accounting in the Commerce and Finance department.

After graduating, he hopes to become associated with some established accounting firm.

In view of your record at Villanova Bob, you probably wouldn't have any difficulty with that. We even venture to predict that it will not be long before you will be hanging out your own C. P. A. shingle. Best of luck to you, Bob.

HOLY NAME SPEAKER DISCUSSES TRADES

Mr. James Martin Describes Workings of Saint Joseph's House

The Holy Name Society of Villanova College was entertained at breakfast the past Sunday by Mr. James Martin of the St. Joseph House of Philadelphia. Mr. Martin has been for the past several years been affiliated with the care of growing boys and their problems at this great charitable institution of which all Philadelphia can be reasonably proud

Spoke on Institution

Before a sizeable audience Mr. Martin proceeded to give a valuable talk concerning the work of the St. Joseph House. This year is the fiftieth anniversary, and the house is to celebrate its Golden Jubillee. Fostering the education of vocational trades for destitute young boys from the ages of twelve and eighteen years St. Joseph House has rendered a new aspect in the parochial school system. This house is an advocate of industrial vocational schools under Catholic auspices. Mr. Martin enumerated the many trades that the boys are taught in preparation for their entrance into the industrial world that demands all earn his livilihood.

The spiritual life of St. Joseph House was also brought to light in Mr. Martin explaining of the rules governing the observation of religious regulations. Daily mass is not compulsory at St. Joseph House, but many of the boys make it a practice never to miss daily mass. It is encouraging to learn of the Guard of Honor, comprised by the boys who every morning receive Holy Communion. Inspirational to all Catholics is the fact that many of the boys who have come from St. Joseph House are now priests and teachers in many parts of the world. There are numbered among those that have once been members of that group now successful lawyers, doctors, and other professional men.

Juniors Announce Selection of D'Ippolito as Blazer Ball Chairman

definitely planned by Cailliet and his as yet unnamed committee.

The other half of the two chairmen just revealed is quite as illustrious as the first. When negotiations were being made in connection with the purchase of the class rings, there was D'Ippolito driving a hard bargain with the bidders. Indeed he acted the perfect secretary of the Junior Ring Committee. His popularity is best seen when he lifts his curly head at one of the dances and emits those wonderful swing tunes in his rich baritone voice. He also sings baritone in the Glee Club Quartet. D'Ippolito is enthusiastic about his chairmanship and is planning big things for the Blazer Ball.

Juniors Display Blazers

Custom has placed the annual Blazers Ball high on the list of the most popular social events of the Villanova school year despite the fact that it is an informal affair. The Juniors display their new blazers on this occasion and have as their guests the members of the Senior Class who are urged also to attend attired in their blazers. This affair is always held in the Field House and has the Villanovans to furnish the music. The general student body is invited to be present at this Blazer Ball to be presented on Wednesday evening, May 4.

While the above two appointments were being made known, Thomas J. Furey, Chairman of the Junior Prom, supplied this additional information regarding the Prom. In a recent committee meeting the following were given charge over the various preparatory matters: Joseph Quinn, Decorations Chairman; Frank Reale, Publicity Chairman; Harold Laskin, ticket sale; and Edward Conneen, patrons and programs head. Sub-committees have been appointed to assist these men.

58% Students Vote Roosevelt Popular Figure In United States

President Far Ahead in VILLANOVAN Poll, With Band Leader Goodman and Block-Head McCarthy Poor Second; Hughes Gets .06%

By MURRAY ZEALOR

This is a second of the series of polls that are to be held at Villanova College questioning the students on the important topics confronting college students of today. The last question put forth to the students was "Would you go to Europe to fight if the United States becomes entangled in a foreign conflict? Why?" The Villanova student reply to this question was 80 percent in the negative. Villanova students do not want to go to war.

Who Is Popular

This week's question has been asked on the campus of many of the larger universities of the country. Their opions have been varied. Princeton and Harvard have both voted for the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, Chief Justice Hughes. Who does Villanova vote for? Here are their opinions.

All answers are in reply to the question: "Who is the most popular person in the United States? Why?"

Anthony Rifici, Senior Science. "Roosevelt is in the eyes of the public more than any other man."

Nicholas Paglioni, Senior Science, "John L. Lewis. He's the leader of the working class."

Robert Barrett, Junior Arts. "Roosevelt. He is the most progressive politician that ever ran for president."

Joseph O'Loughlin, Senior Arts. "F. D. R. For the last six years he has dominated the political scene, and he has gained the love of his people by his liberal administration."

Philip Zitilli, Freshman Science. "Benny Goodman. The people go for him and for his music at least the younger generation does."

William Corkil, Senior Arts, "F. D. R. Because the people believe that through Mr. Roosevelt they will enjoy the greatest measure of this world's goods, and a full pay check."

Bert Smith, Freshman Engineer. "Babe Ruth. The idol of all kids. He built the Yankee Stadium."

Gone With The Wind

Tom Haynes, Freshman Commerce and Finance. "Margaret Mitchell, She wrote "Gone With the Wind," didn't she?"

William Neel, Sophomore Commerce and Finance. "Charley McCarthy. He exemplifies the spirit of the American people."

Emil Mathias, Senior Engineer. "Roosevelt. Everybody talks about him. If they like him or they don't like him they still talk about him."

Val Rizzo, Senior Education. "Shirley Temple. When big celebrities come to this country, they want to see her."

George Bourus, Sophomore Engineer. "I am. Didn't you know?"

Lewis De Simone, Science Junior. 'Angelo Palangi. Because he advertises Villanova."

John D'Ippolito, Junior Commerce and Finance. " B. Goodman, if 3000 high school half wits skipped school, he must be popular."

Marcus Dones, Sophomore Science. "Roosevelt. Great as a politician, and for the things that he has done."

Joseph Norton, Freshman Engineer. "William Powell. He is first ranking box office."

Hughes Only .06 Percent

Robert Schisler, Freshman Science. "Chief Justice Hughes. His judgments are respected by all people."

William Epifanio, Freshman Commerce and Finance. "Joe DiMaggio. I think he will be one of the greatest ball players of all times."

Austin Bradshaw, Sophomore Commerce and Finance. "Robert Taylor. He slays the women, and has sex appeal."

Charles Beach, Junior Engineer. "Roosevelt. The people trusted him the second time, at least 60 or 70 percent of them."

Pershing Calabro, Junior Arts. "Charley McCarthy. He never talks back."

These are the votes taken at random. There are many more votes that cannot at this time be printed, but the above show the general student trend of though. All votes may be summarized in the following percentage: Roosevelt came to the lead with approximately 59 percent of the votes. The followers up cannot be considered as they have not merited any noteworthy percentage of the votes. Benny Goodman and Charley McCarthy are the leaders for second place, both being tie for that position. It may be noted also in the Villanova College poll that Chief Justice Hughes received but .06 percent of the votes.

STUDENTS INVITED TO WIP BROAKCAST

'Ad Lib' Contest Open to Public Speaking Classes Each Monday

Villanova students interested in public speaking are invited to participate in the "Ad Lib" program which is broadcast from the studios of Station WIP every Monday evening at nine o'clock.

General Topics Selected

The purpose of this program is to stimulate interest in extemperaneous speaking. Each contestant who participates in the program is given a topic of general interest, and is asked to speak extemperaneously on it for one minute. This is excellent practical experience for the student who wishes to develop his abilities in this direction.

Each Monday there is a cash award offered for the "Ad Libber" who, in the opinion of the judges, presents the best talk. If any student wishes to participate in this broadcast as a contestant, he should write to the Station requesting tickets and enclosing a self addressed stamped envelope, and tickets will be sent to him.

Yearling Quintet Defeats Temple Frosh 43-28

Sportorial

By BILL BOWKER

Sports Editor

This week the sportorial is being conducted by Joseph Pagano, acting Sports Editor.

LAST SEASON VILLANOVA'S ring squad traveled to West Point and to the surprise and astonishment of many Intercollegiate boxing critics held a very strong and highly favored Army team to a 4-4 draw. This feat was not only a moral victory for the Wildcats but it also brought out the fact that Villanova had a scrappy bunch of fellows for during the week previous to the Villanova stalemate West Point met and administered a fine shellacking to Catholic U.'s squad by the one-sided score of seven to one.

This year West Point recently won the Eastern Intercollegiate Championship held at Penn State mainly through the efforts of Tom Shanley, Don Hall and Bert Harrison. Tom Shanley is the newly-crowned 135-pound Intercollegiate champ; Don Hall finished runner-up in the 145-pound division and Bert Harrison defeated all representatives in the middleweight division to walk off with the championship.

Readers may inquire, "What has all this have to do with Villanova College?" Briefly we'll present some facts which should help to clear up the situation and which probably explains why Villanova authorities are having trouble in arranging a complete boxing schedule for 1939. Eddie Kirk represented Villanova in the 135-pound class and met Mr. Shanley of West Point in the boxing meet between the Wildcat of Villanova and the West Point Mule last season. Eddie put up a good fight for three rounds but in the end Cadet Tom Shanley had performed well enough to merit a close decision over the Blue ringman. However, Don Hall of West Point who finished runner-up in the 145-pound class this season was knocked out in the first round by Bob Mentzinger, who boxed in the 145 pound division for Villanova last season. Bert Harrison, 1938 middleweight Eastern Intercollegiate champ fought in the 155-pound division for the Cadets last season and proved to be an easy victim for Villanova's sensational 145-pounder, Captain Bill Duffy.

Taking another look at these facts it is quite obvious that Villanova is represented by one of the best balanced boxing teams in the East, and that if it were given an opportunity to compete against some of these colleges which have good boxing teams there is no doubt in our mind, or in the minds of others, that Villanova would do more than hold its own against such highly-touted ring teams.

True, Villanova isn't a member of the Eastern Intercollegiate League and possibly didn't deserve an invitation to participate in this tournament, but neither was Villanova a member of the league when Tony Sala was invited to compete in the tournament at Penn State three years ago. Incidentally, we are in favor of Villanova attempting to become a member of that league and urge an effort in that direction in the near future so that Villanova College may, then, be allowed to meet teams of high caliber; if that is the reason we have not been able to meet them in the past.

A nip-and-tuck swimming meet, which was decided by a Nittany Lion win in the 400 yard freestyle relay after the score had been tied at 34-34, was dropped by the Wildcat mermen to their opponents from State College.

Barrett and Timmins Star

It looked as if Villanova would cop the meet after Barrett and Timmins outdid themselves to give their teammates a scant lead in the first 200 yards. At this point, however, Boyne Wood, of State, overtook Cousart in the third leg and although Bill Leahy tried to make up the lost distance Charles Welsh, anchore man for State, cut through the waters at a terrific speed to maintain the lead and clinch the meet for the Nittany Lions.

This relay combination of DeWalt, Lehman, Wood and Welsh set a new pool record in this event by shattering the old pool record of 3.51.8, held by Rider College, by three-tenths of a second.

Garnering two first places and high scorer of the meet for the Wildcats was Charlie Barrett, who has made remarkable progress as a sprinter this season. Charlie thrilled the spectators by establishing a new pool record in the 50 yard freestyle, clipping six-tenths of a second off of the old time of 24.9 held jointly by Steingass, of La Salle, and Miller, of Franklin and

TONY PETRIL WINS ABBEY TROPHY DASH

Takes 50 Yard Event in 5.5 Seconds; Maher Equals Meet Record

Tony Petril and Johnnie Maher, Villanova sprint men, literally ran away with both the dash events at the Catholic University Indoor Track and Field Meet last Saturday night at Washington, D. C.

Petril Subs in Abbey

Maher had been invited to participate in the Abbey Trophy Intercollegiate 50-yard dash, but upon arrival in Washington was informed that he could not run because he was a freshman. Coach Elliott put Tony Petril in his place as a last minute entry. Tony had been taken down to run on the mile relay team and was only rated an outside chance to even place in the event. However, Petril got away to a perfect start and broke the tape ahead of the Georgetown entry to win the event in 5.5 seconds.

Johnnie Maher was entered in a special open 50-yard handicap event. Because of his previous record this Winter, Johnnie was started from scratch. Other entries started anywhere from one to six feet ahead of him. After running in two qualifying heats, Johnnie won the finals in 5.4 seconds, tying the meet record.

BENSON STARS FOR LOSERS

Villanova's high flying Freshman basketball team became the fourth Main Line team this year to plaster a defeat to the wings of the battered Temple Owl, when they smothered the Owlets 43-28 on the local boards Wednesday afternoon.

15th Win Of Year

The victory was the 15th win in as many starts, and closed the most successful frosh court season ever enjoyed at the local school in many years. A season that had the frosh meeting and defeating the outstanding amateur clubs in this area.

Paul Nugent, the curly haired Bronx lad, chose the Temple game for his debut in the high scoring circle. Nugent dropped in eight double deckers from any conceivable angle to run away with the individual scoring crown with a grand total of 16 points. Red Murphy and Tony Vinci followed with nine each.

Murphy started the ball rolling in the first few seconds of play, dropping in a foul toss which was followed by a twin decker by Frank Morris. John Kovacich, the losers elongated pivotman, closed the gap to a one point margin, by dropping one in from the side. This was the closest Harry Litwack's boys got to the Kittens for the remainder of the ball game.

"Duke" Tallies 296 Points to Lead Philadelphia Scoring; First Five Contributes Largely to Record Count

According to the official records as released by the Villanova Publicity Office, Al Severance's high-powered basketballers amassed the record-breaking total of 1204 points for the '37-'38 season. This figure establishes a new district scoring mark.

"Duke" Duzminski, sophomore guard, accounted for 296 points as he made 120 baskets and converted 56 foul tosses. Second high was Jim Montgomery, lanky junior center, who had 268 markers for 111 baskets and 46 charity throws. Johnny Krutulis, junior, who was picked as Hank Luisetti's running mate at forward on Duquesne's All-Opponent team, registered 183 points on 76 goals and 31 fouls, Mike Lazorchak, sophomore forward, made 65 baskets and 30 fouls for a total of 160 points. Art Vigilante, junior guard, racked up 135 points on 52 goals and 31 fouls.

Bill Sinnott, sophomore forward, got 74 points while big Lou Dubino, junior center, accounted for 53 markers. Lloyd Rice, sophomore replacement who seems slated for plenty of action next year, came through for 17 points in the few games he played.

It is interesting to note that the starting five of Duzminski, Montgomery, Krutulis, Lazorchak and Vigilante scored 1042 markers out of the 'Cats 1204 total.

The Wildcats average score per game for the past season was 40.13 points.

NORTH BRANCH YMCA TOPS BLUE TANKMEN

Yearlings Weaken in Relay Events; Burns, Farnsworth Net First Places

North Branch, 44; Villanova Freshmen, 22. That in a nutshell, is the story of the swimming meet which took place in the gym pool on Saturday afternoon. Although the Frosh put up a heroic battle, they could garner no more than half the total of their opponent's points and went down to defeat. They displayed fine spirit, however, and should not be ashamed of losing to a team as capable as the North Branch Y. squad.

Capable Swimmers

The Freshmen have on their team, the first Freshman swimming team in the history of the school, some very dependable performers who, when they become Sophomores, can and should give Villanova one of the best swimming squads in this vicinity. Among those showing promise are Thomas Moore, who uses a breaststroke to go places, Paul Farnsworth, a backstroke stylist, and Jimmy Burns, John Pholeric, and Herm Steiert, who swim in the freestyle events. As only two of the members of the varsity squad graduate, Coach Ruggerio Flocco looks forward with high hopes for next season.

HOLY NAME SPEAKER DISCUSSES TRADES

Mr. James Martin Describes Workings of Saint Joseph's House

The Holy Name Society of Villanova College was entertained at breakfast the past Sunday by Mr. James Martin of the St. Joseph House of Philadelphia. Mr. Martin has been for the past several years been affiliated with the care of growing boys and their problems at this great charitable institution of which all Philadelphia can be reasonably proud

Spoke on Institution

Before a sizeable audience Mr. Martin proceeded to give a valuable talk concerning the work of the St. Joseph House. This year is the fiftieth anniversary, and the house is to celebrate its Golden Jubilee. Fostering the education of vocational trades for destitute young boys from the ages of twelve and eighteen years St. Joseph House has rendered a new aspect in the parochial school system. This house is an advocate of industrial vocational schools under Catholic auspices. Mr. Martin enumerated the many trades that the boys are taught in preparation for their entrance into the industrial world that demands all earn his livilihood.

The spiritual life of St. Joseph House was also brought to light in Mr. Martin explaining of the rules governing the observation of religious regulations. Daily mass is not compulsory at St. Joseph House, but many of the boys make it a practice never to miss daily mass. It is encouraging to learn of the Guard of Honor, comprised by the boys who every morning receive Holy Communion. Inspirational to all Catholics is the fact that many of the boys who have come from St. Joseph House are now priests and teachers in many parts of the world. There are numbered among these that have once been members of that group now successful lawyers, doctors, and other professional men.

Juniors Announce Selection of D'Ippolito as Blazer Ball Chairman

definitely placed by Cailliet and his as yet unnamed committee.

The other half of the two chairmen just retained is quite as illustrious as the first. When negotiations were being made in connection with the purchase of the class rings, there was D'Ippolito driving a hard bargain with the bidders. Indeed he is not the perfect secretary of the Jacket Ring Committee. His popularity is best seen when he lifts his curly head at one of the dances and emits those wonderful swing notes on his rich baritone voice. He is also singing baritone in the Glee Club Quartet. D'Ippolito is enthusiastic about his chairmanship and is planning big things for the Blazer Ball.

Juniors Display Blazers

Custom has placed the annual Blazers Ball high on the list of the most popular social events of the Villanova school year despite the fact that it is an informal affair. The Juniors display their new blazers on this occasion and have as their guests the members of the Senior Class who are urged also to attend attired in their blazers. This affair is always held in the Field House and has the Villanovans to furnish the music. The general student body is invited to be present at this Blazer Ball to be presented on Wednesday evening, May 4.

While the above two appointments were being made known, Thomas J. Fahey, Chairman of the Junior Prom, supplied this additional information regarding the Prom. In a recent committee meeting the following were given charge over the various preparatory matters: Joseph Quinn, Decorations Chairman; Frank Seale, Publicity Chairman; Harold Laskin, ticket sale; and Edward Conneen, patrons and programs head. Sub-committees have been appointed to assist these men.

58% Students Vote Roosevelt Popular Figure In United States

By MURRAY ZEALOR

This is a second of the series of polls that are to be held at Villanova College questioning the students on the important topics confronting college students of today. The last question put forth to the students was "Would you go to Europe to fight if the United States becomes entangled in a foreign conflict? Why?" The Villanova student reply to this question was 80 percent in the negative. Villanova students do not want to go to war.

Who Is Popular

This week's question has been asked on the campus of many of the larger universities of the country. Their opions have been varied. Princeton and Harvard have both voted for the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, Chief Justice Hughes. Who does Villanova vote for? Here are their opinions.

All answers are in reply to the question: "Who is the most popular person in the United States? Why?"

Anthony Rifici, Senior Science, "Roosevelt is in the eyes of the public more than any other man."

Nicholas Paglioni, Senior Science, "John L. Lewis. He's the leader of the working class."

Robert Barrett, Junior Arts, "Roosevelt. He is the most progressive politician that ever ran for president."

Joseph O'Loughlin, Senior Arts, "F. D. R. For the last six years he has dominated the political scene, and he has gained the love of his people by his liberal administration."

Philip Zitilli, Freshman Science, "Benny Goodman. The people go for him and for his music at least the younger generation does."

William Corkil, Senior Arts, "F. D. R. Because the people believe that through Mr. Roosevelt they will enjoy the greatest measure of this world's goods, and a full pay check."

Bert Smith, Freshman Engineer, "Babe Ruth. The idol of all kids. He built the Yankee Stadium."

Gone With The Wind

Tom Haynes, Freshman Commerce and Finance, "Margaret Mitchell. She wrote "Gone With the Wind," didn't she?"

William Neel, Sophomore Commerce and Finance, "Charley McCarthy. He exemplifies the spirit of the American people."

Emil Mathias, Senior Engineer, "Roosevelt. Everybody talks about him. If they like him or they don't like him they still talk about him."

Val Rizzo, Senior Education, "Shirley Temple. When big celebrities come to this country, they want to see her."

George Bourus, Sophomore Engineer. "I am. Didn't you know?"

Lewis De Simone, Science Junior, 'Angelo Palangi. Because he advertises Villanova."

John D'Ippolito, Junior Commerce and Finance, " B. Goodman, if 3000 high school half wits skipped school, he must be popular."

Marcus Dones, Sophomore Science. "Roosevelt. Great as a politician, and for the things that he has done."

Joseph Norton, Freshman Engineer, "William Powell. He is first ranking box office."

Hughes Only .06 Percent

Robert Schisler, Freshman Science. "Chief Justice Hughes. His judgments are respected by all people."

William Epifanio, Freshman Commerce and Finance, "Joe DiMaggio. I think he will be one of the greatest ball players of all times."

Austin Bradshaw, Sophomore Commerce and Finance, "Robert Taylor. He slays the women, and has sex appeal."

Charles Beach, Junior Engineer, "Roosevelt. The people trusted him the second time, at least 60 or 70 percent of them."

Pershing Calabro, Junior Arts, "Charley McCarthy. He never talks back."

These are the votes taken at random. There are many more votes that cannot at this time be printed, but the above show the general student trend of though. All votes may be summarized in the following percentage: Roosevelt came to the lead with approximately 59 percent of the votes. The followers up cannot be considered as they have not merited any noteworthy percentage of the votes. Benny Goodman and Charley McCarthy are the leaders for second place, both being tie for that position. It may be noted also in the Villanova College poll that that Chief Justice Hughes received but .06 percent of the votes.

STUDENTS INVITED TO WIP BROAKCAST

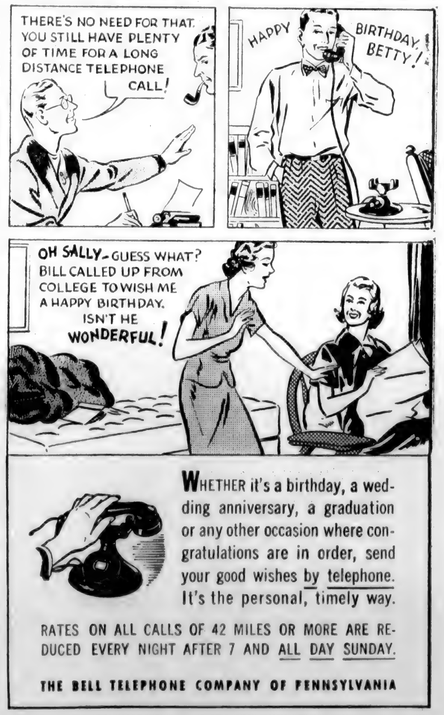
'Ad Lib' Contest Open to Public Speaking Classes Each Monday

Villanova students interested in public speaking are invited to participate in the "Ad Lib" program which is broadcast from the studios of Station WIP every Monday evening at nine o'clock.

General Topics Selected

The purpose of this program is to stimulate interest in extemperaneous speaking. Each contestant who participates in the program is given a topic of general interest, and is asked to speak extemperaneously on it for one minute. This is excellent practical experience for the student who wishes to develop his abilities in this direction.

Each Monday there is a cash award offered for the "Ad Libber" who, in the opinion of the judges, presents the best talk. If any student wishes to participate in this broadcast as a contestant, he should write to the Station requesting tickets and enclosing a self addressed stamped envelope, and tickets will be sent to him.



WHETHER it's a birthday, a wedding anniversary, a graduation or any other occasion where congratulations are in order, send your good wishes by telephone. It's the personal, timely way.

Sportorial

By BILL BOWKER
Sports Editor

This week the sportorial is being conducted by Joseph Pagano, acting Sports Editor.

LAST SEASON VILLANOVA'S ring squad traveled to West Point and to the surprise and astonishment of many Intercollegiate boxing critics held a very strong and highly favored Army team to a 4-4 draw. This feat was not only a moral victory for the Wildcats but it also brought out the fact that Villanova had a scrappy bunch of fellows for during the week previous to the Villanova stalemate West Point met and administered a fine shellacking to Catholic U.'s squad by the one-sided score of seven to one.

This year West Point recently won the Eastern Intercollegiate Championship held at Penn State mainly through the efforts of Tom Shanley, Don Hall and Bert Harrison. Tom Shanley is the newly-crowned 135-pound Intercollegiate champ; Don Hall finished runner-up in the 145-pound division and Bert Harrison defeated all representatives in the middleweight division to walk off with the championship.

Readers may inquire, "What has all this have to do with Villanova College?" Briefly we'll present some facts which should help to clear up the situation and which probably explains why Villanova authorities are having trouble in arranging a complete boxing schedule for 1939. Eddie Kirk represented Villanova in the 135-pound class and met Mr. Shanley of West Point in the boxing meet between the Wildcat of Villanova and the West Point Mule last season. Eddie put up a good fight for three rounds but in the end Cadet Tom Shanley had performed well enough to merit a close decision over the Blue ringman. However, Don Hall of West Point who finished runner-up in the 145-pound class this season was knocked out in the first round by Bob Mentzinger, who boxed in the 145 pound division for Villanova last season. Bert Harrison, 1938 middleweight Eastern Intercollegiate champ fought in the 155-pound division for the Cadets last season and proved to be an easy victim for Villanova's sensational 145-pounder, Captain Bill Duffy.

Taking another look at these facts it is quite obvious that Villanova is represented by one of the best balanced boxing teams in the East, and that if it were given an opportunity to compete against some of these colleges which have good boxing teams there is no doubt in our mind, or in the minds of others, that Villanova would do more than hold its own against such highly-touted ring teams.

True, Villanova isn't a member of the Eastern Intercollegiate League and possibly didn't deserve an invitation to participate in this tournament, but neither was Villanova a member of the league when Tony Sala was invited to compete in the tournament at Penn State three years ago. Incidentally, we are in favor of Villanova attempting to become a member of that league and urge an effort in that direction in the near future so that Villanova College may, then, be allowed to meet teams of high caliber; if that is the reason we have not been able to meet them in the past.

STATE WINS FINAL EVENT TO SUBMERGE WILDCAT SWIMMERS

Barrett Places First in Two Events; Sets New Pool Record in 50 Yard Dash

By JOSEPH PAGANO

A nip-and-tuck swimming meet, which was decided by a Nittany Lion win in the 400 yard freestyle relay after the score had been tied at 34-34, was dropped by the Wildcat mermen to their opponents from State College.

Barrett and Timmins Star

It looked as if Villanova would cop the meet after Barrett and Timmins outdid themselves to give their teammates a scant lead in the first 200 yards. At this point, however, Boyne Wood, of State, overtook Cousart in the third leg and although Bill Leahy tried to make up the lost distance Charles Welsh, anchore man for State, cut through the waters at a terrific speed to maintain the lead and clinch the meet for the Nittany Lions.

This relay combination of DeWalt, Lehman, Wood and Welsh set a new pool record in this event by shattering the old pool record of 3.51.8, held by Rider College, by three-tenths of a second.

Garnering two first places and high scorer of the meet for the Wildcats was Charlie Barrett, who has made remarkable progress as a sprinter this season. Charlie thrilled the spectators by establishing a new pool record in the 50 yard freestyle, clipping six-tenths of a second off of the old time of 24.9 held jointly by Steingass, of La Salle, and Miller, of Franklin and

Takes 50 Yard Event in 5.5 Seconds; Maher Equals Meet Record

Tony Petril and Johnnie Maher, Villanova sprint men, literally ran away with both the dash events at the Catholic University Indoor Track and Field Meet last Saturday night at Washington, D. C.

Petril Subs in Abbey

Maher had been invited to participate in the Abbey Trophy Intercollegiate 50-yard dash, but upon arrival in Washington was informed that he could not run because he was a freshman. Coach Elliott put Tony Petril in his place as a last minute entry. Tony had been taken down to run on the mile relay team and was only rated an outside chance to even place in the event. However, Petril got away to a perfect start and broke the tape ahead of the Georgetown entry to win the event in 5.5 seconds.

Johnnie Maher was entered in a special open 50-yard handicap event. Because of his previous record this Winter, Johnnie was started from scratch. Other entries started anywhere from one to six feet ahead of him. After running in two qualifying heats, Johnnie won the finals in 5.4 seconds, tying the meet record.

According to the official records as released by the Villanova Publicity Office, Al Severance's high-powered basketballers amassed the record-breaking total of 1204 points for the '37-'38 season. This figure establishes a new district scoring mark.

"Duke" Duzminski, sophomore guard, accounted for 296 points as he made 120 baskets and converted 56 foul tosses. Second high was Jim Montgomery, lanky junior center, who had 268 markers for 111 baskets and 46 charity throws. Johnny Krutulis, junior, who was picked as Hank Luisetti's running mate at forward on Duquesne's All-Opponent team, registered 183 points on 76 goals and 31 fouls. Mike Lazorchak, sophomore forward, made 65 baskets and 30 fouls for a total of 160 points. Art Vigilante, junior guard, racked up 135 points on 52 goals and 31 fouls.

Bill Sinnott, sopho ore forward, got 74 points while big Lou Dubino, junior center, accounted for 53 markers. Lloyd Rice, sophomore replacement who seems slated for plenty of action next year, came through for 17 points in the few games he played.

It is interesting to note that the starting five of Duzminski, Montgomery, Krutulis, Lazorchak and Vigilante scored 1042 markers out of the Cats 1204 total.

The Wildcats average score per game for the past season was 40.13 points.

FROSH BASKETEERS END SEASON WITH WIN OVER OWLETS

Kittens Impressive in Fifteenth Consecutive Triumph; Nugent, Vinci, Murphy Shine

BENSON STARS FOR LOSERS

Villanova's high flying Freshman basketball team became the fourth Main Line team this year to plaster a defeat to the wings of the battered Temple Owl, when they smothered the Owlets 43-28 on the local boards Wednesday afternoon.

15th Win Of Year

The victory was the 15th win in as many starts, and closed the most successful frosh court season ever enjoyed at the local school in many years. A season that had the frosh meeting and defeating the outstanding amateur clubs in this area.

Paul Nugent, the curly haired Bronx lad, chose the Temple game for his debut in the high scoring circle, Nugent dropped in eight double deckers from any conceivable angle to run away with the individual scoring crown with a grand total of 16 points. Red Murphy and Tony Vinci followed with nine each.

Murphy started the ball rolling in the first few seconds of play, dropping in a foul toss which was followed by a twin decker by Frank Morris. John Kovacich, the losers elongated pivotman, closed the gap to a one point margin, by dropping one in from the side. This was the closest Harry Litwack's boys got to the Kittens for the remainder of the ball game.

NORTH BRANCH YMCA TOPS BLUE TANKMEN

Yearlings Weaken in Relay Events; Burns, Farnsworth Net First Places

North Branch, 44; Villanova Freshmen, 22. That in a nutshell is the story of the swimming meet which took place in the gym pool on Saturday afternoon. Although the Frosh put up a heroic battle, they could garner no more than half the total of their opponents points and went down to defeat. They displayed fine spirit, however, and should not be ashamed of losing to a team as capable as the North Branch Y. squad.

Capable Swimmers

The Freshmen have on their team, the first Freshman swimming team in the history of the school, some very dependable performers who, when they become Sophomores, can and should give Villanova one of the best swimming squads in this vicinity. Among those showing promise are Thomas Moore, who uses a breaststroke to go places, Paul Farnsworth, a backstroke stylist, and Jimmy Burns, John Phoieric, and Herm Steiert, who swim in the freestyle events. As only two of the members of the varsity squad graduate, Coach Ruggerio Flocco looks forward with high hopes for next season.

Intra-Mural Diadem Won By Austin Quintet

Fedigan Loses Court Crown To Austin In Close Series

Intra-Mural Play-Off Featured by Intense Rivalry; Bochetto Leads Blue Shirts in Strong Attack to Win Thrilling Third Game

GOUMY AND TOTIN SHINE FOR LOSERS

By BILL SINNOTT

The Austin Hall Intra-Mural basketeers swept into the 1937-38 championship Thursday night in crowded Alumni Hall, winning the final game 33-27 after the most hectic playoff series since the League's inception in 1931.

Continuing the sensational play of the first two games, which they split, Fedigan Hall electrified the crowd by scoring the first two points on the wrong basket. Mike Totin evened it up with a shot from the foul line after dribbling through the entire Austin outfit. Austin took the lead on a basket by Mike Cuskey, a lead they relinquished but once in the course of the game.

The embattled quintets both exhibited brilliant basketball for the last ten minutes of the first half. Vic Sandor, Austin's high scoring forward, tried desperately to shake himself loose, but the Fed's clinging guard, Johnny Costello, was like a leech. They left the floor for the half with the score 15-14 in favor of Fedigan by virtue of a last second heave by Ted Goumy.

Austin Pulls Away

Austin Hall came out for the second half with a changed offense. Instead of using their usual delayed, deliberate style the "Little Austos" switched unexpectedly to a fast break that caught the Fedigan-ites flatfooted time after time. Connors flipped in two in succession from underneath. Bradshaw added another and Fedigan called for time out. On resumption of play Ted Goumy was injured when Tex Connor scored another under-the-hoop. His withdrawal from the fracas left Fedigan wanting in the defensive department and Austin's steamroller began to pick up speed.

The Austinites drew away and the efforts of little "Al" Woods to turn the tide in Fedigan's favor went for naught. The game ended with Mike Cuskey throwing in two in a row for Austin and Woods duplicating the effort for the "Gigolos."

Fedigan's lone win came in the second game of the series when Mike Totin rustled the cords for 16 points to score high honors for the playoff. The game was enlivened by a near fist fight and disputed decisions rendered by Jim Dwyer and his associate "Judge" Marquette. Fedigan finally won 29-28 after some very weird manipulations on the part of the officials.

Overtime Decides First Tilt

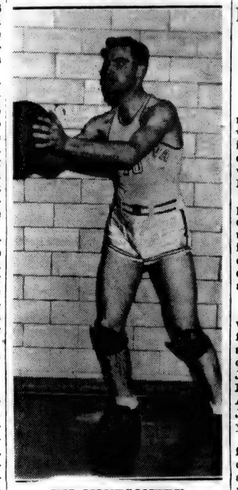
Austin Bradshaw sparked Austin to win the first game of the series, 41-38. Bradshaw scored two baskets and a foul in the overtime period necessary to decide the game and scored 15 in the full course of the game. Mike Totin chipped in three baskets for Fedigan in the same overtime. Throughout the series the work of Joe Bochetto, Austin's great center, stood out. His end-of-the-season play more than atoned for his mid-season slump.

High scoring honors for the play-off went to Austin's Joe Bochetto with 33 points. Mike Totin sent 32 points through the hoops in the three-game block. Austin Bradshaw contributed 21 to the Austin cause.

SPORTS STAFF MEETING

There will be a meeting of the sports staff today in the office, in conjunction with the entire staff meeting called by the Editor-in-chief. Staff members should make it their business to be present.

Court Star



JIM MONTGOMERY, junior center, who was second in team scoring with 268 points, enough to put him well up in the Philadelphia scoring ranks.

for the Kittens were the abovementioned Burns, Steiert and Farnsworth, each of whom gathered five markers. Burns followed two of the Y. M. C. A. boys home in the 50 yard freestyle event and then came back to swim a dead heat with Ando of North Branch in the 100 yd. race to make his points.

Steiert Wins

Steiert and Farnsworth won their specialties, the former over the 200 yard route and the latter over a distance of 100 yards. Tom Moore came in second in the breast-stroke race and third in the diving competition to add four points to a losing cause.

It was really in the last three events that the Kittens weakened. Up to this time the score was 24-21 with the invaders in the lead. Then the youngsters proceeded to "get nowhere fast" by scoring but one point in the dives and losing the two relays. This produced the final score of 44-22.

Fifty-Six Gridders Continue Drills In Second Week Of Spring Practice

Freshman Candidates Number 26 as "Clipper" Smith Faces Job of Finding Replacements For 11 Seniors

By BILL BOWKER

"Clipper" Smith's gridders are now in their second week of a six-week long training period. Drilling on the Austin lawn, the Wildcats drew many spectators who were lured out to see what the Blue has to offer for next year.

No actual football has been played as yet, but the boys started a bit of contact work last Saturday when the Clipper moved into the Main Line stadium to dodge the eyes of the many curious and to ease traffic conditions along the Lancaster Pike.

Eleven Seniors Lost

Although eleven seniors are lost via the diploma route, prospects for next season are not so gloomy as would first seem, for a wealth of material is present from "Doc" Jacobs undefeated frosh eleven. Nick Basca, Ed Killian, "Moon" Andrulewicz, Gordon Shader and Johnny Nojunas lead the pack of promising yearlings.

One of the knottiest problems facing the "Clipper" is the filling of the post left by Johnny Mellus and Jordan Olivar, the sterling pair of tackles who headed the impregnable Wildcat forward wall. Val Rizzo, out for the entire season from an ankle injury, will be back, and is scheduled to fill in at one of the posts, although plenty of competition will be offered by Vic Cook, "Reds" Kamen, and Bill Cochrane of last year's varsity, and Killian, Andrulewicz and Bill Dokas of the frosh club. A large number of men are available for these posts, but a big job is ahead of Smith in replacing the two seniors.

The end positions are well cared for, with All-American Johnny Wysocki and Walt Nowak back, not to mention Frank Bukofski and Sam Monaco, both of whom played stellar ball throughout the season. It can be said with some degree of certainty that the end problem is the easiest facing Coach Smith. Bob Buckley, letter man, is also available.

Guards Plentiful

Another somewhat knotty problem faces the Blue mentor, with the absence of Tony Periera from the guard candidates. Periera, one of the most capable substitutes during the undefeated campaign, has left school, and it is up to Thom Casper, Ronnie Tornwall, and the group of freshman guards to fill in his place. Dave DiFilippo is a leading candidate for the other position, although at this date it is impossible to say who will be at any post when the opening whistle blows in September.

Center is another position which finds a rather easy problem confronting the Wildcat board of strategy. Johnny McKenna, stellar pivot, will undoubtedly be missed, but able replacements are present in Andy Chinick and Lou Dymond. The former split the duties with McKenna, last year and it is possible that the same procedure may result this season with the two leading pivot candidates. Ed Collins is one of the frosh who are pressing these two for places on the starting line. Art Bove is another graduate from Jacobs' crew who is waging a hot battle for honors.

Most numerous of all the tyros are the backfield men. Only five were lost by graduation, Andy Stopper, Art Raimo, Ray Stoviak, Jack Earle and Franny Nye, and 18 combined quarterbacks, fullbacks and halfbacks are at Smith's beck and call.

Franny Nye is lost by graduation, but Harv Buck and Harry Mazzei, both of whom saw plenty of action because of Nye's injury, are back, and Gordon Shader and Pete Naimo are promising material from the Class of '41. Mazzei is noted for his effective blocking, while Buck presents shifty running as his forte.

Halfbacks galore meet the eye as Art Murphy, Mike Sabrinsky, Bill Romanowski, Paul Verbitsky, Whitey Urbellis and Gerry Neri from the varsity of '37 trot around. Six gridders from the "Greenies" are trying out, led by Nick Basca, Al Ferris, Ben Morkum, Al Steed, Johnny Nojunas, and Pete Yankauskas.

Four fullbacks are presenting themselves for approval. Johnny Gogolinski, Tom McMahon, Frank Michniewicz, and Frank Menard aer practicing line bucking, with the last mentioned being a recruit from the Jacobs' combine. McMahon and Gogolinski both saw action last year, but the other two have yet to face fire.

With the material of material at hand "Clipper" has a bright outlook, having 56 players from which to form a machine that will play nine interesting games, and possibly a tenth.

race. Buck was out in front, but hit the last hurdle. It still looked as though he qualified for the finals, but the judges decided otherwise. Meehan met with the same fate.

Murphy Loses Jump

Art Murphy, of football fame, lost out in the high jump, and Tommy "Major" McCabe failed to place in the 1000-yard run. McCabe got off to a poor start and found it too difficult to break through the entire pack to gain a place.

The last event of the evening was the mile relay intercollegiate race. Villanova, handicapped by the absence of Bill Dobbins, was pitted against Georgetown and Washington and Lee. Barney Bellew, leadoff man for the Wildcats, drew the outside post. All three runners got off to a good start and hit the first turn together. The W. & L. runner fell in front of Bellew and by the time Barney got his stride again, the Georgetown man was almost half a lap ahead. Bellew made a noble bid to catch him, but the handicap proved too much. Both Buek and Petril showed effects of their previous runs, and failed to gain on the Georgetown team. Buek was running in place of Dobbins. Bill Guiteras ran anchor for Villanova and finished second for the third time this season.

After a week's rest, the team will report this Monday at the gymnasium to start practice for the outdoor season.

'CAT COURT STARS MAKE ALL - OPPONENT QUINTETS

Recognition of three Villanova court stars on All-Opponent Teams the latest honor to be bestowed upon Al Severance's Wildcat quintet which has recently concluded the most successful court campaign in the annals of basketball history at Villanova College.

Coach Paul Calvert rated George "Duke" Duzminski, brilliant sophomore guard of Villanova, as the best offensive player to oppose the Brown and White team during any of the 15 games of the past season. In addition to Duzminski's selection, Villanova's lanky Jim Montgomery also was valuable enough to be picked as the best center to oppose Calvert's boys this season.

Although Johnny Krutulis, dependable forward for the Wildcats, was picked on the second team of Lehigh's All-Opponent team; his worth was recognized by Duquesne Basketball Authorities by being selected for that coveted forward position as a running mate to Stanford's record breaking forward, the mighty "Hank" Luisetti.

In the Sportlight

By JOHN L. SIMONS

SWITCHING to a new field of celebrities we present for your perusal the outstanding incidents in the life of Mr. William Henry Burke, the pride of Locust Gap, and co-manager of the Villanova football team. Burke was born at 40 Main Street in Locust Gap on February 12, 1915, and has lived in the same house ever since.

G-Man

Early in life Bill began to show the abilities that served him well in his later years as football manager. It is hard for most fellows to be a big shot in grammar school, but our hero was not to be stopped. During the latter half of his eight years' stay at St. Joseph's School in the Gap Burkie was a very prominent figure. In his important position as captain of the safety patrol he was of invaluable assistance to the preservers of law and order.

Also during his early schooldays Bill began to develop his business ability. He was appointed to collect from the students their weekly contributions to the Saving Fund Society, and the success he made was an indication of his business acumen.

In the month of September, 1929, Bill entered Bradley High School, which institution was named after his maternal grandfather. It is also known as the Mount Carmel Township High School, but inscribed on the facade of the school building is the legend Bradley High School, so it must be right.

Class President

As a high school student Bill continued to be active, athletically and socially. He reached the peak of his success early. In his sophomore year he was elected to the presidency of the class. During the same year he was a substitute tackle on the football and played on the basketball quintet. From that time on, however, he buckled down to serious work and concentrated on his studies.

He graduated in 1933 and went to work. But, strangely enough, he did not like most of the people around there, going into the mines but was a clerk in Locust Gap's General Store. In the year he worked in that store he worked his way up to the position of Assistant Manager.

At that time he was undecided as to whether or not he would further his education. His brother John, Villanova '34 and now a teacher in the Gap, entered the narrative and persuaded Bill to enter Villanova.

Frosh Grid Manager

The first day Bill was at this institution he hied himself down to the stadium and applied for the post of freshman manager. "Moose" Donovan, one of the managers, put him to work at once. After practice Bill approached Coach Stuhldreher and had quite a talk with him, the outcome of which was that Bill secured his place as a manager.

That was the start of his managerial career. He worked hard carrying headgears, polishing shoes and performing the general handyman chores that are the duty of the football managers. Although the nature of his activities kept him more or less in the background, he did much to further the endeavors of the eleven.

In spite of all the hard work and the good natured ribbing the footballers handed out (their prize achievement was dubbing him "The Timid Soul") Bill enjoyed the four seasons he spent as a manager. The biggest thrill of that time didn't come for Bill until the final game of last year. The trip and game with Loyola at Los Angeles last November will always be remembered as the high spot of his college life.

As a student Bill has followed in the footsteps of his older brother, John. He enrolled in the Commerce and Finance School but transferred to the School of Education when it was formed in his Junior year. His ambition after graduation is to follow his brother into the teaching profession.

the ball towards the basket, until they had rolled up a 24-13 lead at the interim. Nugent, Vinci, and Murphy doing the damage. Of the 13 points rolled up by Temple, only four were results of field goals.

The second half was almost a carbon copy of the first canto. The Owlets continued to play spotty ball, missing shots by the dozen. They were miserable performers underneath the baskets. It was a very tired Temple squad that left the floor with some ten minuts eof play remaining to give way to fresh reserves. It was the latter group who brought the Owlets from an 38-17 deficit to 43-28, the final score.

Playing their usually steady game were Chuck Yund, Zelonkewicz, and Frank Morris. Although they rarely scored this trio set the ball in scoring position throughout the tilt.

Usilton, youngest son of the Temple varsity mentor, and Dick Fox proved to be the stalwarts of the Broad Streeters, carrying the brunt of the burden as long as they were in the game. Joe Benson, a guard, led the Temple forces with three fielders and two charity tosses for eight points. Benson sustained a fractured ankle in the second half.

three of the most interesting and hard-fought tussles ever to be witnessed on the boards of the Alumni Gym. However, not wishing to neglect the basketeers from Fedigan, much credit must be given them for coming back to win the second fray by one point after dropping the first tilt to send the playoff into a three-game series.

Tony Ortenzi, light heavyweight mittman and gridiron star for Western Maryland, crashed through with the Intercollegiate 175 pound championship last week in the Eastern Intercollegiate Boxing Tournament, succeeding three-time Intercollegiate Champ, Tony Sala, of Villanova.

Greco Wins Final Race

Captain Toby Greco, swimming his last meet for Villanova College, gave his usual fine performance by winning the 200 yard breaststroke event and did well competing in the 300 yard medley relay event which the Blue tankmen lost by a touch.

Bill Bailey and Bill Leahy also contributed to the Wildcat score by placing first in the 400 and 200 yard freestyle contests respectively. Wilmer Booth and Ed Leahy placed second and third to Mark Vinzant in the 150 yard backstroke event.

Captain Robert De Walt proved to be the mainstay of the State team as he finished third in the 100 yard freestyle event in addition to being a member of the winning unit in the 300 yard medley relay and the record breaking combination in the 400 freestyle event. Vinzant was the only State swimmer to cop a first place in the individual swimming events, finishing ahead of Villanova's Wilmer Booth in the 150 yard backstroke event.

In the diving contest, Guy McLaughlin proved to be the superior performer, showing beautiful form and grace in some of his attempts. Ray Parkes barely finished ahead of Charlie Timmins for second honors in this contest.

Although Villanova lost the meet, Coach Flocco was pleased with the efforts of his boys and expressed his satisfaction with the improvement that the team as a whole has shown in the last two meets.

150-LB. LOOP HEAD RELEASES SCHEDULE

Rutgers Official Announces New Rules; Cornell Admitted to League

With the official announcement of the Eastern Intercollegiate Lightweight Football League concerning the admission of Cornell into the circuit, the 1938 schedule was also announced.

Seven in Loop

The fact that there are now seven teams in the league means that each will play six contests, instead of five as heretofore. Two new rule modifications were also announced, the regulations to take effect at once. The first concerns the time for starting practice. Before the inception of the rule, no set time for beginning training was in force, but under the new ruling the last Monday in September is the earliest starting date allowable.

Eligibility is covered in the second of the new rules, which states that a list of eligible players must be made up at the end of the first week of practice and presented to the other members of the league. Only those listed on the slips will be allowed to participate in league contests.

Ells Open Activities

The schedule, released March 11, shows that the first game of the 1938 season will be contested at Lafayette when Yale visits the Leopards on October 14. The Blue lightweights swing into action the following day, playing host to the Scarlet of Rutgers. The following Friday the Kittens meet the Princeton 150's at home. All but two of the Main Liners' games are on home terrain, Yale and Penn being met on foreign fields.

After facing Penn on Friday, October 28, the Little Wildcats rest until November 12, when the Little Red of Cornell invades the Kitten lair for their fifth contest in the lightweight league.

Villanova's eleven stands a good chance of improving its past standings in the circuit with the fine material which will be present when the first call rolls around next September. Joe Alessandroni, Bert Cousart and Paul Kerrigan are the only ones lost by graduation, and from the remainder the as yet unnamed coach will have plenty from which to choose.

The Villanova 150 lb. schedule:
Oct. 15—Rutgers at home.
Oct. 21—Princeton at home.
Oct. 28—Penn at Penn.
Nov. 12—Cornell at home.
Nov. 18—Yale at Yale.
Nov. 24—Lafayette at home.

ALLEYS REMODELED FOR FRAT TOURNEY

Lack of Interest Causes Cancellation of Intramural Billiard Contest

Adherents of that ancient indoor sport of bowling will be pleased to learn that the Gymnasium bowling alleys are being completely renovated. No longer will the boys be able to blame their low scores on the condition of the alleys and the grooves that lead away from the head pin.

At the present time the runways are not open to the student body, but it is hoped that they will be in readiness at the end of the week.

Engineers To Open Alleys

As soon as the bowling room is completely overhauled the engineers plan to run their annual ten-pin tournament. In the past this has been a well represented event, and Dan Crossmire, the acting major-domo of the Recreation Emporium, does not expect this tournament to deviate from those of the past. In all probability the engineers will be bestowed the privilege of opening the refinished alleys.

Because of the apparent lack of interest the proposed intramural bowling and billiard tournaments have been cancelled. There seems to be a little student interst in pool, but only a few of the billiard "sharks" seem to be in favor of a tournament. Unfortunately these few are in such a minority that it is impossible to conduct any competitive contests.

It is generally believed that the pool tables will be the next objects to undergo remodelling. It is expected that the tables will be relined, and new ivories will be supplied for the va.. board of temporarily demolished cue sticks. When work is finally completed in the Villanova Recreation Center, t will compare favorably with any on the Main Line. Perhaps the professional atmosphere will not be present, but first grade equipment will be provided.

History Seminar And International Relations Groups Hold Discussions

Rev. John R. Dunne Calls For More Interested Historians; Relations Club to Review Conclusions of Recent Rosemont Conference

Villanova's History Seminar, under the direction of Dr. Harold Hartman, will have its bi-monthly meeting this Wednesday in the reception room of Mendel Hall. The meeting will be conducted from 4:15 until 5 P. M.

The original purpose of the group was to conduct a research of the writings of early historians and their effect on modern history. This work, however, has been laid aside for the present, in order to discuss the present problem of international politics and its relation to history. Rev. John R. Dunn, O. S. A., is quoted as saying, that, "although the seminar is only open to members of the department of History in good standing, it welcomes all those who evidence a desire to become acquainted with this phase of historical work.

International Relations Meets

Rev. William Lunney, O. S. A., moderator of the International Relations Club, has announced a meeting to be held this Wednesday in the Day-Student room in Mendel Hall. The purpose of the meeting will be to hear a brief resume of the papers and conclusions of the Regional Conference of the Catholic Student Peace Federation heard at Rosemont College last Saturday, March 12. The topic discussed was, "A Review of the Far Eastern Crisis."

The group plans to make a critical analysis of the present international situation and its relation to this country in so far as the peace of the nation is concerned. It is its aim also, in the study, to adhere to views as befitting Catholic students.

They will use as a basis, the idea that all "Catholics must learn that war is never justified until means of peace are tried and found wanting: and that pretty phrases and wistful dreams will never effect a genuine Peace. Education and action in this direction are essential."

Father Lunney has announced that Villanova will be represented at the National Convention of the Catholic Student Peace League in Washington, D. C. on April 26.

CARD PARTY PLANS DISCUSSED BY MEN

Augustinian Guild Sub-Group Holds Meeting in College Gymnasium

Plans for the coming Augustinian Guild Card Party and Dance were the chief topic of discussion at a meeting of the men's committee at their recent meeting in the college gymnasium last week.

Casey Active

Leading the discussion was Mr. John Casey who has been actively engaged in the affairs of the Guild since its inception. After the many angles of the affair had been discussed and several plans for advertising and prizes had been completed it was suggested that the next meeting be held in Philadelphia.

Rev. Francis X. Coan, O.S.A., director of the committee in charge of patrons, has announced that "the enthusiasm of the Patron Committee and the early response to our appeals compare most favorably to judge the extent of this year's Patron listing it is hoped that the number of patrons for the Fifth Annual Social of the Guild will reach a new high. The members of the committee are very greatly encouraged by the manner in which they have been received by the Patrons in other years. They hope to make this year's list the longest in the history of the affair."

CATHOLIC STUDENTS VISIT VILLANOVA

Over the week-end Villanova played host to the student representatives of several boys' Catholic colleges to the Peace Conference held at Rosemont last Saturday.

Among those staying on the Villanova campus were St. John's of Brooklyn, Seton Hall, Manhattan, St. Francis, St. Thomas and St. Peters.

To provide a medium of expression for student opinion, to arouse discussion, and to provide practice in public speaking, the third annual Freshman Forum began yesterday in the Mendel Amphitheater. This event is being run every day at one o'clock. All students are invited to attend.

Speaking yesterday on topics of their own choice were Brosnan and Andrulewicz from the Arts and Education Department. Light and Appel from Section A of the Engineers, and Abbott and Malkin from Section B of the Engineers.

Highlighting this new program of campus appearances is the social to be conducted in the Field House on April 7, when the Glee Club will be presented in a combined concert with the Villanova Symphonic Orchestra.

'AMERICA' SPONSORS NEW BIAS CONTEST

MEGARO APPOINTED DINNER-DANCE HEAD

Named Chairman of North Jersey Easter Week Social

Louis L. Dubino, president of the North Jersey Club, presided at a very important meeting of his club last Thursday evening and afterwards came forth with this announcement. Frank J. Megaro, Commerce and Finance student from Newark, N. J., has been appointed chairman of the proposed Easter Week social. He will act as a committee of one in making preparations for this prominent local affair. However, each member has pledged his aid whenever such help is needed. Co-operation in the club is at a high peak.

Neither the date nor the place has been specifically named as yet, but the field of selection is being gradually narrowed. Definite arrangements will be forthcoming in the near future. Popular opinion points to the choice of one of the following restaurants as the site of the social: The Chanticler in Millburn, N. J.; the Flagship in Union, N. J.; Club Evergreen in Bloomfield, N. J.; or the Jabberwock in West Orange. Each one of these would prove an excellent location for the function since excellence of service is the keynote of every one. As regards the date, Easter Monday in all probability will be selected although Megaro has not officially made this known.

That this event be a notable success is required if the standard of the Jersey group be upheld. Last year the society was quite active, having conducted two major social events. These were the Christmas

Villanovan Staff Chooses Arcadia As Scene of Annual Dinner-Dance

Affair to be Held at International Restaurant on April 21; New Editor Officially Inducted at Traditional Affair

The sixth annual dinner-dance conducted by the VILLANOVAN will be held this year on Thursday, April 21, at the Arcadia International Restaurant, according to an announcement made by Peter C. Mackin, Business Manager and master of ceremonies of the affair.

New Editors Inducted

Marking the only social activity of the VILLANOVAN, the event will witness the induction of the new editorial board and staff for the ensuing year. The induction of the new editors is held at this time each year following their appointment by the retiring editors. The Rev. Edward B. McKee, O.S.A., faculty advisor to the weekly publication, will be the principal speaker of the evening.

Restricted to the members of the staff and their guests, the event will include a formal banquet and dance. At the time, the newly appointed editor will give an acceptance speech to the assembly. A few words of parting from the retiring editor-in-chief will also highlight the proceedings of the evening.

According to Chairman Mackin, this year's social should mark a zenith in presentations of its kind. The social differs from former years in that this is the first time that the affair will be conducted on such a large scale.

Prominent Band Featured

Music for the dancing will in all probability be provided by the Tommy Dorsey or "Buddy" Rogers orchestras who are expected to be featured at the popular mid-city night spot on the evening of the banquet.

The dinner dance conducted by the VILLANOVAN last year presented the music of the Villanovans orchestra in the ballroom of the Green Hill Farms Hotel in Overbrook. Because of the increase in the number of staff members, the journalists have selected a larger and more suitable site for their social.

Approximately forty-five members of the VILLANOVAN staff will attend the banquet and dance accompanied by guests. This will be the largest number ever to be present at the annual affair.

When asked to comment on the arrangements for the traditional social, Chairman Mackin stated, "The dinner-dance will be one that will live in the memories of the staff as a high spot of their collegiate careers. In addition to the several speeches of the editors, we shall be exceptionally fortunate in being able to present to the VILLANOVAN staff and their guests a prominent musical aggregation in an atmosphere suitable to such an occasion."

In all probability, the appointments of the new editors of the college publication will be announced in the VILLANOVAN at a time previous to their formal induction at the dinner-dance.

Delegates from 13 Eastern Catholic colleges were represented at the first meeting of the newly formed Catholic College Press Association in the Center Club, New York City, last Saturday.

To Form Opinion

Inaugurated to formulate the opinion of Catholic students on contemporary problems for the secular Press, the 75 delegates drew up plans for the functioning of the organization at this initial session. Miss Mary Clark, Manhattanville College, and former Bursar's assistant at Villanova, was the first Catholic college student to take interest in the regard. Miss Clark's constitution, revised, was accepted by the association as official principles of function.

Six delegates from Villanova College attended the session. The delegates, members of the editorial board of the VILLANOVAN, were: Joseph J. Toland, editor-in-chief; William J. Bowker, John L. Simons, Peter C. Mackin, James P. Tofani, and Robert G. Howe. Toland acted in the capacity of Chairman at the meeting.

Following the discussion of the articles of the new constitution of the organization were the elections of officers who will hold their positions from the time of election until June. After some further discussion Harold Graves, of St. John's College, who had been active in the formation of the revised constitution, was elected to the presidency of the group. Miss Clark was elected first vice president and was also given a rising vote of thanks by the group for the

SCIENCE GATHERING HEARS INTERESTING TALK BY DR. JONES

Declares Many Physicians Doubtful as to Cure of Ringworm

An outstanding authority on the diseases caused by the ringworm, Dr. Philip M. Jones, research mycologist addressed the Science Seminar last Thursday. Dr. Jones is credited with being the first scientist to isolate and grow the fungi causing "Athletes Foot." He also worked out the life cycle of this bacteria.

Doubtful of Cure

As explained by him, many physicians when confronted with a case of ringworm, are always doubtful as to whether it can be cured. This is because, during the sexual stage in its development, spores are formed which are protected by a thick outer layer of cells. These spores are impenitrable by the medicines used, as they must not injure the tissues of the host. It is only during the asexual period that effective treatment will bring good results.

After much observation on the part of the doctor, he declared that strange as it may seem, the cleanest people are those that become infected most frequently. This is most noticable among athletes, because the spores are washed onto the floor of the shower with the oily secretions of the body. Someone else, walking with bare feet, picks up the spore and is thus infected with "Athletes Foot."

Dr. Jones illustrated his lecture with prepared sections showing the various stages in the life cycle of the fungi.

CATHOLIC STUDENTS ACT

CATHOLIC Students, you have been misrepresented! For years now the collegiate and secular press has been flooded with the false thinking of the American Student Union. For years this vermillion organization has been pouring forth its opinions to the American world as being the opinion of all American students. Upon most occasions the viewpoint taken by this radical group concerning popular topics of the day has been anything but what American Catholic college students could accept. Yet, we have been silent! We have allowed these slick propagandists to pour their misleading information into the daily press as the thought of all American Students.

But now something has been done. At a meeting in New York last Saturday afternoon another great step in the furtherance of Catholic Action was taken as representatives of 13 eastern Catholic colleges adopted the constitution of the Catholic College Press Association. With the birth of this long needed organization the union of Catholic colleges has been accomplished. Catholic students will no longer be misrepresented by the poisoned ink of such groups as the American Student Union. Catholic Thought will be given to the collegiate and secular press by this new organization and the Catholic student can be confident that the world will now know that he does not support the A. S. U. but that the thought of his religion and his system of education will be given to the secular press in its true light. Catholic students you no longer have to feel that you have been misrepresented. With the formation of the Catholic College Press Association you have become a recognized figure in the daily press. Your ideas will no longer be subordinate to the distorted thought of the twisted minds in red powered organizations. In the future you will be represented by a Catholic Organization presenting Catholic Thought to a misguided world.

We are proud that Villanova was represented at this meeting and we know that every Villanova student will hail this innovation as a step towards his liberation and will feel it his duty to give the organization his whole hearted support.

Watch for its bulletins.

THE ORATORICAL CONTESTS

THERE is more information prevalent about the evils of Communism and how not to fight it than how to combat its evils directly. It has been denounced till everyone knows its presence. The time has come to do something further about it. For this reason we are glad to see so much progress in preparation for the Villanova Oratorical Contests and The New York Triangular Catholic College Oratorical Contests, which have chosen as the topic for this year, "How to Combat the Evils of Communism."

There are some general steps such as the following of the Papal Encyclicles, the cure of economic ills, closer communion with God, explanations to Communists, election of better men to public office which will be considered by the participants. The program must be positive. For instance, we know that it is the sin and not the sinner to be despised, thus automatically ruling out the rubber hose and the insult "rat" which are used by intemperate brothers of Christ. Neither must we allow Communists, despite their appeals to our liberalism, any more freedom of expression than is given to other violent revolutionists.

Co-operation is being given by the Villanova Faculty in holding conferences with those engaging in the contests. Discussion is thorough, even written, unsigned questions being considered. The program ensuing from these conferences will probably deal with constructive measures aiming at solutions of the problems of our modern civilization and so combat the evils. The resulting speeches the next three days and on April 5 should prove very enlightening.

GIVE THE GRASS A CHANCE!

NOW that the rigors of Winter have gone and the robins have returned to the North to open the Spring season the ground is beginning to lose its hardness and Mother Earth is beginning to spread her Spring beauty over the campus it is time to call your attention to the beauty of Villanova College.

Those of you who are old timers know that few spots can compare with the beauty of Villanova in the Spring time. Down deep in the heart of every Villanovan there is a secret pride in the beauty of our campus. No matter how much he may violate the "Keep off the grass' rule during the Winter months when very little harm can possibly be done to the lawns he knows that it is his duty to do his best to keep our campus looking at its best.

Villanova students, we are appealing to the pride we know you have in the campus to refrain from cutting across the lawns. It will only take a few seconds more to use the paths on the way to the Post Office or the Dining Room. Let's remember that we have one of the most beautiful campuses in the country. Let's try to keep it that way. Take as your standard the old adage once familiar to all students. GIVE THE GRASS A CHANCE.

Naturalist says a man can hold a crocodile's mouth shut with one hand. Sounds easy, but then again, it might be just a snap for the crocodile, too.

ODDS and ENDS

By Tom O'Mahoney

Editor's Note: This week's column is being handled by Wm. J. Ward.

VILLANOVA'S campus has come to life! No, the grass has not as yet started to push its way thru the sodden earth nor have any crocuses forced their delicate heads through the soft confines of their winter imprisonment to chant "Bei Mir Bist Du Schoen." But nevertheless the campus is once again alive.

The trees, which have for years stood guard over the entrance of the college have at last relaxed their vigilance. They stand, yes, but in a way suggestive of defeat rather than victory. Tears stream down their furrowed cheeks and their arms are cast down in an position reflecting sadness. A pall hangs like a gigantic cloud over the entire area. Words are spoken in soft undertones and here and there is heard some moist-eyed student saying comforting words about the fleetness of time.

The bells of the chapel which so usually ring out their glad tidings have been converted into a sound faintly reminiscent of a funeral dirge. Why, oh, why, has a scene usually so full of joy and laughter been suddenly converted into one of desolation and despair? Not because of the war in Spain, Hitler's entry into Austria had nothing to do with it, Chinese and Japanese battling for a lost cause cannot be blamed. No, noe of these can be the answer. The cause is so evident that many have overlooked it and have merely gone about their work realizing that something was amiss. The real cause of the sorrow is EXAMINATIONS START NEXT WEDNESDAY.

Bit of Wisdom with a Sting: (from Walter Winchell) "After six years with Roosevelt at the helm of the ship of state many people are suffering from seasickness . . . It shows that at least they are still eating."

The amount of time and energy expended by the Junior Prom committee is now being estimated by Chairman Tom Furey. It is also said that the great amount of paper on his desk is slowly assuming the aspect of dolls. At one time in his life he thought that bands were the things the village blacksmith's arms were strong as, but recently he has found out that they are the things which make the aspirin business one of the most successful enterprises in the world.

The Observer

By BERT PASSANANTE

THE EVOLUTION of a student of science.

FRESHMAN: I can't go through with it—I can't do it—I've never killed before—It's too horrible. Please, prof, you pith the frog.

SOPHOMORE: P-u. What a smell! Weren't those cats cleaned? Well, anyway, I don't have to kill any frogs.

JUNIOR: Hey fellows! Look! This baby is giving me an argument. Where are those wires? We'll electrocute him.

SENIOR: Kill frogs? Kid stuff. Look at that cadaver, though. Ain't it a beaut?

Sounds funny, doesn't it? Well, its not as funny as it sounds. The typical freshman entering Pre-med has, usually, never run up against a situation where he must take the life of an animal so large as a frog. When he does, he appears squeamish, perhaps a bit afraid, at having to perform such an operation. This reaction is not an evidence of weakness. As they say in the vernacular —the guy ain't yellow. Frogs do FEEL slimy—believe it, they're not —and pithing is killing so it is only natural that a person shy at the first, even tenth, performance of the act.

Taken all-in-all, the freshman is a pretty decent fellow albeit he is a bit scared at the newness of everything. Along comes the sophomore. He can't let the freshman know how he felt, and feels yet, so he beefs about the strong smell of the pickled cats. ("Complains" is a better word because those cats really smell bad.) In the presence of freshmen he boasts of his hardness of heart. He can kill any animal that comes along—go he says. Within himself he thanks the gods the cat is already dead. By this time the junior has accepted the fact that animals must be killed to further scientific study. He becomes used to operations of this sort and now sort of enjoys them. It isn't that he has become so enured that he is calloused. This sadistic tendency is purely a reaction setting in. Formerly, he was slightly frightened. . .now he isn't, and is taking advantage of the fact that he isn't.

But the senior! Frogs? Bah! . . .Cats?. . .They smell of clean disinfectant. He should know. Isn't he, even now, working on cadavors? He has tasted of everything. . .so he thinks. But whether or not he has tasted of everything, he DOES think so. Grant'd that he'll come across things in medical school which will revolt and nauseate him. Granted even that in the course of his work he will come face to face with situations in which human lives are involved. Still compared to the nervous, frightened freshman, the confident unafraid senior is a calloused piece of scientific protoplasm.

What is all this leading up to? Simply this. The student should become accustomed to meeting unpleasant situations, yes. But he needn't become so hard-boiled that taking a life means nothing to him. He should always keep in mind that he is not taking a life simply to kill, but that he is working on a project which will help him later in the saving of lives.

OVERHEARD IN THE PIE-SHOP:
1st Icky—"Say, have you heard Martha?"
2d Icky—"Yeah. Ain't that a sweet swing number!"
3d Icky—"Boy, whoever wrote that sure knew his stuff."

(For the benefit of the uninitiated an "icky," in the parlance of swing, is "an amateur enthusiast." Translated into common speech an "icky" is someone who doesn't know the first thing about music.)

The above conversation is typical of millions. . .well, thousands, of "ickies" the country over. "Martha" is being used as an example because its best illustrates the points that follow. The composer of "Martha," although he "knew his stuff," never dreamed that it would some day be translated into a catchy swing number. "Martha" is not "Martha" but is the aria "M'A appari" from the opera "Martha." That is point number one.

Point number two is that there is "no such thing" as a swing composition. Swing is not a mode of composition, but is a method of interpreting a composition. So there! You "ickies," you.

Would you believe it if I told you that at a Villanova dance I actually saw, with my own eyes, one student introduce his fair, young consort to another student? So help me, I saw it. Such disgraceful goings on. He just didn't have any "brungin' up." Imagine introducing your lady friend to someone else at a dance! It's unheard of. Anyone knows you should just say "Hello" to the fellow and keep right on going.

Samiliy Toast says: "When attending a dance it is the duty of the escort to guard his lady against the contaminating influence of other gentlemen present. This avoids the danger of having the young lady meet other bores and stiffs. . .If I may use the term. One must be proper at all times. Common usage, however, permits that two gentlemen confronting each other especially if friends or school-mates, may murmur a polite, but cold "Hello."

Let's wise up, fellows. For some of us these dances may be the last college affairs we'll ever attend. Where else will we know so many people under one roof. . .in one room? Let's take advantage of this and show our girls how popular we are. Let's circulate and join in the fun. No one says we should become introducing robots for the evening. A friendly, "Hello" and a "Mary, this is John," will go a long way in helping to enjoy the dance. If you are with a small group and you see someone you know, who is passing by, invite him over. The more the merrier. What do you say?. . .

Do you remember the adage "Curiosity killed the cat?" Well, see if your will is stronger than your curiosity. From here to the end of the column I'm going to say absolutely nothing. Tough guy . . .Think you can get away with anything. I'll show you. Well? What are you reading for? I told you I was going to say nothing. You could have stopped long ago and read something more interesting. But no, you have to make sure you don't miss a thing. Allright then. Here goes. NOTHING. . . NOTHING. . .NOthing. . .Nothing.

REV. JOHN J. McSHEA

PATIENCE TOPIC OF TONIGHT'S SERMON

Fr. McShea Addresses Students in Fourth of Lenten Series

Rev. John J. McShea, O.S.A., will conduct the regular Tuesday evening conference sermon this evening. This will be the initial talk given by Fr. McShea to the general student body since his arrival from Oxford University of England this September. The sermon of this evening by Dr. McShea will be on "Patience" as to be applied to the young men of college age.

Theme Concerns Patience

The theme of the sermon will be patience to be considered as a virtue appropriate to the Lenten season in particular, and the rest of life in general. Father McShea will attempt to give aspirations to those who are late in devising their lenten practices.

Heroic patience belongs to the science of sanctity but a very practical type is possible in the life of any man. A sincere attempt to attain fundamental, simple patience will commend itself to the Model of meekness and kindness. Evidences of the practice in the life of our Lord will be indicated. His reaction to the malice of His persecutors and the misunderstanding of His friends should be an inspiration and help to us all. St. Joseph, so recently honored in the Church's liturgy, likewise offers examples of heroic patience.

The radio is a marvelous thing. Thought of that all by myself. Marvelous how many interesting programs are being broadcast when there is studying to be done . . .

"WE, the PEOPLE," a radio offering introduced to the ether several months ago, is somewhat on the "all right" side. It is a blend of Ripley, Man of the Street, du-Pont Cavalcade, and Sanka Coffee . . , Quite refreshing. Individuals from every walk of life appear and relate their stories . . . many of them are unbelievable, some entertaining, but all of them unusual . . . None is punctuated with the Ripley "Believe it or not" . . . This is all "Believe it . . ."

Heard the very first rendition of that program. A woman described her abandonment of her baby 20 years ago. She broadcast a plea as to his whereabouts. The next week he appeared on the same program with her . . . reunited.

It is the common opinion that music appreciation consists in merely listening to music and saying "I like that." That is comparable to a ten-year-old child passing opinion on Plato's philosophy . . . Simple and childish.

Music appreciation consists in the study and knowledge of the types of composition, the conditions under which the composition was written, the character of the composer, the incentive, the very mechanics and skill with which the work was written. When that has been learned then one can fully appreciate the composition. It is a study which has a romance to it. Try it and see if I'm not right.

There was a French film shown at the Europa several weeks ago titled "The Life and Loves of Beethoven." As foreign made films go it was a good production. Howard Bauer, who enacted the title role of Beethoven, did a fair job of it.

The idea expressed by the title and the film itself, however, was not by any means accurate. The impression I received was that the picture attempted to show how the women in Beethoven's life influenced his works. Stuff and rubbish . . . Beethoven had few if more than one woman in his life, and his genius alone was the stimulus to his efforts.

Moreover, if the feature had been titled the "Life of Beethoven" the drawing attraction would probably have been much decreased. The title, itself, then was merely a misnomer in order to entice the less interested.

Introducing

By RENE CAILLIET

AS almost every public speaker has stated in his eloquent life, "This week I present a man who needs no introduction, etc." Such a person is Andrew Conte, student protege of Father Dougherty's science minions and one of the few hundred-to-one-shots to succeed in the battle of life.

Born in Trenton

Andy, nearing the acme of the ideal student, has only the unpardonable fault of having been born in New Jersey. The fact that it was Trenton saves him total embarrassment; but, then Philadelphia is no Seventh Heaven. Born in that spot on November 22, 1915, Andy has remained a citizen there to reap the glory of a local boy making good. And Andy has made more than good.

When but a mere boy in short pants he had visions of a Heifetz. However, his violin ambitions disappeared after two years of wear and tear of the neighbor's ear drums. That episode marked the only attempt in his life which was not fully and successfully accomplished.

Coming to Villanova slightly less than four years ago, Andy settled down to the task of achieving a Bachelor's degree in Biology with full hopes of a medical career. His acquisition of friends however, was no task as he readily accomplished this with his good nature and his willingness to aid others less endowed with learning ability.

Burnt Midnight Oil

For three years Mendel Hall's light bills increased as Andy lost himself in his test tubes and flasks in the laboratories until the late hours of evening. Day in and day out found him plodding through the hall with a pile of books and a determined glint in his eye.

Studious and serious? Yes, but his name was also found listed for every activity possible. As an athlete he participated on Fedigan's intra-mural basketball team. (Yes, he still thinks they are better than Austin) He wore the blue on the 150 pound football team. As a business man he took the front by becoming circulating manager of the Belle Air and member of the circulation staff of the VILLANOVAN. His "circulating" continued as a writer for the Mendel Bulletin, as a lyric tenor in the glee club, and as vice president of the Lambda Kappa Delta fraternity in his junior year. His latest outstanding honor was his handling of the Senior Dinner dance held at the Arcadia restaurant.

His attempts at pinochle also mar his somewhat model—student standing. Although he is a good loser he is now somewhat tired of the idea of supporting the games. The Conte hypothesis is that the law of average is not all it's cracked up to be (quote).

In a few months Andy will say good-bye to Villanova and start his long trek through medical school. His future "shingle" will have a lot of worth and hard work behind it to fasten it securely in the world of medicine.

Chairman Troncelliti Announces Selection of Popular Restaurant for Affair

PRESENT KEYS TO SENIORS

With the activities of the Lambda Kappa Delta Fraternity fast drawing to a close, final arrangements are being made concerning the Dinner-Dance to be held on Saturday evening, April 23, at the Arcadia International Restaurant. Chairman Troncelliti has announced that the menu has already been chosen and that the affair will be formal.

The financial condition of the treasury was reviewed by William J. Ward in which he stated that keys for the graduating members had been received and would be presented to them at the Dinner Dance. Final payment for dues must be made by March 21 at which time delinquent members will be dropped from the roll.

A Constitution Committee was appointed by President Alan Dowling for the purpose of reviewing technicalities in its contents and to distribute copies to the group. The committee consists of Rene Calliet and Benedict Cusani, acting as co-chairmen, Charles Martin and David G. Morse. President Dowling also appointed Armand Bernabei as Manager of the Bowling Team that will oppose the Engineers in the next week. The alleys as yet have not been chosen.

Rev. Francis X. Coan, O. S. A., honorary member of the Fraternity, addressed the group and asked the members as well as the leaders to do their utmost in co-operating for a successful year. Father Coan said that he has always been vitally interested in the activities of the group and that he would deem it a pleasure to assist them through any of their difficulties. Father Coan is one of the several members of the faculty who have been invited to the dinner dance.

GLEE CLUB HEARD OVER STATION WIP

Initial Broadcast of Year Proclaimed Success by Critics

In its first broadcast of the year, the Villanova College Glee Club, under the guidance of Paul D. Feel and accompanied by Bert Passanatte, was heard over WIP St. Patricks night. The program included "Goin Home" by Dovark, "Stout Hearted Men" by Romberg, "Duna" by McGill and "Walls of Jericho" by Gaul. The broadcast is considered a success judging by the many fine comments heard after the broadcasting.

After the air show was presented the members of the Glee Club journeyed to Mount Carmel Parish in South Philadelphia where they have taken part in the St. Patricks Party and dance for the last three years. The Villanova boys were greeted by an enthusiastic audience, who turn out for the occasion each year.

The program of the Glee Club was in distinct contrast to the other entertainment on the bill. Being a St. Patrick's Party the vaudeville acts centered around an Irish theme and was light in nature. The songs of the Glee Club were of a cultural nature making a well rounded program.

The next appearance of the Club will be at the Senior Social on April 5. Looking forward to making the evening a real success the boys will begin rehearsals on the program immediately. They have also agreed to appear in a concert at Wannamaker's Grand Foyer on April 12.

will combine in a joint concert. The Band has been in rehearsal since January and included among its musical program will be selections from the works of Victor Herbert along with several semi-classical and novelty numbers.

The Glee Club recently made its appearance at a broadcast followed by a concert and created quite an impression. Included among its repetoire will be found several classical and spiritual selections. Mr. Teel feels that this experience will aid them greatly when they make their campus debut. A first rate movie, the selection to be announced shortly, will complete this social program.

Arrange Escorts

An important feature of this social night will be the date bureau conducted by the seniors. By this arrangements it will be possible for the Villanova gentlemen to escort young ladies from Rosemont, Immaculata, and Mt. St. Joseph's College.

Admission to the social will be twenty-five cents regardless of whether a young lady is escorted or not. This bureau will be for the benefit of students who desire to escort a young lady from any of the above mentioned colleges. Since it is expected all students will entertain a young lady, the Seniors hope that every Villanova student will take full advantage of this bureau. Complete bus arrangements will be made by the Seniors to transport the girls to and from the affair. Refreshments will be served by the committee during the evening.

The purpose of this social is to foster better relations with these colleges and at the same time provide suitable entertainment as presented by Villanova organizations. If successful, Villanova students may expect this event to be an annual social affair preceding the Easter Vacation.

Dramatic Club Announces Two More Characters For "Winterset" Cast

Robert B. O'Brien and Robert G. Wilderotter Win Parts of Trock and Shadow in Belle Masque Spring Production

By JOHN HARRINGTON

Sensational underworld gangster characters found in that dark corner of a great metropolis where the human wolf is king will be supplied in "Winterset" by two sophomores, Robert E. O'Brien and Robert G. Wilderotter.

O'Brien Plays Trock

Robert E. O'Brien, student in the Commerce and Finance School, whose achievements include Chairmanship of the Sophomore Cotillion, membership in the Orientation Committee and Beta Gamma, has been definitely determined to portray the sneering, cold, tubercular lunged ex-convict, Trock. As a monster of the underworld with the sting of a scorpion he hounds the two sweethearts to doom in this bullet-seared drama of gangland. He is one of those who "think they had to plug a couple of guys, and then a few more to cover it up, and then maybe a dozen more, because every man you put away has friends."

The scene of "Winterset" is laid under the Brooklyn Bridge. The impersonator of Trock is from Brooklyn himself.

Robert G. Wilderotter, student in the School of Arts, member of Beta Gamma and the German Language Society, will be cast as Shadow, Trock's henchman, who returns from the grave to kill. His master's wrath sends him to a river grave.

Shadow Surprise Trock

Trock, fearing that Shadow will squeal, has him killed and his apparently lifeless body tossed into the river. This step completed, Trock comes into Meriamne's home intending to kill Mio and the Judge. Suddenly Shadow, bloody and dripping, enters, terrifying Trock the persecutor. Shadow's loss of blood, however, overcomes him, and he dies spectacularly, aiming his automatic at the mobster.

Some other scenes of this type are Mio's attempt to prove to the two officers that Trock is a murderer by asking Garth to bring from the inner room Shadow's corpse, the collapse of the feeble-minded Judge Guant in the mock review of the fifteen year old trial in the cellar of a tenement house, and the machine gun climax.

work she had done in drawing up the constitution.

Joseph J. Toland, editor of the VILLANOVAN was elected to the second vice presidency, while Ellen Gaffney of Good Council College was chosen recording secretary. Charlotte Crawford of Mount St. Vincent's was elected Corresponding secretary and Austin Murphy of St. Francis was balloted to fill the office of Treasurer.

In order to complete the governing board of the organization five trustees were elected. They are as follows: Marion Ward of Rosemont, Catherine Fox of New Rochelle, Mary Malone of Georgian Court, Catherine O'Malley of Notre Dame and Agnes Dugan of St. Elizabeths College.

Editor Chosen Moderator

Rev. Gerald P. Donnelly, S. J., associate editor of the Catholic publication America was chosen as moderator of the newly founded Catholic College Press Association.

Miss Mary Clark who opened the meeting explained that Catholic colleges were being misrepresented by the American Student's Union whose policies were being accepted by the American secular press as those of all American students. She further pointed out that the policies of the American Student Union were not always in accordance with Catholic principles and, hence, should not be allowed to represent us. The purpose of the Catholic College Press Association is to prepare for the secular press releases concerning the Catholic thought on topics of daily discussion.

The 13 colleges present formed a nucleus of what is hoped will be the strongest union of Catholic colleges ever formed.

Each school will present its ideas on a decided topic to the moderator of the college publication for approval. If he sanctions the article it is sent to the Catholic College Press Association where all ideas are incorporated into one article which must be passed upon by Rev. Gerard P. Donnelly, moderator of the group and by the office of the Cardinal of New York. Then the article will be given to the secular and collegiate press over the signatures of the Catholic College Press Association's member colleges.

Members of the group will hold meetings at stated intervals each year in order to discuss timely topics of the day. When these topics have been decided upon they, too, will be given to the press as representing the thought of the Catholic College students.

Other colleges represented at the meeting were: St. John's, St. Francis, Mt. St. Vincent, Manhattanville, New Rochelle, Georgian Court, Fordham, Good Council, Rosemont, St. Elizabeths, Notre Dame of Staten Island and Villanova.

LOOK AHEAD
in planning your career

The science of the "new dentistry" is still in its infancy. It is a most promising field for constructive thought and work. It calls for the best minds interested in health service careers.

Because of advancing standards, enrollment in Dental Schools in the United States has been reduced during the past thirteen years. Today there is one practicing dentist to approximately each 2,400 of population.

Marquette University Dental School is given the highest rating—A—by the Dental Educational Council of America. Its diplomas to graduates are recognized in all states. The close relationship of dental-medical study proves an advantage to students.

Entrance requirements: Two years in a recognized College of Liberal Arts with satisfactory credits in biology, organic chemistry, and physics.

JACOBS' TOSSERS SWING INTO FINAL WEEK OF PRACTICE

Pash, Nowak, Howlett, Hotly Competing for Third Base Post

Despite a difficult early schedule and a stretch of unfavorable weather that hindered conditioning, "Doc" Jacobs is extremely optimistic over the prospects of this year's edition of diamondeers.

Doc states that this squad, the largest since he took over the coaching direction, is the best looking he's handled. Many of the positions are "cinched," but these are based solely on past performances by those holding the positions. There have been only two days suitable for batting since the practice sessions have started and with the resumption of outdoor work, changes may take place.

Garbark Returns

Back of the plate is the most dependable collegiate catcher in the East — big, durable Mike Garbark. Mike has two years of varsity competition behind him and Jacobs counts on him to turn in his best year. Understudying Garbark is Art Vigilante, New Jersey All-State catcher for two years.

Bob Bond, leading batter from last year, holds forth on first base. He's due for another big year, and from the looks of his hitting in the few batting sessions he'll have it. "Tex," Connors is another aspirant for the initial sack.

On the keystone sack "Cowboy" Crawley performs. He's the pivot man for the double play combination of Merrullo to Crawley to Bond. "Buzz" Howlett, sophomore football star, is runner up for the second base spot. Howlett may be switched to third base where the field is wide open. Charlie Dell'Uomo's withdrawal from school left the "hot corner" empty. Along with Howlett, Bobby Pash and Walt Nowak are battling for the position.

Shortstop is filled by the best looking college prospect in many years, Len Merrullo. He was in the same spot last year and with the added experience he should make many afternoons uncomfortable for opponents.

ANNUAL MURAL GOLF PLAY OPENS MONDAY

Eight Lowest Scores to Qualify for Varsity Trial

Attention, golfers! Start to oil your clubs and get your putting stroke down smooth—the intramural divot digging contest is only six days off. Something new and different in the way of scoring will be in effect this year to make the match more interesting.

Thirty Player Limit

Contrary to former year, the number of players will be limited to five from each of the six intra-mural teams. These men will play on the Main Line open course this Monday, March 28. The average of each team will be taken and ten points given to first place, seven to second, five to third, three to fourth, and one to fifth. Members of last year's varsity team will not be eligible to play.

The players turning in the lowest eight scores will qualify for the match play which will run three days, starting Wednesday, March

Named All-Intra-Mural Team

Two Intra-Mural All-Star Players Chosen Unanimously By Opponents

Although they were crowned 1938 Villanova Intramural champions, Austin Hall's high and mighty sharpshooters could only garner but one position on this year's all star first team. Joseph Bochetto, the Brooklyn flash, for the second time in as many years crashed the select five polling 12 points to make his election unanimous. Sharing honors with Bochetto is Dan Keating, Mendel Day Hopper who tied for top position with an even dozen points.

Use New Voting System

Employing the system of two points for each first team recommendation and one point for each second team vote, the Intramural committee, awarded first team positions to Fedigan Hall's outstanding dribblers Mike Totin and Al Wood, who polled ten and eight electoral votes or points respectively.

Jim DeLuca, Alumni Hall one man team, received eleven votes to take third place in the selections. DeLuca's accuracy from the field in the pinch turned defeat into victory on more than one occasion, this Winter.

The selection of Bochetto and Keating was as expected. The former showed his wares all season to the best advantage, topping his season's record in the play offs by leadding the individual scoring column in the three extra games with 33 points. Keating bucketed field goals almost at will for the Mendel Day Hops. He was the lone shining light on an otherwise drab Mendel season that saw the defending champions fade out of the picture in mid season.

Bochetto Only Repeater

The selections revealed that Bochetto was the lone athlete to repeat this year. Dwyer, Beltenmiller, O'Connell, and Barr, all members of the league's last year select group made little impression upon the selectors. O'Connell was the only one of the quartet to receive a vote.

One point separated Vic Sandor from a first team post. The diminutive Austin scoring star received seven votes to lead the second team roster. Others to place on the second team are Bill Delehanty, of the Mendel Hall Residents, Bill Thorn, Mendel Day Hop ace, LoBalbo and Cuskey, of Austin.

Others who received more than one vote in the selection were Austin Bradshaw, of Austin Hall, Tony Scelba, of Mendel Hall, and Jim Forkin, Alumni Hall dribbler.

The balloting was handled by the Rev. Edward B. McKee, Rev. John Dunn, Rev. William J. Lunney, Clem Lavin, Henry Guckenberger, Jim Dwyer, Tim Brosnan, John Murphy, and William Thorn.

SWIMMERS CHOOSE BAILEY AS CAPTAIN

Billy Leahy and Charley Barrett to Enter Nationals

Completing its first season under the tutelage of Rugeiro Flocco the swimming team has made a mark for itself and the school in intercollegiate aquatic circles. Although the past season's record is far from impressive it does hold the story that Villanova has boosted its reputation in swimming.

With the betterment of this reputation for the next season in view the lettermen gathered last Tuesday to elect a leader for 1939. The coveted post as successor to retiring Captain Toby Greco fell to Bill Bailey, popular distance man. In Bailey, Commerce and Finance junior, the swimming team will have a fine leader for he has risen to the heights by hard and earnest practice. His "never-say-die" spirit should be a real inspiration to his teammates next year. The new captain is quite a veteran in aquatic circles, having first learned to take backwash at West Catholic, and later having been a member of Penn A. C. swimming squad. Since his matriculation at Villanova in the Fall of 1935, he has been a consistent point winner in both of his specialties, the 220 and 440 free-style.

'Cats Enter Nationals

It was also decided at the meeting by Coach Flocco to send Bill Leahy and Charley Barrett to the national intercollegiates to be held next Saturday at Rutgers. With this announcement also came the news that Charley Lind will take care of the managerial duties for next season replacing Joe Dougherty who has resigned in order to

GRIDMEN LEAVE GYM FOR STADIUM FIELD AS WEATHER CLEARS

Week-End Scrimmage Held After Rainy Spell Causes Confinement to Field House

DAILY SKULL DRILLS HELD

With the rainy season over at Villanova, "Clipper" Smith was given his first opportunity of the week to take his cohorts outdoors and run them through the first scrimmage of the season last Friday.

Although weather conditions prevented outdoor drills it did, by no no means, halt practice for the Wildcat squad. Coach Smith and his assistant, Vince McNally, went right on with their plans by holding calisthenics and play formations in the Villanova Field House. The squad has been divided into four elevens, the Red, Blue, Green and Yellow. With each team located in various positions to form a quadrangle "Clipper" has conducted them through the various plays including formations running from the regular "T" formation to the new razzle-dazzle offensive.

Skull Practice Held

In addition to the daily workouts in the gym, mental calisthenic classes are held every lunch hour in Mendel Hall. These classes are characterized by the discussion of various offensive tactics, defenses against running and pass offenses and general all-around information to put out a good ball team this coming September. Accompanying these football lectures moving pictures are shown to bring out the blocking assignments which may have been neglected on some of the plays and in general to point out all errors which should be avoided in the course of the game. In this manner Coach Smith feels that the new men will have a better insight as how to handle themselves when they're in the ball game for the first time.

Featuring the Spring practice drills will be scrimmage games with some of the neighboring colleges. It is the desire of the "Clipper" that such a game will be held every Saturday till the end of the present season training period. The Blue

Sportorial

Sports Editor

Note — (The Sportorial this week is conducted by Tom O'Mahoney, Acting Sports Editor.)

ALTHOUGH the '38-'39 basketball schedule has not yet been officially announced, good old dependable Dame Rumor insists that the card will show no 30 games. Those who would like to be known as in the know claim that a prominent Pacific Coast team, the co-champions of the Big Ten and several New York City squads will grace the Wildcat menu. The idea seems to be that a roster of 20 to 22 skirmishes, with at least 15 major opponents to be faced, will be just what the doctor ordered for Al Severance's gang. It is expected that the Blue will be seen in Convention Hall, Madison Square Garden and at the Hershey Arena. Not to mention the Villanova Gym. The good turnout for the St. John's game may lead the A. A. moguls to engage some more big teams on the campus floor.

—V—

Villanova's undefeated footballers were uninvited last year, but their fame has apparently gone forth unto the land. Paramount News, at any rate, seems to think that the 'Cats are worth filming, for the Cinema picture snatchers have just completed a football short which depicts Clipper's young men in the throes of Spring training. To be christened "Football Goes Scientific," the reel will be released shortly in Philadelphia and environs. (Oh, no. Thank YOU, Paramount!)

—V—

Yes, those Phillies and Athletics are at it again. The two alleged big-league teams played a 21-18 row down in the Sunny and probably dismayed South recently. Too bad the Phils missed their three extra points.

—V—

With the coming of warmer weather comes news that the Intramural baseball season starts its merry way Sunday. Fedigan Hall, champs last year, look pretty certain to repeat, although it is heard that the freshman halls will have a little to say about the ultimate winner. The Redskirts seem best fortified on the mound, with Ben Pawlowski, Ted Goumy and Johnny Costello set to throw them past the enemy. Austin meets Fedigan and Alumni plays Mendel on the Mendel Hall field in the league opener, the former game getting under way at 10:30 A. M. and the latter at 1:30 P. M. ....

—V—

As the big league clubs draw near the end of their Spring training, the young men who earn their coffee and cakes by quoting prices on sports probabilities say they'll willingly give you one dollar to every two you wish to bet on the Yankees winning the pennant. They also list the Giants and Cubs as 7 to 5 apiece to cop the National League flag. Wonder how they'll rate Temple's National Championship basketballers for the coming season? Those who saw the Owl frosh absorb a lacing from the Villanova yearlings can see no replacement at hand for the two graduating Templars, Meyer Bloom and Don Shields. On the other hand, Al Severance will have no such worry. The Wildcat varsity will return intact, and should the results of an added year of playing experience. Looks like another good season ahead.

Metropolitan Basketeers Dominate Wildcat All-Opponent Court Squad

Bush, Hassmiller, Fliegel, Bloom and Demo Chosen on First Team; Three From New York Area

By HARRY MAZZEI

Villanova's highly successful court squad met last week and officially closed their season by selecting their all-opponent team. Eight teams were represented among the first ten players including St. John's, Fordham, C. C. N. Y., Temple, Westminster, Boston University, St. Francis, and N. Y. U. After careful deliberation the Wildcat basketeers finally decided on the makeup of the ensuing teams:

Bush On First Team

Forwards: Gerry Bush and Bobby Hassmiller were picked as the first team forwards. The former, captain of the St. John's Redmen, the only outfit to defeat the Main Liners on their home court, was well versed in all the skills of the game played on the ribbed floor. Bush handled the ball as if it were an atom, directing his team's play, and did more than his share of the scoring. If Bush was not in the St. John's line-up, it would be safe to say that Villanova would have had an unbeaten season in their own lair.

Paragraphs could be written about Fordham's Bobby Hassmiller, but unfortunately space does not permit. The captain-elect of the Rose Hill quintet sparked his team to a 40-37 win over the Wildcats when the 'Cats were displaying their best form of the year. Hassmiller put on an exhibition that evening that is still being discussed in the "City of Brotherly Love" and also in the vicinity of Villanova. Making seemingly impossible shots and executing lightning-like scoring sprees was Bobby's forte that night, and what a forte that was. Whenever the issue became too close, one of the Rams would get the ball to Hassmiller, who would either score himself or set up a score for a team mate. Incidentally, the issue was plenty close all through the contest.

Solly Nechtem, of Boston U., and football fame, and Dick Davis, Hassmiller's running mate on the Fordham quintet, were chosen as second team forwards. Both were prolific scorers and could be counted upon for plenty of markers almost each time they trod the boards. Nechtem made most of his shots from far out, as he possessed a remarkably fine eye, on the other hand Davis was a speed merchant whose best shot was a layup on a fast cut.

Fliegel Chosen

Centers: Bernie Fliegel, of City College, and Danny Naughton of the St. Francis Terriers were chosen as the pivotmen of the mythical five, with the former receiving precedence over the latter. Both men performed with teams that trimmed the 'Cats. Fliegel notched 15 points when he faced the Blue team and was one of the leading exponents of the famous Holman dribble, pass, and cut attack. The Lavender pick-off plays worked to such perfection in the Beaver Gym that Fligel was left to score unscathed on several occasions.

Danny Naughton displayed brilliant form in leading the St. Francis Terriers to a 43-37 victory over the Main Liners. Naughton was all over the court during the course of the fray, and his "fighting" brand of ball elicited much commendable comment from his Villanova opponents.

Guards: Meyer Bloom, of Temple's National championship quintet and Andy Demo, star guard of Wesminster's formidable quint were chosen as the guards on the "dream team." Bloom, who has made almost every all-team chosen during the past few weeks, was selected as a result of his fine exhibition when his team went down to defeat before Villanova in one of the biggest upsets of the year. "Big Mike" was a tower of strength for Temple both on the offense and on the defense. When Bloom was not scoring himself, he was "feeding" team mates with accurate passes. Incidentally, Bloom led the Cherry and White scorers as a result of sensational play. He might be classified as the retriever extraordinary because of his ability in gaining the ball from both backboards.

Andy Demo, although not garnering as much nation-wide fame as Bloom, was, nevertheless, a brilliant performer in his own right.

ber one man on the squad last season, will be back this season. Rice is leading candidate for an outfield position on Doc Jacobs' baseball nine.

Practice Starts

Beside Wallach who held down sixth singles last year, Rred Rappelyea, Len Weinfeld, Bert Wellenbach, and Dennis Dunne are expected to report for practice this week.

Although they did not win letters last season, John Leary, Witold Krzywicki, Max Schwartz, Harry McGrath, Art Sommers, and Da Costa are expected to give the lettermen plenty of trouble in the quest for singles berths on the team.

mentor has been dickering with N. Y. U. to arrange a two-game schedule and has been attempting to schedule one with Lehigh. Incidentally, Villanova College is willing to meet any collegiate team in this vicinity in a scrimmage game, either at Villanova or away.

Columbia Series Dropped

Plans had been completed for a two-game series with Columbia but inasmuch as Ivy League Regulations now forbid such games this plan had to be given up. Coach Smith had contacted Rutgers and for a while it looked as if the Wildcats would engage in a two-game series with the boys from New Brunswick; but since Harvey Harman has taken over head duties there, no word has reached Villanova concerning this possibility. A prospective scrimmage game with the U. S. Naval Academy had to be overlooked because the "Middies" meet Ivy League teams and hence deemd it desirable not to participate in any pre - season games.

Exhibiting a great deal of spirit and enthusiasm in their workouts, the Wildcats are gradually shaping into condition and have all the earmarks of another great gridiron machine. The Freshmen are showing a willingness to be taught and are fitting into Smith's system as a duckling does to water. Varsity men are not to be outdone and are careful to set the right example for the new boys.

Several of the boys have made known their intention to "Clipper" to come along at the same pace so that they reach greater heights than that of last season. Dave Di Filippo is anxious to become a better open field blocker so that the Wildcat backs may have a chance to show their stuff in some broken field running. Vic Cook, fully recovered from last year's injury, should develop into a fine tackle and make that tackle problem a lesser burden to worry about.

To make sure that the football candidates are learning their plays, Coach Smith has announced that an intellectual session will be held in the near future and he advises that the boys make a commendable showing in this analysis.

VILLANOVA OVERLOOKED

Villanova's court stars were overlooked in the pickings for the All Double-header and all-Philadelphia teams. The 'Cats placed Montgomery and Duzminski on the second team and Krutulis gained honorable mention for the double-header five, while Krutulis and Lazorchak earned honorable mention on the All-Philly quintet.

30. Four places will be chosen by this match play tournament, the winner receiving ten points, the runner-up seven; the winner of the two men defeated in the semi-finals will receive five points, and the loser, three. There will be no fifth place. These points will be added to the total for their halls to determine the winning hall.

This will act as a qualification for the varsity golf team. With only three regulars and one alternate from last year's team, there are several openings to be filled. For the most part, varsity competition will be on the basis of six man teams. Anyone is eligible for varsity competition. All entries should be turned in to Rev. Edward B. McKee by Friday.

Dwyer Leads Linksmen

Capt. Jimmie Dwyer, undefeated throughout last season, will probably play the number one position. Other members of last year's team are Lou Dubino, who dropped only one match last year. Ed Tirrell and Joe Pagano.

The schedule has not been definitely settled yet, but approximately 15 matches will be held. The team will probably travel to Lancaster to meet their annual rivals of Franklin and Marshall, and to New York to meet the Fordham golfers.

McLaughlin and Escott are slowly getting the feel of the ball, Schelle is showing some of the "stuff" that won him praise toward the end of last season. Andy Sisco is also hitting his stride and shows much improvement over his frosh performances of last year.

In the Sportlight

By JOHN L. SIMONS

HAVING occupied all our time during the past Fall and the Winter interviewing the mighty football seniors and recording their respective life histories, we now turn to a new group of celebrities for our material. The group in question is the men who make news for the Wildcat Spring squads. Heading the list is Left-hander Bill McLaughlin, one of the mainstays of Coach "Doc" Jacobs great pitching staff.

Bill is a native Pennsylvanian, having been born in the small town of St. Mary, somewhere in the Northwestern sector of this commonwealth. However, when he was still in short pants, Bill and the rest of the McLaughlin family migrated to Collingswood, across the river in New Jersey. It was here in Collingswood that the subject of this tintype got his start in baseball.

Although as is the case with most American boys he played ball in his very early days, he didn't play on an organized team until he entered high school. At that time Bill was an outfielder and a good one. During the year and a half he spent as a student at Collingswood High he played on the basketball team in addition to performing in the outfield for two seasons on the baseball diamond.

Then the McLaughlins moved to Camden, and Bill transferred to Camden High. Camden really was the place where he showed his varied athletic abilities to their full extent, and the school rates him as one of its greatest athletes.

Wins Four Letters

He won varsity letters in four sports, football, baseball, basketball, and track. As a football end he gave Camden fans a treat one Autumn. On the wooden way he jumped center for two campaigns and was the big scoring power of the quintet. In the Spring of the two years he went to Camden he was even busier. He divided his time between track and baseball. For the tracksters he pole vaulted and that he did a capable job is shown by his record. His best leap was 11' 6" in a triangular meet in his senior year.

Most prominent of all his activities, however, was his baseball playing. For two years he was the backbone of the nine. At the beginning of his Junior year he was purely an outfielder. But towards the close of the season Camden High ran out of pitchers, and the coach called on Bill to twirl. Bill went in, pitched good ball and won the first game he had ever tried. His work was so good then and in the games that followed that he has been a pitcher ever since. Still, he didn't give up his outfield duties. On the days he was not slated to twirl he patrolled the outer garden. And he was also a hitter of note, batting in the cleanup position even when pitching.

When graduation time came around in June, 1934, Bill did not know where to complete his education. Finally, he picked Villanova because it was a Catholic College, because it was a good school for baseball, and because it was near home.

Since his matriculation at Villanova, Mac has devoted all his athletic energies to baseball, although he did as a freshman play intramural basketball and touch football. He took his regular turn on the pitching mound for the undefeated freshman team of 1935.

Hurls Two-Hitter

Then, as a sophomore, he was a high flyer. During his soph season he turned his best performances to date as a Villanovan. His record of wins and losses shows five triumphs against a lone setback. Numbered among his victims were Ursinus, Providence, Temple and Long Island University. Bill was in top form against the L. I. U. nine, limiting them to two hits as Villanova gained a hard-fought 2-1 victory. Only the strong Red Raiders of Colgate were able to solve Mac's delivery, and they accounted for the one defeat.

Last year Bill didn't do so well. He said himself that it was just a bad year, one of those things that pop up every so often for some inexplicable reason to plague the life of a ball player.

Bill is looking forward to the coming season eagerly, for it means a lot to him. It means his chance to come back and twirl another good season for Villanova to match his soph campaign. Then, too, if he has a good year he should attract a number of favorable offers in pro ball. When contacted in the gym after a workout the other day he said, "If I go well this year, I may get some offers, perhaps even major league, because scouts are to be found at most of the Villanova games."

We feel that Bill has a brilliant future ahead of him in organized baseball. He has all the physical equipment at pitcher needs. He is a big, strong lefthander with a world of stuff, and with experience should go far. His temperament is well suited for the position, as he is poised and a willing, hard worker and never "goes temperamental." With this combination of qualities we look for Bill to show us a successful season on the mound for Villanova and success in the baseball profession in the years to come.

Demo led the Westminster five in almost all of their best performances. He possessed heaps of basketball "Savvy" and had a sharp eye. Add to that the fact that he was a "leech-like" guard and you will have a composite of an ideal basketeer.

Bobby Lewis, of N. Y. U. and Ed Boyle, of Temple were selected as alternate guards, and a better selection could not be made. Lewis was the only bright light on the Violet squad as they fell before the Main Liners' crushing attack, while Boyle aided considerably in holding Villanova to a six point win over the Owls.

devote all his time to swimming.

As for the record for the past season, the natators were far from impressive, for they only carried off the blue ribbon twice out of eight tries. They were only able to out-splash Fordham and Swarthmore. However, the figures don't do the Wildcats justice, for only in the meets with Penn, F. & M., and Rider were they completely outclassed. So close were the contests with St. Francis, Delaware and Penn State that the final outcome hinged on the results of the last event, the 400-yard relay. Unfortunately the aquatic Felines lacked a strong relay team this year and had to be content with being the second best team in all three meets.

Leahy Tops Scorers

For the third straight year Bill Leahy annexed the individual scoring honors with Charley Barretti and Captain-elect Bill Bailey finishing close behind him. Taking part in six meets, Leahy was accredited with nine firsts and four seconds.

The Frosh, completing the first yearling schedule in the history of swimming at Villanova did not fare even as well as their older brothers, for they were only able to annex one meet out of five. A victory over Swarthmore J. V.'s was their lone consolation. However, the season did aid Coach Flocco in uncovering some future varsity material. Tom Moore looks like the most promising of the Kittens. Not only was he individual high scorer, amassing a grand total of 135 points in five meets but he has blossomed into a fine driver. A fact which should smooth Flocco's brow next season. Paul Farnsworth, John Pholeric and Steiert also should strengthen the varsity next year.

With swimming packed away in the mothballs for another season, much praise and credit must be given to Coach Flocco for the yeoman job he did in molding two fine teams from a limited group of natators. His untiring efforts have done a great deal to bring swimming to the front on the campus.

TRACKSTERS BEGIN OUTDOOR TRAINING

Buek to Lead Squad in Defense of Undefeated 1937 Record

After a successful indoor season, the Villanova trackmen started outdoor practice yesterday in preparation for defending their undefeated dual meet record carried over from last year.

Coach Elliott will be minus the services of Tom Cook, jumping star, who graduated last year. Captain Harvey Buek, undefeated in the hurdle events last year, will again run his favorite event. Lou Biester, another veteran, will run the quarter mile. Tommy Delate will run the mile, Vince LaBrasca the half-mile, Jim Lyons the hurdles, and Al Holl will participate in the pole vault.

Relies on Sophs

With only this skeleton team from last season, Coach Elliott pins much hope on the sophomores. Several members of last year's freshman squad will be in varsity uniforms this year. Among these are Bill Guiteras and Barney Bellew, who ran on the indoor relay team, Tony petril, recent winner of the Abbey Trophy, and Art Murphy, high jumper and broad jumper.

Bill Meehan, another of last year's Frosh team, will run the hurdles, Jim Hanley the quarter mile, while Brad McManus will enter the pole vault. Tim Waad will be running in competition with Murphy in the broad jump and will also participate in the javelin throw. "Vyto" Urbellis, member of the football squad, will run the century dash and the 220.

In addition to these, two new members of the the team should strengthen the team considerably. These are Bill Dobbins, quarter and half-miler, and Tommy "Major" McCabe, miler.

The team is now pointing for the Penn Relays on April 30. This will mark the opening of the outdoor season. Captain Buek and Bill Meehan will be running the hurdle events, Art Murphy will be entered in the high jump, and Tim Waad will enter the javelin throw.

Sportorial

By BILL BOWKER

Sports Editor

Note — (The Sportorial this week is conducted by Tom O'Mahoney, Acting Sports Editor.)

ALTHOUGH the '38-'39 basketball schedule has not yet been officially announced, good old dependable Dame Rumor insists that the card will show no 30 games. Those who would like to be known as in the know claim that a prominent Pacific Coast team, the co-champions of the Big Ten and several New York City squads will grace the Wildcat menu. The idea seems to be that a roster of 20 to 22 skirmishes, with at least 15 major opponents to be faced, will be just what the doctor ordered for Al Severance's gang. It is expected that the Blue will be seen in Convention Hall, Madison Square Garden and at the Hershey Arena. Not to mention the Villanova Gym. The good turnout for the St. John's game may lead the A. A. moguls to engage some more big teams on the campus floor.

—V—

Villanova's undefeated footballers were uninvited last year, but their fame has apparently gone forth unto the land. Paramount News, at any rate, seems to think that the Cats are worth filming, for the Cinema picture snatchers have just completed a football short which depicts Clipper's young men in the throes of Spring training. To be christened "Football Goes Scientific," the reel will be released shortly in Philadelphia and environs. (Oh, no. Thank YOU, Paramount!)

—V—

Yes, those Phillies and Athletics are at it again. The two alleged big-league teams played a 21-18 row down in the Sunny and probably dismayed South recently. Too bad the Phils missed their three extra points.

—V—

With the coming of warmer weather comes news that the intramural baseball season starts its merry way Sunday. Fedigan Hall, champs last year, look pretty certain to repeat, although it is heard that the freshman halls will have a little to say about the ultimate winner. The Redshirts seem best fortified on the mound, with Ben Pawlowski, Ted Gourny and Johnny Costello set to throw them past the enemy. Austin meets Fedigan and Alumni plays Mendel on the Mendel Hall field in the league opener, the former game getting under way at 10:30 A. M. and the latter at 1:30 P. M. . .

—V—

As the big league clubs draw near the end of their Spring training, the young men who earn their coffee and cakes by quoting prices on sports probabilities say they'll willingly give you one dollar to every two you wish to bet on the Yankees winning the pennant. They also list the Giants and Cubs as 7 to 5 apiece to cop the National League flag. Wonder how they'll rate Temple's National Championship basketballers for the coming season? Those who saw the Owl frosh absorb a lacing from the Villanova yearlings can see no replacement at hand for the two graduating Templars, Meyer Bloom and Don Shields. On the other hand, Al Severance will have no such worry. The Wildcat varsity will return intact, and should the results of an added year of playing experience. Looks like another good season ahead.

Metropolitan Basketeers Dominate Wildcat All-Opponent Court Squad

Bush, Hassmiller, Fliegel, Bloom and Demo Chosen on First Team; Three From New York Area

By HARRY MAZZEI

Villanova's highly successful court squad met last week and officially closed their season by selecting their all-opponent team. Eight teams were represented among the first ten players including St. John's, Fordham, C. C. N. Y., Temple, Westminster, Boston University, St. Francis, and N. Y. U. After careful deliberation the Wildcat basketeers finally decided on the makeup of the ensuing teams:

Bush On First Team

Forwards: Gerry Bush and Bobby Hassmiller were picked as the first team forwards. The former, captain of the St. John's Redmen, the only outfitt to defeat the Main Liners on their home court, was well versed in all the skills of the game played on the ribbed floor. Bush handled the ball as if it were an atom, directing his team's play, and did more than his share of the scoring. If Bush was not in the St. John's line-up, it would be safe to say that Villanova would have had an unbeaten season in their own lair.

Paragraphs could be written about Fordham's Bobby Hassmiller, but unfortunately space does not permit. The captain-elect of the Rose Hill quintet sparked his team to a 40-37 win over the Wildcats when the 'Cats were displaying their best form of the year. Hassmiller put on an exhibition that evening that is still being discussed in the "City of Brotherly Love" and also in the vicinity of Villanova. Making seemingly impossible shots and executing lightning-like scoring sprees was Bobby's forte that night, and what a forte that was. Whenever the issue became too close, one of the Rams would get the ball to Hassmiller, who would either score himself or set up a score for a team mate. Incidentally, the issue was plenty close all through the contest.

Solly Nechtem, of Boston U., and football fame, and Dick Davis, Hasamiller's running mate on the Fordham quintet, were chosen as second team forwards. Both were prolific scorers and could be counted upon for plenty of markers almost each time they trod the boards. Nechtem made most of his shots from far out, as he possessed a remarkably fine eye, on the other hand Davis was a speed merchant whose best shot was a layup on a fast cut.

Fliegel Chosen

Centers: Bernie Fliegel, of City College, and Danny Naughton of the St. Francis Terriers were chosen as the pivotmen of the mythical five, with the former receiving precedence over the latter. Both men performed with teams that trimmed the 'Cats. Fliegel notched 15 points when he faced the Blue team and was one of the leading exponents of the famous Holman dribble, pass, and cut attack. The Lavender pick-off plays worked to such perfection in the Beaver Gym that Fligel was left to score unscathed on several occasions.

Danny Naughton displayed brilliant form in leading the St. Francis Terriers to a 43-37 victory over the Main Liners. Naughton was all over the court during the course of the fray, and his "fighting brand of ball elicited much commendable comment from his Villanova opponents.

Guards: Meyer Bloom, of Temple's National championship quintet and Andy Demo, star guard of Wesminster's formidable quint were chosen as the guards on the "dream team." Bloom, who has made almost every all-team chosen during the past few weeks, was selected as a result of his fine exhibition when his team went down to defeat before Villanova in one of the biggest upsets of the year. "Big Mike" was a tower of strength for Temple both on the offense and on the defense. When Bloom was not scoring himself, he was "feeding" team mates with accurate passes. Incidentally, Bloom led the Cherry and White scorers as a result of sensational play. He might be classified as the retriever extraordinary because of his ability in gaining the ball from both backboards.

Andy Demo, although not garnering as much nation-wide fame as Bloom, was, nevertheless, a brilliant performer in his own right.

Beside Wallach who held down sixth singles last year, Rred Rappelyea, Len Weinfeld, Bert Wellenbach, and Dennis Dunne are expected to report for practice this week.

Although they did not win letters last season, John Leary, Witold Krzywicki, Mac Schwartz, Harry McGrath, Art Sommers, and Da Costa are expected to give the lettermen plenty of trouble in the quest for singles berths on the team.

mentor has been dickering with N. Y. U. to arrange a two-game schedule and has been attempting to schedule one with Lehigh. Incidentally, Villanova College is willing to meet any collegiate team in this vicinity in a scrimmage game, either at Villanova or away.

Columbia Series Dropped

Plans had been completed for a two-game series with Columbia but inasmuch as Ivy League Regulations now forbid such games this plan had to be given up. Coach Smith had contacted Rutgers and for a while it looked as if the Wildcats would engage in a two-game series with the boys from New Brunswick; but since Harvey Harman has taken over head duties there, no word has reached Villanova concerning this possibility. A prospective scrimmage game with the U. S. Naval Academy had to be overlooked because the "Middies" meet Ivy League teams and hence deemd it desirable not to participate in any pre - season games.

Exhibiting a great deal of spirit and enthusiasm in their workouts, the Wildcats are gradually shaping into condition and have all the earmarks of another great gridiron machine. The Freshmen are showing a willingness to be taught and are fitting into Smith's system as a duckling does to water. Varsity men are not to be outdone and are careful to set the right example for the new boys.

Several of the boys have made known their intention to "Clipper" to come along at the same pace so that they reach greater heights than that of last season. Dave Di Fillipo is anxious to become a better open field blocker so that the Wildcat backs may have a chance to show their stuff in some broken field running. Vic Cook, fully recovered from last year's injury, should develop into a fine tackle and make that tackle problem a lesser burden to worry about.

To make sure that the football candidates are learning their plays, Coach Smith has announced that an intellectual session will be held in the near future and he advises that the boys make a commendable showing in this analysis.

VILLANOVA OVERLOOKED

Villanova's court stars were overlooked in the pickings for the All Double-header and all-Philadelphia teams. The 'Cats placed Montgomery and Duzminski on the second team and Krutulis gained honorable mention for the double-header five, while Krutulis and Lazorchak earned honorable mention on the All-Philly quintet.

30. Four places will be chosen by this match play tournament, the winner receiving ten points, the runner-up seven; the winner of the two men defeated in the semi-finals will receive five points, and the loser, three. There will be no fifth place. These points will be added to the total for their halls to determine the winning hall.

This will act as a qualification for the varsity golf team. With only three regulars and one alternate from last year's team, there are several openings to be filled. For the most part, varsity competition will be on the basis of six man teams. Anyone is eligible for varsity competition. All entries should be turned in to Rev. Edward B. McKee by Friday.

Dwyer Leads Linksmen

Capt. Jimmie Dwyer, undefeated throughout last season, will probably play the number one position. Other members of last year's team are Lou Dubino, who dropped only one match last year, Ed Tirrell and Joe Pagano.

The schedule has not been definitely settled yet, but approximately 15 matches will be held. The team will probably travel to Lancaster to meet their annual rivals of Franklin and Marshall, and to New York to meet the Fordham golfers.

macher and Sheftic seem assured of positions. The three are hold overs from last year. Lloyd Rice, who played some good ball for the frosh last year, is pushing his way into infield prominence.

In the pitching department Joe Desmond and Cliff Choquette have rounded into condition more rapidly than the rest. McLaughlin and Escott are slowly getting the feel of the ball, Schelle is showing some of the "stuff" that won him praise toward the end of last season. Andy Sisco is also hitting his stride and shows much improvement over his frosh performances of last year.

HAVING occupied all our time during the past Fall and the Winter interviewing the mighty football seniors and recording their respective life histories, we now turn to a new group of celebrities for our material. The group in question is the men who make news for the Wildcat Spring squads. Heading the list is Left-hander Bill McLaughlin, one of the mainstays of Coach "Doc" Jacobs great pitching staff.

Bill is a native Pennsylvanian, having been born in the small town of St. Mary, somewhere in the Northwestern sector of this commonwealth. However, when he was still in short pants, Bill and the rest of the McLaughlin family migrated to Collingswood, across the river in New Jersey. It was here in Collingswood that the subject of this tintype got his start in baseball.

Although as is the case with most American boys he played ball in his very early days, he didn't play on an organized team until he entered high school. At that time Bill was an outfielder and a good one. During the year and a half he spent as a student at Collingswood High he played on the basketball team in addition to performing in the outfield for two seasons on the baseball diamond.

Then the McLaughlins moved to Camden, and Bill transferred to Camden High. Camden really was the place where he showed his varied athletic abilities to their full extent, and the school rates him as one of its greatest athletes.

Wins Four Letters

He won varsity letters in four sports, football, baseball, basketball, and track. As a football end he gave Camden fans a treat one Autumn. On the wooden way he jumped center for two campaigns and was the big scoring power of the quintet. In the Spring of the two years he went to Camden he was even busier. He divided his time between track and baseball. For the tracksters he pole vaulted and that he did a capable job is shown by his record. His best leap was 11' 6" in a triangular meet in his senior year.

Most prominent of all his activities, however, was his baseball playing. For two years he was the backbone of the nine. At the beginning of his Junior year he was purely an outfielder. But towards the close of the season Camden High ran out of pitchers, and the coach called on Bill to twirl. Bill went in, pitched good ball and won the first game he had ever tried. His work was so good then and in the games that followed that he has been a pitcher ever since. Still, he didn't give up his outfield duties. On the days he was not slated to twirl he patrolled the outer garden. And he was also a hitter of note, batting in the cleanup poeition even when pitching.

When graduation time came around in June, 1934, Bill did not know where to complete his education. Finally, he picked Villanova because it was a Catholic College, because it was a good school for baseball, and because it was near home.

Since his matriculation at Villanova, Mac has devoted all his athletic energies to baseball, although he did as a freshman play intramural basketball and touch football. He took his regular turn on the pitching mound for the undefeated freshman team of 1935.

Hurls Two-Hitter

Then, as a sophomore, he was a high flyer. During his soph season he turned his best performances to date as a Villanovan. His record of wins and losses shows five triumphs against a lone setback. Numbered among his victims were Ursinus, Providence, Temple and Long Island University. Bill was in top form against the L. I. We feel that Bill has a brilliant future ahead of him in organized baseball. He has all the physical equipment at pitcher needs. He is a big, strong lefthander with a world of stuff, and with experience should go far. His temperament is well suited for the position, as he is poised and a willing, hard worker and never "goes temperamental." With this combination of qualities we look for Bill to show us a successful season on the mound for Villanova and success in the baseball profession in the years to come.

TRACKSTERS BEGIN OUTDOOR TRAINING

Buek to Lead Squad in Defense of Undefeated 1937 Record

After a successful indoor season, the Villanova trackmen started outdoor practice yesterday in preparation for defending their undefeated dual meet record carried over from last year.

Coach Elliott will be minus the services of Tom Cook, jumping star, who graduated last year. Captain Harvey Buek, undefeated in the hurdle events last year, will again run his favorite event. Lou Biester, another veteran, will run the quarter mile. Tommy Delate will run the mile, Vince LaBrasca the half-mile, Jim Lyons the hurdles, and Al Holl will participate in the pole vault.

Relies on Sophs

With only this skeleton team from last season, Coach Elliott pins much hope on the sophomores. Several members of last year's freshman squad will be in varsity uniforms this year. A nong these are Bill Guiteras and Barney Bellew, who ran on the indoor relay team, Tony petrii, recent winner of the Abbey Trophy, and Art Murphy, high jumper and broad jumper.

Bill Meehan, another of last year's Frosh team, will run the hurdles, Jim Hanley the quarter mile, while Brad McManus will enter the pole vault. Tim Waad will be running in competition with Murphy in the broad jump and will also participate in the javelin throw. "Vyto" Urbelis, member of the football squad, will run the century dash and the 220.

In addition to these, two new members of the the team should strengthen the team considerably. These are Bill Dobbins, quarter and half-miler, and Tommy "Major" McCabe, miler.

The team is now pointing for the Penn Relays on April 30. This will mark the opening of the outdoor season. Captain Buek and Bill Meehan will be running the hurdle events, Art Murphy will be entered in the high jump, and Tim Waad will enter the javelin throw.

CATHOLIC STRENGTH AND UNITY URGED BY JESUIT PRIEST

Fr. Lord Discusses Current Catholic Question Before Creighton Students

PRAISES CATHOLIC PRESS

Definite opinions on current Catholic questions were expressed for the benefit of readers of the Creighton College "Creightonian" in an interview granted Sunday night by the Rev. Daniel A. Lord, S. J.

The noted Catholic leader presented his views on the value of Catholic Leadership conventions of the type recently held at Creighton. He discussed at some length the works and power of the Catholic press. And lastly, speaking with the authority of the editor that he is, Father Lord expressed his ideas on what constitutes the proper training for a career in journalism.

"The Student Leadership conventions develop a sense of Catholic unity and Catholic strength. They bring out the fact that the church is alive and facing today, and not buried in an historic past."

With these words Father Lord explained his attitude toward the nation-wide Leadership conventions. He went on to praise the meetings in that they develop leadership in youth to a marked degree. He stated that students have gone out of former conventions to do important work in and outside of school, and that the spirit of leadership has steadily grown.

Father Lord derided the idea that delegates to such a convention merely acquire a few miscellaneous facts about current Catholic questions and then return to their homes without obtaining any lasting benefits. He placed most emphasis on the value of the increase in Catholic leadership resulting from the conventions.

Father Lord was generous in praise of the work of the Catholic press in the fight against the inroads of Communistic principles. He said that the Catholic publications are giving the people an awareness of the problems that give rise to Communism, and in this manner is exposing the root of the evil to public gaze. Through the efforts of the Catholic press the American people are being constantly reminded that the church is a social, economic, here-and-now proposition as well as a spiritual and "hereafter" organization.

PRESS PRAISED IN SPANISH CONFLICT

Priest Relates Religion Issue Is Secondary in Iberian War

University of San Francisco, Mar. 10.—Spain's war is primarily a civil one, and the religion issue is only secondary, declared Rev. Peter M. Dunne, S. J., in the fourth lecture of the present series on Communism in the auditorium last week.

"The Catholic Press, almost single-handed, has cut through the fog of misrepresentation with which the issues at stake in Spain have been hidden," said Father Dunne.

"The Catholic Press has discovered and published facts that the daily press has been unable or unwilling to make known," he added.

In answer to questions put to him in the open forum, he replied that "Franco has been in control of a greater part of Spain for more than a year and a half. He has proved that he means to practice what he preaches. Wages have almost been doubled, churches and schools have been restored, and houses for workers have been rebuilt."

JOE COLLEGE WINS

Betty Coed has rhythm, but Joe College has almost twice as much. Tests given at Miami University showed that while the women's score was a bare 39—or eleven points below an average struck on the basis of 10,000 similar studies throughout the United States—men students achieved a rating of 67.

St. Louis University Poll Indicates Students Regard Marriage Seriously

In view of the ragings of sociologists on the "disintegration of the race" the opinions of college students on marriage are particularly pertinent and timely.

Interviews with 42 college students from the ages of 17 to 25, the average age being 19 years and seven months, show that 37 definitely intend to marry

To the question of "How soon," however, the 37 gave widely varying answers. Of those who attempted to estimate just how soon, the average estimated five years from now would be a reasonable date. Several of the men interviewed made it clear that their marriage of directly dependent upon income. One, for instance, said he did not intend to marry until his income reached $200 a month; another, more exacting, couldn't see a probability of marriage until "finances may permit the devotion of 24 hours a day to marriage in ease and luxury."

Fr. Dougherty Asks Help For Augustinian Seminary Guild

Rev. Joseph A. Dougherty, O. S. A., dean of the School of Science, addressed the parishioners of St. Nicholas Church of Tolentine, New York, last Sunday.

Fr. Dougherty appealed to the parishioners for membership in the Augustinian Seminary Guild, in order to aid the card party which is being held by the Guild for the benefit of Catholic young men studying for the priesthood.

Rev. Blaise Zeiser, O.S.A., pastor of the church, invited Rev. Charles P. Brown, O.S.A., director, to send a representative and the latter chose Fr. Dougherty.

Catholic Colleges Entered In First Glee Club Contest

Villanova to Engage Local Institutions in Competative Choral Tourney Scheduled for Glenolden Parish Auditorium in May

SILVER TROPHY TO BE AWARDED WINNER

Plans are being formulated for the first Inter-collegiate Glee Club Contest to be held in the St. George parish auditorium, Glenolden, Pa., during the first week in May.

Local Colleges Invited

All the Catholic colleges in the vicinity have been extended invitations to participate in this unique competition. The purpose of the Glee Club Contest is to promote collegiate vocalization to a cultural scale. The events will be open to public approval. Among those colleges which have been invited to enter the contest are: St. Joseph's, La Salle, Villanova, Immaculata, Rosemont, and Mt. St. Joseph.

Exact dates for the competitions have not as yet been established. The Rev. Francis H. McKearnan, pastor of the St. George parish and sponsor of the contest, has announced that a silver trophy, known as St. George's Cup will be awarded the college represented by the victorious Glee Club. The cup is to be retained for a period of one year. When the contest is again conducted on the following year, the cup will be placed in open competition.

Judges To Be Chosen

Each Glee Club will be permitted vocalization on a fifteen minute program. Judgment as to the winning organization will be submitted by the votes of four competent music critics to be chosen at a later date. One vote will be accepted as indicative of the approval of the audience as to the winning aggregation.

Already most of the colleges invited have extended their acceptance and will enter a vocal repre-

SENIOR COMMITTEE RELEASES TICKETS FOR APRIL SOCIAL

Chairmen Form Dating Bureau With Rosemont, Immaculata, Mt. St. Joseph's Colleges

CO-OPERATION URGED

Tickets for the Senior Social to be held in the local Field House on April 5, have been released and are now being circulated by various members of the Senior Class which is sponsoring the affair. Admission will be 25 cents.

Oratory Finals Possible

This Social innovation will combine a concert by the College Glee Club and the Symphonic Band, and will also include a first rate movie the selection of which will be announced shortly. The Committee is also discussing the possibility of holding the finals of the Oratorical Contest at the Social.

Co-chairmen J. Walter Stahmann and J. Patrick Kelly have been busy contacting authorities of Rosemont, Immaculata and Mt. St. Joseph's Colleges regarding the date bureau to be conducted by the Seniors. By this arrangement it will be possible for Villanova gentlemen to escort young ladies from any of the above mentioned colleges. Full information concerning this bureau may be gained by contacting any member of the committee which was announced in the last issue of the VILLANOVAN.

The Committee asks that all Villanova students co-operate with them in making this, the first event of its kind ever to be held on the local campus, a big success. Tickets may be purchased from the Committee members or at the VILLANOVAN office.

It has also been suggested that the Glee Club pianist lead the assembled collegians in a Community sing.

ZEALOR, KOKES GET 'WINTERSET' ROLES

Former Portrays Character of Garth; Latter Plays Part of Esdras

Garth the Hunted, a weak willed tool of crime, trying to relieve the pressure of living with ghosts by the piddling scales of his violin, will be impersonated in "Winterset" by Murray F. Zealor, freshman in the School of Commerce and Finance. Zealor is president of the Freshman Debating Society, member of the Study Club, International Relations Society, and frequent representative from this campus to sociological conventions. At St. Thomas Aquinas Institute in Rochester, Zealor was president of the dramatic society.

Kokes Gets Part

Playing the old and despondent father who offers his own life to enable Mio and Meriamne to extricate themselves from the menace of the villain Trock is William B. Kokes, junior in the Education School. Kokes in his home town high school in Cape May was a three year football man, editor and manager of the school newspaper, member of the Holy Name and Dramatic Society. His devoted hobbies since coming to Villanova have been reading, especially poetry, and frequent jaunts to enjoy the legitimate theatre in Philadelphia.

These avocations seem to have aided him in the appreciation of his role, for according to Mr. Anthony J. Frayne, director of the production, he has shown an early sympathy for the part of the dispenser of Jewish philosophy.

This resounding triumph won for

John Stell Resigns Bursar's Position To Accept Offer

John J. Stell, '35, Bursar of the college since August 1936, resigned yesterday to accept an offer from Fleisher, Fernald and Company, Certified Public Accountants.

Mr. Stell, graduated in 1935. During his student days at Villanova he was College Editor of the VILLANOVAN and college editor of the Belle Air. He also was honor man in the School of Commerce and Finance during his four years in college.

Since his graduation he has been connected with Villanova College and has been Bursar since August 1936. Aside from his work here he has been very active in Alumni circles.

Although he has been very active in the Philadelphia Alumni group, Stell's first position was when he was recently appointed managing editor of the new Villanova Alumnus which will come out in May.

CALL ISSUED FOR HELP ON SETTINGS

A special call has been issued by Mr. Anthony J. Frayne, director of dramatics, for interested students to help in designing, erecting, and painting the sets for "Winterset."

Rehearsals have been suspended until headway is made in the scenery construction, because as the director says "there is no use practicing for a play you can't put on."

Government Students Plan Tour Of Capital Buildings

Dr. Harold F. Hartman to Conduct Two-Day Excursion to Washington; Many Points of Interest to be Visited by Group

TRIP OFFERS EDUCATIONAL BENEFITS

Under the auspices of Dr. Harold E. Hartman, the American Government classes will embark on an extensive trip through the Administration Buildings of the nation's capitol city. This trip will last two days, Thursday and Friday, March 31 and April 1.

Bus Chartered for Trip

Due mainly to the large number of students anticipated, a bus has been chartered for the journey. Those taking advantage of this opportunity will leave the campus on Thursday morning at 6:30 A. M. and arrive in Washington at about 10:30 and will return on Friday evening.

Since many of the American Government students have trouble in visualizing the matter taken up in this course, this trip will afford them opportunity to see the legislature and other part of the government in actual practice. On the tour through the city, it will be the endeavor of Doctor Hartman to show the students how the Executive, Legislative, and Judicial branches of the Federal Government actually function, and to acquaint the students with the problems which confront these governmental agencies.

Itinerary Planned

The itinerary has been tentatively planned but is subject to change before the trip. On Thursday morning the tourists are scheduled to hear the Testimony on the Cement Institute Case at the Hearings of the Federal Trade Commission. In the afternoon Doctor Hartman has arranged for the students to visit the White House as well as the Senate and House of Representa-

CHEMICAL SOCIETY HEARS GEO. W. BARR

Kelly Sets Phi Kappa Pi Dinner-Dance Date for Monday, April 25

George W. Barr, District Manager of the Aerofin Corporation, yesterday addressed the bi-weekly gathering of the Villanova Chemical Society during the fourth period in Mendel Hall Amphitheatre.

Air Conditioning Discussed

Accepting the invitation of Dr. E. L. Haenisch, society moderator, Mr. Barr visited Villanova for the purpose of discussing in a light manner the intricacies of air conditioning. The talk centered around the various kinds of surfacing as used in air conditioning coils. Beginning with the origin of the rapidly-growing science, Mr. Barr detailed the growth of air conditioning into a major industry.

The lecture was spiced with interlaced anecdotes of Mr. Barr's interesting experiences. The youthful gathering was thoroughly receptive and enjoyed learning some of the fundamentals of salesmanship which the speaker has developed throughout his career.

Dr. Haenisch repeated his request for voluntary student lectures on chemical engineering following Mr. Beittenmiller's appreciation tendered Mr. Barr on behalf of the Chemical Engineering Society.

Kelly Sets Date

John P. Kelly, chairman of the Phi Kappa Pi Dinner-Dance committee, announced the definite date of the affair as Monday evening, April 25. Mr. Kelly and his committee have been very active since their appointment and are

If Legislation Cannot Stop Them, Villanova Students Would Ignore Anti-American Principled Organizations

Poll Voters Think Catholic Action Is Necessary

By MURRAY ZEALOR

Campus opinions on many questions of the day have been sought by this reporter over the course of the past few months. It has been engaging and enjoyable work, but it is regretful though to think and know that some individuals are not of the opinion that the poll is run in all fairness and consideration of all element of thought. I want all to know that the poll is conducted in a manner in which no partiality or favoritism is given any question or selection of responses. It has been the policy of the poll to give the exact wording of the responses given to questions of the suggested topic of the poll.

Poll Is Authentic

The authenticity of the poll has also been questioned, and remarks of doubt were heard questioning the numbers and the percentages as equal to the entire opinion of the student body. There is very seldom if ever, any repetition of comments from a person questioned in a previous poll. There is an attempt made to search out unknown and unnoticed people and demands made of their opinions. The average number of persons asked the topic of the poll each time conducted is about 50. This constitutes almost one-sixteenth of the total student group. These opinions are taken at random, and their number is considered sufficient to determine the general trend of thought possessed by most students.

This week's poll is concerned with the consideration of an interesting series of events that have filled the newspapers of the past few weeks. The question brought forward for questioning is not new in itself but it deserves thought as it is of prime importance to the civic groups of our country. Included within it is the feeling of national pride and glory of our constitution and for all that it stands for. It is the determining factor in judging just how far is Democray expected to permit itself to be extended. In what realm does the right of freedom of speech permit itself to be established? These are the major thoughts contained in the poll which is opened for discussion at this time.

Believe That Suppression Fosters Growth of Groups

"How should we react to the programs of so-called American societies which have as their object un-American principles?"

Charles Cavanaugh, Sophomore Commerce and Finance. "It is a free country all right. I don't think they should exist. They will do no constructive but rather do some destructive work. They are working for a foreign country."

Robert Guinee, Senior Engineer. "There is only one way to react to such organizations and that is to condemn them. The only real question lies in the determination of what the societies are un-American in principle. I'm not a believer in complete freedom of speech."

Alfred Bongiovanni, Sophomore Science. "They should be discouraged. I just don't like them. I think that if they are not suppressed they will get the upper hand ultimately, and it is best to suppress them now."

Joseph Calandriello, Senior Edu-

DON'T FORGET APRIL 5

THE Senior Class is to be congratulated for the inauguration of the program of Lenten entertainment offering a means of self-expression for participating students, a pleasant evening for other students, and an opportunity of forming congenial contacts with Catholic college girls.

Leaders in world affairs are pressing for more leisure for the individual. The difficulty with increased free time is that some people know not so much how to fill time as how to kill time. The devil finds work for idle hands. Avocational activities to fill leisure time intelligently keep one from growing old. To turn to a different form of activity after a hard day's work is to enjoy a rest from the battles of the day. For relaxation, enjoyment, and re-creation all students should in college, if they have not before matriculation, acquire a facility in or appreciation in the arts to be featured in the first Senior Social.

A question may be raised by some that a program of oratorical fireworks, the first appearance of the symphonic band, a good motion picture, and the glee club is so "cultural" that it will not be patronized by the students. We believe not. This is only a beginning. We believe that Villanova students appreciate the good things of life. This is no inflation of the mob ego as seen in over-emphasized gigantic dances or athletic contests, but is in the parlance of the campus "good stuff."

Now is the time to make that night a success. Talk it up this week so that on April 5 the attendance will be worth the efforts being put into the preparation for its success.

BE AMERICAN!

AMERICA is the stronghold of liberty! We are a nation established upon the principles of democracy and tolerance. Then should we become antagonists of a fundamental prerogative of that democracy? Should we obliterate a basic concept of liberty—freedom of speech?

Recently, numerous groups of extremists have risen up in our cities battling each other upon Nazism, Fascism, and Communism. Of particular interest to Villanova students was the outburst of intolerance on the part of a small group of citizens against a meeting of the American-German Bund in Philadelphia.

We cannot agree with them. It makes our blood boil when propaganda is distributed to contaminate the minds of the unsuspecting. Anything that is un-American is distasteful to us. Our sense of loyalty and justice impells us to stop any movement against democracy. But we must not overlook the fact that in offering opposition to such anti-democratic groups, we tresspass on freedom. We deny such groups freedom of speech.

Tolerance is American, and that small group of hot-headed Philadelphians was not American when they advanced protest by force. Those un-American Fascist, Nazi, and Communistic organizations are under the protection of our flag, regardless of their beliefs. They have the right to free speech. The mere fact that we do not agree with them does not imply that we are licensed to force them to dissolve.

Every change that has ever been brought about in the development of our nation was at first met with opposition. There is always a group who cannot see the point only when a concept is brought clearly into light . . . by freedom of speech . . . can its worth be measured.

Let these small groups of extremists have their fun. Let them express themselves. The more they talk, the less obscured will be their real intentions and potentialities. Organizations of this type thrive on persecution. Do not empoly intolerance to show them their faults. Be American!

SAFER AND SANER DRIVING

CANNOT something be done about the driving on our main highways? Last Sunday, on Lancaster Pike, two cars crashed head-on with the result of death for two and injuries for six. One car started to pass another and the driver was unable to turn back into the lane just vacated with the result that an oncoming car was hit. Although no definite testimony as to the speeds of the respective cars was obtained, the condition of the autos after the collision indicated that a rate of speed beyond that which reason would dictate under the circumstances was maintained by either or both of the operators.

This terrible mishap brings to notice the fact that the auto drivers who find it necessary to use Lancaster Avenue are making a speedway of it. Speeds well in excess of the legal or reasonable limits are often attained by the motorist and it is necessary that something be done about speeding along this main artery before another tragedy brings the fact to mind. We are, in particular, concerned with the driving past Villanova College. Six days a week there are students crossing the Pike at various hours and fast driving not only endangers their lives but also those of the drivers. This is a plea for speed restriction signs near Villanova College. Naturally we expect Villanova students to cooperate in this attempt to have safer and saner driving along Lancaster Avenue.

ODDS and ENDS

By Tom O'Mahoney

IT all happened on a recent debate team tour. The Villanova debaters — who throw a really mean mess of words—were meeting Rutgers at a small New Jersey high school auditorium. The local studes, dragged in, no doubt, by their teachers to hear the collegians go about a little forensics were hardly the best audience possible; so our boys were a little bit nervous. Tom Delaney, first on the program for Villanova, attempted to ease the situation a bit by making a pretty little speech of thanks for the hospitality shown by "Franklin High School." The only catch in the whole thing was that it was Highland Park High School!

College Chatter

By Joe Alessandroni

MASS demonstrations of Catholicity, too uncommon in America, are more striking because of their infrequent occurrence. One hundred thousand Catholics gathered for Mass, make an awe-inspiring sight; one diocese gathered for a celebration is expressive, but no picture a pen could paint may describe eleven thousand spirited Catholic girls, cheering their respective teams at a basketball world series.

Philadelphia was the scene, and no thinking man of pedagogics or student of social progress could doubt the superiority of Catholic over public education while viewing this spectacle. The same falsetto, overflowing in youthful exuberance, may be found in any high school gathering, but in appearance, action and manner those with Catholic training differ as does the night from the day. Behind these girls one could see weeks of persistent, patient training. In the clear color of their ekins and modesty of dress one could see these girls as representing typical young American, Catholic womanhood. Behind them stands the full force of those who have sacrificed their interests, that such girls as these might be an example to the rest of the world, proving the Catholic Church has found a way to combat the ephemeral artifices of a changing world.

This, then is the Catholic answer to those who regard the word "femininity" as a Victorian phrase; this is the Catholic answer to a cynical jazz crazed society, which condones smoking as smart, drinking as obligatory, and conventions as a game in which each contestant tries to break the most.

He was a nice fellow, but he always seemed dissatisfied and melancholy. I tried to find out what was the matter with him, but never could get at the bottom of it. He seemed to be so distant to other people.

"Let's go to the movies," I suggested.

"I'll think about it," he retorted.

"Going to the football game," I asked later.

"I don't know," he said.

"Help me with my studies tonight," I asked him the next day.

"Nope, Im going to be busy," he replied.

"Lend me five cents for a cup of coffee," I asked on another occasion.

"Nope, haven't any money," he said as he closed his wallet. I distinctly saw three five dollar bills in it.

Do you know that fellow?

If you don't, you should, for he lives in practically every room on the campus—he lives in Mendel, in Austin, in Fedigan, and in Alumni Hall.

His name if selfishness.

Selfish people are never happy. That'd what I found out about my friend. He is always so busy thinking of himself, and what he can get out of other people, that he misses the whole joy of living. The joy of life is in working with other people, in doing things for other people. When you work always for yourself, and only yourself, you soon get tired and unhappy, for most of us are so stupid and petty that unless we mingle with others we get fed up with ourselves.

None of us can be totally unselfish, as was Christ. But we can all at least try to be less selfish than we have been in the past.

Curious. We try to live a private life in order to be happy, and instead of being happy we are very unhappy. The price of selfishness is too big. It isn't worth it.

Did you ever think about that? No? Why not do it now.

REV. WILLIAM J. LUNNEY

QUOTATION BY PAUL TOPIC FOR SERMON

Rev. William J. Lunney Gives Fourth Talk in Lenten Series Tonight

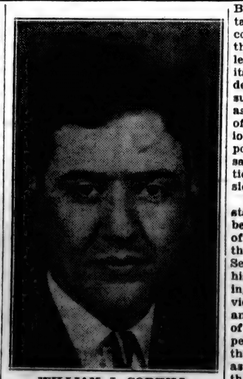
"So run ye that you may obtain the prize" is the quotation from St. Paul which has been chosen by Rev. William J. Lunney, O.S.A., for his Tuesday evening conference sermon. Father Lunney, moderator of Alumni Hall, is the fifth of the conference speakers who have during the present holy season of Lent presented a conference talk for the amelioration and the enlightenment of the college students.

These sermons have been of great significance to the students for their uplifting themes during this period of resignation to the will of God and of preparation for His glorification on Easter Sunday.

Father Lunney, in this evening's talk, will present to the students a new aspect on the quotation of St. Paul. Giving due consideration and not questioning the fact that there is but one winner in a race, he will show that we all as Christian athletes can win the race, the race of life. Each and all can win the ultimate goal of life, heaven and the eternal blessings of our Lord, but we must train as in all contests for the rigorous battle.

Introducing—

By JAMES COLLINS



WILLIAM J. CORKILL

"A SINGULARLY beautiful place, one that will rival the best this great world of ours can produce." Such were the stirring words that came from the mouth of William J. Corkill in description of a certain Mauch Chunk, Pa. One may ask the reason for this sudden outburst, but there really is no answer unless the fact that Mr. Corkill's hometown is also called Mauch Chunk, Pa., has something to do with the matter. Not aware of the exact location of this modern Paradise, we are not in a position whereby we might pass judgment on the veracity of Bill's contention. However, it was stated with enough seriousness to convince us that here was a likely candidate for the Chamber of Commerce of this supposedly thriving metropolis in the Pennsylvanian hills.

Became Orator Early

It is said that even from that first colossal moment at which William J. was initiated in the art of keeping his eyes open on January 9, 1916, he gave mute testimony of his oratorical prowess. One day he went so far as to say "da-da." Nevertheless, Bill received his first recognition as an orator of promising ability in Mauch Chunk Catholic High School. Here he gained a line position on the football team and later was bestowed with all the acclaim of an honor graduate.

And although two years elapsed between his high school graduation and his entrance to our Augustinian taught Villanova College, Bill concisively proved he had lost none of his public speaking abilities by capturing the presidency of the Freshman Debating Society. He rounded out his extra-curricular list by making himself the most popular man in his hall—simply by musical tendencies.—upon forceful request, of course, Yes, Gene Krupa is the foremost drummer of the day, but there would have been some question of his supremacy had our friend William continued his play on the drums.

Opponents of the 'dollar and a half football teams of 1935 and 1936 discovered to their chagrin that Bill Corkill could also very handily take care of the tackle position. He continued his aggressiveness of these years into other channels, leading the Spanish Club to one of its most active years as vice-president in his Sophomore year. His supreme appointment came to him as a Junior when he was given one of the major chairmanships of Junior Week. And he executed this post very admirably, it must be said. The Mother's Day preparations he managed made the occasion an auspicious one for all.

To complete this litany of outstanding achievements these must be added. Only recently the name of William J. Corkill appeared on the committee for the approaching Senior Invitation Social. Then again his position on the present debating team—as on those of the previous three years—is one of importance. Bill's golden verbal powers of persuasion take the material appearance of a pleasantly mild voice that reacts on the hearing organs as balm on a wound. If you do not think this quality helps in a debate, you need just to ask the feminine members of the Mt. St. Vincent's team who were ready to admit defeat after his speech.

If a man with good connections is in demand, Bill is the ideal. His work on the switchboard throws in bold relief his willingness to please everyone. His ever-cheerful "Yes, please?", is a welcome sound on the other end of a telephone. W fellow students of Bill think it this characteristic of his which will go to make of him as great a success in the so-called cruel world as he has been here at Villanova.

PREFACE: Three men of a Fort Worth radio station spent several days in the Texas State Prison last week auditioning 6500 prisoners for a new radio program. In the confidential audition report it was revealed that one was a former first trumpet for Hal Kemp's Orchestra. He was immediately chosen to lead the six-man jam team in the prison follies and the theme song will be "Twilight and You" written by the Trumpeteer. Essence of report:

20223—Tenor. Claims he was on. c. for Balaban and Katz and also toured with Fanchon and Marco unit. Wowed 'em in Walla-Walla. Natty dresser and has melting brown eyes.

20224—Former oil stock salesman. Has a Phil Stewart quality in his voice. Good prospect for announcer.

20225—Says he can play "Margie" on his musical saw, but that the warden won't let him practice in his cell.

20226—Bass. Good material for quartet but must be used before April 18, as penitentiary option is up.

20227—Promising mimic, but his knees are so sore from scrubbing floors that he can't imitate Al Jolson anymore. Uses pull to get him soft job on the rock pile.

20228—Comedian. All original stuff. Claims he never stole a joke in his life. Formerly did a two-act in radio but when they demanded money the manager swore out a warrant. Warden refuses to discuss 20228's partner.

20229—Formerly dramatic critic and music editor of the TEXAS PRISON ECHO, who said the warden was off key, 20229 is now in solitary where the warden and Lou Holtz say all critics should be.

PAGE THREE: Thrown out as a hint for the future. Hopping the burg is the Chicago (in Chicago) where the Kay Kyser orchestra is jamming 'em in on his personal theatre appearance. An established name through long radio build-up, Kyser is drawing mobs and getting terrific words of mouth. . . . Deanna Durbin is not renewing her contract with Eddie Cantor. She will however fulfill her final comitment by broadcasting March 28, when Cantor switches to Camel. Then returns to Hollywood and her Universal picture schedule. . . . Jerry Livingston is picked up four times a week over WOR's parade of hoof spots. Livingston does not impress as other than being a run-of-the-mill stuff. Could use some stylizing. Could also do without Maestro's talky-singing.

—V—

PAGE FOUR: Script censorship, being the serious business it is at NBC Hollywood studio since the Mae West incident, bobbed up last week to amite Metro on a piece of dialog with Stranger Lewis in the guest spot. Line which drew the blue pencil from continuity acceptance department of network had to do with the question, "did you lose your equilibrium?" to which the rassler replied, "I didn't even know it was uncovered." Line was changed to read after the confab to, "I didn't know it was gone." . . . WIP each Monday for past six months has been airing musical show tabbed, "Here's to Vienna." But last Monday, shortly before it was to hit the ether, news came of Hitler's anchluss. Following hurried confabs, title and copy were changed and program went on the air as "In Old Vienna."

—V—

PAGE FIVE: Benny Goodman didn't participate in Columbia's "To Swing or Not to Swing" program last Saturday because gen. mgr. of Detroit station thought that the hour originally picked for the broadcast, 11:30 P. M. was much too late for the old folks who might be interested in hearing "When You Were Sweet Sixteen" played with simple rhythm and harmony. It was the networks idea to have the station's house orchestra play a few of these old sentimental melodies and then break loose from New York with Benny Goodman. But Benny was scheduled for the seven o'clock half hour period, so CBS assigned its own house combination batoned by Leith Stevens.

—V—

PAGE SIX: If you're curious about what makes the studio audience laugh when the Mad Russian makes his entrance on Eddie Cantor's program, it would be well for you to know that it's his ears. He folds them together beforehand in some way and when he gives his "How do you do" greeting the ears spring out again. Nice trick, anyway. Incidentally, that new Cantor program has too many people on it to suit us. It seems that the promoters are jamming an awful lot of stuff down the public's throat in a half hour show. Durbin, Goodman, Gordon, King, the Fairchild and Carroll piano team, and Canfor himself constitute a list of stars who cannot give enough time on the program to be appreciated by the public. Drop a few of the names and a better show will result, say we. Raoul Walsh, Paramount director, in a recent interview stated "Hollywood needs new ideas." The big mogule of radio who plan these half-hour, seven-star shows could look that statement over and apply it to themselves.

RADIO A LIABILITY' DEBATE TOPIC WITH IMMACULATA GROUP

Delate and Quigley to Uphold Affirmative in Tomorrow's Forensic Contest

SUGGESTED BY VISITORS

Beta Gamma Debaters will play host tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 to the charming representatives of Immaculata College on the question "Resolved: That the radio as now constituted is a social and cultural and intellectual liability." Villanova, as the home team, according to custom will take the affirmative.

McNamara Named Chairman

The debate will be held in the amphitheatre under the chairmanship of Joseph McNamara. The proposition was suggested on the contract by the visitors. Manager McNamara may be quoted as saying, "Only a girl could think of a question like that."

If similar debates in the past are any criterion, this contest will undoubtedly be highly successful, both as to attendance and humorous jousting of the speakers. The champions of this campus, Thomas Delate and James Quigley, will be pleased if the gentlemen are on time and take seats.

Last Friday night a week ago, an interesting battle of wits was held with Elizabethtown on the compulsory arbitration of industrial disputes. Upholding the affirmative for the home team were Robert E. O'Brien, John J. Harrington, and M. Joseph McNamara.

"Should the United States suspend commercial relations with nations at war?" That question was discussed over Station WIP yesterday afternoon with Randolph Macon. Speaking for the affirmative were John J. Harrington and M. Joseph McNamara.

Fred Waters, M. Joseph McNamara, Thomas Delate, and James Quigley are back from their trip through North Jersey and report intelligent discussions with Georgian Court, Rutgers, and Upsala.

tives. In store for the students in the evening is an enjoyable journey to the world's largest library, the Library of Congress. Here they will investigate important documents relative to their course.

Start Home Friday

Friday morning will find the students starting the day by visiting the Franciscan Monastery where they will attend Mass. After Mass a brief tour of the catacombs has been arranged. The rest of the day will be devoted to a tour of the city. Some of the places of interest include: Interstate Commerce Commission; Hearings where the Valuation of the Pipe Lines of the Valvoline Oil Company will be taken up; visits to the Supreme Court Hearings, Treasury Building, Bureau of Engraving, Department of Justice, Bureau of Investigation with J. Edgar Hoover; Arlington Cemetery; and Fort Meyer. A bus trip will take care of any sights which have not been covered by the individual visits.

It has been announced by Doctor Hartman that students making the trip must take notebooks and record the things which are of importance. This trip is primarily for the growth of information and to alleviate the hardships of the American Government students in their classes. For this reason it is expected to be an immense success.

CHAIRMEN MEET

There will be a meeting of the chairmen of all Junior week activities tomorrow afternoon at 1 P. M. in room 214, Mendel Hall.

John Begley, Freshman Science. "Just ignore them. Let them go around parading in their uniforms. They are harmless if not suppressed. If they were to be shipped back to the countries they represent nine-tenths of them wouldn't go. They just want to play soldier."

Robert Wilderotter, Sophomore Arts. "It should be allowed. Each man is guaranteed certain liberties, that is freedom of speech."

Vincent Labrasca, Senior Commerce and Finance. "I would ignore them. By ignoring them you would do more harm to them. By doing this we could do more harm than by any other way. They affect the function of municipal government."

Frank Fitzpatrick, Sophomore Arts. "They should be suppressed. They are detrimental to the country's welfare."

J. Paul Skelly, Senior Engineer. "There are only two paths we can pursue in fighting these subversive movements. One is by vigilance and active warfare by the medium of the press, and by Catholic Action. The other is by counter legislation as was passed in New York state last week."

Joseph Ryan, Freshman Engineer. "My idea is to deport the leaders. We don't have any exile laws, but we ought to make some arrangements for the deportation or imprisonment of the leaders."

Donald Mackowski, Junior Commerce and Finance. "I think we are too interested in sving to bother."

Thomas Delate, Junior Arts. "Ignore them. When they cannot find any suckers to pay the overhead they will die a natural death. Persecution always brings growth."

Edward Da Costa, Freshman Engineer. "You can't fight such organizations with violence. It is quite evident that persecutions only gain sympathizers with that cause."

Richard Derevall, Senior Education. "They should be tolerated, but not encouraged. That is what the Pope would say."

Robert O'Brien, Sophomore Commerce and Finance. "I don't think they should be tolerated because they are working against our economic structure in so far as they are attacking the tenets of our government.

Robert Daniello, Junior Science. "They should be ignored and unencouraged because of their partisan foreign ideals."

The above are all in response to the same question, and each contains the answer in its entirety as given to our inquiring reporter. There remains yet much question for debate but the answers given are as you realize in much the same vein of thought. Left to our consideration though is the question "how far did our forefathers expect the wording of the doctrine of freedom and speech to be taken and extended." This should be a very interesting survey in the future.

The Villanova choral group was last heard on St. Patrick's Day when they conducted two concerts in the Philadelphia vicinity. Music Seminar To Resume Activities Thursday Evening

All-Russian Program Will Be Heard by Student Gathering

Thursday evening at 7.30 P .M. in the Day Hops' Room Mendel 102 the Music Seminar will recommence its regular Thursday evening program of recorded music bringing the beloved music of the classics and of the moderns. Rev. John J. Vrana, O.S.A., moderator of the Music Seminar, will furnish the group with an all Russian program containing the works of the celebrated Russian artist Tchaikowsky.

Symphony Is Selection

The first selection of the evening will be the Symphony Number 6 in B Minor known to the music world as Tchaikowsky's Pathetique. It is a melodious composition of deep and lugubrious tones, lamenting tones and temptuous discourse symbolic of the period of Russian history during the life time of its composer. The breath taking moods as portrayed by the morbid tones has made this symphony one of the outstanding musical accomplishments of the modern era, and has made its composer one of Russia's greatest.

The Nut Cracker Suite will complete the evening's program of Russian music.

Former Student Stops Here on Good-Will Tour of States

Mr. Rafael Martinez Alvarez, of Santuce, Puerto Rico, former student of Villanova College, visited his Alma Mater last Wednesday, as part of a good-will tour of Colleges and Universities of the United States.

Graduated in 1936

Mr. Alvarez was graduated from Villanova College in June 1936, with the degree of Bachelor of Arts and is now a Law student as the University of Puerto Rico.

He is on this tour with two other students from the University of Puerto Rico. They arrived in the United States on March 21, and will leave New York on April 8, after completing a good-will debating tour in which they will meet colleges and universities throughout the United States. They are also scheduled to broadcast several of these debates.

Mr. Alvarez informed the Villanova authorities that the Alumni in Puerto Rico plan to organize an Alumni Club sometime during the Summer. He was an honor student at Villanova and was awarded the gold medal for Philosophy at the 1936 Commencement, and the gold medal for excellence in Public Speaking at the 1935 Commencement.

Wildcat Nine Faces Tigers And Quakers

One Of These Will Open At Princeton Friday

Sportorial

By BILL BOWKER
Sports Editor

THE lull which struck Villanova campus athletic activities is now passing and we see that the varsity baseballers are to open their 1938 campaign against the strong Princeton and Penn nines. Some idea of the ability of the Villanova team in comparison to the Ivy League brand of ball will be gathered when the returns of the two contests are in. Last year the Wildcats traveled up to the lair of the Tiger and put on what they thought was not an exhibition worthy of their ability, dropping a 5-2 decision. This year the story will be different, as the boys are determined to wipe out the record of that defeat.

—V—

Penn's Quakers will be met the day after the Tiger is visited, and it is hoped that the lads will continue their work of last season. For those who were not members of the Villanova student body last year, "Quack" Escott, crafty southpaw, checked the Franklin Field inhabitants with four hits for an 8-0 win. According to rumor, somewhat official, Escott is slated to do the twirling against the Quakers this Saturday. Incidentally, the more Villanova rooters there

BLUE LINE-UP INDEFINITE

Villanova's baseball team inaugurates its season this Friday afternoon, playing the Princeton Tigers upon the Princeton diamond.

Both teams are in comparatively the same condition, inclement weather having interrupted both their training campaigns. Villanova's starting lineup, however, is much more certain than that of the "Ivy Leaguers." From Princeton, little has been heard as yet.

Garbark Will Catch

When Villanova takes the diamond, Mike Garbark will be behind the plate. Bob Bond will be in his accustomed spot on first base. At Second Cowboy Crawley will be performing. In the shortstop gap we find Len Merullo. Third base will be taken care of by "Buzz" Howlett, judging from his work in practice sessions.

Ray Stoviak covers left field for the 'Cats. Next to him in center is Lou Wannamacher. The right field spot, over which there was a free for all among candidates, seems to be won by Lloyd Rice, a sophomore.

On Saturday, the 'Cats travel into Franklin Field to meet another "Ivy League" team, Pennsylvania. Penn, always a difficult team to beat on their home field, will be lead by Captain Charley Diven, a sophomore star from last year.

Austin Leads Intra-Mural Activities To Date With Thirty-Six Counters

First Place in Basketball and Three Seconds Give Blue Shirts Six-Point Lead Over Alumni Hall Aggregation

With only five more events to be decided, the Intramural schedule is nearing its close, having only the Spring sports left to competition. Hardball, softball, golf and two tennis tourneys are the remaining contests.

At present, four teams are bunched at the top of the heap for scoring honors, with Father McKee's Kee's Austinites holding a scant five-point margin over the hard fighting Alumni freshmen. Mendel Day Hops have six points less than the leaders, having amassed 30 points, while the West Enders, Fedigan, are but short six markers behind the third place crew.

Austin Gets 36 Points

Austin garnered its 36 tallies by taking a first and three seconds, showing remarkable consistency in all events. The second half basketball title went to them when they defeated the Fediganites, who acquired ten of their 25 tallies via the first half court championship. Seconds in drama — familiarly known as Amateur Night—boxing and swimming gav them the other 21 counters.

Alumni Hall gathered two firsts, taking the drama and boxing awards and gathered the other 11 points by a third and a fourth in the basketball races and a fourth in the swimming events. Only one point behind the Freshman Hall are the Mendel Dayhops, who tallied a first, a second, two thirds and a fourth, the latter being a somewhat unusual position for them in that it was in basketball. The Train and Trolley boys were usually seen at the top of the heap. The first was gained in swimming, while drama boxing saw them end up in third place. They finished second in the first half basketball flag chase.

Red Shirts Get 25

Fedigan's red shirted crew took the first half basketball title, but could not repeat in the second half, and finished in the second position. Fourths in drama and boxing, added to a fifth in the

FROSH TOSSERS AWAITING CALL

Practice For Yearling Baseballers to Start After Easter Holidays

An announcement made yesterday by the athletic office stated that the Freshman baseball candidates will not report until after the Easter Holidays. This has been the custom in recent years, and an appointment of a coach will, in all probability, be made when the call for candidates is issued.

Schedule Under Consideration

As was the case with last year's Frosh, this year a representative schedule is under consideration by the authorities. Under the direction of Stanley "Bunny" Galazin, the Frosh, paced by pitchers Cliff Choquette and Andy Sisco, and the hitting of Mickey Vernon, Tex Connors and Bob Pash, went undefeated, meeting Northeast Catholic High and Temple Frosh, among other high calibre opposition, and it is hoped that this year's crop of diamond material will continue the record of the past campaign. All freshmen are expected to watch for the call after the return from the Easter Holidays.

LINKSMEN PREPARE FOR BUSY SEASON

Four Members of Last Year's Successful Squad Return Under Dwyer

By JAMES LYONS

With four members of last year's varsity team and several newcomers with enviable records behind them, the outlook for the 1938 golf season is very bright.

Captain Jimmie Dwyer will probably play the key position which he held down so successfully last year. Jimmie tied his opening match last season and then proceeded to win every one from then on. Ed Tirrell, who played number two position the greater part of the time will also be back in the line-up this season.

Robinson Leaves

The combination of Dubino and Robinson, which dropped only one match last year, was broken up. Tommy Robinson, erstwhile number three man, dropped out of school at the mid-years. However, Dubino, will be back in action again this spring.

Joe Pagano, Junior pre-med student, who played the number five position last season and alternated in the four man matches, will also be among the candidates for regular positions.

Weather Permits Football Squad to Scrimmage Over Week-End

Villanova's varsity gridmen go into their third week of spring training with more contact work being the order of the day. As was the case last weekend, the recent Saturday saw some intensive contact work done by all the members of the Wildcat squad.

Sunny weather all week enabled the gridders to make up for the time lost during the rainy spell, but the heat caused them to lose some poundage. Offensive and defensive work was stressed equally, with all four "teams" getting plenty of action.

Blue Shirts Capitalize on Opponents Many Errors; Score Five Runs to Open Barrage of Hits and Runs; Castles Holds Rivals in Check

FRESHMAN HALL FRAY ENDS AT 16 - 15

By TOM O'MAHONEY

As an opening day crowd gasped and cheered, Austin Hall's under-rated nine whipped Fedigan, 21-0, and Mendel Residents nosed out Alumni 16-15 in the intra-mural baseball league inaugural last Sunday. Frank (Porky) Castles went the distance in the first game, limiting Fedigan's hapless swingers to two hits, to establish the blue shirts as a serious pennant contender for the hardball diadem. Bill Epifanio was credited with the win for Mendel in the second attraction.

In the morning game, Fedigan's ace, Ted Goumy, was found for no fewer than 18 hits by Austin's Amazing Assaulters, with Carl Pantaleo and Vic Sandor leading the way with three safeties each. The West Ender's two hits were made by Goumy and Jack Rhoads. The encounter was never in doubt, as Castles mowed down man after man, and the Austin supporting cast was equally effective. The $100,000 infield of Walt Burlington, Al Wood, Carl Pantaleo and Mike Cuskey functioned fluently with the willow, as they amassed nine bingles among them; as for errors, the field was a little bit rough. Lo-Balbo, Lavin and Sandor, Austin's fly-catching corps deluxe, dropped nary a ball, and accounted for five slashing hits—which they would have had even if Clem Lavin had not been at bat, for the Lawrence lad proved to be Goumy's only cousin, getting none for five. Paul Kerrigan handled Castles' dazzling prayer ball with aplomb and dispatch, and nabbed two for two with the club.

Gigolos Look Sad

Fedigan's side of the story, however, is not so very bright. Jake Simons, rotund Gigolo slugger, and key man of the West End onslaught, was horse-collared at bat, but proved a capable catcher for the harrassed Goumy. Long Jim Carroll, lead-off man, did lead off—to the bench, four times. Cleanup clouter Jack Rhoads came through with one hit for four trips to the dish, but the only other Fedigannite to get on base honestly was pitcher Goumy—no relation to Hubbell.

Mendel Wins Second

The afternoon fray between Mendel Residents and Alumni was another wild game, but the runs and hits were distributed far more equally this time. Bernie McAloon and Harry McGrath suffered for Alumni, while Bill Epifanio registered the win for Mendel. Alumni started off well with six runs in the first two innings while the Skytoppers could collect only one. Mendel hopped on McAloon for two markers in the third, but Alumni went ahead again in the fourth canto with three more digits. The two frosh halls split the fifth inning, getting one marker apiece, but the end was not yet in sight. With Alumni holding a 10-4 lead going into the sixth stanza, the Penthouse lads from Mendel staged a garrison finish, scoring 12 runs in the last two innings as Alumni wilted to fall one run short.

water carnival, brought the West End total to the abovementioned 25.

Mendel Residents and the Commerce and Finance Day-Hops with 12 and six points, respectively, bring up the rear. A fifth and four last place finishes kept the business crew in the cellar, while the best the Skytoppers could muster was a third in swimming. A trio of fifths and a sixth accounted for the rest of the Penthousers tallies.

The annual golf tourney got under way yesterday at the Main Line Open Course, and the returns will not be in for a few days, but the turnout assures an interesting contest in the divot digging department of inter-hall play. Tennis will soon be started, with Austin having a good chance to take the net crown, with Witold Krzywicki and Frank Megaro competing for the Blue Shirts. Krzywicki is the defending champ and should repeat this year.

WALLACH SELECTED CAPTAIN OF NETMEN

Sophomore Commerce and Finance Student Also to Act as Manager

An announcement revealing that Saul Wallach, Commerce and Finance Sophomore, was appointed Captain and Manager of the 1938 Villanova College tennis team, was released late Friday afternoon.

It is the first time in recent Villanova athletic history that one individual will hold down these two important positions at the same time. Wallach succeeds Bill Thorn, Engineering Senior, as leader of the netmen.

Organized Frosh

It was the love of tennis that prompted the Norristown High alumnus to organize a freshman team last season, in his first year at Villanova. He had unusual success with his team, the frosh bowling over several crack interscholastic teams in the district.

When the varsity walked out in mid-season, after one of the most dissasterous campaigns in Villanova annals, Wallach stepped in and volunteered to finish the season with his Frosh raqueteers. The only wins recorded by Villanova last year were turned in by the squad composed of seven members of the class of 1940. Brooklyn, P. M. C., and Delaware falling before the locals. Only St. Joseph's experienced team could down the plucky freshmen.

Plans for 1938

Wallach plans great things for Villanova tennis enthusiasts next season when all repairs to the courts are completed. Having just finished scheduling for the 1938 campaign, he has plunged into the task for 1939. A schedule rivaling that of the 1929 season, when a Villanova team emerged victorious in all but one joust against the cream of eastern and southern intercollegiate competition, is planned. Pennsylvania, Temple, Georgetown, Navy, Lehigh, N. Y. U. Manhattan and Duke are being contacted for 1939.

For the present, the short and bespectacled athlete plans to have his squad of tennis men work out on the courts of one of the nearby colleges until the local stamping grounds have been put into some sort of playing shape for the opener on April 9, against strong Philadelphia College of Pharmacy.

Linksmen Prepare For Busy Season

give the veterans plenty of competition for varsity berths are Marvin Mones and John Callan, dayhops, Murcho and Roche of Austin Hall, and Brad McManus, star halfback of the hundred and fifties.

Several freshmen are also among the new candidates. Jack Egan from Louisville, Kentucky, Cliff Randolph from Brooklyn and McGrath seem to be the most outstanding of the first year men.

With this wealth of material, the team should be exceptionally strong and have an even better record than last year when they dropped only two matches. The opening match will probably be held the later part of next week.

Pool Records Fall Throughout Year As Blue Mermen Press Strong Rivals

'Cat Medley Trio, Barrett Set New Standards During Season's Campaign; F. and M. Clips Thirteen Seconds From Mark

By JACK RHOADS

Breaking records was quite the fad this season in the college pool. On no less than six occasions were new marks set up. This epidemic of record shattering this year signifies the quality of the opponents met by the Blue tankmen and also the rapid strides they have made themselves in intercollegiate swimming circles. The Wildcats had a personal interest in the making of two marks and it may be said that if Coach Flocco's charges hadn't shown such enthusiasm in chasing their opponents across the finish line the old marks would probably still be in the books.

Felines Start Parade

The aquatic Felines were responsible for starting off the record breaking performances in a dual meet with the University of Delaware. The natators started the meet off by being very inhospitable to the Mud Hens when they ran off with 300 yard medley relay in record time. The trio consisting of Wilmer Booth, Toby Greco and Charlie Barrett, was accredited with skimming through the water in 3:25.5. However, this record was very short lived, for the following week the mighty tank squad of Franklin and Marshall invaded Villanova's natatorium with a contingent of champs. When the splashing had ceased and the devastating Diplomats had returned to Lancaster, three marks had been broken and one tied. Spangler, speedy breast stroker of the Diplomats, lead the wholesale onslaught of the records.

Thirteen Seconds Clipped

He aided his team- mates, Gunert and Reaser, in clipping fully 13 seconds off of the 300 yard medley relay mark and zipped through the water in the 200 yard breast in the record time of 2:42.3. Miller, F. and M. sprinter gave an exhibition of how to travel the shortest distance between two points in the fastest time by the water route. He nipped the mark of 55.9 for the century by 4 seconds, and tied the existing record of 24.9 for the 50 yard free-style.

After the F. and M. meet record breaking hit a recession and it was not until the last meet of the season with Penn State that the boys became record conscious again. Charlie Barrett climaxed a fine year by lowering the mark for the 50 yard free-style to 24.3. The Nittany Lions did their share to make the Wildcats' finale very unsuccessful when their 400 yard free-style relay team consisting of De Walt, Lehman, Wood and Welsh decided the meet with a record cracking performance of 3:51.8.

Saturday, the easier the conquest.

Other signs of sport activity are evidenced in the intramural line with the hardball race and golf tourney under way. Soft ball must of necessity wait until Daylight Saving time comes into effect, and tennis awaits the conditioning of the courts. The baseball department of the inter-hall athletics got under way with a bang Sunday, with two typical early season games. Frank Castles had things his own way, blanking Fedigan whil his Austin mates romped around the bases, and the tussle between Mendel and Alumni ended with 31 runs being scored collectively, the former emerging the victor by a one run margin.

—V—

There is a query going round about the ping pong tourneys that used to take place in Austin Hall. Some of the more energetic lads put a couple of tables together and had themselves a tournament. Some of the students are crying for another such intramural activity. It is up to them to get the thing going. The authorities are willing to cooperate.

The bowling tourney sponsored by the engineers has so far failed to materialize. Majordomo Mazzei states that the alleys are in good condition and ready for action.

In the Sportlight

By JOHN L. SIMONS

LAST week we gave you in this column the pitcher; now we shall take up the doings of the other half, the receiving end, or, to get to the point, the story of Mike Garbark, the athlete, the scholar, and the gentleman. For the greater part of his life (he has just turned 22) Mike has been playing baseball and playing it in a manner that has won for him quite a bit of attention.

East Orange Residents

Although a native of Houston, Texas, he learned his first baseball at East Orange, New Jersey. It was here, too, that he started to school in an East Orange public school. Soon the Garbark family took up the trail to Edgewood, a small and very attractive residential town near the city of Pittsburgh, which town Mike still calls home.

At Edgewood High School Mike embarked on an athletic career that was both extensive and brilliant. In the four years he spent at this institution of learning he was regular fullback on the football team all four seasons, regular guard at basketball for the same number of campaigns, and the high school's ace pitcher again for four years. To say the least this record is one to be admired, and it is a tribute to Mike's athletic ability.

He came into this ability quite naturally. His two older brothers, Art and Bob, were also great athletes and still are. Bob, in whose footsteps Mike is now following as a catcher, is at the present time with the Chicago Cubs. This is his second year in the big time, as he was with the Chicago team last year. Art also is a baseball specialist. According to Mike, Art is every bit as good a ball player as brother Bob, but isn't up so far. He was a few years ago the property of the Pittsburgh Pirates, but through a combination of circumstances in the form of a sore arm and homesickness dropped out of the National League.

Upholds Record

So when Mike entered high school he had a reputation to uphold. He began the upholding almost the first day he was there. His two brothers had been fullbacks at Edgewood, and the coach thought Mike had the qualifications to carry on. The result was that Mike found himself, only a freshman, fullbacking the high varsity.

During the following years Mike not only lived up to the athletic traditions of the family but even added a bit through his exploits on the gridiron, court, and diamond.

In May of 1934, shortly before Mike's graduation a visitor dropped into school to see Mike. That visitor was Bob Reagan, ex-assistant coach of football at Villanova, and his visit resulted in Garbark's coming to Villanova. Bob dropped into the school one morning, took Mike out of class and talked Villanova to him. Bob told him of Villanova's advantages and stressed the fact that the Wildcats went in strong for baseball. This sounded very good to Mike, who wanted to go to a college where baseball was a big thing. Also the fact that Villanova is a Catholic college helped persuade Mike to come here.

Played Frosh Football

In September, 1934, he enrolled at this illustrious educational institution. He soon found out that he was expected to play football. So once again he took up the duties of a fullback and performed in that position of the freshman squad. In the winter of the frosh year Mike became one of the stars of the famous Alumni Hall Steamrollers. And of course when the spring rolled around, he turned to his first love, baseball. ; lost no time in establishing himself as the first string receiver on the frosh nine.

Mike has done all his playing at Villanova as a catcher, but he was not always a maskman. In his early years Mike was a pitcher, even through his high school days. He was very successful at that line, his best single performance being a 26 strikeout job during his Junior year. Still he realized that the big "roundhouse" with which he baffled the schoolboys would get him no further in the baseball world. Consequently he looked around for another position. Being the possessor of a strong arm and a big body, Mike decided catching was what he wanted. And during the summer after his graduation from high school he started as a catcher, liked it, and has stuck to it ever since. His performances since have shown that he made a wise choice, for he is a very capable receiver, a shrewd handler of pitchers, and a good all-around maskman.

The fall of his sophomore year found Mike once again playing football. Although he met fierce competition at the end position he managed to get into almost every game that season and showed up as one of the 'Cats' best defensive wingmen.

Sticks to Baseball

After that footbal campaign was over, Mike confined his athletic endeavors to baseball. For the past two diamond seasons he has been the regular catcher and cleanup batter. A hard and smart hitter specializing in t iples, he had his best season as a sophomore. His batting average for that campaign was .340, and his record included a good assortment of extra base blows.

He hit his peak in the game with the Temple Owls on their home grounds. That day he could do no wrong. He socked the Cherry-and-White twirlers for a single, double, and triple. The fourth time he came up he got his best drive of the day only to have the center fielder come through with a miracle catch to rob him of another of his specialty triples. In addition he cut down all the Owls who were brash enough to attempt the audacious stunt of stealing on his mighty arm.

The 1937 season was a disappointment to Mike, although to the sideline observer his play was more than satisfactory. His batting average took a bit of a drop, and to a dyed in the wool baseballer like Mike that ruins any season. However, he drove his share of runs across the platter for Jacobs' crew, and performed in workmanlike fashion behind the batter.

Sees Good Year

This spring he is looking forward to a big year both for the team and for himself. "We should have a banner year, the best in our four years. Our pitchers are very good and our infield great. I don't see how we can miss."

Upon graduation Mike intends to take a shot at professional baseball, and his prospects are good. The New York Yankees have their eyes on him, and if his performances this season measure up to his previous play the Yanks will sign him up. Thus it is especially important to Mike that the coming campaign be a personally good one.

There is no reason why it should not be. Mike is big and strong. He has all the physical and mental equipment necessary for success in the baseball world. And it is our sincere hope that he will be able to follow his brothers Bob and Art into the big leagues to the delight of his parents, younger brothers Tom and George, and his five sisters back home at Edgewood.

'CAT TRACK SQUAD MAY ENTER RELAYS

Villanova Cindermen Likely to Run in Annual Franklin Field Events

"Jumbo" Jim Elliot, coach of the Wildcat cindermen, may enter a representative team in the forthcoming Penn Relays on the Franklin Field track. The Relays are an annual highlight of the outdoor track events of the Quaker City, and will be held this year on Friday and Saturday, April 29 and 30.

Captain Harvey Buck, Barney Bellew, Bill Guiteras, Johnny Maher, Vince LaBrasca, Lou Biester and Bill Dobbins are possible entries for the Villanova team in the collegiate events. This is probably the first year that the Wildcats will be represented by so large a number of first class cindermen.

HERE and THERE

By YOURS TRULY

Baseball is with us again . . . the intramurals opened Sunday with Austin getting five runs in the first inning against their former teammate Ted Goumy . . . Five errors in the canto accounted for the barrage of scores . . . Burly hit a homer in the infield . . . Jake Simons fanned in his first attempt . . . It was a bit cool for the diamond game . . . a bit windy for the spectators, not to mention the outfielders . . .

Those softball games some of the lads are getting up before chapel give rise to some weird arguing and playing . . . the engineers, as usual, participate most energetically and illogically in the former pastime . . . Wait until good old D.S.T. comes in . . . then the boys can have their fill of the softball game . . .

The varsity opens Friday, but they're a week behind Navy, who lost to Vermont, 1-0, last Saturday

. . . A very good score for a tussle this early in the season . . . Look at the counts some of the big leaguers are rolling up . . . They remind one of football scores. Then there's the Lower Merion "Quiz Night" contestant who didn't know who the "Sultan of Swat" was, or is, if you prefer it that way . . .

The intra-mural golfers started out for the Main Line Open Course yesterday, but no report has been received as yet . . . The police are not called in on the case until a week passes by without hearing from the divot diggers . . . Good material is usually unearthed from the annual contest, although a difficult time is had in figuring out the points for the intramural race . . . Incidentally, the varsity golfers are due to whip into action in the near future . . .

We notice where the "Clipper" had mercy on the general auto driving public and kept his boys in the stadium field instead of working them out in front of Austin . . . By the way, don't get Andy Chisick or Lou Dymond talking about the new offense they have perfected . . . You won't get to dinner or supper . . . Some of the lads were attempting to show how it could be stopped, and the outcome of the discussion was the covering of the Pie Shoppe tables with diagrams and the general conclusion that all offenses are perfect on paper . . .

Joe Missar, one of the members of "Table 4" seems to be holding his lead in the race for most voluminous eater of the group . . . He goes for the fish dinners . . . However, Jake Simons can hold his own in any company . . . Ask the lads who went up to New York for that Press conference . . . Yes, that's Mike Garbark's picture on the other side of the page . . . Getting back to the intramural diamond game, there are so many ball players in Fedigan that some of the boys were considering getting up a team to represent Good Counsel Hall . . . The schedule was already arranged, however, and the plan fell through.

Glenn Cunningham's 4:04.4 mile has yet to be recognized by the authorities who determine what does and what does not constitute a world record . . . It looks as if Glenn is taking a beating on not having his mark made worldwide . . . Any one who can run a mile in that time should be awarded with the world's record, no matter on what kind of a track the distance was run, unless, of course it was downhill with a 50-mile wind pushing him, which was not the case with the Kansas Flyer.

Again the Wildcat pitching staff is predominantly left-handed . . . "Quack" Escott, Andy Sisco, Will McLaughlin, and Cliff Choquette all tossing from the port side . . . The season should be a successful one, unless another finale like last year's Ursinus game comes along to mar the record . . . It's too bad the Holy Cross contest isn't down here . . . The Cross has one of the country's best collegiate aggregations and the Villanova diamond fans would appreciate seeing them . . . Incidentally, trade at Snellenburg's, you might get a couple of hundred passes to the National League Ball parks . . . A lady on Riverside drive in Gotham did . . . Or maybe residence on the drive is a prerequisite . . . One never knows . . .

They say that R. G. Chonko—his favorite animals are mice—will be the Fedigan Hall nine's mascot . . . He wasn't on the job Sunday . . . The West Enders were soundly trounced . . . But the season is young . . . and revenge is sweet

-ORATORY CONTEST BEGINS TOMORROW

Ampitheatre Scene of Prelims for Finals on April Fifth

Giving the smoke of tomorrow afternoon's debate time to clear away, the Villanova orators will use the amphitheatre again tomorrow night for the semi-finals, preliminaries, and last eliminations before the finals April 5. Each contestant will deliver one speech on a subject of his own choosing.

Most of the discourses will probably deal with some phase of social reconstruction, for the topics will be influenced by the fact that the winner of the Villanova Oratorical Contests will represent this institution in a forum in New York the following Sunday night, April 10, on the issue, "How to Combat the Evils of Communism."

At the Senior Invitation Social, when the campus finals are held, the orations will be judged by men of celebrated rank in the Philadelphia area.

ROSEMONT GIRLS ASSISTING IN DRAMATIC PRESENTATION

RITA WOLFINGTON, native of Philadephia, a resident at Rosemont, is president of the Jest and Gesture dramatic society, captain of the basketball team, member of the field hockey team, and has been chairman of successful promenades.

ANITA ARGENTIERI, who has the feminine lead in "Winterset," filling the role of Meriamne, is a Senior at Rosemont. A fluent conversationalist in French, she is majoring in that language. She is an honor student from New York.

MARIAN O'BRIEN, student from South Bend, Ind., is an honor student in the Junior Department at Rosemont College. She is also active in numerous extra-curricular activities, her prize honor being an office in the Student Council.

STUDENTS NAMES GO ON YEARBOOK

Any student desiring his name on the cover of his 1938 Belle Air Yearbook may have it placed there for the small sum of 35 cents, it was announced late yesterday by Rev. Daniel P. Falvey, moderator of the publication.

Plans for the completion of the yearbook are rapidly drawing to a close. Editor Charles O'Connor at the last meeting of the group gave out more stories and requested that they be in at the earliest possible moment. It is his wish that they be turned over to the copy department of the publication as soon as possible.

L. K. D. COMPLETES PLANS FOR DINNER

There will be a meeting of the Lambda Kappa Delta Fraternity this Thursday evening at 7:30 o'clock in the Mendel Hall amphitheater.

At this time final plans for the annual L. K. D. dinner dance will be discussed. Chairman Troncelliti has been entirely satisfied with the assistance given him by the committee and is rapidly completing plans with the Arcadia International Restaurant.

UNDERCLASSES HOLD NOMINATIONS SOON

Freshmen, Sophomores to Select Candidates on April 8 and 11, Respectively

Nominations for both the freshman and sophomore classes will be held on April 8 and 11, respectively, it was announced today by Edward Shovelin, chairman of the Student Council, which has direct supervision over all campus elections.

Campaign Interesting

This marks the entrance of the freshman class into activities of this sort for the first time since their enrollment at the college. Prenomination information shows that the First-Year men are already planning an active program of campaign propaganda.

As for the sophomores, this will be the most important nominations in their stay at Villanova since next year will come their important Junior Week activities and social events.

As has been mentioned and is the cusom, the Student Council has all responsibilities pertaining to both nominations and elections. The time set for both class nominations is 1 o'clock and will take place in the amphitheatre in Mendel Hall. All freshmen and sophomores should make it a point to attend these gatherings.

Nominations will be held according to parliamentary procedure and the decisions of the Student Council in regards to questions that arise will be final.

LYNCH TO ADDRESS HOLY NAME SOCIETY

Villanova Alumnus to Address Group at Forthcoming Communion Breakfast

Matthew A. Lynch, of the class of 1923 and a very active member in all Alumni Associations activities, will address the Holy Name members at their forthcoming Communion-Breakfast.

Active in Alumni

Mr. Lynch, who is employed in the Highway Departments of the State of Pennsylvania, is vice-president of the national Alumni Association and a member of the Board of Governors of that association. He has been particularly active in the Philadelphia chapter of the association.

Although the title of Mr. Lynch's speech has not as yet been disclosed, the members of the Holy Name are avidly awaiting his arrival. Those who have been privileged to hear him assert that Mr. Lynch is a very entertaining and interesting speaker.

Because of Junior Week occurring the first week of May, this usually marks the final Communion-Breakfast of the Holy Name. However, there is a slight possibility that there will be another monthly breakfast. It will be definitely decided in the near future.

LOCAL PROFESSORS ATTEND CONCLAVE

Rev. Joseph C. Bartley, O.S.A., dean of the School of Commerce and Finance, and Dr. Harold Hartman, professor in History, represented Villanova College at the forty-second annual gathering of the American Academy of Political and Social Science, on April 1 and 2 in the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel, Philadelphia.

Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O.S.A., president of the college, also attended the convention on Friday, April 1, representing the institution in the absence of Dr. Hartman, who was on a tour of the capital buildings in Washington, D. C. with the American government classes.

STAFF MEETING

There will be a very important meeting of the entire staff of the VILLANOVAN this afternoon at 1 P. M.

IMPORTANT NOTICE

Joseph H. Weber, Photography Editor of the Belle Air publication, has announced that photos taken by the year-book staff will be displayed in the reception room in Mendel Hall on Monday and Tuesday.

Results of the entrants in the recent snapshot contest conducted by the Belle Air will also be available for display on these days. Orders for prints of the photographs on display will also be taken at that time.

Andrew N. Conte, Circulation Manager of the same publication, has set a deadline on the orders taken for engraved names on the 1938 Belle Air. Students desiring to have their names affixed to the annual will make payment of 35 cents to Conte before April 12. No orders will be taken after that date.

STUDENTS HEAR TALK BY GREEN

Flight Commander Speaks on Advantages of Naval Air Corps

Flight Commander Lieutenant Green addressed the group of engineers yesterday on the advisability of entering the naval air corps. He urged his hearers to send their applications to Washington. If they are accepted they will receive a medical examination. If they pass this test (about three out of ten do) they will undergo 30 days trial at the base of the naval air corps in Philadelphia.

College graduates are preferred. They will be taught how to pilot an airplane among other essentials and will be given a chance to solo. If the applicants survive this period of 30 days they will go to the Pensacola base on the Southern coast, where a rigid training course will be given. They will serve three years in the navy air forces as a cadet. They will receive $105 salary a month. When they are through the course they receive a bonus of $1500

A student may leave the service at any time he desires. There are no obligations. Facilities for practice after the bonus are provided once a week. Once a year thereafter a fourteen-day maneuver drill is held at Cape May.

After the Executive Officer's address, Rev. John J. O'Leary, O.S.A., concluded the meeting with a stirring oration on patriotism.

MUSIC GROUP HEARS RUSSIAN SYMPHONY

Tschaikowsky's 'Nutcracker Suite' and 'Pathetique' Played at Seminar

At last Thursday's Music gathering, the weekly seminar was dedicated to the famous Russian composer, Tschaikowsky, who is acclaimed as one of the most outstanding of all the brilliant composers.

Members Represent Feelings

A few of his outstanding compositions were played including the famous "Nutcracker Suite" and the equally-known "Pathetique." The beautiful and melodious charm of the two pieces could be felt through the entire playing of these numbers. They represented the composer's feeling towards certain aspects of life, which through his genius and artistic ability he was woven into a thing of beauty that will live forever.

Several other selections of other prominent composers were played in the course of the evening and the selections were thoroughly enjoyed by all those in attendance.

Rev. John J. Vrana, O.S.A., moderator, whose efforts have made the seminar possible, promises more enjoyable evenings for those who are interested.

CLUB MAYFAIR SITE OF JERSEY DANCE

Club Mayfair, in West Orange, New Jersey, has been selected as the site of the annual Easter dinner-dance of the North Jersey campus club, according to an announcement made today by Frank Megaro, chairman of the affair.

At last week's meeting, President Louis Dubino announced that this year's event would be dedicated to alumni living in North Jersey. Dress for the dance will be optional as has been the custom in preceding years.

COMMITTEE MEETS

There will be a meeting of the Committee for the Invitation Social this afternoon at 1 P. M. in Room 104 Mendel. It is of utmost importance that every member of the committee attend.

INFORMAL ASSEMBLY HELD IN COLLEGE GYMNASIUM TONIGHT

Rosemont, Immaculata, Mt. Saint Joseph's Colleges to Send Large Congregations

CAMPUS GROUPS PERFORM

By JAMES COLLINS

Definite achnowledgement and spontaneous acceptance of the invitation tendered by the Senior Class to the three local Catholic colleges for girls, Rosemont, Immaculata, and Mt. St. Joseph's, guarantee the presence of a large number of young ladies tonight at the Senior Invitation Social to be presented in the Villanova Field House at 8 P.M.

Enthusiasm High

Selected members of the committee, appointed to supervise the general arrangements for the affair, have made personal contact with the heads of the above mentioned schools and report that enthusiasm is really at a high peak among the students of the institutions. The proposed event has appealed to the feminine love of the higher realm of music and has the support of quite a few of the students. At each of the colleges that the Villanova delegation visited in reference to the attitude of the girl collegians towards this Senior-sponsored bit of entertainment it was met not only with cheering words of praise but also with credible estimates of the number of guests to expect.

Doctor Furey, president of Immaculata College, assured the group that from eighty to one hundred students would represent his school with the possibility that even more would accept later. The latest report stated that two buses have already been chartered. From Rosemont comes much the same story. A like number of girls have signified their intentions of being present this evening; buses too have

MILLER AND KEEGAN SPEAK AT SEMINAR

'Dioxane' and 'Coleus Brunei' Topics of Lectures; Change Meetings to Thursday

Bernard J. Miller and James A. Keegan, juniors in the Science School, addressed a meeting of the Research Seminar on Monday evening, March 28. The topics of discussion were "Dioxane" and "Coleus Brunei."

The genetic characteristics of the Coleus Brunei, a species of primrose, were explained by Keegan in his lecture. Included in this talk was a review of the life of Gregor Mendel, Augustanian monk, and founder of the science of Genetics.

Explains Technique

The extensive cytological and pathological technique entailed in the use of Dioxane was explained by Miller. His article on the same topic was also published in the Mendel Bulletin, journal of the students of the Science School. Miller, addressing the Seminar, elaborated upon the material contained in his article.

It was decided at this meeting that the regular schedule of sessions be altered. The seminar will hereafter hold regular meetings bi-weekly on Thursday evenings. The discussions will begin promptly at 7 P. M. in the Mendel amphitheatre.

Three Lectures Ready

Irving E. Uram, chairman of the Research Seminar, has announced that at the next meeting there will be three lectures presented upon

BE THERE TONIGHT!

STUDENTS, you have a date this evening. Every one of you has an engagement with one of the finest girls to be found in this section. Each and every one of you has a date with a girl from a Catholic College to attend the Invitation Social sponsored by the Senior class this evening in the Villanova gymnasium at 8 o'clock. You know from experience that they don't come better than the ones from Immaculata, Rosemont and Mt. Saint Joseph's who will be in attendance this evening.

Second only to your studies are the associations you make while you are in college. Without a doubt it is the happiest and best time of your life and it is your duty to get as much out of it as possible. Here at Villanova your opportunity to meet some of the finest men in the world is unsurpassible. This evening is your chance to meet the type of girl you should know—the Catholic college girl. Almost 200 of them will be on hand this evening to witness the efforts of the Villanova Glee Club, the Villanova Symphony Band, and the finest orators the college can produce.

Even if the young ladies from the Catholic colleges were not present this evening you should feel it your duty to be on hand to lend your encouragement to two very note-worthy Villanova musical groups. We do not think it necessary to appeal to your school spirit to show your appreciation for their efforts and to exhibit pride in the realization that the Band and Glee Club and Villanova organizations must be supported by Villanova men. We know that every sensible student with the smallest spark of love for Villanova will be at the Social this evening.

We are willing to bet that those students who remain in the halls tonight instead of attending the Social will be those who are least active in Villanova activities and who cry the most when the noble efforts of someone interested in the college are not up to their liking.

If you are there tonight we guarantee you a good time and — 200 Catholic girls speak for themselves.

SORRY MR. LANE

In the recent issue of the "Advocate," official publication of the American Student Union we find the statement given by National Chairman Robert E. Lane that "We will admit Catholics and Masons and those of differing political faiths all on the same basis, and all with an equally welcoming hand." Isn't that lovely! We Catholic Students should feel so honored that the A. S. U. is condescending to accept us into their fold. In the face of this very nice invitation, then, it is strange that in the listings of the member colleges Catholic Colleges are not included.

Further perusal of the "Advocate," however, gives an indications some of the reasons why our schools do not subscribe to the principles of the A. S. U.

As much as we would like to join any student organization which has for its goal the betterment of the American Student body as a whole we find that we cannot agree with several articles written in the official publication of the group.

Let us take, for instance, the article written by Dorothy Bromley concerning "Youth and Sex." We notice that throughout her article she speaks of "the new code of morals" which exists among today's American youth. She claims that "large numbers of the younger generation have broken with the traditional sex code to which our society still pays lip service."

Unfortunately, Dorothy Brownley, we as Catholic Students tutored in truth cannot agree that there is a changed code of morals concerning your question of sex. The Church long ago laid down her rules concerning these fundamental topics. For almost 2000 years her children have accepted and have practiced her rulings and long experience has proven that her code and standard of morals are correct and most practical. It seems odd that after so many years a few misguided upstarts dare rear their juvenile heads to vainly strike against so old and so wise an institution as the real Christian code of morals. Time and practice have proven that our code is truth. Even you, Dorothy, cannot defy what is true. There is no new code of morals. There always has been and always will be only one—that advocated by the commandments of God. Not even the wild-eyed A. S. U. can defy them.

Such declarations as these, then, make us wonder why the A. S. U. even goes so far as to condescend to invite us to join when they know that we are definitely opposed to so many of their mutterings. Sorry, Mr. Lane, we can't join you.

AREN'T YOU INTERESTED?

SEVERAL weeks ago when Spring was just beginning to show itself around the Villanova campus we asked you in the pride we know you feel for the college grounds to give the young grass a chance. It seems that most of you are not interested in a campus beautiful, for you are still cutting across the grass to the Post Office from the Dining Hall.

We are all proud of our campus and its unusual natural beauty. Why not give it a chance to look even better. It doesn't take much more time to walk around the path or to use the road to the Post Office. Let's do our best. Give the grass a chance.

ODDS and ENDS

By Tom O'Mahoney

YES, IT happened in Fedigan. Frank (Buck) O'Neil was in the middle of a long evening devoted mainly to accounts of his adventures in India. He had reached the point where he was explaining how he had narrowly escaped death at the claws of a huge tiger. It seems that the tiger was drinking at a jungle stream when "Buck" stumbled upon him. The beast eyed "Buck" eagerly — "Buck" eyed the nearest tree anxiously. The tiger padded toward him—but here, concluded "Buck" proudly, was where the old brain-work came in. "Bending down quickly, I scooped some water into my hands and threw it full in the beast's face. Irked greatly, he ran away!"

Just as the incredulous silence began to crack, George Bishop, who had heard all, spoke up from the bottom bunk. "Buck" is entirely truthful, for a change, An hour later I happened to see that tiger, Going up to him, I stroked his whskers. Gentlemen, they were sopping wet!"

ON THE CAMPUS

Beta Gamma: Tom Delate, one of your debaters is still getting himself into hot water. That Immaculata debatress who gave her opinion of children who listen to Dick Tracy, et al, instead of playing outdoors burned the Trentonian no end. From Our Little Bird Tuesday, Rosemont Branch: "Dear O & E; Why does George Mawbey visit this fair institute daily? Everyone here would like to know. And do you know that we-all miss Harry McGrath? Is it because of Lou Dubino?" Thank you, ol' Bird. We'll try to find out these things. School For Scandal Note: The whisper is going around that Tommy Haynes is singing a blue song since a Seton Hall man started to make the hike up to St .Elizabeth's College a daily habit. HOW about it? Winterset Information Dep't.: Is that dart board on the stage a part of the props for the coming Belle Masque production? Don't Miss: The Symphony Orchestra's rendition of "Comin' 'Round The Mountain" at the senior social tonight. Prediction?: Jim Dwyer asserts that the juniors will have Isham Jones for their Prom. Happily, Dwyer has been wrong before.

Please explain—how Bill Slaughter acquired the nom de guerre "quick on the draw?" John (Allece) Mellus could tell, but we fear he won't.

College Chatter

By Joe Alessandroni

AS THE YEARS of college life roll on, we find students looking for material and immaterial things which they have lost. At Wellesley College they have a column which reads:

LOST—One frog, answers to the name of Alphonse, last seen in October crouching under Norumbega's remaining tumbler, has not been seen or smelled since. Any information regarding this amphibian (genus RANA) will be rewarded.

. . . .All of which reminds us of the freshman who lost the Reminder Pad, on which he was supposed to write what to remember.

. . . .Then the senior who lost the picture of his girl—and when he returned home at the end of seven years (his was a difficult course) he asked his girl (now seven years older) if her daughter was at home.

. . . .Then the junior who lost his textbook, and found it at the end of the year right where he had left it—he had covered it well by placing a dictionary on top of it. (Need we add the dictionary rested on top of his desk?)

. . . .We could not close this loss of material things without discussing a sophomore who lost his girl, whose name was Mary, by sending to her the letter that belonged to Jane. (Moral—only address and seal one letter at a time.)

. . . .And after four years most of us have lost the idea that we are possessed of much knowledge.

. . . .After four years we have lost completely that picture of a care-free country-club, which the moving pictures had impressed upon our minds.

. . . .We have lost the idea—that a textbook is always right—That there can be but one answer to any question—and everyone that attends college receives—a college education.

. . . .Most students have lost their conservative attitude toward life (if they ever had an attitude) and now we classify them as radicals, reactionaries—or we connect them with the type of government they seem to represent.

. . . .And since we have lost whatever we were trying to prove in the first place (and if you haven't lost your reason thus far), it would seem best to forget the golden harvest of material and immaterial losses, that are buried somewhere on college campuses and remember these things we still possess.

"RUN IT OUT"

Varieties

RADIO: A crop of near greats rather than new standouts, bang-up stars dominate the talent picture for broadcast advertising in 1937-38. Apart from Edgar Bergen, who has made his ventriloquist dummy, Charlie McCarthy, one of the national obsessions, radio's new star ranks are thin indeed. Bergen and Walt Disney's cartoon feature "Snow White" are probably the two greatest entertainment happenings of the season. For the rest, the old stars remained the big stars of broadcast advertising. Witness, Jack Benny, Eddie Cantor, Al Jolson, Bing Crosby, Major Bowes, Fred Allen, Phil Baker, etal. It is true, of course, that some of the continuing broadcasters have advanced their standing notably during the year.

Bob Burns would be conspicuous in such select company. So would Benny Goodman, Tommy Dorsey, Phil Spitalny, Al Pearce, Mark Warnow, Don Amecho, Stroud Twins, Ken Murray, and Charles Butterworth. It has been a year of many novelties, the playing of innumerable parlor games, over the air, of a strong trek to Hollywood with a corresponding emphasis upon film names as guest stars for those programs promised primarily on rotation of stellar personalities. Apart from these generalizations the season has been noteworthy for; more drama with name personalities, more daytime serials, and stagnation in kid programs.

AMS ON TOAST; Major Bowes hasn't a corner on amateurs. May we show you why the whole world started as amateurs? When you first start on a newspaper you're a graduate from the Darwin Theory—a cub meaning an amateur bear. You start with a spoon, break in a ladle, and gradually work your way up to a scoop. Report your first murder and you're a professional. A General Motors amateur was Henry Ford who started with a tin lizzie and then thought of a guy who freed the slaves, named a car after him that freed him of Fords—the Lincoln.

Man o' War didnt rehearse as a colt for the Kentucky Derby. We saw the old boy last night in a news reel talking to his son, War Admiral, and a new colt, an amateur right now, but a few rehearsals might take some money away from Bernie and Crosby. . . . Mae West did not originally say," "Come up an' see me some time.' That expression came from her landlords before she was in the money and Harry Richman was playing the piano for her. . . . Rudy Vallee started as an amateur for Blue White Diamonds, and has developed into a first class professional, while some of the guys he left in Yale are still amateurs in mathematics.

FOOLS FOR SCANDOL: Mervyn Le Roy'sfinal film for Warner Bros. is not the best directed blow he has made at the box-o, but one that does not entirely mess, however. "Fools for Scandal" has many diverting moments and on the whole measures up well enough to deserve an average business. Carole Lombard and Fernand Gravet on the marque won't hurt either.

STRIKES: Jeanette MacDonald, looking lovely among a lot of mexo-tinted California scenery, struggles through "Girl of the Golden West" with two strikes called on her at the outset. Miss MacDonald is burdened with tough cowboy accent, oddly at variance with her cultured warbling, which is strike one. Then she is forced to assume a masculine swagger. The lumbering walk gives the effect of aching feet, and is patently against her natural inclinations that it inspires giggles in scenes not designed to be any laughing matter. Obviously the walk is a nuisance to lissome Miss MacDonald, but she clings to it in varying degrees until a final romantic ecene with Nelsen Eddy, when she goes berserk and lets the whole thing go—and that would have been an excellent idea in the first place.

Eddy, apparently brought up in the same, if not wilder surroundings, is not troubled with colloquial expressions. He's read a lot of books which apparently takes care of that. Reading must have affected his carriage also, for he escapes the awkward slouch wished on the femme star. Her western drawl suffers most in conversation with Buddy Ebsen, whose twang couldn't be more natural if he had never been out of sight of a prairie dog.

Leo Carrilio, Eddy's henchman, is a pleasure, and so is the vocalizing of Miss MacDonald and Eddy. But despite this, and the noble efforts of H. B. Warner, Walter Pidgeon, Brandon Tynan and Cliff Edwards, "Girl of the Golden West" seems to have had her day —some time ago.

It must have hurt the imaginative Adrian to design such plain clothes as the divided skirt and chamois vest in which Miss MacDonald spends a great deal of time. It probably pained him to have her slouching around in the low bodices and ornate hoop skirts for later scenes. The designer's competition came in the fiesta, where he cut loose with ruffled and beflowered rhumba costumes for merrymaking "peasants."

KPFA, Helena, Montana, newest station to be added to NBC, marking 148th acquisition. Station, full-time 100-watter, will be offered advertisers as a "bonus" station to those sponsors using KGIR, Butte, on their hookups.

Al Jolson's Lifebuoy show Tuesday (22) went off the CBC air six minutes after getting under way. Vancouver filled in with piano music. Line trouble between Seattle and Vancouver blamed for break.

Followed similar trouble during afternoon on Rinso show.

REV. JOSEPH I. BOYLE

CHRIST'S VIRTUES TOPIC FOR SERMON

Rev. Joseph I. Boyle Delivers Sixth in Series This Evening

To-night at the regular Tuesday Evening Conference Rev. Joseph I. Boyle, O.S.A., will speak of the many virtues of Christ that were so prevelent during the period of His Passion and Death on the Cross. Father Boyle prefect of Mendel Hall and moderator of the various music groups on the campus and the Belle Masque has chosen the scripture quotation "In the world you shall have distress; but have confidence, I have overcome the world" for the base of his sermon.

Was Perfect Man

The life of Christ was one of perfect virtue despite the fact that many men disagree on the divinity of Christ none can deny that He was a just and perfect man. The Gospels have explained the virtues of Christ of which are most explicitly shown in long road from Bethlehem to Calvary.

The Observer

THE OTHER DAY the Observer received one of these 100 percent ultra-American patriotic books which challenged Americans to awaken. After reading pages of stuff about the Communists, and how all good loyal Americans should fight for their country, the booklet ended by directing all 100 percent Americans to write to their senator and demand that legislation be introduced: "4. To establish in Washington, a Federal bureau for Patriotic and Anti-American activity."

Was the printer in error, or did they really mean that?

FLASH: Robert A. Bonner, the Keester-Boy of the campus, has started a membership drive for his Union of United Magazine and Newspaper Salesmen of America. (U. U. M. N. S. of A. to you!)

The methods used by this tried and true arch labor agitator are highly representatives of . . . just Bonner. He commenced his first great drive in the office of the Christian Front. Among his promises to potential confreres were these (taken at random):

"I guarantee you a weekly wage of at least five cents an hour for the first 170 hours, and ten cents an hour for the rest of the week."

"I'll get you better wages, and only ask for $2.000 dues weekly."

"We shall hold united walkouts whenever our rights are endangered by the capitalist class."

Mr. Bonner, needless to say, was expelled from the Christian Front office by the editor.

They tell us the editor was writing a new book on "The Rights of Labor."

Who's crazy now?

No matter what we say and think of Herr Hitler, we must admit that the recent seizure of Austria was one of the most magnificent and sublime strokes of European diplomacy. In fact, Herr Hitler so overwhelmed the diplomats of Europe that they could just gasp and say: "Farewell, Vienna."

Vienna, the city of music, of dreams, of Tokay, and of Beethoven, is no longer. It has gone.

The iron heel of the Nazi soldier has crushed one of the last of the beauty spots of Europe. No longer can the gentle Viennese sit down to their coffee in little shoppes along the crooked streets of old Vienna. No longer can the old, lazy atmosphere of "gemuetlichkeit," which made a visit to Vienna so delightful, be found in the cabarets and resturants. For now everything has given way to Hitler. Hitler, the deliverer, the leader, the one of God.

Must this insanity continue? Must it be the lot of modern civilization to endure the most horrible tortures of the damned because some crackpot like Hitler gets the idea that God didn't do a good enough job on the human race?

Give me one Mozart for a million Hitlers.

Give me one Ludwig von Beethoven for a hundred General Goerings.

Give me one Goethe for a million Goebbels.

But no. They let Mozart die in his youth. They let Beethoven starve in his deafness. They let Goethe pass unread.

All that is left of culture today is the mighty:

Heil Hitler!
Heil Hitler!
Eternally, throughout Central Europe, they say: Heil Hitler!

It is no wonder that some people doubt that God did make man to His image and likeness!

It is legitimate to know nothing about a subject and pass an examination. . .if the professor asks the questions the right-wrong way. Here is how it works:

Question: What do you know about the Sherman Anti-Trust Act?

Correct Answer: I know nothing.

Now as the Professor merely asked what the student knew about the Act, and the student told him, the question-answer must be marked 100 percent right.

Try and get your Prof to adopt this new system.

FLASH: Here's a little story on the U. S. good-will flight to Argentina that wasn't reported: After the planes landed, the President sent a congratulatory message to Langley Field to be relayed to the flyers. But a later check-up revealed that the Langley radio operator, a private, was holding up the message because he had orders to send nothing unless it was approved by one Captain Wheeler, who was absent. Long-winded pleas from army officials did no good. President or no President, Secretary of War or no Secretary, the operator was going to wait for Captain Wheeler. Not until a Captain, a Major and a Colonel each agreed to assume full responsibility did the private reluctantly dispatch the President's greetings!

Introducing—

By JAMES F. HAUGHTON

WAY back in 1916 a mother was rolling a baby carriage along that famous Bronx landmark, the Grand Concourse, when suddenly her favorite passenger, an effervescent lad of several pages off the calendar, burst out with a loud and lusty "Rah-Rah Villanova." With these memorable words the nearby listeners were convinced it was no one else but J. Walter Stahmann, Villanova bound, but still a long way off.

J. Walter (Just call me Dutch) first made his presence known on September 23, 1916 at the Bronx home of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Stahmann and followed in quick order the routine of eye-opening and night-wailing; the latter appreciated very little by the surrounding populous.

He never deviated from this routine in the next few years until he graduated into the stage of throwing sand at the neighbor's pride and joy, and stealing roller skates from his cousins. But his pater felt that Walter should receive the benefits of an education and carted him off to the Sacred Heart Grade School where for eight years he continued his excellent record by adding on a few new inventions of his own. Among them, the art of spitball-throwing and pulling the hair of the blonde lass who sat up in the front row.

Manhattan Preposter

But now it was "Dutch" himself who decided to continue this search for knowledge (or shall we say trouble) by enrolling at Manhattan Prep. Here he was given a chance to use his already primed vocal chords to advantage as a member of the debating society. In fact, his convincing manner so convinced the authorities that he was awarded the Public Speaking medal in his senior year. And we must admit they were correct in their selection.

J. WALTER STAHMANN

As a sideline in the athletic sphere "J. W." spent many a pair of minutes as manager of Basketball. The Prepper courtmen still remember him as the best rubber-downer to ever enter their portals.

The next step in our subject's educational itinerary was to the local campus, and we've been gazing rather proudly on his presence since that September Day of '34. Here again Walt had the opportunity of developing the favorite pastime of his Bronx neighborhood-cheering. He nobly acquitted himself in the eyes of the neighbors and compusites too, in this field, by becoming a member of the cheer-leading corp in his first year. His loud and lusty lingo was so powerful that he was appointed Captain of the corp in his second year.

Interested In Intermurals

But Walt was not forgetting the athletic side of the picture and took quite an interest in intermural basketball, baseball and touch football during his first two years on the local knowledge grounds.

He decided to leave athletics to themselves and picked up the forensic baton as a member of the debating club in his junior year and continued it in his senior year. Local Beta Gamma lads are rather proud of him and claim he does an excellent oration, especially with opponents of the opposite sex.

Speaking of the feminine side, "J. W." rather bashful, but proudly admits that it is he who monopolizes the Fedigan Hall phone on the cold and rainy days when it is hard to personally visit a pretty Rosemont lass answering to the cognomen of "Eleanor."

When the members of the class of '38 recollect their collegiate social activities the name of J. Walter will surely come to their mind. For it was he who gathered experience as a member of the Soph Cotillion Committee, which helped him so nobly in handling the duties as Chairman of Junior Week. Prexy Joe Weber has so much faith in Dutch's executive abilities along the social line that he appointed him co-chairman of the Senior Social to be run off tonight.

The prim purpose of Mrs. Stahmann's pride and joy during his Villanova sojourn was an education and he has handled this end very well as a member of the Arts School. This acquaintance with Aquinas and Vergil is to prepare him entrance into the Columbia Law School where he will study for the barrister's trade.

So if ten years from now you enter a New York courtroom you'll see "Dutch" use his swaying power with 12 of John Law's guardians you can proudly say, "He went to Villanova."

DRAMATIC SOCIETY SELECTS ROCHE AS STAGE MANAGER

Sophomore Commerce Student Has Had Several Years' Experience on Stage

SETTINGS ALMOST READY

With the sets for the Belle Masque production "Winterset" nearly finished rehearsals are being held twice a day five days a week on the Villanova stage.

Roche Stage Manager

Working until late every night for the last month the recently appointed stage manager, Charles F. Roche, Sophomore C & F student, has succeeded in virtually completing the two scenes. Roche acquired experience in stagecraft constructing sets for St. John's Prep in Danvers, Mass. Other hobbies he enjoys are golf and skiing.

One of the scenes completed is the interior of an apartment in the slums; the other is an exterior on the bank of a wide river under a great city bridge. This latter was the more difficult.

Set Typical

The set represents a typical dead-end tenement square on New York's East Side waterfront. Built against one of the huge buttresses of the Brooklyn Bridge, the set looks out over the East River to the Brooklyn shore and skyline. The walls of the tenements rise on three sides, with their fire-escapes and geranium potted windows above the cobbled square and odds and ends of waterfront characteristics. Success has been achieved in the illusion of perspective. Pershing's Calabro's art work aided materially in the advancement of the work.

Water Presents Problem

Major details now revolve around the rain of real water which will pour on the stage. The winter downpour will force some characters to play in water-soaked clothes. In order that members of the cast will be protected from catching cold an effort is being made to equip each player with thin rubber garments to be worn beneath outer garments. Devises for flashes of lightning will also have to be perfected.

A few more roles in the play have been announced. The old hobo who haunts the square retreiving the butt ends of cigarettes that luckier people throw away will be enacted by James H. Lyons.

M. Joseph McNamara will be the Sergeant, and Joseph T. O'Loughlin portrays the cop. These three men were all in "Journey's End." For the part of the radical Basil W. Dobrowolski has been chosen. The guys in the street are Harold H. Hart and Louis H. Guard.

Posters have been submitted by Vincent LaBraska and James H. Lyons.

REV. JOHN F. BURNS SPEAKS TO GROUP

Spanish Club Hears Arts Dean at Recent Meeting of Club

At the meeting of the Spanish Club 1:30 last Friday, Rev. John F. Burns, O.S.A., Arts Dean, addressed the members.

Fr. Burns told the students how he traveled from Paris to Spain and of the interesting experiences which he had enroute. Spain, it was explained, has her large cities such as Barcelona which may well be compared with New York or Philadelphia. The life in the little towns of the countryside, however, has changed little in the past 300 or 400 years. In the course of his discourse, Father Burns explained that although the middle class of the Spanish people are not as economically prosperous as our average citizen group, they are more content. They have gained what we are all looking for—happiness.

Another point worthy of note presented by Father Burns was that the Spanish people were especially interested at the time in keeping communists out of Spain. It was related how on the train between San Sebastian and Madrid, passports were examined on the average of once an hour.

been secured to bring the Rosemont students here. The universality of the appeal of the social has been proven beyond all doubt since the Mt. St. Joseph's College's student body is furnishing a goodly percentage of the feminine audience.

Every facility has been prepared by the energetic co-chairmen, John P. Kelly and J. Walter Stahmann, for a royal evening of entertainment for both the guests and the Villanova students. However, the entertaining feature of the program is only a means to an end. The true purpose is to better or rather strengthen the relationship between the Catholic college men and women. Consequently, to further this end, a Committee of Introduction has been named to take care of the formal acts of introduction. Rosemont College has reciprocated and formed a like committee; this one is working in harmony with and greatly aiding the Villanova committee of Seniors.

There is one potnt that Kelly wants indelibly imprinted on the minds of every Villanovan. Every single student, one and all, must consider himself in the light of a host and conduct himself as such. To quote Kelly: "If all Villanova students, and I hope there will be many of them, who attend our Social recognize their real positions as hosts to the visiting young ladies and then shoulder the responsibilities that this entails, tonight will witness the acme of perfect entertainment for all concerned. Then again, if the fellows do not meet the Committee of Introduction half way in their attempts to introduce each one to several girls, we are powerless. Co-operation is an essential. I sincerely rust that we will be rewarded with a remarkable display of it in appreciation for the work done."

Recently, notes of acceptance were received from several prominent professional men of Philadelphia. These well-known musical critics stated they were only too willing to be present when they were informed of the various features of the program.

Accompanying the students was Dr. Harold Hartman, professor in History, who was in charge of the trip. The sojourn was an instructive one as wel las interesting and many educational and historical places were visited by the group.

Those students making the trip declared it was most successful because they learned a great deal of the National Government.

IMMACULATA MEETS BETA GAMMA GROUP

Debate Subject to Open Forum; Southern Trip Planned

At last Wednesday afternoon's debate with Immaculata College, held in the Mendel Amphitheatre, an innovation in the conduct of these affairs was tried for the first time, and judging by the response from the audience present, the largest during the past two years, proved very successful.

The innovation consisted in throwing the entire assembly into an open forum after the regular debate was over. Anyone present could ask the debaters any question about the subject previously debated, "Resolved that the radio as now constituted is a social and cultural and inteilectual liability." Joseph McNamara, secretary of Villanova's Beta Gamma Debating Society, presided at the debate.

Immaculta was very ably represented by Miss Mary Consalor, and Miss Florence Sluigo. Thomas Delate and James Quigley spoke for Villanova.

No further debates will be held this month, until after the Easter holidays, when on April 25th a southern trip will be made by members of the debating team. Among the colleges to be met on this trip will be Mount Saint Mary's, Loyola, Maryland University, and Randolph-Macon. Shortly after this the debate season, which has been one of the most successful in many years, distinguished so far by an undefeated record in all decision debates, and by a tremendous increase in attendance, particularly when girl's colleges visit Villanova, will draw to a close.

WILDCAT TOSSERS TO MEET TWO FOES THIS COMING WEEK

Travel to Ursinus on Thursday; Play Host to St. John's Saturday

By SAUL WALLACK

Stiff competition is on the menu for "Doc" Jacobs' baseball Wildcats as they enter the second week of play on their long and arduous schedule.

Villanova fans will see their favorites in action on two occasions this week. The 'Cats will travel to Ursinus on Thursday and will open its home season Saturday against St. John's. The Bears will be met Thursday and the Red Men, Saturday.

'Cats Experienced

With the experience gained by playing Princeton and Penn, the locals find themselves set for the interesting week ahead.

Ursinus, in its second year under the coaching of the able and versatile Don Kellett, will present a veteran team, which has been strengthened by the addition of sophomores Andy Harris, shortstop, Dave Chern, outfielder, and Fred Swift, a left hander who hurled the Frosh to an undefeated season.

St. John's comes here with a veteran aggregation which hopes to emulate the work of the Princeton nine in the season's opener. The Red men are out to continue the record of their court brethren who bested the 'Cats in the final game of the basketbal. season. An interesting battle faces the Jacobsmen as the Brooklyn outfit boasts a hard hitting outfield trio and a fast fielding inner defense.

If Walt Shettic continues the pace set in the first two games, he will be in the Villanova lineup when the first ball is pitched on both Thursday and Saturday. The rest of the Blue roster will remain the same with no pitching choice

It's the next to last one for yours truly, so it will be a short column . . . Just saving up for next week.

—V—

Fedigan's Varsity athletes played a ball game against Austin's ditto and the Austinites came out on top in a ten-inning encounter.

—V—

Ray Stoviak and Bill Slaughter were the umps. Austin won, so Slaughter must have been the better officator.

—V—

Johnny Mellus "mowed 'em down" with his fire ball, John has a snappy curve, too. He's quite a bit like Bobby Feller, though, a bit wild in spots, but terrifically effective.

—V—

Artie Raimo did the hurling for the Fediganites, and was doing all right until late in the game, when the winners sawed away a six-run advantage he had.

—V—

Harry Mazzei, sensational shortstop for the losers says, in effect, "Wait'll next week. I'm starting to warm up the old souper already. I'll sure be hot."

Andy Chisick still claims that last one wasn't a strike. He didn't even go down swinging. Tsk tsk.

INTRAMURAL GOLF MEET ENDS IN TIE

Austin and Mendel Residents Finish Together; Callan Tops Scorers

Monday, April 25, found Austin and the Mendel Day Hops tying for the initial position in the Intramural Golf Tourney, contested at the Main Line Open Course.

The final standings saw Alumni Hall following the two leaders, with the Commerce and Finance Day Hops a close fourth. Mendel Residents came in fifth with Fedigan guarding the rear. Regular intramural scoring was used to determine the places.

Callan Leads Scores

In the individual scoring, Mendel Commuters took the honors through John Callan's 81, which topped Dave Morse, his teammate, by five strokes, "Chuck" Roche took third with an 88, upholding the honor of Austin.

Six entries turned in cards of 92, and thus tied for the next three places. They were Egan Murcko, Schermerhorn, Schwartz, Mones and Randolf. McManus and Kaiser turned in cards of less than 100.

The points attained by the individual scorers composed half the actual mark entered in the final ratings.

Cats Vanquish Penn, 10-7; Lose To Tigers In Opener

Ten-Run Flare in Sixth Spells Defeat for Locals; Wannemacher, Merullo Pace Blue in Victory Over Quakers

SCHELLE RECEIVES CREDIT FOR WIN

By TOM O'MAHONEY

Villanova's baseball forces had to be content with an even split in their Ivy League invasion over the past week-end, as they lost 11-3, at Princeton, and won 10-7, at Pennsylvania's Franklin Field.

The loss to the Tigers marked the opener of the 1938 season for "Doc" Jacobs' charges, but it was Princeton's second game. On the other hand, Penn, in bowing to the Blue, marred the inaugural of its 63d baseball campaign.

'Cats Wilt In Sixth

Friday's tiff saw the Wildcats purring along nicely behind Joe Desmond's inspired pitching for the first five innings, and enjoying a 3-1 lead. However, Desmond's stuff held no terror for the sons of Nassau in the fatal sixth frame, for the home team got up and whacked out ten runs in that canto.

Villanova started the scoring with a run in the third, but Princeton evened that with one in the fourth. Then, in the fifth, Captain Ray Stoviak busted a triple to deep left to score shortstop Lenny Merullo with the 'Cats second run. When Stoviak also came home in this inning it appeared that the Blue had a safe lead. But, unfortunately, they played the sixth inning.

Errors Aid Tigers

An error by Desmond started things going. However, six Tigers stung the ball for singles, one walked, and two more were given the key to first on errors by Stoviak and catcher Mike Garbark. In all, 13 Tigers faced Desmond, Bill

VARSITY LINKSMEN HOLD ELIMINATION

Eight to Qualify for Opening Match With St. Joseph's Tomorrow

With the first round of the varsity golf tryouts completed, eight players are matched for the quarter finals. John Callan, winner of the intramural tournament won his first round by defeating Beatty Schermehorn, five up and four to play. Callan will face George "Duke" Duzminski in the second round. The Duke emerged victor over Ed Tirrell, member of last year's varsity team in the first round.

Brad McManus, sophomore in the Commerce and Finance School, turned in the largest margin of victory of the first round by trouncing Dick Kaiser six and five. McManus will face Dave Morse, who won his place in the second round by beating Jordan Olivar two and one.

The golf season opens tomorrow with Saint Joseph's College. A six man team consisting of Captain Jimmie Dwyer, Lou Dubino, and the four semi-finalists in the play-off, will travel up to Whitemarsh Country Club to meet the Hawks on their home course.

Austin And Fedigan Win In Mural Hardball

UPPERCLASS HALLS BEAT FROSH DORMS BY LARGE MARGINS

Blue Shirts Win, 13-1; West Enders Defeat Skytoppers by 12-7 Score

PAWLOWSKI FANS ELEVEN

By PHIL DUNN

Sunday was a fine day for football; so the intramural baseball teams of the various halls on the campus made as many "boots" as possible and wound up with football scores to their credit. Austin won their game with Alumni by a 13-1 margin, and Fedigan came through with a 12-7 victory over the Penthousers of Mendel.

Castles Stars Again

The morning game saw Frank Castles duplicate his performance of last week to again emerge on top in an easy game. Frank allowed only five hits, four singles and a double, while he and his teammates were collecting 13 bingles for the fame and glory of dear old Austin. Alumni helped the Blue Shirts cause with Terrors.

Although Penteleo, who got three hits out of five times at bat, led the Austinites in percentage, the hitting honors for the day go to Macek, who, in the third inning, with two men on base, clouted a homer that almost reached Alumni Hall. Walter Burlington, with two for three, and Stan Bobrowski were other Austinits who were able to get more than one safety. Bill Belzner connected twice ofr the Greenies.

Father Dunne was the umpire-in-chief and kept the game under control, but a few times he had to assert all ohis authority to do so.

Pawlowski Holds Mendel

In the afternoon session of the intramural league Bennie Pawlowski held the team representing Mendel Hall to seven hits and as many runs. In the meantime Ted Goumy and Bede Howard were pacing the Fedigan attack of eleven blows and three and two hits, respectively. Three pitchers, "Mickey" Finn, Epifania, and Koenigsberg, bore the brunt of this attack. They were, however, afforded much better support than Pawlowski, whose fellow Gigolos made eight errors, while Mendel's boys made but three miscues.

Aside from Pawlowski, who—incidentally—struck-out eleven of his opponents, Ted Goumy seems to be the logical choice as the star of this encounter. Ted his three singles for four trips to the plate and did a very nice job out in left field. He caught five flies, and in the last inning after making a difficult catch he doubled Magirowski off third with a beautiful throw.

The aforementioned Joe Magirowski was the Penthousers' hitting star. He hit two singles to lead his team in quantity, and Jock Thoma hit a triple in the last inning to lead in quality.

Of the seven hits that Mendel garnered in this game four came in the first and three in the last innings, which means that Ben Pawlowski pitched five consecutive hitless innings. Frank Castles tied the West Ender for strike-out honors for the day, fanning 11 foes.

Grid Manager

TIM WAAD,
Commerce and Finance sophomore, who succeeds William Burke and Harry Guckenberger as manager of the football team.

SMITH NAMES WAAD FOOTBALL MANAGER

Commerce and Finance Sophomore Has Had High School Experience in Position

An announcement made by Coach "Clipper" Smith last week officially made Tim Waad, Sophomore Commerce and Finance student, varsity football manager for the gridiron season of 1938.

Such a position should not prove to be a burden for Tim, inasmuch as he acted in such a capacity for four years at Audubon High School, N. J.; and put in two years of faithful service at Villanova as an assistant manager.

Gaining recognition as a one-man track team in the intra-murals last year Tim is now a member of the varsity track squad and has made commendable showing in all of the intramural sport events.

With two weeks of scrimmage drills to their credit and the four teams rounding into condition Coach "Clipper" Smith and his assistant Vince McNally have made a few changes in the line-ups of the various teams. Bob Buckley, originally a back and later converted to an end position will now be tried at a tackle slot and all indications point to the fact that Bob may prove to be a key man in the tackle situation which still is a problem to the Blue mentor.

Ronnie "Abanjabba" Tornwall, who served as a substitute guard last season, has been working out at the center position in grand style and will carry on in that capacity. Bill Piscione was converted from an end to a guard position and seems to be an ideal choice for that berth because of his toughness and aggressiveness on the defense.

Since the injury of "Gogo" Gogolinski, Tom McMahon has been showing up in grand style in the fullback position running the ball hard and blocking very effectively and undoubtedly is making a determined bid for the varsity berth. Bill Romanowski seems to have

By JOHN L. SIMONS

ONCE AGAIN the attention of our readers is drawn to the intitype of a lefthanded pitcher. The gentleman in question this week is Mr. Frank "Quack" Escott, the Somerville Flash. Somerville, for the information of the uninitiated, is about four miles from Boston, and according to "Quack" Boston is listed as one of its suburbs.

Bingham Grammar School was the first institution of learning to claim Frank as a student. After six years there he entered Northeastern Junior High School, at which place he formally embarked on his athletic career. His record in Junior High was rather good, putting it very mildly. It included football and baseball.

On to Somerville High

Somerville High School was Frank's next stop on the scholastic ladder. And there he was really a figure of importance. For three years he starred as a halfback on the football team, and of course he went to town in baseball. On the nine he alternated between pitching and the outfield, excelling in both. His prominence is shown by his doings in his senior year, when he was captain of both football and baseball clubs.

Upon graduation he went to Prep school for a year, choosing as his alma mater St. John's Prep in Danvers, Massachusetts. It was his ability as a baseballer that attracted St. John's to him, and he was awarded a scholarship. He went so well as an outfielder-pitcher that he was named to the St. John's all-time team.

In his schoolboy days Frank was accorded quite a few honors. Being named to the all-St. John's team as St. John's is rated perrennially one of the strongest prep school nines in New England. And while he was at Somerville he was three times picked on the Massachusetts All-Scholastic baseball team.

Jacobs Sees Him

In the Spring and Summer of 1934 Doc Jacobs was going through New England, scouting for some likely prospects for his baseball son he was a pitcher, and the ace of the staff. His record for the campaign shows six victories against a lone defeat. Included in the list of his victims were some of the Wildcats' most formidable foes. Temple, Fordham, Cornell, and Penn fell before his slants. He also twirled the famous Holy Cross affair last Spring, which was so very fortunate for Holy Cross' undefeated record terminated with two outs and two strikes on the Crusader batter in the Cross half of the fifth inning.

The Penn game was Frank's masterpiece. He set down the hard-hitting Red and Blue crew with scattered bingles and never was in trouble as he blanked them, 8-0. And to add to his performance he did the job in Penn's own Franklin Field, reputed to be a bad field for pitchers.

For the present season "Quack" is scheduled to twirl. As yet he has seen no action, having been slowed down considerably by a sore arm. However, the old gamewinner is coming along better now, and he is looked upon to furnish a few victories during the coming campaign.

His future is very uncertain. He intends to go in for pro ball if his arm gets back into tip top shape. So he is another to whom the 1938 baseball season is of great importance. In addition to baseball he also leans to teaching as a means of livelihood and may decide to get into that profession.

regained his confidence and looks better than ever in practice drills.

However, two other sophomores are keeping Bill stepping for the left halfback position; they are Mike Sabrinsky and Paul Verbitsky, both boys saw action last year and are running the ball as hard as any the backs so far in the scrimmage drills. Pete Naimo and Ben Morkun are showing renewed efforts in their blocking assignments and appear fit to step into the quarterback slot.

Frank Bukofski, understudy to Johnny Wysocki at left end, is alternating at both wing positions and his play, right now, is of such caliber that may merit him a starting opportunity in the Fall contests. Another wingman making it tough for last year's regulars is Sam Monaco who has been showing enough spirit and aggressiveness to warrant him a lot of action this Fall.

Coach Smith is well satisfied with the manner in which the boys are responding to the Spring drills and is sure that a great deal of good is being obtained to indicate a well-organized ball club this coming football season.

BLUE TOSSERS DEFEAT QUAKERS

Take 10 - 7 Contest After Losing to Princeton by 11 - 3 Count

McLaughlin, and Andy Sisco, in the sixth inning. Sisco finally managed to put out the fire, yielding only one hit in two and two-thirds innings.

Pete Murphy, Nassau right-hander, fanned five Cats and allowed five hits which the Blue turned into three runs. Dawson Farber, left-hander called in during the sixth, gave up one hit and struck out four in the last four stanzas, and was credited with the win. Joe Desmond was the losing twirler.

Harper, Princeton second-sacker, led the batters with three singles in four trips, while Lenny Meruilo, with two safeties in three attempts, paced the Villanova sluggers.

Blue Takes Early Lead

In Saturday's affair at Franklin Field, the Blue took a 2-1 edge in the third frame and remained ahead until the eighth, when Penn staged a three-run rally to even the count at 6-6. However, five 'Cat hits in the ninth, featured by Lou Wannemacher's second homer of the day which came with two on, clinched the victory for the Jacobsmen, although the Red and Blue picked up one marker in the same inning.

Little Cliff Choquette, sophomore left-hander, started against Penn's veteran portsider, George Ruznak, and limited the Red and Blue to three runs until the Quakers chased him with a three-run rebellion in the eighth. Cliff was touched for 12 hits, but scattered them well. Jim Schelle succeeded Choquette on the hill, and quieted the Pennsylvanians' uprising although he yielded the loser's one run in the ninth.

Wannemacher Hits Homer

Ruznak was found for five runs and four runs in his five inning tenure, being nicked for homers by Wannemacher and Stoviak. He whiffed four and walked two 'Cats. Payson Brickley pitched the last four stanzas and was charged with the loss. The Blue jumped on his offerings for two runs in the eighth, hammering him for five long blows, including two doubles and Wannemacher's second home in the wild ninth. Brickley also walked two.

Jim Schelle was credited with the victory, the first of the current season for the Blue. Stoviak followed on Wannemacher's heels at the plate with a double and a homer, while by no means the least heroic was the work of the Blue infield, which came through with a snappy double play in the ninth to retire Penn's final threat after the Quakers had loaded the sacks with none out, and only three markers behind.

Facts and Phantasy

Glenn Cunningham, world's greatest miler, has had a number of stories circulated about him . . . One of the most interesting is the estimate of the distance Glenn travels to warm up . . . He covers close to three miles in "jogs" around the track and sprints around the turns . . . In practice runs, he never does the mile in under 4:30 . . . Built up his tremendous legs by wearing heavy shoes during the early days of his career while at the University of Kansas . . . We mean he wore heavy shoes while on the track, practicing . . . There was no P. W. A. then, chum . . . Speaking of milers, our own Major McCabe is starting to cross the mile under, very much under, the 4:30 mark . . . He's aiming for the Penn Relays . . .

Back to Cunningham . . . Glenn broke the world's mile mark at Princeton's invitation meet two years ago . . . That's sensational in itself, but . . . He had two sprained ankles in that race!! . . . He was running against Bonthron Venzke and Lovelock . . . Local Note: Can you read the above, Dobbins? It says "Two sprained ankles." . . . Add embarrassing moments: A certain gent, a high school lad, walked nochalantly up to the starting line, in a Penn Relay race, to run in the mile relay. The starter raised his gun to send them away and suddenly shouted to our hero: "Hey you, where are your pants? Our hero had to borrow the anchor man's nether garments to run and on finishing he switched pants with him . . . Oh, well . . . There were only 25,000 people watching . . . Our hero was Barney Bellew's brother . . . Here's hoping history doesn't repeat itself when Barney runs at the next Penn Relays . . .

Another excerpt from that column: Joe McHugh was seen ambling from the Greek's emporium; Jim Dwyer was caught entering the same establishment; Jerry Holland was caught in the Greek's . . .

The track team is of the same opinion as Coach "Clipper" Smith . . . Barrels bring good luck . . . On the way out onto the field from the dressing room the squad passed a row of barrels . . . At the Catholic University Invitation Meet . . . A few hours later Tony Petril had won the 50-yard Abbey Trophy Invitation Race . . . Johnny Maher won the 50-yard handicap . . . He ran from scratch . . . They attribute it to the barrels . . . Maher kicks a barrel every time he passes one while on the way to or from a meet . . . Havit . . .

A third excerpt from that column: Jerry Holland was seen leaving the Bryn Mawr Confectionery. A day later Joe McHugh was noticed going into that I scream parlor. Dwyer was ogled in the Greek's by a f.y.p.

After-thoughts . . . Don Lash is another follower of the hob-nailed shoe policy . . . He always wears big brogans . . . Bill Bonthron, Princeton's great miler, now retired, built up his stamina and drive by running up and down the steps of Princeton's great Palmer Stadium . . . 'Tis said that the over-exertion led to an overdeveloped heart . . . He did have a great heart . . . Did you ever see him finish a race?

* * *

From the looks of things, all athletes can make the Junior Prom . . . The name of the band is on the front page of this issue . . . We hope . . . And from what we have just written you can see that we are running out of Track facts and so right out of this issue.

Student Scientific Journal Receives Commendation From Many Colleges

Letters Praise Mendel Bulletin for Interesting Research Material; Dr. M. Pflucke, German Scientist, Compliments Recent Review Article

By RENE CAILLIET

The Mendel Bulletin appearing on the campus for the last few years has held wide interest in science circles in and about the immediate college area, but little or no mention has been made of the recognition that this journal has received in other institutions.

Journal Receives Praise

When first printed, this edition was intended only for the immediate student body of the college, but in the last two or three years has started to circulate on other campuses. It has been received everywhere with high praise and its (thorough work by the students writings) has raised the prestige of Villanova Science men in the eyes of other institutions.

The Mendel Bulletin since its implantation in the college literature has garnered increasing momentum and now consists of writters that represent the best on the campus in their particular fields. Other colleges are cognizant of this fact and have shown their appreciation by either exchanging their publications or subscribing to this one.

Daily, the science office receives letters that praise the works printed in this publication. A few of these can be given here. The University of Illinois has recently written that they have added these magazines to their libraries, as has the St. Louis Dental School, Holy Cross College Department of Biology, and Saint Mary-of-the-Woods College in Indiana.

Complimented By German

A letter was also received this year from Doctor M. Pflucke of the Chemisches Zentralblatt printed in Germany, that thanked and complimented the Mendel Bulletin for their excellent review of one of his articles in past issues. He terminated his letter by asking to have the "Mendel Bulletin" mailed to him regularly. Also, in a recent issue of "Cabmuth," a publication by the Mendel Club of Fordham University in New York City, there appeared a favorable review of the Villanova publication. In their review they particularly stressed the excellence of photographs of Acavis cleavage which the Villanova students made themselves for their publication. Many such criticisms have returned to Villanova.

A short while ago these issues appeared only at the end of each school year but due to the writers' ambition it is now appearing quarterly. This in itself indicates the adde interest shown by all concerned. True, all the articles have been highly technical and not readily understood by students of other than science majors; but, this technical nature is the quality that has carried the work not only to other science students but also to the eyes of qualified instructors and research men.

Much good can be garnered from this, not only for the writers but also for the general science student body, in that it is raising the prestige of the school as a whole. More immediate encouragement than has been the case deserves to be shown one of the most deserving publications distributed on the campus.

THREE ARTSMEN LEAD CONTEST

Corkill, Delate and McNamara Win Right to Oratorical Finals

William J. Corkill, senior, Thomas E. Delate, junior, and M. Joseph McNamara, sophomore, have won places to speak in the Villanova Oratorical Contest tonight at the Senior Social.

The three Arts men were selected by the half-dozen judges made up of clergy and laity as the best orators in the preliminary eliminations conducted before a large audience last Wednesday evening in the Mendel amphitheatre. The victors were announced by the chairman, Mr. Edward J. McDevitt, a Villanova graduate of the class of '37, not in the order of rating achieved, but in alphabetical order, as the scores were so close.

The speakers on the program, which lasted from 7:30 to 9:45 P.M., were Leon Gaussuin and John J. Harrington, Sophomore Arts; Murray Zealor and George J. Flannery, Freshman C&F; James F. Donovan, Freshman Arts; Robert J. Barrett, Junior Arts; and Joseph Alessandroni, Senior Arts.

subjects relative to the fields of Embryology, Physiology, and Bacteriology. Students of the School of Science are invited to attend the next meeting of the seminar on April 7.

Discourses rendered at this meeting will follow the trend of preceeding lectures. The topics will be delivered in an informal manner, followed by discussion and questions relative to the subject.

The change in the time of meeting has been adopted to enable student members of the Lambda Kappa Delta fraternity to attend meetings of both organizations on the same evening. The Pre-Medical fraternity convenes regularly at 7:45 P. M.

COLLEGE STUDENTS LOSE BY CRAMMING

Students of Villanova College paid for their cramming in the last examination with a loss of 1385 pounds in weight, it is estimated by the Bureau of Educational Surveys, New York City.

The Bureau arrived at the the figure by multiplying an average of two pounds weight loss reported by a representative group of 90 percent of Villanova College students engage in intensive study before and during examination periods.

MAXINE GREY IS VOCALIST

By FRED WATERS

"Hal Kemp for the Junior Prom!" That was the announcement made by Chairman Thomas J. Furey of the Junior Promenade Committee to the VILLANOVAN late yesterday.

"The selection was delayed," said Furey, "—due to the determination of the committee to obtain only a topnotch orchestra of national prominence."

Prom on Saturday

With Hal Kemp and his "America's favorite dance music" at the Villanova gymasium on Saturday, May 7th, the Juniors will have succeeded in obtaining what is generally recognized as one of the country's three leading dance bands. Only recently, in an orchestra popularity poll conducted among Villanova students, Hal Kemp was ranked first by a large margin.

Kemp has a style all his own, which while copied thru-out the country by countless other organizations, still manages to retain its easily distinguished features. His staccato style of syncopation has captured the fancy of listeners everywhere and has established his music as one of the finest on dance tempos.

Invitation Social Proclaimed Outstanding Success; College Glee Club, Symphonic Band Help Entertain

Girls' Catholic Schools Present at Senior-Sponsored Event

By RENE' CAILLIET

Villanova College came into the realm of typical movieland college life last Tuesday when the Senior Invitation Social found a capacity coed audience at a combined symphonic band and glee club concert.

For years the college band has appeared at football games and, after the last game, has disappeared from the limelight until the following fall season. All the diligent work of the band members under the capable direction of Paul Teel went for naught after Thanksgiving. Also, a campus glee club was listed in the catalogue but its light was hidden under a bushel. Last but not least, Villanova's relations with surrounding sister colleges were restricted to the class proms and thus association was at a minimum.

Event Adds Incentive

Tuesday evening, the class of '38 gave birth to a brain child and this idea matured into an entirely new and unprecedented activity; activity that breached the gap existing between the schools concerned, gave a new incentive to a potentially good band, and afforded opportunity to the glee club to warble before an appreciative audience.

A complete program had been arranged. The band played varied selections from light symphony to snappy marches. Paul Teel, in his guidance on the progress of the band activities, brought to the campus an exceptional musical gift and years of experience. This guidance was evident in all numbers rendered. The band at this occasion gave a remarkable performance.

The glee club made its formal bow to the majority of the gathering and pleasantly surprised all present by its brilliant renditions. Also under the guidance of Teel, this campus organization can well come to the fore of college music, against any competition.

Outstanding in the evening's presentation was the undeniable presence of innumerable local talent. Students heretofore having their ability limited to the classroom gave ample proof that Villanova

LUCENTE AWARDED CUP AT NEW YORK CONTEST

Awards were equally distributed between Fordham, Manhattan, and Villanova College last Sunday when representatives of these three colleges engaged in a competitive concert at St. Nicholas of Tolentine parish, Bronx, New York.

The program presented by the collegiate groups consisted of vocal solos, an oratorical contest, and a quartet competition.

Edward Lucente, Villanova baritone and junior student in the School of Science, was awarded an honor cup for his vocalization.

Speakers from Manhattan College were judged winners in the Oratorical contest. M. Joseph McNamara, sophomore and winner of Villanova's recent Oratorical Contest, was the representative of this college entered in that engagement. The vocal group from Fordham University was the victor in the quartet contest.

ALUMNI TOPIC OF HOLY NAME SPEECH

Matthew Lynch Discusses Organization of Local Groups; Stresses Example

Matthew Lynch, '23, prominent in Alumni circles, addressed the Villanova Holy Name Society last Sunday morning on the progress of local and national alumni activities.

Described Organization

In his address the speaker mentioned the organization and function of the various local alumni groups which are spread over the entire Eastern section of the country. Chief among these clubs, he explained, was the largest and most powerful of these groups which is located in Philadelphia, and pointed for example to the ardent support given Villanova by this group during the past year.

In conclusion Mr. Lynch spoke briefly on Catholic principles and their effect on the world of today. He stressed the point that as Catholic students it would be our duty to help formulate world opinion in the right direction and give an example for those who naturally look up to us.

This was the last communion breakfast of the society as there will be many other activities interfering with the regular breakfast in May.

EXPLAIN, MR. HULL

At a time when students of history warn of the similarity between conditions today and in 1914, the Secretary of State makes the parallel more deadly with the announcement that our navy will not restrict itself to defence of our own shores. We intend, he says, to protect our interests in any place in the world.

In going to war there must be a degree of evil in the injury proportionate to the evils involved in war. Taking this as a fundamental principle let us consider a few facts and figures.

United States investors have 12 billion dollars scattered in foreign countries. These investments would not be attacked all at once. Even if they were, it would be cheaper not to get involved in wars affecting our commercial interests. Not including war loans, our government spent 23 billion dollars on the World War. That is twice the value of our present holdings in foreign countries. A war today would cost much more than the World War did. Add to the monetary expense of war the thousands of lives lost and it will be seen that the evils of war are greater than the evils of losing certain investments. Therefore we do not need a navy to protect our interests in any part of the world. Whether we have war or peace, a price must be paid. In the long run peace is the better bargain.

Neither do we need the navy to protect a life line into natural resources. The United States is the most self-sufficient nation on earth. It is thus not vitally important that we wage war to protect raw materials on the other side of the globe.

Why then the war-like intentions of our nation practicing their maneuvers facing Japan? Why are not the Philippine Islands given their independence as planned? Are they intended to be used as a base of military operations in the Pacific? Are we protecting England's interests? An explanation is in order, Mr. Hull.

CONGRATULATIONS, STUDENTS

Again students it is our pleasure to be able to congratulate you. Your attendance at the Invitation Social evening was all that could have been expected. We take this opportunity, then, to thank all of you in the name of the senior class for the hearty co-operation you gave their sponsored affair. We also want to congratulate you on the excellent manner in which you played host to the charming maidens from the local Catholic colleges.

We wish to congratulate Father Boyle and Mr. Teel, the Glee Club and Symphony band for their untiring efforts to make the evening a success. The showing made by the new Villanova musical organizations far exceeded even the fondest hopes of every friend of Villanova.

Gathering opinions from those in attendance, it can safely be said that the purpose of the affair, to form more perfect social feeling between Catholic boys and Catholic girls, was definitely achieved. The Villanova boys showed themselves good hosts and good mixers all around, and it has already been suggested that more affairs of this kind be sponsored by the colleges.

Of course, there were those very few intellectual morons who came with the idea that they were not going to have a good time. Because the affair was one with a definitely cultural background they frowned on it and claimed that it was "dead and very boring." These mental deficients, however, are very much in the minority and the wholehearted manner with which you students accepted and supported the excellent performance given by two noteworthy Villanova organizations proved the sterling quality of the average Villanova student.

Congratulations, then, to all of you. Let's hope that the success of this affair will be an incentive to the authorities of all the local Catholic colleges to sponsor more affairs of this kind.

THE 7:30 MASS

Without a doubt the attendance at Mass in the college chapel during Lenten season has been the best in recent years. Students who before were lazy seemed to acquire a new vigor with the coming of Ash Wednesday. Daily the communion rail was filled at all three Masses where before the Holy Season, only the very early risers made the 7 o'clock Mass and the few students who did not have first period presented themselves at the 8.

In order to accommodate the anticipated crowds and to further convenience the students, the religious authorities of the college thought it best to have a 7:30 Mass during the Holy Season of Lent.

Students who would like to become daily communicants but who lacked just a bit of the necessary ambition found the 7 o'clock Mass a bit too early, while if they attend the 8 they often had to rush to classes without breakfast. To them and to every other student the scheduling of the 7:30 Mass was a God-send. Attendance at this Mass will show the college authorities that their efforts were not in vain. The 7:30 Mass is a perfect incentive for daily reception of the Sacraments.

With these thoughts in mind, then, we earnestly appeal to the college religious authorities to keep the 7:30 Mass on the college schedule even though the Holy Season ends this week. We are sure that through this means more students will become daily communicants.

College Chatter

By Joe Alessandroni

As it MUST to all things human, death comes today to this column, in the form of a departing writer. It is only proper then, that a senior with tears in his eyes and mawkish sentimentality in his heart, should foster the faith of those who are to follow in his footsteps. To those long-suffering souls who have read this column through days of sour poetry, would-be jokes, and jumbled news gathered from all corners of the collegiate world—may the seeds of success follow in your wake, growing plants of friendship that will blossom into roses of riches and happiness.

Slowly the life blood of a dying columnist flees from this writers stiffening fingers, causing him to hasten his gratitude to those who in charity have given praise; respect, for those who have imbued him with factual knowledge, and homage to those who have sacrificed their interests that such worthless characters as he, might gain attitudes, appreciations and perhaps a little of that undefinable thing called—culture.

College has taught us how little we really know, which for some, is an education in itself. It has taught us, that the association with our fellow staff members together with the friendships we have gained in college are worth more than all the textbooks we have read. It has taught us that the cardinal virtues of justice, temperance, prudence and fortitude are of more importance to a thinking mind, than all the classroom knowledge we may have assimilated . . . . These things together with a new writer, Mr. Reale, I bequeath to you that their connotation may help you gain an intrinsic worth from your college education.

To Villanova now we say farewell, to individual friends; may we meet again, if only in memories:

When youth fade; ambition dies; riches mean naught
When in memory's magic web we're caught,
Those twin towers will haunt our thought.
Recalling, friendships that were wrought,
Gridiron classics and classroom battles fought,
Green grass; the religious perfection we sought;
A Catholic College, where the Augustinians taught.

ODDS and ENDS

By Tom O'Mahoney

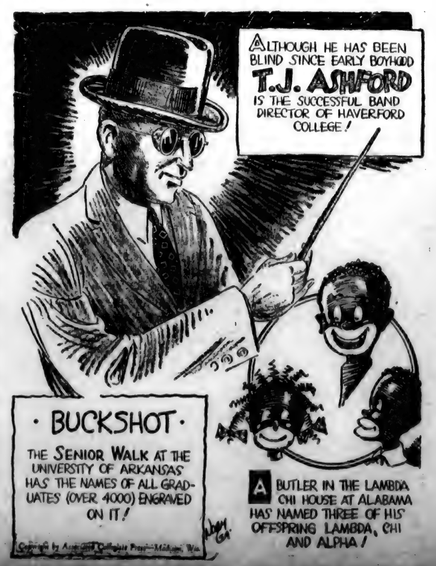
Farewell. To Yarns. In this, gentle reader, you see the last O & E to appear under the matchless direction of the above-signed. As befits such a ceremonious burial, we have received a touching little fan letter upon our coming retirement. (Ed. note— retirement nothing!) It reads, "hen held up to the light in a certain manner, as follows. Dear O & E: We, practically your only reading public, wish to assure you of our gratitude. Words cannot express our delight at your journalistic demise. And don't, please, come back. Signed; "Buzz" Hart, Jim Dwyer, Willy Sinnott.

For you, friends, one scallion apiece.

ON THE CAMPUS

VillaNOVATIONS are in order for the Junior Prom Committee on their selection of Hal Kemp for the third-year classmen's annual Spring social. . . . And condolences are in order for Buck Kane, whose comeback campaign at Rosemont has been thwarted temporarily by Art Santelli. Too bad. . . . Correction: We have been informed that O & E erred in spelling Bea "Wayne." Larry Clinton's vocalist spells it "Wain." Thank you "Accurate." . . . Plans are underway now for a coast-to-coast airing of Belle Masque's production of "Winterset." The tip says that KYW will feed the show to the Red network of NBC. . . . We don't agree with those who fear Editor Joe Toland of your number one campus publication is cracking under the strain. However, we must admit that his embryo moustache makes us wonder. While we're at it, congrats to Joe for a good job during the past two semesters. . . . The Temple News, undergrad sheet of our dearest rivals, has seen fit to copy the story on "What Should Be Done To Combat Un-American Groups" which recently appeared in the VILLANOVAN. Commenting editorially, the News agreed that the answers to the problem as given by local studes were the most practical yet suggested. . . . The old argument between Benny Goodman and Tommy Dorsey fans is muddled a bit now. Goodman has lost Gene Krupa, and gained Davie Tough, Dorsey's old skin beater. In our humble opinion, tough, despite his lighter touch, adds greatly to the real rhythm of the "Greatest Swing Band," and certainly varies the background more than Krupa ever did. B. G.'s new tenor is none other than Bud Freeman another old Dorsey man.

CAMPUS CAMERA



The Observer

"Well, old man," said the fellow who is to take my place next week, "it's time you wrote your last column."

"That's right, Pal, "I murmered as I struggled with my copy of LOOK, "I'd better get busy and dash off a word to the Greeks."

Some years ago, three to be exact, when I started working for THE VILLANOVAN, the editors informed me that they expected their work in on time. They also made mention of certain staff meetings always being "important." Well, after three years, I have never gone to a staff meeting, and I'm not the worse for it, either. As for meeting the Thursday afternoon deadline set by the editors, I can see now a picture of John Di Joseph, Editor-in-Chief two years ago, coming over to my room late Sunday evening. John was always a great one for promptness. But I broke John's bad habits. As I was saying, John would come over late Sunday night, cry for an editorial or something, and then I'd get out of bed and do some work.

After John left, we had Ben Maloney, another Editor-in-Chief and also a swell fellow. Ben swore that I'd not make a slave out of him as I had done with John, but the time soon came when Ben came to my room for his edits and fill-ins.

Now I don't like to boast, but after Ben left us, Joe Toland came over to my room Sundays. Joe, however, went us one better. Joe now comes to the room on Sunday nights only by proxy. You see, Joe is usually very busy (Hmmm) over the weekends, and he usually gets some stooge to come visit me and hound me for material. I have been insulted because of that, and am just as glad to relinquish my post on THE VILLANOVAN to younger, redder, and quicker blood.

The other day, Joe had a staff meeting . . . another one of those things. I wasn't there, but I suppose that the usual thing went on: Joe trying to talk while Flinkman bats Passanante over the head with the FOO shovel. Anyhow, Joe said that none of the retiring columnists were to pull any sob stuff. Knowing Joe to be one of the most sentimental chaps on the campus, I take that as an invitation to review the past.

As a column, THE OBSERVER is just a little more than one year old. Since I took over the job of writing THE OBSERVER, it has caused me no end of grief.

Last Spring, for instance, when I was too busy with other things, I'd have Moe Dinon (remember Moe?) write the column for me. Well, without my looking, Moe would put in all sorts of crazy stuff, and that would usually get me in hot water.

This year, again, I had a stooge working with me and he'd write stuff that some folks didn't like.

But I shouldn't blame everything on my stooges. Last week, in THE OBSERVER, I nominated Joe O'Loughlin as the most "brassy" lad in the college.

We who know Joe know him as a demure little ball of fire. How surprised was I when Joe entered my office the day the last VILLANOVAN came out. Did I say entered? Well, the truth is that he knocked the lock off the door and just crashed in (Joe always is crashing something, come to think of it!)

Oh, yes, as I was saying, Joe crashed into the office and said: "Faff! . . . 4948c, sico . . . who wrote that rubbish? I demand an apology . . . Apologize."

By that time I was on the door.

"Why Joe, "I gasped as he stuffed a file box down my throat, "what in Heaven's name is the matter."

"Observer," grunted to burly bear from the Bronx I'm not brassy. What do you mean by saying something like that?"

"No, you aren't a bit brassy, Joe," I agreed. The broken door and the file cabinet in my mouth just proved that Joe is a nice boy.

"Well, you take it back, or . . . "Joe said as he allowed me to collapse into a chair."

And I do apologize to Joe for having termed him the "most brassy lad" on the campus.

I didn't have to say it.

People aren't dumb!

Another unpleasant result of my having been a writer for the VILLANOVAN is the fact that too many people think I write all of the editorials. Now that is an absolute falsehood. If it were true, I'd shoot myself.

Imagine my predicament. Walking across the grass, some one shouts: "Oh, you hypocrite! Get off the grass."

Being sort of shy and of course law-abiding, I am non-plussed. An idea comes to me. Get a copy of the VILLANOVAN! That I do, and on the editorial page I find a drooley editorial about letting the grass grow.

Well, let the grass grow. Who cares? It doesn't cost me anything. But why worry about it. Whether one blade of grass grows or not isn't going to send me to Hell forever. It seems to me that instead of writing these drippy editorials, they ought to put a little wire fence around the campus, say a ten foot fence. We'd have something then. You know, that is only common sense. There you have a beautiful, green, soft campus, and not a single thing to stop one from walking on it. It sorts of tempts human nature beyond the ordinary limit of endurance. As Fr. Sparrow says, "You must consider the whole man."

And I do hate to be called a hypocrite. Don't you?

I ought to say a word or two about the chap who takes my place. I don't know what to call him. After all, I am the Observer. I suggested to him that we call him "Son of Observer," but he said every time I started to call him that he crossed his fingers for fear of what was to follow.

I don't see why, but maybe we should call him Observer II. Think of it, we could start a whole dynasty of Observers.

Perhaps, in fifty years time, I could come back to Villanova and find some drip, Observer XXIII, boldly carrying on the tradition of Ye Olde Observer.

Anyhow, gentlemen, I want to say goodbye and God bless you all. It's been nice knowing you, and I hope we all meet again some time.

LENTEN SPEAKER

REV. JOHN DUNNE

PASSION TOPIC OF TONIGHT'S SERMON

Rev. John R. Dunne, O. S. A., Delivers Final Lenten Dissertation

Tonight brings to close the final Lenten conference sermon, the seventh of the series during the holy season of Lent. This evening's sermon will be given by Rev. John R. Dunne, O.S.A., moderator of Alumni Hall. Father Dunne has chosen for his topic the Passion of Our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ. The purpose of the sermon is to show in detail that the hearers must realize that Christ in His suffering "even unto the death of the Cross" was paying this penalty to appease the Divine Justice of God, His Father, for the sins of all men.

The Most Sacred Passion and Death of Our Lord and Saviour is a familiar story told us each year at this time, but we are cautioned to remember that a time will come when we will be no longer here to listen to this story "ever ancient, yet ever new."

Varieties

As it MUST come to all columnists, the end has arrived for your's truly who so faithfully served his fellow men sans blasts of the critics. He's thankful for having come through the skirmish unscathed, with no loss of rep. Since this is the end of the fiscal journalistic year he will endeavor to present to his faithful constituents, small they be, his accomplishments and failures for the season.

FAILURE: Failures were few and far betwixt for this column with a few possible exceptions. They were so small and negligible—why discuss them, so we will discuss our . . .

ACCOMPLISHMENT: From the very beginning this space dedicated itself to student betterment and as such we advocated the hiring of Hal Kemp for the Junior Prom. To prove our point we took the time and trouble to conduct a poll which proved conclusively that Hal Kemp was the choice. He was voted number one man in the orchestra census. Now it is with pleasure that the Junior Class presents Hal Kemp and his Orchestra for the Prom. Not that we want to take all the credit, no, but we feel that we were very, very influential in a small way. That was accomplishment number 1. . . .

Now we may rack up another victory in the field of radio. Some time ago, to be exact, about October, we predicted that radio would possess itself of a radio czar. People laughed at us, told us to turn our typewriter in, but now look . . .

Anything that has the odor of mystery smells good to any American. He has a phobia for it, but when that odor, good, bad or indifferent begans to make the stomatium liquidate, then its becomes a plot of a different shape. Anxiety, mental telepathy, curiosity, etc., interrupt the normal pace of living until the situation is digested. In short, who was the writer, below columnistic standards of course, that wrote the Observer? Who would have the audacity to publicize the fact that his piece is the best written? Dick Deverall is a good fellow, communistic in tendencies, but then, what's a communist among reds? So there you are, Deverall, you stand revealed. . . .

Probing further into our successes we find that this space donated free of charge the best humor of the day, the most informative news presented in a clear, curt, concise manner, without partiality or censoring—on our part. Any space that was empty was filled with news. Enough of our prominence in collegiate life. No sentimentality Flinky, the boy's want news—here it is. . . .

Because he consideres himself the best master of ceremonies on the air, Ransom (Blackmail) Sherman, emcee of NBC's Club Matinee program, will receive his own reward on the first anniversary of the program, April 12, when he presents Mr. Sherman with a medal of merit. In Said "Blackmail" in an interview to me personally, "Talent is its own reward, and when no one else will recognize it, let it reward itself!" "That's what I said to myself the other day when I realized that I'd been emceeing the Club Matinee programs for almost a year without ever receiving a single meritorious medal of merit or a praiseworthy plaque of praise. Consequently I decided to reward myself when the Club Matinee meets on April 12. At that time my public will have the opportunity of hearing Ransom Sherman present Ransom Sherman with the Sherman Foundation Medal of Recognition for Things Inconsequential. The Sherman Foundation is a benevolent, protective organization inaugurated 18 years ago and still maintained for the benefit of Ransom Sherman, his wife, Helen Sherman, and their children, George and Ann Sherman. It is financed by all Club Matinee checks earned by Ransom Sherman, which are promptly turned over to the Sherman Foundation, which in turn, turns them back to Ransom Sherman for the purchase and upkeep of the Sherman Foundation. . . .

Acting on the air is not at all terrifying to Boris Karloff, the horror actor heard in the Lights Out Dramas. "I always picture in my mind a single person in front of the radio," he says, "I play to that one person and am not in the least terrified. In radio one enters the home and takes his place at the fireside of the listener. One becomes a guest, not merely an entertainer. This is an intimacy that can never be equalled.'

There was a day when Jack Benny needed his violin and needed it badly. In reminiscing about his stage career recently, Jack said: "I'll never forget the first time I tried to go out on the stage without my violin. You know, I used to lean on the bow when I talked. I decided to borrow one from the orchestra instead and come out with nothing but my derby hat. But I was too scared to do it. Next time I left my violin at home and had to go on without it. I didn't know what to do with my hands. I didn't feel comfortable for two whole shows until I got used to it. Funny what a difference a violin can make."

John Carter and Robert Simmons, think their dogs are pretty smart. After a recent Chase and Sanborn Hour broadcast, John made a transcontinental phone call to his New City, N. Y., home, and when his police dog, Sir Boss, heard his master's voice he tore around the house and waited at the front door. Simmon's Scotch terrier, Flash, invariably sniffs at the radio when the tenor sings on the Cities Service program.—Odor?

Props used for NBCs Tuesday night Vox Pop program conducted by Parks Johnson and Wally Butterworth include, in addition to the microphones and amplifiers, a foot-high lamp and a bright light. Parks and Wally bring the people they interview up on the platform so that the crowd which usually surrounds the broadcast can see as well as hear what is going on. The light is not used to illuminate the central figures, but to help butterworth read the commercial continuity.

"Every girl has an individuality to consider. Some are genial, some are serious, some are moody. All their traits and qualities are filed carefully away in my mind. I know how they act when they feel fit and when they are run down. It's easy if it looks hard to discover which girl missed a full night's sleep."—Phil Spitalny, conductor of NBC's all-girl orchestra heard on the Hour of Charm broadcasts.

Introducing—

EMIL A. MATHIAS

By JAMES F. DONOVAN '41

It was quite a big day in Andalusa, Pa. The boys from the barber shop dropped around to the house and just stared. It is vaguely rumored that the volunteer fire department allowed a whole house burn to the ground because they couldn't tear themselves away from the husky, happy youngster, who had left the metropolitan atmosphere of Philadelphia for the village life and the general store of Andalusa. So today we are following the hunch of these old villagers and are presenting to you their pride and joy and Fedigan's delight—Emil Mathias.

However it must be admitted by Emil that Andalusa was not his first love. He was born in Philadelphia on August 1, 1915, but his residence in the Quaker City was short lived. None of that big city stuff for Emil. He liked the wide open spaces.

Another North Catholic Lad

The future Villanovan made quite a big stir in his home town. He was the pride of the general store and the "gang" used to whisper excitedly whenever the towering Emil skipped by on his way to school. A bright future was predicted for the youngster and who are we to say that he didn't come up to expectations?

In due course Emil tossed aside his kiddie car and hopped a freight for his native city where he enrolled in Northeast Catholic High School.

However books were but a minor interest for Emil. He had a great ambition that burned more deeply every day. As he daily wrecked the chemistry laboratory, his mind was obsessed by the one ideal of becoming a great mechanical engineer and setting the Andalusa folks a-talking and a-cheering. In high school, our young Mathias had the unique and honored position of being the school "headie" and his heavy tread could be heard daily, making the rounds and reporting the absentees to the authorities higher up. No, Northeast Catholic will not forget the Andalusa flash for some time.

After his graduation from school, Emil looked around for his next stop in the search for knowledge. Perhaps he heard the Wildcat snarling or perhaps the steady rhythm of the engineers' laboratories intrigued him. At any rate, the freshman roster of Villanova College for 1934 included the name of the illustrious Emil Mathias.

Glee Club Base

He started off like a whirlwind and soon had the student body agog. For years the Glee Club had remained dormant It needed new life, new blood, new pep. Father Brown saw the situation and started out to remedy it. He rounded up Emil and a few more like him and a greater Glee Club was born. Emil has remained in this choral group for four years. Though the heavy strain of the course had wrecked many an engineer's extra-curricula career, it did not prevent Emil from darting up to Immaculatta to see his charming cousin. Yes, the Villanova Glee Club owes quite a lot to the Andalusa Caruso. Would that the mighty Wildcat had had more sons like him!

Of course Phi Kappa Pi could not let such good material go to waste and pledged the young Andalusian in his freshman year. Since that date the tall Emil has been one of the fraternity's biggest boosters and when they needed someone to keep order at the meetings, he was called upon to be the Sergeant-at-arms, and well has he performed his duties!

However the American Society of Mechanical Engineers has been Emil's chief love since he left Andalusa for Villanova. He has thrown all his enthusiasm into it and has made it one of the biggest clubs on the campus. Joining the ASME in his Sophomore year, he was elected Secretary in his Junior year. In his final year he could not be denied and he was selected to guide the society. As Chairman, he has worked hard and it can be truthfully said that the ASME has never had a more diligent or successful leader.

So you see the Andalusa barber shop philosophers knew what they were talking about when the predicted a brilliant future for the beardless Emil. Someday this Villanovan hopes to return to Andalusa and make it the very center of mechanical perfection!

Juniors Sign Hal Kemp's Orchestra For Annual Promenade May Seventh

Third-Year Men Climax Colorful Week With Dance Saturday Evening; Band With Maxine Grey Has Enjoyed Success

Tuesday evening over the Columbia Broadcasting Stations will come here. These include Maxine Grey, slim and willowy brunette, well known for her distinctive style of singing in a soft southern accent; Bob Allen, romantic song stylist; Saxie Dowell, featured saxophonist and comedian; Harry Williford, scat singer; Eddie Kusby, who hits a new high and a new low on the trombone; Mickey Bloom, trumpet player and collector of odd musical instruments which he frequently uses either in producing hot musical effects or for comedy effects.

"Tops" Among Colleges

A few months ago, in a poll conducted among 1,200 schools thruout the country, Hal Kemp and his orchestra were voted the most popular dance aggregation in the nation.

With Kemp, it is not merely a matter of top-notch music. The personality of himself and his musicians has done much to win him one of the widest followings any band-leader ever had.

Unlike many name maestros who build their bands around star musicians, Hal has taken unknowns, preferring to develop his musicians himself to conform with his own distinctive style. Saxie Dowell, Bob Allen, and Eddie Kusby are all products of the Kemp training.

In order to obtain this well-known band for the Junior Prom, is was necessary to transfer the traditional Saturday night date for the Junior Dinner-Dance to the Friday preceding, the Prom being transferred from Friday to Saturday May 7th. The committee was faced with the difficult problems of either making this change and having Hal Kemp, or keeping the old dates and contracting an inferior band. The committee decided that it was necessary to transfer the concerned to make the change, and thus insure the success of the affair.

Ticket Sale Limited

The committee has issued a notice to all those intending to purchase tickets, to do so at their earliest possible convenience, since the number of admissions will be strictly limited. The subscription has been set at four-dollars-and-fifty-cents.

Tickets may be obtained in the VILLANOVAN office, or from any of the following committee members: In Fedigan Hall, Thomas Furey, Joseph Callandriello, Raymond Beaucaire and George Bishop. Austin Hall: Francis Cadran, Robert Daniello, and Albert Zogby. Mendal Hall: At the information booth (telephone exchange) after 7:30 P. M. In the Commerce and Finance School; Harold Laskin, and Harry McGlade. In the Engineering School: Edward Coneen, Andrew Cirrito, and John Malispena. In the Arts School: Thomas Delate, Pershing Callabro, Paul Juergens, and Joseph Pagano. In the Science School: John Urie, Bartholomew Passanante, and Frank Reale.

Robert G. Howe, treasurer, announced that the assessment of $11.00 is due April 22.

TO ENTERTAIN AT JUNIOR PROM

BOB ALLEN, MAXINE GREY and HAL KEMP who are largely responsible for the popularity of this orchestra.

BELLE AIR APPEARS ON CAMPUS MAY 16

College Annual Inaugurates New Ideas, Presaging Unprecedented Success

It has been announced by Charles B. O'Connor, editori-in-chief of the Belle Air, that the annual will be ready for distribution definitely on or before May 16th.

Organize File

This year's staff has facilitated on the handling of material for publication by arranging all "cuts" in files according to the Congressional library scheme used in the Villanova College library. This has enabled the staff members to compile an arrange all the material in an efficient and comprehensive manner.

Under the capable brush of Vincent J. LaBrasca, Art Editor, the designs and artistic effects will be far superior to any such work in the past issues. Furthermore, the write-ups will be shorter in places, to make more interesting and compact the reading matter.

Following the procedure of last year, any student desiring to have his name engraved in gold leaf on the cover of his copy of the Belle Air may do so by paying the fee of 35 cents. This will be made up of all those students who desire to be included in the directory.

Confessions of An Editor

By JOE TOLAND

Ah well! Time, tide and the newspaper presses wait for no man, so it is with a heavy heart and a weary hand that I lay down my pen and relinquish my job to the young uns who must inevitably follow.

Even space is cramped so I'm afraid that my lamentations shall have to be brief and concise. After four years filling holes in this rag it is pretty hard for me to push the well worn shovel back in the corner and limit my ramblings to fifty typewritten lines.

As I look back upon the past year when it was my lot to sit in the VILLANOVAN office barking at Kassell and his gang to keep quiet so that I could hear six different people talking on six different stories all at one time seems to have left some pleasant memories for the years when I shall sit in my easy chair with my pipe and my dog (a bit presumptious) long after the 1938 issue of the VILLANOVAN has been forgotten.

Before I start on "Boom" Bowker and his crew I think it apropos to take this opportunity to thank Father McKee for everything he did for us during the time I was editor. No one could have possibly done more for us than this jovial priest who was always ready with his advice, his backing and his fatherly guidance. He is a real friend to all of us and the boys on the staff are 100 percent for him and hope that the VILLANOVAN will be his pride and joy for many years to come. He was never too busy or to tired to help us out of a tough spot. Here's to you Father.

Things I'll Never Forget—

Bow-Dow Bowker and his ball games which disrupted the office every Friday afternoon—Jim Tofani's wild man laugh and his soft heart for the ladies. — Bob Howe's regular letter from Penn State and his everlasting wit. — The Kassell, Flinkman, Cailliet gang who gave me many an anxious moment as well as many a good story. — My old pal Jake Simons with his bellowing bosom. — Silent Tom Kennedy cracking the whip over his circulation staff. — The whole darned staff of swell fellows who gave me more help than I ever could have expected.

My lines are numbered; Journalistic Death has knocked on my door so with heartfelt thanks I'll pass into oblivion wishing the new staff all the luck in the world and a scoop for every issue.

WHEN you're making your plans, don't just assume that "everything is going to be all right"—make sure. If you telephone ahead, you'll avoid possible disappointment and embarrassment.

SCIENCEMEN HEAR DOCTOR PLEASANTS

Historian Reveals Many Incidents of Local Colonial History

"History at Your Back Door" was the topic of an interesting lecture presented by Dr. Henry Pleasants at the meeting of the Science Seminar last Thursday morning.

Dr Pleasants is a practicing physician who, as he modestly puts it, is an amateur historian. He undertook historical research as a hobby and a relaxation from the problems of a practitioner.

Colonial history is Dr. Pleasants' special interest. Laying aside the standard history text, the doctor said he decided to investigate original documents. He decried the method of historians who leave out of their books important questions or modify history so as to make it more palatable. One of these questions which he was forced to answer for himself is the reason that Gen. Howe marched into Philadelphia.

Of special interest to the student body was the "battle" on Immaculata Hill. Camped on the hill were the colonial forces and below the English forces. Everything was in preperation for a battle which, had it been fought, would probably have ended the war. All was in preparation when suddenly there was a cloud burst. The powder and ammunition of both armies was wet and therefore the encounter had to be called off. "They could do nothing" as Dr. Pleasant said, "but stand and make faces at each other."

In the same interesting and familiar manner the doctor discussed many other phases of our early colonial struggles. Not only did he discuss various events but he also explained them in the light of the varic is historical documents which he had examined.

SCHOLARSHIP EXAMS LISTED FOR JUNE

lish examination will be presented.

Following the second examination the students will be entertained at luncheon in the college dining hall and will then be conducted on a tour of the campus and the various buildings. College Official Speaks In Trenton About Villanova

Rev. Bernard M. Albers, O. S. A., Visits Jersey School

Life at Villanova College was outlined to the students of Immaculate Conception Boys High School in Trenton, New Jersey last Friday afternoon by Rev. Bernard M. Albers, vice-president of the college.

Spoke on Ideals

In his talk Father Albers impressed on the boys of the graduating class the ideals of Catholic education that are incorporated in the secular knowledge imparted here at Villanova. He further stressed the importance of higher education in the world today and finished his talk by outlining for the students many of the advantages gleaned from an education at Villanova.

At the annual College Night sponsored by the Camden Public High School, to be held this evening, Paetrus F. Banmiller, registrar, will speak to the students of that institution on the imporance of a sound higher education. The principles inculcated by the teachers here will be explained to the students and to their parents.

men hold their share of the world's classical talent.

In winning the oratorical contest Joseph M. McNamara was pressed to the limit of his talent by William Corkill, and Thomas Delate, and only by displaying flawless oratorical prowess was he able to acquire winning honors.

Several individual musical numbers made the concert richer in vi / of student ability. Outstanding of these solos were three songs sung by Edward Lucente whose rich baritone voice is well known around the campus. His numbers were so well received that he had to comply with two encores.

Orchids to the sponsor would have to be divided as all concerned shared in planning and assuring the success of the affair. Special credit, however, is due to Rev. Joseph I. Boyle, O.S.A., as it was his initiative that made possible this concert. It is the sincere hope of all that were present that this social will not disappear from the college calendar but rather, in the near future will continue with the same spirit.

WESTERN MARYLAND AND CITY COLLEGE MEET 'CAT TOSSERS

Terrors Face Blue Today at Main Line Field; Violets Here Saturday

OWLS MET AFTER EASTER

Villanova's inactive baseball nine will meet two opponents new to the Wildcat schedule this week when Western Maryland's Green Terrors whirl into the Main Line field this afternoon, followed by the City College of New York nine on Saturday. One week later, the Jacobsmen travel to Temple's stadium to face the Owl's on April 23.

Terrors Unknown

Not much is known of the Green Terror diamond squad, as they were not met in recent years, and have not faced many local teams. City College, on the other hand, is considered one of the better metropolitan aggregations, and the Blue nine will have to be at top form to down the New Yorkers. A strong pitching staff, coupled with heavy hitting and airtight fielding, accounts for the Violets' success.

Nothing need be said about the Temple contest, for all but the freshmen remember that second battle late in last year's season when the Owls snapped a 'Cat win streak and set the stage for the stunning 9-8 Ursinus upset in the year's final contest. The 'Cats will have a game with Providence, which will give them the keen edge necessary for the Temple meeting.

TWO RELAY TEAMS ENTER PENN MEET

Mile and Two-Mile Quartets to Compete in Franklin Field Carnival

After three weeks' practice the track team seems to be shaping up. Coach Elliot is already pointing for the Penn Relays. He is planning to enter a two mile relay team as well as a one mile team. The two mile team will probably be composed of Bill Guiteras, Bill Dobbins, Barney Bellew and Tom McCabe. These runners have been running throughout the past indoor season and are in fine shape. Each can kick out an excellent half mile as well as a quarter and have good chances to pull something out of the bag at the relays.

Petril in Mile Relay

The mile relay team will be filled by Tony Petril, recent winner of the Abbey Trophy at Washington. Guiteras, Dobbins and Bellew. Dobbins, who recently sprained his ankle, is just returning to practice this week.

Guiteras and Bellew, stars of last year's freshman team, will be expected to hold up the quarter and half mile this year in varsity meets. Petril will continue to fill the sprinting position with "Doc" Urbellis. These two were nip and tuck last year as freshmen.

Golf Tourney For Eastern Colleges Has Approval Of Villanova Students

Tournament, First of its Kind in This Section, Would be Sponsored by Villanova; Idea Suggested by VILLANOVAN Writer

The following question has been asked of Villanova students to discover their general reaction concerning a Collegiate Invitation Golf Tournament; sadly needed in the East and which would be the first of this nature, to be sponsored by Villanova College. The idea was suggested by Joseph Pagano, who takes over the sports editor's post next week.

Question at issue: Having an Invitation Golf Tournament sponsored by Villanova College, in which golf teams of major Eastern colleges would be invited to participate.

Lou Dubino, Junior Education Student: "Such a movement would provide an opportunity to establish relationships with colleges which ordinarily are not able to be met by Villanova Athletic teams. Competition would be afforded to bring out the strength of Villanova golfers with other leading collegiate linksmen in the East."

Jim Tofani, Junior Commerce and Finance Student: "I think it is a a very good idea because it will tend to enhance Villanova's prestige in athletic events all along the Eastern Seaboard."

Art Vigilante, Junior Commerce and Finance Student: "I think it is a noble idea, if means were provided to defray expenses incurred by such a tournament."

Saul Wallach, Sophomore Commerce and Finance Student: "Such a movement would make us a pioneer in this sport and would tend to give this sport the position that it rightly deserves in Intercollegiate Athletic Activities."

F. J. Mozzi, Junior Engineer Student: "I think that it's a remarkable innovation because it would provide a means of judging Villanova's golfer's ability with that of other golf teams."

Jim Collins, Freshman Arts Student: "Excellent idea—Competition is the life blood of all athletics. Such a program will certainly further interest in golf within and without Villanova."

Joe Toland, Senior Science Student. "Quite an excellent idea—it would help much towards the furtherance of good fellowship among local college students and would increase Villanova's prestige."

Bede Howard, Junior Science Student: "With Villanova's golf team in its insipiency; I would consider it an unwise move."

AUSTIN CONTINUES UNDEFEATED BEHIND CASTLES' HURLING

Third Successive Win Gained at Expense of Mendel Nine by 10-3 Count

FEDIGANITES BEAT ALUMNI

By JOHN L. SIMONS

Behind the stellar flinging of Frank Castles the Austin Hall team romped away with its Sunday morning game with Mendel's frosh, 10-3. Scoring nine runs in the first three innings, the Austinites had no trouble in racking up their third straight intramural win.

Meanwhile Fedigan kept in the running by knocking off the Alumni nine in the thrilling P. M. contest. This victory gives the Gigolos two wins against one defeat and puts them just one game behind the pace-setting Austins, who are undefeated.

Austin Has Own Way

The smooth - functioning team from Austin, so far easily the class of the league, had things its own way from start to finish. They got to Koenigsburg, Mendel's twirler, in the second frame for five big tallies. From there in the boys just coasted along, piling up the 10-3 margin.

Frank Castles, Austin's one-man pitching staff, was in his usual fine form, limiting his frosh opponents to four hits. Stan Bobrowski, Walt Burlington, and Charley Vondra led the victors' attack with two safeties apiece.

Fedigan's conquest of Alumni was a hard-fought and well-deserved triumph. The game was close all the way, until the upperclassmen broke out into a spirited rally in the last half of the sixth inning, which rally netted them seven

VARSITY LINKSMEN LOSE FIRST MATCH

St. Joseph's Golfers Down Blue in 5-4 Contest; Dwyer Out With Cold

By JAMES LYONS

Villanova's golfers, minus the services of Captain Jimmie Dwyer, braved sub-freezing weather last Wednesday, only to meet defeat in their opening match at the hands of St. Joseph's College on the latter's course at Whitemarsh Valley, five to four.

John Callan, playing number one position, dropped his match to Burns, of St. Joseph's, seven and six. Burns scored a sparkling 38 for the first nine holes. Charlie Roche met the same fate as Callan as he was defeated by Ed O'Malley, the Hawk's number two man, three and two. Burns and O'Malley won the best ball six and five.

Dave Morse, playing his first match for Villanova, lost to Bill Mills, four and three. Cliff Randolph, however, started the turn of score by winning his match from Jack McCalla, St. Joe's captain, by five and four. Randolph and Morse played a close match on the best ball but finally lost another point on the seventeenth green.

Lou Dubino, acting captain for Villanova, teamed with Brad McMinus and turned in three points for a lost cause. After trailing Ed

Pile-Drivers Defeat Fedigan Steamrollers

AUSTIN'S HITTING WINS SECOND TILT OF BASEBALL FEUD

Michniewicz, Olivar Star at Bat in 11-2 Rout of Opponents

RAIMO SHELLED BY FOES

By HARRY MAZZEI

Austin Hall Pile-Drivers rose up in their might for the second time in two weeks and fecisively clubbed out an 11-2 victory over their hapless Fedigan rivals on the Varsity Field last Sunday.

Once again that "young giant," Jordan Olivar, led the clouters of the contest by garnering three singles in three trips to the plate off the combined offerings of Art "The Gasp" Raimo and "Sleepy Jim" Cochrane. Both Fedigan hurlers were shelled during their stays on the mound. For the Austinites, Frank Michniewicz did the honors on the hillock and was very effective until the last frame when the Gigs teed off on him for their only scores.

Pitching Duel Fades

At the beginning of the embroglio it seemed that once again Raimo and Michniewicz would be hooked up in one of their sensational pitching duels (at least for two innings). However, it did not even last that long for the Water Brigade scored three times in the second inning. They had enough runs then to win the game, but they decided to fatten their batting averages while the great Raimo labored in the throes of an "off-day."

Led by Oliva , the Austinites kept pecking away at Raimo's slants until they had amassed seven runs and had forced him to leave the mound. Raimo's withdrawal from the pitcher's box sounded the death knell to the Fedigan hopes, and the huge throng present groaned in disapproval.

In direct contrast to last week's well-played fray, this contest was rather poorly executed. Whereas basehits in no uncertain quantities were the vogue a week ago, they were at a premium on Sunday—especially for the Gigolos.

SHORTS

Olivar did not seem to be cognizant of the fact that base hits were scarce. He stretched his hitting streak to seven straight hits in seven trips to the plate. . . The Fedigans missed their ace right-fielder, Bonnie "Abbajabba" Tornwall. He went up to Jersey City to contact Trav Jackson about a few castoffs. Fedigan rooters hope he was unsuccessful. Their team is doing all right by itself . . . Last week Austin was going to give a banquet to Raimo and Bell. This week Raimo will have to eat alone . . . Wysocki started at first base for the winners, but left that position when the infielders started to throw hooks. That's what John claims, anyhow. . . "Wombo" Melius took "Bird Legs'" place on the initial sack and turned in a brilliant performance. His stop on Mazzei's scorching grounder was made in big league style. . . They put Bell out of the way this week. Stuck him under the right field stands, where he entertained the bleacherites (both of them). Seriously, though, "Sputzy" is a menace to Al Schacht. If he could only hit . . . Chisick forgot it was Sunday and threw a block on little Alice Bindall. That was when the Newark (all of 210 pounds) lad was caught off second base. Remember? . . . Michniewicz took the affair very seriously, as he bore down all the way. The score bears that out . . . Manager Val Rizzo of the winners was strutting like a peacock after the second inning. What a job it would be to deflate him. . . On the other hand braintruster Jack Earle left before the proceedings terminated. He complained of shattered illusions after the fray . . . Andy Stopper became a switch hitter on the spot. One at bat . . .

Pile-Drivers' Leading Batsman

sensational batting star of Austin's Pile-Drivers baseball aggregation, whose seven hits in seven times at bat puts him away out in front of the rest of the field in the Steamroller - Pile-Driver feud. To date the Austin crew has taken the two contests, 10 - 9 and 11 - 2.

He complained that the bat stung when he hit from the starboard side. He did not get a chance to get stung the second time. Michniewicz saw to that. . . Hearsay has it that Jim Montgomery was in the Gigolos' line-up. We wonder. It seems that they n't hit flies out Ohio-way. Or do they? . . . Dubino looked exceptionally well for the West Enders, especially on ground balls. At least those which didn't roll to the fence. Eh, Lou? . . . Raimo still says, "The boys aren't taking these games seriously enough," Olivar says. "They're taking it too seriously". . . Verbitsky claims that he's going to wear a chest protector next time. Line drives and wild throws were bouncing off of his breast bone all afternoon. . . Austin imported two basketball players so that they might win this "croocial" contest. Lazorchak and Duzminski were the lads in question and were they surprised when they discovered the hurlers weren't throwing basketballs. Lazorchak claims that they were shooting split peas at him. So does Romanowski. . . Once again Ray "McStove" Stoviak did the officiating.

Fedigan, Austin Win Ball Games

markers more than enough to win the game.

Johnny Costello was in hot water from the very beginning, but his effectiveness in the pinches kept the frosh away from the plate. Vinciguerra, leading off for Alumni, walked; Johnny McDonnell was hit by a pitched ball. Then after the next man fanned, Costello hit Belzner to load the sacks. But in this clutch John bore down, got Catcher Beasley on strikes and forced Barney McAloon to pop up for the third out.

Fedigan Comes Back

Fedigan came back in its half of the first inning with two counters. Harold Murphy was beaned, stole second, and scored when Jack Rhoads drove a terrific single through shortstop. Jack countered on Bill Durkin's bingle.

But in the Alumni half of the second frame Pitcher Costello got into more trouble. Forkin and Steller walked. Then after the next two batters had been retired, John McDonnell came through with a rousing triple, a beautiful drive down the left field foul line.

For the next few innings the pitchers had the best of it. In the sixth Fedigan came to life with the game winning rally which chased Appelby, the frosh twirler, to the showers. Doubles in rapid-fire succession by Freddy Rappleyea, Harold Murphy, and Pitcher Costello featured the seven-run splurge.

Still undaunted by the 10-3 lead their campus brothers held the brash freshmen put on a last ditch rally that had the Fedigans excited. But despite their tries, they could score only four tallies and wound upon the short end of the 10-7 score.

Highlights

Both freshman teams looked weak again. It seems that the upperclasses have the monopoly on baseball players these days.

Fedigan played its best game of the season on Sunday. A rejuvenated infield and a batting order shake-up helped.

The Austin-Fedigan game on the second round looms as the game to decide the championship. The Austinites walloped the Gigolos in the season's opener, 21-0, but the Fedigan team is a much improved aggregation.

With Frank Castles doing the tossing for the current leaders and Ben Pawlowski slated to work for the West Enders, the game should be the season's best.

The outfielders were plenty fast Sunday P. M. Hal Murphy drove one to the dining hall entrance and was held to two bases. John McDonnell's luscious triple would have easily gone for four sacks but for the fast fielding by Al Laun, Fedigan gardener.

Jack Rhoads and Murphy, both of Fedigan, came out of their respective slumps and made things miserable for Pitcher Appelby of Alumni.

None of the teams have come near Austin when it comes to a smooth working infield. The league leaders are in a class by themselves defensively.

Varsity Linksmen Lose First Match

Fillmyer for fifteen holes, Dubino won the sixteenth and halved the seventeenth to stand all even on the eighteenth tee. Lou pulled his drive off to the left but made a beautiful recovery to win the final hole and his match.

McManus had things a little easier. After winning the first two holes from Bill McCue, Brad slipped back and allowed his foe to tie it up for the first nine. However, McManus won several holes on the back nine and finally won three up.

Two shifts in the line-up were necessary before the divot-diggers could face the twice defeated Crimson and Grey team. Captain Dwyer, suffering from a very bad cold that kept him from classes, was the first man to drop from the original line-up. Then to add to Manager Lyons' worries, Frank Murcko, another key-man, was taken to the infirmary the night before the match with quinzy.

In the Sportlight

By JOHN L. SIMONS

THE time has come for our last assignment at this position, and the last of notables among the athletically minded seniors in major sports has but one name left upon it. So without further ado we wind up the year's work with this recounting of the daring deeds of that well-known baseballer, Walter Sheftic.

Walter Sheftic (Szewczyk, to be correct) first saw the light of this life on the 17th day of October, 1916. Like many another Wildcat athlete he comes from a small town, hailing as he does from a village named Boswell, situated in Western Pennsylvania near Johnstown.

Always Loved Baseball

From the time he was knee high to a grasshopper (quoting our subject) he played baseball any time he got the chance. He always was an enthusiastic follower of the diamond sport. It was small wonder then that he was successful in that game. After knocking around with the kids' teams for a few years Walt, at the tender age of 14 years, won for himself a regular position on the Boswell team of the Somerset County League. In view of the fact that all of the other players were much older, most of them grown men, and considering that the Somerset County League is one of the fastest circuits in Amateur Baseball, it was quite a feat for Walt to break into such company and stick.

He played with this town team all through his school days and turned in consistently good performances. Shortstop and second base were the positions he held down, his defensive maneuvers at both were capable. Still, his main forte was his batting power. He was and still is a consistent .300 hitter and packs a lot of punch in his wagon tongue.

After spending the usual number of years in the Boswell Grammar School, Walt entered Boswell High School. And although the athletic program at this institution was a rather limited one, Mr. Sheftic (Szewczyk to our readers of Polish extraction) managed to carve out a niche in Boswell High's Hall of Fame.

Played Basketball

At Boswell the only sport Walt engaged in was basketall, but he specialized in that to a very high degree of excellence. As usual he believed in starting things early in life. So as a young and untutored sophomore he went out for the varsity basketball squad and made it.

Three years he was in the starting line-up of the Boswell five, seeing action at the forward and guard posts. He went well throughout all three seasons, but his greatest year was his senior term. During that campaign he was the captain of a highly successful quintet. And to show his mates good example he was high scorer of the squad with the grand total of 230 points.

That, however, was not enough for Sheftic. To top off the season he wound up with his greatest single achievement. At the end of the campaign there was held a foul shooting contest open to all high school basketeers of the county. From 9 A. M. until 6 o'clock in the evening some 400 boys stepped up to the line to toss them up. And at the end of this time the winner was Boswell's one and only Walter Szewczyk. In winning he compiled the very excellent record of 23 swishers out of 25 tries.

Chance Chooses College

It was quite by chance that Walter decided to come to Villanova upon his graduation from Boswell High. An acquaintance happened to mention in the course of a conversation that Villanova was a good school and that the Wildcats always had a high ranking baseball nine. That conversation fired Walt with the desire to come to Villanova, and once he made up his mind there was no stopping him.

As a result in September he took the fateful step and matriculated at this grand and glorious institution of learning. His collegiate athletic career began almost immediately. He was a member of the frosh basketball squad and saw quite a bit of action despite tremendous competition. Of course in the Spring of that year he played regularly with the yearling baseballers. "Doc" had a wealth of infield material around, and he shifted Walt to the outfield. This position was no trouble to Sheftic, who worked into the change smoothly and hit the ball with the old gusto. That was just about the extent of his activities for the year, excepting such things of course as going to classes and joining into those famous extra meals in the Mendel Penthouse; also his entertaining of all his neighbors with his violin solos.

The sophomore year was a successful one for Walt. He was on the basketball squad, and his energetics on the wooden way earned for him the new nickname of "Shifty Sheftic, the Reindeer."

Gets Chance

Then the baseball season came around. As the campaign opened Shifty was riding the bench. But "Bullet Ben" Geraghty left the squad and school to go south with the Brooklyn Dodgers. Ben's rise in the baseball world paved the way for Walt's taking over a regular position of the Villanova varsity. When Ben left, Shifty became the permanent guardian of the hot corner, and also stepped into Ben's shoes as leadoff man in the batting order.

Although he had a tough assignment to fill the Reindeer came through with colors flying. He handled everything that came his way and batted .340 in the difficult No. 1 post. He had a field day against Long Island University, crashing through with a triple, double, and single and scoring the winning run in a thrilling 3-2 victory.

As a junior he had no trouble gaining a regular position. Once again he was an outfielder, patrolling right field. He was still the leadoff man and smote the horsehide for the right healthy average of .333.

At the present writing he is playing his usual bangup game in right field. He had no easy time this year winning the regular post. He didn't start either the Princeton or Penn game, but his fighting spirit and his powerful hitting gave further proof to the adage that you can't keep a good man down.

Getting to the serious side of the situation, we see that Walt is a student in the School of Arts. His plans for the future are rather uncertain, but he may attend Law School at Dickinson. He should go well in that profession should he decide to take it up, as he can talk anywhere and anytime.

Two Relay Teams Enter Penn Meet

at present by Spring football practice but will soon be on the cinders. Buck is a splendid hurdler and a manistay of the team. Bill Meehan is another hurdler who came up from the frosh of last year. Jimmy Lyons, a third timber topper, should give trouble in future meets. "Major" McCabe will run the mile and probably the two mile in competition this year. He is a strong runner and fills the berth well. Tom Delate will furnish his competition or vice versa. Delate is a veteran and has had a lot of experience from past years. Dobbins is not to be neglected for he is an important cog. His specialty is the half, but he doubles up and runs the quarter as well.

Tim Waad will be entered in the javelin event at the Penn Relays and will continue hurling it during coming meets. John Wysocki is another who will do some tossing.

Charlie Barrett, VC's record smashing swimmer, who lost the National 50 yard title when he slipped on a turn after leading the pack into it, has promised himself a bunch of cups this Summer. . . . He intends swimming in all the meets conducted by the resorts on the Jersey coast . . . Bert Cousart will return to the Tennis Team after a year's absence.

RECOMMENDED: A sport carnival on the Main Line in the Spring. . . . We have Rosemont, Immaculata, Mt. St. Joseph's, Haverford, and Bryn Mawr in close proximity. . . . with Villanova. . . . P. M. C. and Swarthmore are over in the Chester sector and that's not too far away. . . . With each school contributing its bit, a program rivaling the famed Dartmouth Winter Carnival could be presented. . . . the locality of the event could be awarded to a different school each year. . . . Local merchants would be interested enough to supply some backing and underwriting. . . . And conclude the whole thing with a ball. . . .

Clipper Smith introduced another innovation at a recent meeting of the football team. . . . He asked the boys whom they would start if they were coach. . . . And what they thought of Spring practice. . . . The answers to the first question would be interesting. . . . Joe McCluskey, Fordham's great veteran of nine years on the boards, holds more track records than any other runner in the country. . . . He holds 19 national championships and only recently has come into his own after he had been branded "through" by most of the writers.

The Junior dance committee's strategy in withholding the name of the chosen band has built up a tremendous amount of discussion, conjecture, and suspense. . . . Tom Furey is a publicity genius. . . . Wednesday it was Sammy Kaye. . . . Thursday Will Osborne. . . . And on Friday he whispered carefully; "We'll have two big name bands for the dance instead of one." . . . And each statement stirred up some comment and aroused more curiosity. . . . And now we epeat what we said last week . . . The name of the band is on the front page of this issue . . . We hope . . . We also hope that it is Hal Kemp.

EXTRA - CURRICULAR SPORTS: One Bucknell student and a co-ed must have had very red faces the night after their recent senior ball. . . . A candid camera fiend took a picture of the two saying, "good night" and the editor of the Bucknellian, the school paper, ran the picture on the second page. . . .

Drama in Separation. . . . We wonder how our "Clipper" Smith will feel when Villanova takes the field against Temple next year, the last time Temple will meet us under the direction of affable "Pop" Warner or so 'tis said . . . That feud started way back on the coast when Clipper was coaching at Santa Clara and "Pop" was fostering the War Babies of the Stanford Indians.

YES, YOU CAN be as popular at the dance as BENNY GOODMAN'S ORCHESTRA if you have your shirts laundered at the Wilson Laundry, where special prices and discounts are given to Villanova men.

Science School, who will have charge of the "Odds and Ends" column; Frank Reale, Junior Premed stduent who will write "College Chatter"; William Sinnott, Sophomore Business student, who will pen "Here and There."

Prominent in Activities

Tofani is rounding out a brilliant list of extra-curricular activities. In the past he has enjoyed positions on the Sophomore Orientation Committee, the Sophomore Cotillion Committee, the recently appointed Junior Dinner-Dance Committee, besides having just culminated a distinctive career as College Editor of the VILLANOVAN.

The other half of the new deal editors holds a rank on a par with Tofani. Howe in his Sophomore year was elected by his class to the vice-presidency. During the present college term he has most successfully served as Treasurer of the Junior Class while holding the Copy Editorship of the VILLANOVAN and participating to a great extent in the Lamba Kappa Delta Fraternity.

With the inception of the above staff there will come to a close the collegiate literary careers of many of the former staff. Editor-in-Chief Joseph J. Toland is completing his fourth year on the staff, three of which were served on all American honor-winning publications. Toland is a high ranking student in the Science School. William Bowker, consistent honor man in the Commerce and Finance School in this issue also closes four active years spent in the editing of sport news.

Paralleling the above two retiring Senior editors in excellence of service are Thomas G. Kennedy, untiring Circulation Manager, and John L. Simons, high honor Engineering student and Assistant Sports Editor. Joseph Sanborn, Andrew Conte, Richard Deverall, Joseph Alessandroni, James Lyons and John Rhoads also complete services on the weekly journal.

AUGUSTINIAN GUILD CALLS FOR PRIZES

Rev. Emmet Flynn, O. S. A., Calls for More Gifts by April 26

In anticipation of the Annual Card Party of the Augustinian Seminary Guild, a special meeting of the local unit of the committee on prizes was held last week. This meeting was under the direction of Rev. Emmet Flynn, O.S.A., Professor of Socialogy at Villanova College. The place of the meeting was the home of Misses Margaret and Josephine McGarvey.

Solicit Prizes

The question discussing the committee was the need of a drive for gifts for prizes at the card party to be held April 26. Father Flynn stated that the Guild desires 500 prizes in order to insure the success of this part of the affir. With this number of prizes, there would be two for each tables. Double awards for gifts at every table is unique and an important feature of the social. He also announced that anyone interested in helping the success of this charitable work may aid by soliciting gifts from their friends and acquaintances and sending them to Villanova.

At this same meeting the members showed great enthusiam when the question of refreshments for that evening were considered. The members discussed new and novel arrangements for the refreshments at the coming affair.

Father Flynn also pointed out that much progress is being made on the other arrangements. At the present time chance books have been widely distributed among alumni of Villanova and also to the many friends of the order and the college.

Among the committee members present at the meeting were Mrs. Thomas Fitzgerald, Mrs. Joseph Graham, Mrs. Peter Moore, Mrs. Edward Costigan, Mrs. John Kane and Mr. John Casey.

PEACE ASSOCIATION FAVORS TRADE PACT

Rev. Edward V. Stanford and International Relations Club Attend Legion Conference

Taking an open stand in support of the Reciprocal Trade Pacts by a unanimous vote, the student group of the Catholic Association for International Peace declared they were in favor of the pacts being extended to all nations. This group met in Washington last Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday in conjunction with the parent group.

Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O.S.A., president of Villanova College, attended the Monday sessions. Rev. William J. Lunney, O.S.A., moderator of the International Relations Club, Paul Juergens, and Joseph Bongiovanni represented Villanova in the Tuesday and Wednesday sessions.

Active in League

Villanova College has always been an active partioipant in all the league conferences. Three members of the faculty, Father Stanford, Rev. Joseph C. Bartley, O.S.A., dean of the School of Commerce and Finance, and Rev. Francis E. Tourscher, O.S.A., librarian, are members of the executive committee.

Paul Juergens and Joseph Bongiovanni took prominent part in the discussion Wednesday morning. They did not favor collective security under present conditions. Arguing along parallel lines were Mr. Madison and Mr. O'Shea. The

PRE-MEDS CONDUCT DANCE AT ARCADIA

Science Fraternity Holds Annual Banquet in Central City Restaurant

Spring socials were given an introduction last Saturday evening at the Arcadia International Restaurant when the Lambda Kappa Delta Fraternity held its annual dinner-dance.

The banquet and dance brought to an end the major activities of the Pre-Medical fraternity for the scholastic year. Election of officers for the ensuing year will be conducted by the organization in the near future.

Formal in its every respect, the annual dinner-dance saw one of the largest groups ever to attend the traditional function in the history of the fraternity. Approximately sixty couples were seated at the spacious banquet table in formal attire.

After dinner and speeches had been concluded, the couples made their way to the ballroom and main lobby of the International Restaurant. Dancing to the music of Happy Felton and his archestra continued until midnight.

An entertaining floor-show was presented, featuring many renowned theatrical personalities. Despite the over-crowded conditions of the week-end evening, the affair enjoyed great success.

Chairman Edward Troncelliti, a senior pre-medical student, also acted as toastmaster at the banquet. A group of distinguished

Peter C. Mackin, reappointed Business Manager of the VILLANOVAN, presided as toastmaster at the annual Dinner - Dance held in honor of the local publication staff at the Arcadia, International Restaurant last Thursday evening. The affair is conducted yearly as the formal inception of the new Editors and as a tribute to the graduating editors and staff members.

Moderator Begins Program

Toastmaster Mackin called the assembled guests to order at 8:30 and grace was offered by Rev. Edward McKee, O.S.A., moderator of the VILLANOVAN for the past six years. An excellent dinner served in the famous Arcadia style followed in the Italian and Venetian Rooms adjacent to the main dining room.

After the dinner the Toastmaster turned the speaker's dias over to Joseph Toland, retiring Editor-in-Chief, who finished four years service as a member of the local staff. Toland thanked the members of the staff for their excellent cooperation and reminisced about several members of the staff who interspersed fun with work on the VILLANOVAN. The next speakers of the evening were the newly elected Co-Editors James P. To-

STUDENT COUNCIL SELLS CARNATIONS

According to the recent announcement by Chairman Edward Shovelin, the Villanova Student will sponsor a charity carnation sale on Mother's Day, May 2. The receipts from the sale will be sent to the Catholic Young Men's Association of Philadelphia, under the direction of Rev. Francis Brady to be used for charitable purposes.

It is to be hoped that the students of the college will support this initial endeavor in the field of charity on the part of the Student Council. The price of the carnations will be small and the time most appropriate. The artificial flowers may be secured from any member of the Student Council for ten cents.

Again the Arcadia International Restaurant has been selected as the scene of another Villanova dinner dance. This time it will be the Junior Class which will be feted at the favorite entertainment spot on Friday evening, May 6. Rene Cailliet, chairman of the Junior Dinner Dance Committee made a statement to the effect that on this occasion much better arrangements had been made than formerly.

Select English Room

The English Room, the largest and most beautiful of all, has been reserved for the Juniors. Absolute privacy is insured the group by reason of the fact that dancing will be made possible to the amplified music of the featured orchestra without having recourse to the usually crowded main dance floor. Access to the principal portion of the Arcadia will be had at the times of the two nightly floor shows, which, incidentally have recently been changed for the better.

A reduction has been made in the previously quoted assessment of five dollars and a half. Now the fee will be four dollars and a half for the dinner dance, or for the entire program of Junior Week activities ten dollars.

Krupa to Play

To top matters off, the music of Gene Krupa's newly-organized orchestra will be featured. This band with the ever-active Mr. Krupa brandishing the baton and his favorite drum sticks has just finished its very successful debut at Atlantic City. All of which augura well for the expected enjoyment of the Juniors.

Thomas J. Carbine, chairman of Junior Week, has issued letters to the mothers of Villanova students inviting them to be present on May 2, which day will be dedicated

Orchestra Well Known

"The Kenmore Orchestra" under the direction of Bob Boutillier has been obtained to furnish the music for the evening. This popular orchestra has been playing for several seasons in and about Philadelphia, and it is the same orchestra that furnished the music for the "Poverty Dance" and was featured at the Phi Kappa Pi banquet last night.

The Villanova Club of Philadelphia, prominent in alumni circles takes the opportunity at this time to introduce the outcoming graduates to the club members, and to attempt to induce them to become active members of the clubs after graduation. Membership in the Villanova Club of Philadelphia is free to all alumni of Villanova; there are no dues, no initiation fees, nor fee of any kind required. All that is asked is that the mem-

REORGANIZATION

HISTORY has just recorded a democracy which depends for its very existence on an enlightened electorate misled through a deceptive campaign of propaganda.

Fear mongers hysterically asserted that the reorganization bill meant state control of Catholic education; that it was the doom of merit in government employees; that there would be no check on government spending; that the bill signified dictatorship with all its implications.

When agitation was renewed last year for an efficient reorganization of the executive structure of the Federal Government, it received the favorable comment of the press of the nation. After the demagogues and powerful advertisers got to work, however, the papers assumed a reactionary hue. They saw in this issue a chance to lessen the President's influence on Congress and so defeat his monetary reforms. Many, unthinking, joined the ranks. That leaders of the opposition were not motivated by unprejudiced desire for efficient government was illustrated in the confession before a Senate Committee of the Chairman of the National Committee to Uphold Constitutional Government, successor to the Liberty League, that he had not even read the final draft of the bill against which his group fought successfully.

But reorganization is not dead! Another bill has been passed by the Senate. If enough people support it it will be brought before the House. The Villanovan, after reading it through, can find no cause for alarm in its passage.

The National Catholic Welfare Conference, representing a religion jealous of its rights, issued the statement that Catholic interests were not involved.

The Federation of Federal Employees, representing the persons most immediately affected by the civil service provisions of the bill, are heartily in favor of the advanced personnel practices written into it.

As the Constitution makes the President the chief of the executive branch, he is the logical one to reorganize his staff. Semi-judicial bodies mentioned in the bill are exempt. The checks proposed in the accounting and budgeting division of the government are elaborate with reports made to Congress.

Citizens should take the defeat of the reorganization bill as a lesson to reason out the relation of purported facts so that they will analyze sources for information—not false propaganda.

WE NEED YOU

WORKING quietly on the campus for years there has been an International Relations Club. Its purpose is solely to elucidate for the students the principles which the Catholic Church has for solving the problems of the nations.

This organization besides its work on the campus has undertaken to represent Villanova at national meetings with other Catholic colleges and universities.

There is a grave handicap which the International Relations group has to combat. It proposes to represent Villanova—not the few in its folds. But how can it be certain that the opinions which its representatives advance are the students' opinions when there are barely more than ten members of the student body present at its meetings.

By its very nature this club does not attract much attention. Constructive thinking — especially on international problems — is never spectacular and rarely inviting. There are no grand stands but the field is large. The work the organization proposes to do is important. The pay is small—not money. But that makes its efforts the more noble because they are not prompted by selfishness. It is the kind of a cause that people can lose themselves in. Get behind this organization not for the sake of glory or attention but for the end for which it strives—the basis of all international law—justice and charity.

BE ON HAND

WITH the Easter vacation and the restrictions of the Lenten Season issues of the past, the Villanova campus is once again the scene of social activity.

As an introduction to the extensive events which occur traditionally at this time of year, the Augustinian Seminary Guild will conduct its annual card party and dance in the Field House this evening at 8:30.

This festival, which has become embodied into Villanova tradition as the initial post-Lenten campus social, lends itself very favorably to the occasion. An extensive program of dancing, card games, raffles, and prize awards gives indication of a most successful party.

The proceeds of this true Villanova enterprise will enable young men to continue in the quest for Eternal Happiness in the religious vocation. Teachers, priests and religious will be the fruit of the success of tonight's endeavor.

Do your part in advancing better opportunities to those who have received the Call to follow Christ. Attend the card party, enjoy yourself; for you will be repaid!

The more we observe the Spaniard in action the greater reason we have for thanks that we came out of that trouble in '98 so easily.

Whitney is said to be an object of respectful attention by Sing Sing pals, none of whom ever got away with as much as a million.

College Chatter

By Frank Reale

THERE COMES A TIME in the life of each undergraduate when he stands upon the threshold of a task that shall require the best that he is able to render. It is with such a feeling that I began the duties as Editor of "College Chatter," with the hope that I will measure up to the high standards that have been set by my predecessor, Mr. Allessandroni.

In order that the student body may become better acquainted with the current activities of other colleges and universities throughout the country we will maintain a closer affinity with them by these exchange items.

HERO-WORSHIP—In the depths of his heart every thinking man has a profound love for another man—living or dead. It may be because the other has qualities the first lacks: genius, wisdom, or virtue. It may be one person possesses a skill with which the other has not been gifted—in music, sculpture, mathematics, painting, writing. The love may even be a kind of admiration or envy or worship. The attraction of one man for another runs from jealousy to the deepest love. The puny man envies and admires the strong. The struggling tyro envies and worships the master. And so it goes. One man is another's goal, another's hero, another's god. It is such a circle that binds men to one another—even living men to dead men. —Stylus.

Plus other items. Men students get a list of questions monthly, and if their answers heap guilt upon coeds, a "black list" does the rest. The men must steer clear of the "guilty" or pay a penalty.

ODDS and ENDS

By Rene Cailliet

UPON looking through our predecessor's files, we found several highly confidential reports from his Bird Tuesday. Don't worry, though. We won't use them until it becomes necessary.

Scanning:

Joe Quinn—What we would like to know is — was that accidental meeting in Young's Drug Store in Bethlehem quite as accidental as we were led to believe? It is very seldom that five or six promising young engineers walk into a drug store just a few minutes before a similar group of Moravian College girls trip in. Especially when the leader of the girls' group "knows" you, Joe.

Jack McDonnell—Do you always permit "friends" to drag such pretty friends of yours to dances? The whole staff of the VILLANOVAN (even Joe Toland) admired your choice at the Dinner-Dance last Thursday. Even though she was with another fellow.

Tommy Carbine—We realize that you are a good shot, but you didn't have to prove it by hitting R. Le G. Deverall on his bald spot with a cube of sugar. You should have been more sporting. Think of how much more fun it would have been if you had hit him where he isn't bald! You did manage to enliven the VILLANOVAN Dinner-Dance, though. Even if the Arcadia had more work cleaning up than usual that night.

Looks as though Lad Pasciac has made a record or something. But don't you think it is a bit unfair to phone a girl between 5:30 and 6 P. M. to ask her to go to a Dinner-Dance with you at 7:30?

The boys claim that Harold Hart has become Man-About-Town Number One. Now, now, Junior. . . .

Orchids—To Joe Toland, Former Editor of this newspaper, we take this opportunity to express our sincere congratulations upon a job well done. Though he was cranky and "bossy" at times, we realize he did it only because it was necessary.

Bouquets—To Bill Bowker, former Sports Editor, who recently completed a successful tenure as head of that department. Commonly known by such "dignified" names as "Bow-Wow," "Choo-Choo," he nevertheless never was sullen or dull.

To the other senior members, we can only say you were a bunch of swell fellows and we're really sorry to see you leave. Good luck.

Famous last words—Joe Toland, ex-ed, states—"I'd rather go to the circus than the Junior Prom."

The Observer

Note: Observer's successor has Spring fever, so for the time being Ye Olde Observer continues to bat it out.

"TOO much of anything is good for nothing."

Day after day dictators, presidents, mayors, and country financiers moan a blue note to the the world through the mouthpiece of newspaper men and radio commentators; small business men complain of un-necessary pressure from large concerns ;laborers wail for shorter hours and higher wages; college men cry against pedagogical tyranny — and so on around the world is heard the doleful lament of human distress.

The world no longer seeks pleasure from culture and achieved ambition for the finer things in life. Instead, men find their happiness in the quest of trouble and uprising, in activity of all sorts. Individuals and families are no longer satisfied in their backyard with their gardens and plants, but now look longingly in their neighbor's properties or across the street to find something to envy or to compare to their own possessions.

College men begrudge the freedom of business men. Weak men ignore their own mental potentiality to stop and envy the physical strength of their colleagues. No one is satisfied with what he has. But why?

Mankind has been soured. Some have achieved and the others, the majority, have become parasites. They are parasites of attainment but never parasites of achievement and ambition. What ambition is known now is measured in hours of work, money, and immediate results. Ambition is no longer for the attainment of pleasure in life and social amiability, to serve God and man. The razor is perpetually drawn in quest of a throat and it is probable the holder of the razor whose throat needs ventilation.

Mankind has been soured in that it has possessed invaluable gifts of faith, intellect, and ability. But its Faith has been destroyed by centuries of materialism; its intellecct perverted by selfish individualism; and its ability used to envy and to destrroy, not to create self enjoyment and work for the common good of all.

Yes, man has been too busy trying to pave the future smoothly to notice the good and clean of the present and the gifts of the present that they possess. He has had too much and has wanted more.

"Too much of anything is good for nothing."

Recently, over the vacation, we were in the company of a man now over 70 years of age. This man, a noted convert to the Church, has been a financial wizard down on Wall St. for almost 50 years. He said something that we feit worth passing on to you fellows.

"Young man," he grunted, "they tell me that the men of Wall St. are smart men. Don't you believe it. They are even more dumb here than they are in Washington. Let me tell you this: in my 50 years of Wall St. experience I have met nothing but boneheads. And when I say bone, I mean bone," he concluded as he thumped his desk for emphasis.

The more we read of the stock market and its leaders, the more inclined we are to agree with this old man of experience.

The Gods at Play—that is what happened at the Villanovan press dinner. If you don't believe it, just ask those who were there. One venerable member of the Villanovan almost had his glasses knocked off his nose when Tommy Carbine fired a sugar cube at him. Tom O'Mahoney did a fine job on Alessandroni. When they started stuffing silverware in Fred Waters' coat pocket, the waiter had to call a halt to the procedure.

Bowker sure can pick them! But we always suspected that. And last but not least, we hear that Jake Simons snuck back to the kitchen after the dinner and asked for more. Poor old Jake. They never give him a square deal.

Here's a clipping of a poem that appeared in the 15th April issue of the St. Louis Catholic. (Sing to tune of Jingle Bells.)

Bingo balls, Bingo balls,
Bingo night and day!
Oh, what fun
It is to run
A gambling parlor gay!

Bingo balls, Bingo balls,
Gather in the hay!
Ain't it swell
To fight off hell
And make religion pay."

"Teacher, what does fragrance mean?" questioned a student at Radnor of practice-professor Basil Van Dee (Mad Russian to you).

"Um, well, you see it is this way. Fragrance is redolence, bouquet, aroma, or nosegay. It is descriptive of: frankincense, musk, potpurri, bergamot, joss stick, heliotrope, or maybe even sweet pea. It is contained in a vinaigrette, atomizer, thurible, or a common censer."

"Oh, I see," gasped the child as it reaches for the smelling salts.

Can you remember when the Katzenjammer Kids were content to make people laugh by peculiar antics on the funny pages of the newspaper? They were much funnier then than since they have changed their names to Hitler and Goering. Introducing—

By MURRAY ZEALOR

Atlantic City Daily Press, December 13, 1915.
Births:

A son was born this day to Doctor and Mrs. D. W. Scanlon. This is the second child that has blessed the marriage of these two socially prominent citizens of Atlantic City.

Thus was an article to be found in the Atlantic City daily of 23 years ago. It is not a startling announcement, maybe the mother and father of the boy and a few friends were the only ones to notice it; the publishers never knew that it would be referred to again after so many years. This is the manner which the world greeted Ward Scanlon, our fellow student, a product of Villanova College and the Augustinian Fathers, a graduate to be of the class of "38."

Has Quiet Disposition

Ward is a quiet boy, somber and serious, so different from the surroundings of his home city, The Playground of the World, Atlantic City. This, his birth place has been his residence for many years. Although his father is a physician, Ward does not care for the profession leaving that to his elder brother, David, a graduate of Villanova College of the class of "36."

Engineers of Villanova have usually became as they are called in the venacular of the day "punchy." Ward is the exception that proves the rule, for he is, I quote a friend, "You see this guy Scanlon, he's sorta serious minded."

Serious minded is true for we have but to scan over his past, his life at grammar school, high school, and now at Villanova College. He is the type of a lad who takes a position with determination and does it well, a true Catholic gentleman and an example of the training that he has received. St. Nicholas Catholic parochical school of Atlantic City was the course of his earliest education, Atlantic City High School claimed his four years of high school and one year of post graduate work. Villanova College has had him since.

Interested in Sports

Ward did not just attend school as many do but had many varied interests of which were his hobbies and his personal recreation. While at high school he was on the swimming team for one year and on the football team for two years. He showed up well as a swimmer and was for two years a member of the swimming team of Villanova College. Football to which he takes a great interest, occupied two years of his high school career. He became a regular end and was only forced out of the game because of an injury sustained by him which prevented his playing in his final year.

Civil engineering was deemed to be the profession of our man of the week and where else would have been suitable for such an education that at Villanova College. Upon entering Villanova for the first year he immediately joined the Sanctuary Society, not only because he is a serious boy but because he is a Catholic gentleman. Fours years have elasped since that first year and Ward yet remainds a loyal member of this fine society.

He acquainted himself with the staff of the Villanova Engineer also in his first year and has been a member of that staff since. Ward has voice. A fine one? He joined the Glee Club in his first year but not for long. He whistles while he works.

Managed Band

Developing a sound body with his sound mind has always been the way with our lad. He engaged in the intra-murals in hi first year, and in the second he was a member of the 150 poundere' football team. It was in his second year here that he joined the swimming team and remained in the sport that year and the next. The sophomore year brought to Ward the opportunity of which he developed until he becem the manager of the band during the present season. He then became assistant manager of the band succeeding the injured John Burke and took on these duties and those of flag bearer. His interest in music, which leads itself to his own amusement in playing the piano, culminated something new this year with managing and the provoking of a symphonic band.

Socially speaking, Ward presents the same features. He is a quiet, solemn fellow. He joined the Phi Kappa Pi in his first year and is a loyal member. The American Society for Civil Engineers attracted him in his Sophomore year of which organization he became treasurer in his Junior year. He was on the Student Council this year and has shown himself to be the same cool thinker and steady worker that is manifested in all that he does.

ARCADIA CHOSEN BY JUNIOR STUDENTS AS DINNER - DANCE SITE

Date Changed to Friday, May 6; Class Awaits Colorful Week

in their honor. This affair officially opens the week of celebration for the Juniors.

The definite program of events has not been announced.

Besides proving a delightful diversion for the mothers, this day has for its aim the promotion of a closer affiliation between the mothers and Villanova College proper. For many this will appear as the first opportunity of viewing the spacious college surroundings amidst which their sons are acquiring a Catholic education. On Mother's Day there is a change in the usual humdrum scheme of life: the mothers are the honored guests while their sons, in general, the Juniors more specifically, act as hosts.

Present Informal

The Blazer Ball, the chairman of which is John D'Ippolito, is to be held on the evening following Mother's Day, viz., May 3, in the Villanova Field House. The music of the Villanovans will be featured. This social turns the spotlight on the new blazers worn by the Juniors. The guests of the Juniors, the members of the Senior class, are strongly urged to attend attired also in their blazers. Such a procedure, as can be clearly seen, will do much to lend color to this dance.

As always in the past, the Blazer Ball is being eagerly anticipated by all despite the fact that it is informal. Underclassmen as well as the members of the two featured classes are cordially invited to attend. The subscription fee is $1.50.

Much already has been said about the Junior Promenade on May 7, one of the more prominent of the Junior festivities. The name of the orchestra already contracted for this Prom is superlative enough in describing it—Hal Kemp, ne of nationwide popularity. In their foresight the commitcemen of the Junior Prom have limited the sale of tickets, knowing very well just how large the Hal Kemp following is. Consequently, being unwilling to have any of the student body disappointed at the last moment, the chairman of the Prom, Thomas J. Furey, advises that purchases of the tickets be made as soon as is humanly possible. Such a statement is not one of form but of sound and sincere advice from one who knows.

The Decoration Committee has planned some innovations in design for this dance which will in all probability be on a par with the rest of the entertainment.

whose number exceeds that of 500 predicts an evening of pleasant anticipation. With this great number of prizes a very unique program will be carried out and that will be the disbursement of two prizes to every table. This departure from the customary one table prize shows more acutely the favor which is shown to this guild and the cause for which it has its aim. There shall be five major door prizes that will be of great value and an enticement to all those who attend or wish to be present at this gala affair.

In combination with all the activity of the evening the raffle which has been sponsored by the guild will also come to a close. The raffling of the radio and the $20 prize will be a part of the evening's entertainment. The price of admission to the party is one dollar. All are reminded of the fine cause that is being benefitted by this donation for an evening's entertainment which shall in itself be of greater value than that which is asked.

Friends of the Augustinian Seminary Guild have demonstrated their ability to make a success of any venture and have shown themselves in their true light, fine examples of Christian charity. The success of the party will be an occasion of their efforts and their kindness.

Judy Starr And Bob Allen Will Be Featured Vocalists Appearing With Hal Kemp's Orchestra At Junior Prom

Charming Songstress to Replace Maxine Grey at Annual Affair

By reason of an injury received while on tour, Maxine Grey will not appear with Hal Kemp at the Prom. She will be replaced by little, petite Miss Judy Starr, charming songstress, who has just completed a six months stand at the Chez Paree in Chicago. Judy was born in Gainesville, Georgia ... At an early age she moved with her family to Clarksburg, Va. When Hal Kemp was playing an engagement at the University of West Virginia, he was told of a very fine singer who was then in the audience and was urged to give her a trial...she was Judy Starr...Kemp invited her up to sing with the band . . . she was so small that he had to hold the microphone for her—she was a sensation. It was her first time ever to appear with an orchestra. . . . In 1931 when Hal Kemp traveled to Europe with his orchestra, he wanted to take her along as a vocalist, but as she was only 15 years old at the time, her parents insisted she finish her schooling. . . . Judy remained in the States. . . . Finished her high school course and then enrolled in the University of West Virginia. . . . Two years later, she was again sought out and engaged by Kay Kyser to sing with his orchestra at the Hotel William Penn in Pittsburgh. After this she joined the Olson and Johnson show and went out to the West coast. While out there she made a personal appearance at the Coconut Grove in Los Angeles and was held over for six months. Judy also sang at the Paramount Theatre in Los Angeles and appeared on several commercial programs on the coast. During her stay in Los Angeles Judy met Rudy Valee . . . This seemed to be the start of her big chance. She was first heard with Vallee on the Fleischmann program. Next she appeared with him on the Astor Hotel Roof in New York City in 1936 and 1937. Finally she accepted a long engagement in Chicago's Chez Paree.

Judy stands about four feet nine inches high and weighs in the neighborhood of 85 pounds.

VOCALIST

JUDY STARR, charming blonde songstress, who will replace Maxine Grey as the featured singer with Hal Kemp's orchestra at the Junior Prom. Miss Grey is unavailable because of a serious injury sustained in a recent accident.

Male Singer, Discovered by Leader, Accompanies Band Here

She has ash blonde hair and lovely blue eyes and to finish it off she wears the remarkably small shoe size of 1 1-2.

Judy considers Hal Kemp's band her first beau—the first love she will always remember.

Bob Allen, featured baritone vocalist, will also be heard with Hal Kemp at the Prom. Bob is a typical American youth if there ever was one. He was born in a little Ohio farming town near Cincinnati, called Allendale, on June 17, 1913. His early schooling was acquired in a one room schoolhouse, later he attended high school in Cincinnati and also studied music at the Cincinnati Conservatory. His earliest ambition was to be a railroad engineer, but taking part in local amateur affairs and later singing over a small Cincinnati radio station fired his ambition to be a singer. During these high school years he worked in a drug store in Cincinnati. He then met Ben Bernie, who was appearing at the Cincinnati Theatre, and the Ole Maestro put Bob on the stage. At the end of the week Ben advised Bob to go to Chicago and seek his fortune.

Bob obtained a two day leave from his drug store job bought a round trip ticket and set out for Chicago. In the Windy City he applied for an audition where Hal Kemp's band was playing, and was given a hearing.

He immediately won the job and hasn't used the return half of his ticket to Cincinnati yet. Since that day in November, 1933, he has been an important member of the Kemp group.

Bob is five feet ten and a half inches tall, weighs 150 pounds, and is a keen lover of all sports.

TRENTON STUDENTS MAKE CAMPUS TOUR

As guest of the Villanova Club of Trenton, N. J., the members of the senior class of the Immaculate Conception High School for Boys visited Villanova College on an inspection tour last Saturday afternoon.

An extensive program of interest was tendered the students on their first official visit to the Villanova campus. The group witnessed the scrimmage between the Villanova and N. Y. U. elevens in the local stadium and were then given a dinner in the college dining hall. During their stay at the college, the Immaculate Conception High School students were shown "Life at Villanova," a motion picture depicting events of interest at the college.

The tour was offered by the Alumni group of Trenton as a means of familiarizing the high school students with the atmosphere of Villanova College. Various other graduate organizations are planning similar enterprises for the future.

PHOTOS DISPLAYED

It has been officially announced that Belle Air photos will again be displayed for sale on Mothers Day, May 2, in the Reception Room, Mendel Hall. The display will be open during the day from 12:45 until 5:00 P. M. This will be the last opportunity afforded students desiring photos to purchase them.

Villanova faculty members comprised the program of speakers.

Among the guests of honor were Rev. Joseph M. oDugherty, O.S.A., dean of the science school and moderator of the fraternity; Rev. Francis X. Coan, O.S.A., loyal supporter of the fraternity; Anthony J. Lamberti and William Driscoll, instructors in the science department and, as the surprise of the evening, Gerald Pisarchis, president of the fraternity last year and at present a student at Temple Medical School.

Speeches after the dinner were brief and to the point. In his talk, Father Dougherty stressed the importance of the esprit-de-corp evidenced by the members at this affair. Interspersing his remarks with some of his famous Irish stories, Father Dougherty ended his part of the program by presenting the Senior members of the L. K. Conducts Banquet

In addition to the sponsoring of the Annual Spring Dance, the Villanova Club of Philadelphia holds an annual Football Dinner in December to fete the football team and the coaches. This dinner is among the finest of its type in the country. Last year's dinner in particular, after the Villanova team's great undefeated year, was a grand affair, the largest in its history. The attendance at that dinner held at the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel in Philadelphia, was over one thousand.

The club, being so close at hand to Villanova College itself, naturally takes a large part in all alumni activities, for instance, the Alumni Week-End in June, the Homecoming Day in the Fall during the football season, and the most recently inaugurated alumni activity, the editing of a quarterly to be called "The Villanova Alumnus," the first issue of which is to be out in May.

Sports Editor

BEFORE VENTURING upon the journey of writing this column for the duration of my term as Sports Editor I wish to respectfully pay tribute to my predecessor, Bill Bowker, who in my estimation was "Ace High" as a Sports Editor, the "Tops" as a Sports writer and a Swell Guy to work with. In all sincerity I wish to make known the fact that I will endeavor to make this column as enjoyable reading as possible and aim to surpass all standards established by my fore-runners. But if I conduct it as well as Bill did, I will consider it as a job well done.

—V—

Affording us an opportunity to start off with a bang is a statement that was called to our attention observed in The Targum, publication of Rutgers University, under a column headed "With Both Barrels, We're Firing At," and conducted by Ed Isaacs. The statement read as follows, ...

"The Ivy League at a recent meeting outlawed Spring football encounters as detrimental to the game. It's a safe bet that you can always get a scrimmage with Fordham, VILLANOVA, Boston University and a handful of others."

Such a declaration, appearing in a column headed by "With Both Barrels, We're Firing At," obviously, at first, appears to be a "dig" at Villanova concerning its Spring football policy in regard to preseason skirmishes with neighboring institutions. To make our uncertainty a little more complex is an article likewise published in The Targum which brings out the fact that the Scarlet will engage in two practice games with Temple University. From this material presented we cannot help but conclude

Wildcats Romp Over N. Y. U. Foe In Scrimmage; Defense Weak

Sabrinski, Basca, Gogolinski Mainstays of Backfield; Wysocki, Chisik, Nowak and Bukofski Steal Honors on the Line; Tackle Slots Weak

After practicing for six weeks with no incentive in view, Villanova's varsity footballers were finally given an opportunity to "let off some steam" on Saturday when New York University invaded the Main Line. The Wildcats were victorious, 18-12, but the score does not tell the whole story of Saturday's fray.

The contest was conducted in an informal manner much in the same fashion as were last year's practice tilts with Columbia. The ball was put in play on either team's 25-yard line at the beginning of the contest and after each touchdown. Play was frequently halted so that both "Clipper" Smith and Mal Stevens could make some constructive criticism. No extra points were attempted.

'Cats Off to Poor Start

After a rather sorry opening the Blue team (it was Green on Saturday) came into their own and flashed an offense that at times clicked smartly, but at other times bogged miserably. On the defense the comparatively untried 'Cats left much to be desired. It was their first defensive work of the year, and, unfortunately, it was done against a New York University club that presented the acme in baffling offenses. On the whole the Main Line eleven gave promise of being another fine "Clipper" Smith eleven when next Fall rolls around.

New York University brought down a team composed of experienced men in all positions. Add to that the fact that they possessed a hard running attack and a smooth passing offense enables one to understand that Villanova was confronted with a very competent outfit. N. Y. U.'s initial drive began with the opening whistle and carried 75 yards to a touchdown. Mixing the thrusts of Ed Williams, their All-American threat, with the smashes of Harry Shorten, the Violet attack found very little defense before them and gained almost at will.

The Violets took the ball and again it seemed very likely that they were going to score again when the Wildcat forward wall finally positioned themselves correctly and halted the New York drive. From here the 'Cats essayed a drive of their own, but it fell short of a six-pointer when Johnny Gogolinski's touchdown dive was called back because of an illegal shift. A few moments later Mike Sabrinksi, who was Villanova's best running back all afternoon swept 51 yards around his left end for the Main Liners' first score of the day.

Sabrinski Scores Again

A little while later in the contest this same Sabrinski intercepted an N. Y. U. pass and sprinted 35 yards for another touchdown. Meanwhile the Wildcat forward wall had effectively checked the New York running attack and but for an occasional flurry of short passes checked their advance. The Violet team turned on the pressure at one point, however, and passed their way to a first down on Villanova's four-yard line. At this juncture the Main Liners' defense turned in their best performance. Four times the hard-running, accurate firing Violet performers tried to go through or over the Green Wave and four times they were hurled back until they were on their six-yard line when their lease on the ball had expired.

Basca to Nowak

With the contest in its waning moments the 'Cats struck once more. This time it was smooth Nick Basca looping a long aerial to "Whackin'" Walt Nowak who

TENNIS TEAM LOSES TO B.C.; BEATS U. OF B.

Dunne, Wellenbach Win First Two Matches in Impressive Style

Villanova's plucky tennis team opened the 1938 tennis team with an impressive 7-2 victory over the University of Baltimore on Saturday, after bowing to the strong Boston College team the previous afternoon 5-4. The matches were played on the Ardmore courts.

Both Dennis Dunne and Bert Wellenbach emerged victorious in the two encounters. Dunne playing the second singles position defeated Al Cunningham, of Boston, 7-5, 6-1, and then dropped Bill Cattalano in straight sets, 6-2, 6-3.

Wellenbach found Boston's fifth singles player a hard nut to crack. After dropping the first set to King, Wellenbach came back to take the next two for the match. The scores were 4-6, 6-3, 6-3. Against Khyatt of Baltimore, he literally breezed through dropping but one game in each set.

Most gratifying to Captain Saul Wallach were the performances of Freddie Rappleyea against the number one players of both schools. The Rochester boy played magnificent tennis against Andy Bismarck, Boston College leader, who ranks high in New England Intercollegiate tennis. Although he lost both sets to Bismarck by 6-2 scores, the former was pressed every moment, before he was de-

It took six Villanova errors to give Temple University's victory starved athletes their first win over a Villanova team this year. Pep Young's Owl baseballers ending the famine with a 4-2 win over the Wildcats. The game was played on the Temple Stadium diamond, Saturday afternoon.

Although the locals outhit their arch-rivals eight to seven, they could do nothing against the slants of Jack Williams who elbowed shut out ball for five frames.

It was not until the sixth inning that the locals could do anything with the willow. Mike Garbark pickled one to the right field fence for a three base hit scoring Bob Bond and Captain Ray Stoviak. Garbark died at third when Rice grounded to short.

Temple got to Cliff Choquette in the early rounds, pounding him for a marker in the second, added two more in the following canto. They rounded out their scoring with a run in the fifth.

Jacobsmen Out to Revenge Owl Defeat in Pursuit of Fourth and Fifth Wins

Pennsylvania State College's strong nine heads the list of baseball games on the Villanova diamond schedule for the week.

The Nittany Lions will be met on their home battlefield at State College on Saturday. Earlier in the week "Doc" Jacobs will take his famished 'Cats to Hamilton, New York, to form the opposition for Colgate on Wednesday afternoon.

State, famed for her great ball clubs, will present a formidable array of veterans, which include such veterans as Harvey Harrison and the invincible Sol Miehoff, who turned in remarkable batting performances against the University of Pennsylvania in a contest that the Lions won rather handily.

Although illanova holds the distinction of taking the Red and Blue into camp earlier in the season, it will be well if the Wildcats point to this game as one that will test their mettle to the utmost. In addition to having a strong hitting ball club, the Lions have a well balanced pitching staff which makes them rate among the better teams of the college circuit.

On Wednesday, the Blue team will meet the Red Raiders from Colgate, which is expected to have a good team this year and one which has always been dangerous on its home diamond. This tussle between Colgate and Villanova marks the beginning of the Wildcat

'CAT TEAM AT PENN IN RELAY SATURDAY

Guiteras, Bellew, Petril and McCabe Chosen for Mile Quartet

With the Penn Relays only a few days off, Jim Elliot is spending his time priming his mile relay team. The team is shaping up well and Elliot expects a win. Last year only a freshman team was entered and had an inopportune casualty. The leadoff man, Bill Piscione, was coming in with a lead when an opponent, coming too close behind him tripped him. Both runners went down and tried valiantly to regain their place when they rose, but the opponents had already piled up a big lead which the remaining runners failed to overcome.

This year the team is more experienced and has been running fine during the past indoor season. The quartet will be chosen from Bill Guiteras, Bill Dobbins, Tony Petril, Barney Bellew, Jim Hanley and Tom McCabe.

Bill Guiteras, who has been running in anchor position regularly, will most likely hold down this position. He is a reliable runner and very often furnishes thrilling moments when he overtakes rival anchor men. As long as Bill is within fifteen yards of a runner there is sure to be a good race, and more than likely Guiteras will win.

Petril, Bellew and Dobbins are the other probable runners. This in their honor. This affair officially opens the week of celebration for the Juniors.

The definite program of events has not been announced.

Besides proving a delightful diversion for the mothers, this day has for its aim the promotion of a closer affiliation between the mothers and Villanova College proper. For many this will appear as the first opportunity of viewing the spacious college surroundings amidst which their sons are acquiring a Catholic education. On Mother's Day there is a change in the usual humdrum scheme of life: the mothers are the honored guests while their sons, in general, the Juniors more specifically, act as hosts.

Present Informal

The Blazer Ball, the chairman of which is John D'Ippolito, is to be held on the evening following Mother's Day, viz., May 3, in the Villanova Field House. The music of the Villanovans will be featured. This social turns the spotlight on the new blazers worn by the Juniors. The guests of the Juniors, the members of the Senior class, are strongly urged to attend attired also in their blazers. Such a procedure, as can be clearly seen, will do much to lend color to this dance.

As always in the past, the Blazer Ball is being eagerly anticipated by all, despite the fact that it is informal. Underclassmen as well as the members of the two featured classes are cordially invited to attend. The subscription fee is $1.50.

Much already has been said about the Junior Promenade on May 6, one of the more prominent of the Junior festivities. The name of the orchestra already contracted for this Prom is superlative enough in describing it—Hal Kemp, he of nationwide popularity. In their foresight the committeemen of the Junior Prom have limited the sale of tickets. Knowing very well just how large the Hal Kemp following is. Consequently, those unwilling to have any of the student body disappointed at the last moment, the chairman of the Prom, Thomas J. Furey, advises that purchases of the tickets be made as soon as is humanly possible. Such a statement is not one of form but of sound and sincere advice from one who knows.

The Decoration Committee has planned some innovations in design for this social which will in all probability be on a par with the rest of the entertainment.

whose number exceeds that of 500 predicts an evening of pleasant anticipation. With this great number of prizes a very unique program will be carried out and that will be the dishuesdment of two prizes to every table. This departure from the customary one table prize shows more acutely the favor which is shown to this guild and the cause for which it has its aim. There shall be five major door prizes that will be of great value and an enticement to all those who attend or wish to be present at this gala affair.

In combination with all the activity of the evening the raffle which has been sponsored by the guild will also come to a close. The raffling of the radio and the $20 prize will be a part of the evening's entertainment. The price of admission to the party is one dollar. All are reminded of the fine cause that is being benefitted by this donation for an evening's entertainment which shall in itself be of greater value than that which is asked.

Friends of the Augustinian Seminary Guild have demonstrated their ability to make a success of any venture and have shown themselves in their true light, fine examples of Christian charity. The success of the party will be an occasion of their efforts and their kindness.

Judy Starr And Bob Allen Will Be Featured Vocalists Appearing With Hal Kemp's Orchestra At Junior Prom

Charming Songstress to Replace Maxine Grey at Annual Affair

By reason of an injury received while on tour, Maxine Grey will not appear with Hal Kemp at the Prom. She will be replaced by little, petite Miss Judy Starr, charming songstress, who has just completed a six months stand at the Chez Paree in Chicago. Judy was born in Gainesville, Georgia . . . At an early age she moved with her family to Clarksburg, Va. When Hal Kemp was playing an engagement at the University of West Virginia, he was told of a very fine singer who was then in the audience and was urged to give her a trial...she was Judy Starr...Kemp invited her up to sing with the band . . . she was so small that he had to hold the microphone for her—she was a sensation. It was her first time ever to appear with an orchestra. . . . In 1931 when Hal Kemp traveled to Europe with his orchestra, he wanted to take her along as a vocalist, but as she was only 15 years old at the time, her parents insisted she finish her schooling. . . . Judy remained in the States. . . . Finished her high school course and then enrolled in the University of West Virginia. . . . Two years later, she was again sought out and engaged by Kay Kyser to sing with his orchestra at the Hotel William Penn in Pittsburgh. After this she joined the Olson and Johnson show and went out to the West coast. While out there she made a personal appearance at the Coconut Grove in Los Angeles and was held over for six months. Judy also sang at the Paramount Theatre in Los Angeles and appeared on several commercial programs on the coast. During her stay in Los Angeles Judy met Rudy Valee . . . This seemed to be the start of her big chance. She was first heard with Vallee on the Fleischmann program. Next she appeared with him on the Astor Hotel Roof in New York City in 1936 and 1937. Finally she accepted a long engagement in Chicago's Chez Paree.

Judy stands about four feet nine inches high and weighs in the neighborhood of 85 pounds.

VOCALIST

JUDY STARR,
charming blonde songstress, who will replace Maxine Grey as the featured singer with Hal Kemp's orchestra at the Junior Prom. Miss Grey is unavailable because of a serious injury sustained in a recent accident.

Male Singer, Discovered by Leader, Accompanies Band Here

She has ash blonde hair and lovely blue eyes and to finish it off she wears the remarkably small shoe size of 1 1-2.

Judy considers Hal Kemp's band her first beau—the first love she will always remember.

Bob Allen, featured baritone vocalist, will also be heard with Hal Kemp at the Prom. Bob is a typical American youth if there ever was one. He was born in a little Ohio farming town near Cincinnati, called Allendale, on June 17, 1913. His early schooling was acquired in a one room schoolhouse, later he attended high school in Cincinnati and also studied music at the Cincinnati Conservatory. His earliest ambition was to be a railroad engineer, but taking part in local amateur affairs and later singing over a small Cincinnati radio station fired his ambition to be a singer. During these high school years he worked in a drug store in Cincinnati. He then met Ben Bernie, who was appearing at the Cincinnati Theatre, and the Ole Maestro put Bob on the stage. At the end of the week Ben advised Bob to go to Chicago and seek his fortune.

Bob obtained a two day leave from his drug store job bought a round trip ticket and set out for Chicago. In the Windy City he applied for an audition where Hal Kemp's band was playing, and was given a hearing.

He immediately won the job and hasn't used the return half of his ticket to Cincinnati yet. Since that day in November, 1933, he has been an important member of the Kemp group.

Bob is five feet ten and a half inches tall, weighs 150 pounds, and is a keen lover of all sports.

TRENTON STUDENTS MAKE CAMPUS TOUR

As guest of the Villanova Club of Trenton, N. J., the members of the senior class of the Immaculate Conception High School for Boys visited Villanova College on an inspection tour last Saturday afternoon.

An extensive program of interest was tendered the students on their first official visit to the Villanova campus. The group witnessed the scrimmage between the Villanova and N. Y. U. elevens in the local stadium and were then given a dinner in the college dining hall. During their stay at the college, the Immaculate Conception High School students were shown "Life at Villanova," a motion picture depicting events of interest at the college.

The tour was offered by the Alumni group of Trenton as a means of familiarizing the high school students with the atmosphere of Villanova College. Various other graduate organizations are planning similar enterprises for the future.

PHOTOS DISPLAYED

It has been officially announced that Belle Air photos will again be displayed for sale on Mothers Day, May 2, in the Reception Room, Mendel Hall. The display will be open during the day from 12:45 until 5:00 P. M. This will be the last opportunity afforded students desiring photos to purchase them.

Villanova faculty members comprised the program of speakers.

Among the guests of honor were Rev. Joseph M. oDugherty, O.S.A., dean of the science school and moderator of the fraternity; Rev. Francis X. Coan, O.S.A., loyal supporter of the fraternity; Anthony J. Lamberti and William Driscoll, instructors in the science department and, as the surprise of the evening, Gerald Piserchia, president of the fraternity last year and at present a student at Temple Medical School.

Speeches after the dinner were brief and to the point. In his talk, Father Dougherty stressed the importance of the esprit-de-corp evidenced by the members at this affair. Interspersing his remarks with some of his famous Irish stories, Father Dougherty ended his part of the program by presenting the Senior members of the L. K. bers attend meetings and take an active interest in the affairs of the club.

Conducts Banquet

In addition to the sponsoring of the Annual Spring Dance, the Villanova Club of Philadelphia holds an annual Football Dinner in December to fete the football team and the coaches. This dinner is among the finest of its type in the country. Last year's dinner in particular, after the Villanova team's great undefeated year, was a grand affair, the largest in its history. The attendance at that dinner held at the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel in Philadelphia, was over one thousand.

The club, being so close at hand to Villanova College itself, naturally takes a large part in all alumni activities, for instance, the Alumni Week-End in June, the Homecoming Day in the Fall during the football season, and the most recently inaugurated alumni activity, the editing of a quarterly to be called "The Villanova Alumnus," the first issue of which is to be out in May.

BEFORE VENTURING upon the journey of writing this column for the duration of my term as Sports Editor I wish to respectfully pay tribute to my predecessor, Bill Bowker, who in my estimation was "Ace High" as a Sports Editor, the "Tops" as a Sports writer and a Swell Guy to work with. In all sincerity I wish to make known the fact that I will endeavor to make this column as enjoyable reading as possible and aim to surpass all standards established by my fore-runners. But if I conduct it as well as Bill did, I will consider it as a job well done.

—V—

Affording us an opportunity to start off with a bang is a statement that was called to our attention observed in The Targum, publication of Rutgers University, under a column headed "With Both Barrels, We're Firing At," and conducted by Ed Isaacs. The statement read as follows, ... :

"The Ivy League at a recent meeting outlawed Spring football encounters as detrimental to the game. It's a safe bet that you can always get a scrimmage with Fordham, VILLANOVA, Boston University and a handful of others."

Such a declaration, appearing in a column headed by "With Both Barrels, We're Firing At," obviously, at first, appears to be a "dig" at Villanova concerning its Spring football policy in regard to preseason skirmishes with neighboring institutions. To make our uncertainty a little more complex is an article likewise published in The Targum which brings out the fact that the Scarlet will engage in two practice games with Temple University. From this material presented we cannot help but conclude

Where A Hit Meant Two Runs

Lou Wannemacher, Wildcat centerfielder, grounding out to short, in Villanova-Temple fray Saturday, for final out in the ninth, with teammates on second and third. In the background is Coyne, Temple catcher.

Wildcats Romp Over N. Y. U. Foe In Scrimmage; Defense Weak

Sabrinski, Basca, Gogolinski Mainstays of Backfield; Wysocki, Chisik, Nowak and Bukofski Steal Honors on the Line; Tackle Slots Weak

After practicing for six weeks with no incentive in view, Villanova's varsity footballers were finally given an opportunity to "let off some steam" on Saturday when New York University invaded the Main Line. The Wildcats were victorious, 18-12, but the score does not tell the whole story of Saturday's fray.

The contest was conducted in an informal manner much in the same fashion as were last year's practice tilts with Columbia. The ball was put in play on either team's 25-yard line at the beginning of the contest and after each touchdown. Play was frequently halted so that both "Clipper" Smith and Mal Stevens could make some constructive criticism. No extra points were attempted.

'Cats Off to Poor Start

After a rather sorry opening the Blue team (it was Green on Saturday) came into their own and flashed an offense that at times clicked smartly, but at other times bogged miserably. On the defense the comparatively untried 'Cats left much to be desired. It was their first defensive work of the year, and, unfortunately, it was done against a New York University club that presented the acme in baffling offenses. On the whole the Main Line eleven gave promise of being another fine "Clipper" Smith eleven when next Fall rolls around.

New York University brought down a team composed of experienced men in all positions. Add to that the fact that they possessed a hard running attack and a smooth passing offense enables one to understand that Villanova was confronted with a very competent outfit. N. Y. U.'s initial drive began with the opening whistle and carried 75 yards to a touchdown. Mixing the thrusts of Ed Williams, their All-American threat, with the smashes of Harry Shorten, the Violet attack found very little defense before them and gained almost at will.

The Violets took the ball and again it seemed very likely that they were going to score again when the Wildcat forward wall finally positioned themselves correctly and halted the New York drive. From here the 'Cats essayed a drive of their own, but it fell short of a six-pointer when Johnny Gogolinski's touchdown dive was called back because of an illegal shift. A few moments later Mike Sabrinksi, who was Villanova's best running back all afternoon swept 51 yards around his left end for the Main Liners' first score of the day.

Sabrinski Scores Again

A little while later in the contest this same Sabrinski intercepted an N. Y. U. pass and sprinted 35 yards for another touchdown. Meanwhile the Wildcat forward wall had effectively checked the New York running attack and but for an occasional flurry of short passes checked their advance. The Violet team turned on the pressure at one point, however, and passed their way to a first down on Villanova's four-yard line. At this juncture the Main Liners' defense turned in their best performance. Four times the hard-running, accurate firing Violet performers tried to go through or over the Green Wave and four times they were hurled back until they were on their six-yard line when their lease on the ball had expired.

Basca to Nowak

With the contest in its waning moments the 'Cats struck once more. This time it was smooth Nick Basca looping a long aerial to "Whackin'" Walt Nowak who

TENNIS TEAM LOSES TO B. C.; BEATS U. OF B.

Dunne, Wellenbach Win First Two Matches in Impressive Style

Villanova's plucky tennis team opened the 1938 tennis team with an impressive 7-2 victory over the University of Baltimore on Saturday, after bowing to the strong Boston College team the previous afternoon 5-4. The matches were played on the Ardmore courts.

Both Dennis Dunne and Bert Wellenbach emerged victorious in the two encounters, Dunne playing the second singles position defeated Al Cunningham, of Boston, 7-5, 6-1, and then dropped Bill Cattalano in straight sets, 6-2, 6-3.

Wellenbach found Boston's fifth singles player a hard nut to crack. After dropping the first set to King, Wellenbach came back to take the next two for the match. The scores were 4-6, 6-3, 6-3. Against Khyatt of Baltimore, he literally breezed through dropping but one game in each set.

Most gratifying to Captain Saul Wallach were the performances of Freddie Rappleyea against the number one players of both schools. The Rochester boy played magnificent tennis against Andy Bismarck, Boston College leader, who ranks high in New England Intercollegiate tennis. Although he lost both sets to Bismarck by 6-2 scores, the former was pressed every moment, before he was de-

By SAUL WALLACH

It took six Villanova errore to give Temple University's victory starved athletes their first win over a Villanova team this year. Pep Young's Owl baseballers ending the famine with a 4-2 win over the Wildcats. The game was played on the Temple Stadium diamond, Saturday afternoon.

Although the locals outhit their arch-rivals eight to seven, they could do nothing against the slants of Jack Williams who elbowed shut out ball for five frames.

It was not until the sixth inning that the locals could do anything with the willow. Mike Garbark pickled one to the right field fence for a three base hit scoring Bob Bond and Captain Ray Stoviak. Garbark died at third when Rice grounded to short.

Temple got to Cliff Choquette in the early rounds, pounding him for a marker in the second, added two more in the following canto. They rounded out their scoring with a run in the fifth.

Howard Black, Temple's famed basketball star, playing his first baseball game of the year for the Owls, slammed a single in the third which registered Honicheck and Kovacevich. The latter scored in the fifth inning on Johnny Howard's single. Temple's other run was accounted for by Nick Mattola who scored from second on Bill Kuckers single. AUSTIN AND MENDEL EMERGE VICTORIOUS IN SUNDAY GAMES

Burlington Clouts Homer for Austinites; Carroll, Fedigan First Sacker, Gets One

CASTLES MOWS DOWN 16 IN REGISTERING FOURTH WIN

McCann Pitches Good Ball With Fine Support to Outpitch Persicano

By PHIL DUNN

With the advent of weather more suitable for baseball the teams of the INTRAMURAL LEAGUE began to play a game that more closely resembles the great national pastime. On Sunday morning the Mendel Penthousers eked out an 8 to 6 win over Alumni's Greenies; in the afternoon Father McKee's Austinites took care of Fedigan to an 8 to 3 tune.

This latter game gave Austin a very strong hold on first place. The worst they can do now is end up in a tie with Fedigan or Mendel and there seems to be very little chance of such a thing happening. From this angle it looks like a breeze.

McCann Pitches Well

In the morning game which lasted only five innings Mendel became the first team to deal Alumni two defeats when J. J. McCann bested Pat Persicano in a game of many thrills. McCann pitched good ball and except in a few places received good support from his teammates. Persicano also did some nice twirling but did not get quite as much support.

Mendel scored their first run in the first inning when Jack McCleary, who had walked, stole home from first with the aid of a few errors. Each team scored three times in the second and Mendel duplicated this feat in the fifth. It was these two innings that put the Penthousers across. Perhaps the most notable feature of the game was the "dazzling" play of Father Dunne on third base for his Alumni team. He also scored the Greenies first run.

Castles Whiff 16

The second game saw Frank Castles win his fourth consecutive game, his second at the expense of the Gigolos. In winning this game Castles added 16 more names to his list of strike-out victims, which is quite large at this time. Aside from Castles pitching the home runs of Burlington for Austin and Carroll for the Fedigantes were outstanding features of the game. Burlington's drive to rightcenter came in the second inning when two of his mates were on base. A close play at home on this ball resulted in his being called safe. Jim Carroll hit his homer over the head of Centerfielder Lavin. It was a very hard hit ball, but it came at the wrong time, in the last inning with nobody on base.

the numerous miscues, which marred the Villanova play.

To Williams should go the major portion of praise. The Owl hurler pitched fine ball, fanning eleven Villanova ball hawks and walked five. Choquette whiffed four men and passed one.

Cowboy Crawley was the hitting sensation of the day, hitting a trio of bingles. Bond and Merullo collected a pair each for the local cause.

The defeat brings the local record to three wins against two losses for the season. The wins so far have been recorded over Pennsylvania, Western Maryland and City College.

Jim Schelle limited Western Maryland to five hits, while his mates pounded four rival pitchers for 20 runs, a new high for local baseball teams. The final score read 20-3.

City College gave the locals little trouble in their game here during the Spring vacation. Frank Escott pitching shut out ball to win 14-0. Featuring the fray was the clouting of the entire Villanova nine all collecting an assortment of hits.

that there is a contradiction on the part of the writers of The Targum if the remark made by Mr. Isaacs was meant to be a blast aimed at the Wildcats.

To you Mr. Isaacs, if that statement of yours was meant to be a blast, we are counterfiring with our "Triple Distractor" and hope what follows will clear up in your mind just what the Villanova policy is concerning pre-season football encounters. Primarily, we want you to know that we are not only willing to meet any collegiate or university football team in a scrimmage but also are willing to meet any of these teams in actual contest if a proper agreement can be negotiated. We make this statement because we feel that we are in a position to hold our own against any team in the country and although our football schedule for 1939 may not reveal this fact, the cause cannot be attributed to lack of effort on the part of Villanova Athletic Authorities.

We have adopted this "Open-Door" policy because the Wildcats like to play football, especially against teams that have gained reputations as top-notchers on the gridiron. We feel that through pre-season scrimmages many faults of the individual players can be remedied and that greater precision, co-ordination, and team-work can be established which ordinarily cannot be achieved in the limited Fall drills. As a result of these Spring encounters coaches are better assured of putting out teams which will the fans the type of play they wish to witness and a chance for keener competition is afforded all around.

—V—

Finally, a Temple team has come out of an athletic contest ahead of the Wildcats, (too bad it had to be at the expense of our baseball team), but a word of encouragement from this department in that game which will be played later on in the season. We feel that it's tough enough to lose one game a season to the Cherry and White but it'll be a sour pill to swallow if we go down twice in the same sport.

—V—

Coach "Jumbo" Elliot will send his mile relay team into the Penn Relays this Saturday and all indications of past records this season should point to a commendable performance on the part of the men who will represent Villanova in this event.

—V—

Father McKee's boys have been setting a tremendous pace in the Intramural Baseball League and virtually have clinched the flag for the first half. Much of the Austin success must be attributed to Frank Castles who has been doing some nifty hurling to build up a nice string of strike-outs. In Sunday's tilt with Fedigan Frank was in fine form and struck out 16 Gigolo. in a seven inning ball game.

CALL FOR SPORTS WRITERS URGENT

A general call is being made to the entire Student Body for those being interested in writing Sport Stories. This appeal is being made because the number of sports writers were considerably lessened when the new staff was inaugurated. Ample opportunity for promotion is guaranteed to any of these new members who show that they have ability as writers and are just as equally qualified in regards to punctuality, responsibility and unafraid to work.

tour through Pennsylvania and New York.

Colgate, unlike the Lions, has not played any of the neighboring teams and not much is known of her comparative strength. She is expected, however, to show her usual fine spirit and no doubt will put a team on the field that is worthy of consideration as ascrappy outfit and will give the Wildcats a kind of test that they like to buck up against.

"Doc" Jacobs and his men, however, are still smarting from that Owl defeat and will be out there fighting all the way to prove to the fans that they are not a mediocre ball club but one that can hold its own with the best in the vicinity.

Big Jim Schelle, who has turned in some beautiful pitching for the 'Cats, this season, will no doubt see action in one of the two games. Jim has received credit for two of Villanova's victories and will be out to make it three straight when he's on the mound again. "Quack" Escott, whose pitching arm is in condition again, will most likely pitch in one of these games and will be out there seeking his second triumph.

By TOM O'MAHONEY

October 31, 1916, was more than Hallowe'en to the gold folk of Gilberton, Pa., for it was upon that date that the future Chief of the Austin Hall Fire Brigade, one Paul Kerrigan by name, first saw the light of day.

Paul grew up in the course of events, and soon entered grammar school at Maizeville, where he claims to have been the best marble player in the history of that small institution. Thus began our hero's athletic career.

It was not until he went to junior high in his native town of Gilberton that Paul played football or baseball. The people out there still remember him as a fast fullback and a peppy catcher. Catching the military fever, Kerrigan decided to wend his way to La Salle Military Academy at Oakdale, L. I. During the one year he spent there, Paul saw service as a guard on the varsity eleven and caught for the baseball team.

In 1932, Paul transferred to Valley Forge Military Academy at Wayne, Pa., in order to be nearer home and further from New York. Here he became an all-around athlete, playing football for three years, swimming, fencing, wrestling, boxing, polo, and baseball. He captained the wrestling team in his senior year, and scored his first and last polo goal in the same term against P. M. C.'s plebe squad. Outside of the fact that he "nearly drowned" trying to win a race for good old Valley Forge, Paul avers that he had no very exciting experiences while at the Wayne school.

Attracted to Villanova by the collegians lolling around the campus in the Spring, Paul determined that he, too, would like to spend four years at our fair college, so he enrolled as a frosh in the Fall of 1935.

Paul's athletic activities consisted of boxing and intramural baseball during his first term. As a sophomore, Paul went out for 150 lb. football, and became a regular at halfback. The dollar and a half boys didn't fare too well that year, losing five out of six. Most thrilling moment of season for our subject came in the annual Yale game at New Haven. Paul intercepted a pass in the clear toward the end of the bitter battle, but was so tired that he fell down after running 20 yards. The game ended 0-0 and the Fire Chief has regretted that moment to this day.

In his junior year, aPul again engaged in 150 lb. football and had the happy experience of being knocked out in the Princeton game, to wake up some 15 hours after the encounter in the Tigers' infirmary.

In his junior year, Paul again elected captain of the 150's, and led them through their most successful season. (It was the first year that the Kittens won a league game, Penn being the victim.) Incidentally, Paul scored his only touchdown of his three year career in the Penn upset, smashing off tackle and running 30 yards for the second score of the game for the Blue. When he receives his degree of Bachelor of Science in Economics this June, Paul intends to submit his credits to the University of Pennsylvania School of Law. Probably so he can be near Ardmore for a few more years, no doubt!

clared the winner. But Saturday told a different story. With the Bismarck match under his belt, Rappleyea outdid his performance of the day before and swamped Hammill of the Marylanders in straight sets, 6-3, 6-4.

Outstanding victories were turned in by Jim Cousart who split his matches losing to Donnoly, of Boston, and then coming back to take a hard fought match from Harold Solomon, ranking Baltimore player. Beatty Schermerhorn, playing his first match for Villanova trounced Jack Lynch, of Boston.

Len Winfield won a thriller from Tim Dacey, of Boston, and Jack Leary turned in a win over Klavins, of Baltimore.

Boston College invaded the local courts with six matches under their belts, and boasting of victories over Loyola, William and Mary and West Virginia Teachers, while the locals had yet to play a match.

There was more glory in the defeat than one could conceive. The Villanovans annexed four of the six singles events, but failed to snatch one of the three double matches on the program, which would have reversed the final score.

Rappleyea and Dunne failed to turn the trick after they had taken their first set from Dacey and Donnoly. The Bostonians came back to win the second at love and the third by 6-4, to stow away the match for Boston College.

'CAT GOLFERS LOSE MEETS TO FORDHAM, HAVERFORD COLLEGE

Captain Jimmy Dwyer, Still Undefeated, Hands First Reverse to Tully, Ram Leader

OUTLOOK FOR '38 IS DIM

Villanova's golfers traveled up to Fordham Saturday afternoon and lost their second match in three days, 7-2, on the Gebney Country Club, at White Plains, New York.

Captain Jim Dywer remained undefeated handing Fordham's Captain Tully his first defeat in intercollegiate golf competition, two up. Jimmy was pressed by Captain Tully to the last hole. After being dormied with two holes to play Tully birdied the 17th to remain one down with one hole to play. At this instance, when the pressure was getting hot, Jimmy played the last hole in regulation figure to win the match two up.

Cliff Randolph, promising Freshman, won the other Wildcat point by turning back Jack Curran, four and three. The best ball match went to Tully and Curran, seven and six.

Lou Dubino, playing number two man for the 'Cats, handicapped by an injured wrist, was outclassed seven and six after his closing rally fell short. Charlie Roche, Dave Morse and Frank Murcko lost their matches by close scores.

Playing on the Radnor Country Club, Thursday, the Wildcat linksmen found themselves beaten by Haverford College when the best they could garner was two individual victories and two ties, one in the individual matches and the other in a best ball match. The Scarlet and Black copped the match six to three.

The Wildcat's Jim Dwyer, continuing his winning ways, set back Haverford's Bill Duff, 5 and 4, but his partner, Cliff Randolph succumbed to Charley Sponsler 5 and 3. Despite the closeness of the winning margin the best ball was won by Haverford 5 and 4.

The 'Cat's Frank Murcko halved his match with Bud Gross. Murcko's partner Charley Roche, defeated Ben Webster, 4 and 3, but the best ball was halved.

In the third foursome of the afternoon, the Blue lost three ways. Dave Morse bowed to Jack Wilson, 3 and 1, and John Callan bowed to Robert Everett, 7 and 6. Haverford, of course won best ball.

The divot diggers have not been at full strength in any match since the start of the season. Manager James Lyons has had many headaches as he sought replacements when one of his regulars showed up with some injury or illness.

Dwyer himself has been bothered by a heavy cold since the first match. Lou Dubino hurt his wrist early last week and has played in the last two matches handicapped by the injury.

Lyons is hoping for Dubino's recovery in time for the return match with St. Joseph's at the Main Line Country Club this Thursday.

Jim Dwyer, Villanova, defeated Leo Tully, 2 up.

Jack Burke, Fordham, defeated Lou Dubino, 7 and 8.

Best Ball Fordham 7 and 5.

Art Conarty, Fordham, defeated Frank Murcko, 4 and 2.

Joe Mikita, Fordham, defeated Dave Morse, 6 and 5.

Best Ball Fordham 6 and 5.

Cliff Randolph, Villanova, defeated Jack Curran, 4 and 3.

Vince Kelly, Fordham, defeated Chas. Roche, 7 and 5.

Best Ball Fordham 6 and 5.

Totals—Fordham, 2; Villanova, 7.

Trailing three touchdowns to one the New York team loosed a furious barrage of forward passes which carried them to the Main Liners five-yard line. From there it was only a matter of time until N. Y. U. pushed over their second six-pointer and the fray ended.

fani and Robert G. Howe. The new officiating editors thanked the members for their help in gaining this coveted role and promised to follow in the footsteps of past VILLANOVAN editors.

Keys Presented

The main speaker of the evening was Fr. McKee. He presented VILLANOVAN keys to the Senior members of the staff. The following were recipients of keys: Joseph Toland, William Bowker, Harry Guckenberger, Thomas Kennedy, Andrew Conte, Richard Deverall, John Simons, Joseph Alessondroni, James Lyons, Joseph Sanborn, and John Rhoads.

The VILLANOVAN moderator spoke of each member personally as he presented the keys, and told of the excellent qualities he observed in them during their time on the staff. Of Joseph Toland he said, "I have seen many Villanova students and editors come and go, but I'll put Joe Toland up against them all. He's a swell fellow and an excellent student." Of Richard Deverall he spoke, "Dick has been called to my attention as one of the leading young Catholic writers."

Seek Award Again

Father McKee thanked the members of the staff for the excellent work done during the past year and wished them success throughout the coming year. He said, "I feel as if the VILLANOVAN will again be the recepient of the All-American and All-Catholic award for the coming year. Only last week Mr. Kilpatrick, Dean of the Marquette School of Journalism, wrote complimenting on the excellence of the VILLANOVAN and said he felt sure we would again receive high honors."

Toastmasters Mackin brought the speaking program to an end by presenting Father McKee and Toland with surprise gifts from the staff members. Toland received a new electric razor, and Father McKee was presented with a fountain pen and pencil set.

argument presented against the system of collective security as presented by Dr. Fenwick of Bryn Mawr College seemed to be that the world was not ready to put such a plan into operation because it had no fundamental principles upon which the operation of such a plan could be based.

Miss Ernestine Garofalo forshadowed the sentiment of the body when she stated that without a code of justice no code of international law, whether it be solely on economic or political lines, could work.

The afternoon session on Wednesday was the student organization meeting. During this time Mr. O'Shea, of St. John's University, was elected president of the body.

Perhaps the most important action taken by the group was the resolution favoring the Reciprocal Trade Pacts. That the group was in favor of extending them to all nations was forcibly brought out when the student body insisted that Reciprocal Trade Pacts before the resolution be passed.

The outgoing senior members received a fitting reward for their work in the organization in the form of a key. These keys are presented annually to the graduating members of the fraternity. RARE PHOTOGRAPHS APPEAR IN SCIENCE PUBLICATION TODAY

Third Issue of Mendel Bulletin Is Distributed This Afternoon

Students of the Science School will be presented with the third issue of the Mendel Bulletin this afternoon at one o'clock, it was announced by Vincent Ciacci, chairman of the board of editors.

This issue will be unique in that the frontispiece is made up of something rarely seen in any scientific journal. After many weeks of tedious work the photographic staff has succeeded in producing a composite photograph of the spinal cord of the rat and an enlarged neuron of the human spinal cord.

"Genetics for the Millions," a simple explanation of the Mendelian laws of heredity, is one of the featured articles which should arouse a great deal of interest. The article attempts to explain the most prominent and interesting postulates of Mendel to make the average layman understand these much discussed laws.

Other Topics Included

Three other articles of lasting interest are presented: "Cleavage in Mammalian Eggs" and "Desmonds," both accompanied by photomicrographs, and "Birds on Our Campus," a treatise on local ornithology. The issue is completed with the usual array of reports on various new books in the scientific world.

Ciacci urges the students to call for them at the publication office of the bulletin as other methods of distribution lead to complications.

The fourth and final issue will be distributed about May 29. The material for this issue has been selected and promises to be the most outstanding of any topics chosen this year. Those writing the articles are now engaged in further experimental work that they may culminate a successful year with papers worthy of note in their chosen fields.

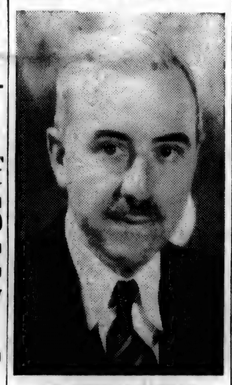
MENDEL MEDALIST



DR. THOMAS PARRAN

U.S. HEALTH OFFICIAL WILL BE RECIPIENT OF MENDEL MEDAL

Honorary Award Conferred Annually to Outstanding Catholic Scientist

Dr. Thomas Parran, Surgeon General of the United States Public Health Service, will receive the Mendel Medal from Villanova College for outstanding work in science, the Very Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O.S.A., president of Villanova, announced today.

Presented in May

Presentation of the medal will be made at Villanova later this month. It is awarded Dr. Parran in recognition of his scientific approach to the problems of public health.

Noted for his encouragement of research in the control of cancer and venereal diseases, Dr. Parran was appointed Surgeon General of the United States Public Health Service in April, 1936 after twenty years with the Corps which he entered in 1916 to do rural sanitation work. Since then, he has served in fourteen states on public health research and administrative assignments. From 1930 to 1936 he was Commissioner of Public Health for the State of New York.

Dr. Parran will be the tenth recipient of the Mendel Medal Award, founded by Villanova College in 1928 in honor of Gregor Mendel, Abbott of the Augustinian Monastery, Brunn, Austria, who gave to the world the celebrated Mendelian Laws of Heredity.

One of America's most distinguished men of medicine, Dr. Parran is a native of southern Maryland, born near St. Leonard's, September 28, 1892. He graduate from St. John's College, Annapolis, in 1911 and, with honors, from Georgetown University College of Medicine in 1915. He holds honorary degrees from both institutions and also from Syracuse, Colgate and Wesleyan Universities and from the Philadelphia College of Pharmacy.

TICKETS FOR SALE

Tickets for the traditional Junior Promenade may be secured from any member of the committee in charge or from the office of the VILLANOVAN, 119 Mendel Hall, for the subscription price of $4.50.

ALUMNI QUARTERLY TO BE DISTRIBUTED ON FRIDAY, MAY 6

Rev. Edward V. Stanford Contributes Article to First Issue of Publication

An important step in its expansion program, the Alumni Association of Villanova College has undertaken the publication of its first magazine, the "Villanova Alumnus." Approximately 3500 copies of this initial issue will be distributed on Friday, May 6.

Reiley Is Editor

The editorial staff of the "Villanova Alumnus" includes Edmond P. Reiley, '35; John J. Stell, '35; and Louis P. Marechal, '35. Serving in the capacity of associate editors are Gene Reiley, '29; Harold Keating, '35; James W. Keeley, '35, and Thomas F. Kennedy, '37.

According to officials of the alumni group, the "Villanova Alumnus" will fill a long felt want in the relation between Alumni and college, between graduates and students, and most of all, between the various members and groups of our alumni.

The expansion program and objectives of the association include a larger publication, a suitable annual budget, the establishment of an Alumni Scholarship Fund, an employment bureau, an alumni directory, and greater alumni activity.

Published Quarterly

Included in the first issue of the alumni quarterly are editorials, a local club directory, sports news, class and alumni club activity, campus events, and a complete program for the Alumni Week-End program on June 3 and 4.

Articles by Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O. S. A., president of Villanova College, J. Stanley Smith, Esq., '98, president of the Alumni Association; P. F. Bammiller, '35, secretary-treasurer of the association; and J. Stanley Morehouse, acting departmental head of the Engineering school at Villanova, will also be featured in Friday's publication.

ATTEND ANNUAL PARLEY

Fr. Boyle and Dr. Hartman Present at Catholic Education Convention

Two representatives of Villanova's faculty, namely, Rev. Joseph I. Boyle, O. S. A., and Dr. Harold Hartman, professor of history, attended the 19th annual convention of the Catholic Educational Association of Pennsylvania on Friday and Saturday, April 29 and 30. Both men took an active part in the meeting by contributing speeches.

The topic of Father Boyle's presentation was, "Research in Catholic Elementary Education."

Dr. Hartman enlivened the discussion by his paper entitled, "Do Catholic Colleges Develop Civic Intelligence?"

STUDENTS ADDRESS SPANISH SYMPOSIUM

M. Joseph McNamara, Villanova Sophomore, Among Speakers at Meeting

At the Symposium on Spain held last Sunday in St. Joseph's College Auditorium, M. Joseph McNamara, a student of Villanova College, spoke on the Spanish situation.

The topic of McNamara's address was the Two Standards. He contrasted the two codes of action and the conduct exemplified by the contending forces. Also included was a treatment of the propaganda about Guerica and Badajoz and a critical analysis of it.

Four Students Speak

Among the student speakers who took part in the symposium were the following: Alice Hafner, of the College of Chestnut Hill, Mary C. Irwin, of Immaculata College, Daniel J. McCauley, of LaSalle College, and Mary Joan Queeney, of Rosemont College.

Ogden Haggerty Hammond, former United States Ambassador to Spain, in delivering the welcoming address explained the details of the Symposium and the method of collecting questions.

All the addresses, except the welcoming speech and the final papers, were presented by the student orators. The final paper, prepared and delivered by Captain John Eoghan Kelly, U. S. Army, was an interpretation of the troubles in Spain and an exposition of the lessons to be learned.

Perhaps the most impressive part of the whole affair was the processional to the platform led by the Knights of Columbus' Color Guard, marching to the national anthem of Spain, "Marcha Granadera."

THIS IS YOUR WEEK

JUNIORS, this is your week. The bars of scholastic monotony have been temporarily let down and the powers of discipline have granted special concessions so that you may enjoy yourselves. For three years you have awaited this week and now it is upon you. Your class officials have done a splendid job in laying out a program of activities which has left nothing to be desired. One of the best orchestras in the nation has been secured for your traditional Junior Prom.

This is your week of memories. Of all the things in your entire collegiate career that you will remember the social life of your Junior Week will hold first place in your catalogue of pleasant memories.

It is for this week and for this week alone that the serious side of college life is overshadowed by the light and equally important social aspect.

Without a doubt Junior Week is the best time of your entire college career. What are you going to do about it? Are you going to make the best of this marvelous opportunity or are you going to allow yourself to be forever sorry that you did not enter into every Junior Week activity with all your might? Are you going to give your wholehearted support to all your class affairs or are you going to skip the Mass tomorrow, and "forget" to attend the Flag raising and ivy planting?

As real Villanova students and members of one of the best classes ever to enter these hallowed portals we feel sure that the attendance at every Junior affair is going to be one hundred percent.

Don't be a fool. Don't allow one minute of any activity to go by without your being there. Junior Week is something you shall never forget. Be on hand for everything and give all your class activities the support that is expected of you. If you want your Junior Week to remain as a pleasant memory show your spirit by co-operation and be present at everything.

Junior Week is the best time of your college life. It is up to you to make the best of it.

THE RIGHT GOAL

BENEATH time's roaring cannons many walls fall down. With the walls fall empires and the aspirations of peoples. As it is with nations so it is also with us. All our wishes which have as their objects things of this world are liable to falling. In the flash of a second all that we have looked forward to, all that we have planned, may fade before our view.

As we go forth each day among our fellow men we are wrapped in a black cloak. We are constantly being misunderstood. Our motives, even when we try to do good, are questioned. Our teachers may misunderstand just as our classmates may.

Each of us is striving towards a goal. But even at this early stage the realization forces itself upon us that the road to success is a gloomy one. We have a goal but others are also striving towards the same goal. We fail and we are envious. We share our victory with others and the value of the goal is lessened. Aside from that, we see that the goals we attain do not mean much. To us they are great, but to a following generation they, with their doers, are forgotten. Where are the heroes of yester-year? Buried and forgotten as we in turn shall be.

A black picture!! But this picture has a silver lining. It is black only because we do not distinguish between the true blessings and those things greatly diverse from them—the dark clouds of error. If we have the bow of our ship pointed toward the port which we can all reach—the only goal really worth attaining—HEAVEN, wordly difficulty will have been a blessing.

REMEMBER! OH GRACIOUS VIRGIN

THE best is none too good for Mary the Mother of God. Holy Mother Church, wise old Matron that she is, realized this when she dedicated the beautiful month of May as the month of devotion to Our Blessed Mother.

As May exemplifies youth and beauty and all that is fine and vigorous in Nature the Church sets aside this month of devotion to show us how Mary exemplifies all that is pure and noble in human character; all that is youthful and strong in the make-up of man.

Mary has long stood as the example of Motherhood and the model of youth. Her purity and simplicity is the aim of every Catholic girl and the admiration of every Catholic young man.

It has often been said of Mary in that beautiful prayer the "Memorare" that "never was it known that anyone who fled to thy protection, or implored thy help was left unaided."

Is there anything you would like to ask Mary? Is it help in your studies that you want? Are you striving to overcome some fault? If so why not visit Our Lady in daily Mass during this sacred month.

Some weeks ago this newspaper asked the college authorities to keep the 7:30 Mass on the schedule. Because of this request and in order to make Mass convenient there will be a Mass said at this additional hour every morning. Our Blessed Mother will not let you down. Give her a chance.

ODDS and ENDS

By Rene Calliet

LAST week marked the first appearance of this column under the authorship of a new writer but it so happens that only the above picture was changed as Tom O'Mahoney continued to do his stuff. Maybe the old saying of 'better than never' is wrong and should be 'better never'; but nevertheless . . . here goes.

A short while back, Mr. Colodonato, the college tailor, found a five dollar bill (which he returned) in the suit of a certain Mr. Martin of room 106 Mendel Hall. This surprises us. Not the fact that the bill was returned, but that there is a Villanova student who gets his suits pressed and also the discovery of so much money in one bulk sum belonging to one student.

Organic students claim, "He that acetates is lost."

Mrs. Roosevelt may think she's original with her egg rolling, but last Friday the Pie Shop originated its own egg rolling. This time, Art Somers was on the receiving end of a single hen fruit which splattered on his hat rack. If you ever find the thrower, Art, Holland will be in Dutch, and I don't mean another Hitler geographical change.

The choice morsel of feminity that will warble with Hal Kemp here Friday lost her first "break" through an accident and once again is on the road to fame due to another accident. After making her debut with Rudy Vallee several years back, she was the victim of an accident that ensured her success.

For a while she was on the side lines; now, due to Maxine Grey's accident on a Western train, she once again is back in the "swing," with Hal Kemp.

Student activity should be encouraged so here is a poem written by Larry Knaphle under the influence of Wordsworth or Spring. (Couldn't be that girl from home coming here for the Prom, could it Larry?)

Hal Kemp's the leader of a band
One of the finest that's in the land.
This year in May we have the chance
To hear him play the Junior Dance.
We'll waltz to sweet syncopation
Shag to modern swingcopation.
So get a girl and join the fun
We'll have that nite our Week is done.
Swell idea. See you on Saturday night.

CAMPUS CAMERA

The Observer

SINCE we have taken over the best column in the paper, we have been told that it has a very good policy which must be lived up to. Shall we examine the policy?

Of the twenty nine nominations for the campus "most" or "best," made by "Ye Old Observer," six of the fellows have been on this year's staff of his magazine, "The Christian Front." At least fourteen of these men worked for him last year. Two have been his roommates, one his manager on this past year's "VILLANOVAN," and last but by no means the least, he nominated his own column as the best.

At first view, then, we shall only have to keep naming the people that are considered personal friends.

Still investigating this last masterpiece of the retired columnist, "Ye New Observer" found the column started with what very closely resembled an advertisement for his present means of letting off steam on things that aggravate him.

Added to this, the next part of our receipe for a good columnist, seems to be that we must use the well known editorial "WE." All right, we're already begun that.

We must also refer to foreign affairs at least once a week. Thank goodness, there is freedom of the press. We haven't been told what we must say there, but then I guess I'll just string along with "THE RED BATTER" and just condemn them all.

Now here is where the difficult part comes in. Little Dickie had some kind of drag or something, 'cuz he could always seem to reach into his basket and pull out some fan mail just at the time he needed a space filler. He tried to waken some interest in the column promising to give a hearing to all worth while letters. We also promise to give a hearing to all good and worthwhile letters addressed to condemn them all.

"THE OBSERVER" in care of this paper.

Advice:

Ever since I was knee-high to a grasshopper, I firmly believed the old saying, "Nero fiddled while Rome burned." But now I know it's bunk—there weren't any fiddles at the time—the "Emp" used a harp!

However, over in Mendel Hall, the Frosh seem to be faced with a similar condition. Someone on the second floor is "saxing" while his mates burn. It may not be a fire in Mendel, but the sax is plenty hot.

The weather is fine now, why not take a jaunt out in Conshohocken way? There's plenty of room there and I believe they'll let you horn that saxaphone till you burst. Why not take the limit and let the undergraduates suffer in peace!

Now we have the ace of excuses:

The golf team contributes its losses this year to the fact that Ed "Bobby Jones" Tirrell has departed from the squad. We'd like to know the value of Mr. Tirrell in the sport at the college. How many matches has he won? Did his support mean victory? No! In our roundabouts, we've found a few answers. Ed could always be counted on as a sure loss, so the fellows always plugged a little harder to over come this handicap.

This year, we are sorry to say, Ed has not turned out for the team. His mates were so relieved that they figured everything was on the skids. Well, for the other teams, it was on ice; no incentive for the local lads. Come on Ed, the boys need you.

PASSING THOUGHT: Who is G. H. C., and why is she hanging around the campus? Could it be that R. T. P. is having a slight "case," or does she know there is a Prom!

There seems to be a popular sport around here called, "Dunkin' the Dames." At any rate, it is gaining in popularity day by day. We remember a similar event which happened on a dark night but the game has gained such favor that now it is played during the day. Our complaint is that there are too many experts playing this game. Wouldn't it be wonderful if they could throw water as expertly as they throw the "bull."

Capitalism is on the downfall, and Bobby "Banker" Daniello is melancholy these days. It seems that our diminutive friend has in his spare moments acted in the capacity of official Bank and Trust Co. of Austin Hall. Rumor has it that he was entrusted with almost one hundred dollars in investments prior to the Senior Ball.

However, either the Juniors are giving Annie Oaklies, or the boys have gained a little will power, for Bob says no one has come across as yet. Perhaps, Bob, the boys don't know you've already secured your ticket . . . your rep is still as good as ever.

Junior elections are in the air, and we're wondering if "Winchell" Chunko is ready to make any revelations at this time. Ask him, and let us know! It is little known about the campus, but Chunko was responsible for the signing of Hal Kamp for the Junior Prom. Inside information has it that the diminutive personality was so anxious to pull a "scooper" on ex-editor Joe Toland that he enveigled Chairman Furey into signing Kemp. The story follows that he walked into the VILLANOVAN office, extended his manly chest (24 inches all told), and gave Joe the story two weeks prior to its release. Good work, Chunko, but your test is coming!

To be understood is to make sense. To make cents is to coin money. To coin money means 20 years in jail. So what's the use of being understood?

—The Griffin.

Though this doesn't particularly belong in our column, we cannot let it go by without inserting something about it. It seems that last week Eddie Cantor, comedian, became ill and couldn't appear on his regular program. Subbing for Cantor, and flying from Maine in order to keep the show rolling was Rudy Vallee. Orchids to Rudy for his sportsmanlike gesture. Were it that we had more showmen like Rudy.

Speaking of Rudy, it was this same individual who paved the way for the success of Judy Starr, charming diminutive singer, who will visit the campus with Hal Kemp's band this Saturday. Obscured and unknown, Rudy "nursed" Miss Starr along until she became a "name" in her own right. Miss Starr has never forgotten and we admire her for it. And if you think Miss Starr can't sing just drop in at the Prom Saturday night and you be the judge.

Carroll Is Selected A. S. C. E. Leader For Ensuing Year

Junior Succeeds Michael O'Brien as President; Other Results Announced

James Carroll, popular junior civil engineer, has recently been elected president of the student chapter of the American Society of Civil Engineers.

In conjunction with this announcement, the society released the names of the other officers who will serve for the scholastic year 1938-1939. Cyril Daly, junior in the same school, was selected vice-president, while Joseph Gallagher, sophomore was chosen secretary-treasurer.

Carroll replaces Michael O'Brien under whose direction the society was represented at the civil engineers convention held at Delaware University last Monday.

As soon as he assumed office the new president asked for the ever increasing co-operation of all the members and announced the intention to try and make the society the best in the history of the local A. S. M. E.

The final meeting of the society under its new leadership will be in the near future. It has been expressed that all the old members as well as any new expectant members should attend.

Younger Generation: For the past six years NBC has shoved one of its best programs around the network time. Consistently the show has received the dramatic award each year for educational and family interest. The "March of Time" has shared the award with this program, neither able to top the other. "One Man's Family" hit air way back in 1932 on Saturday night's at eleven. Shortly afterward it was shifted to Friday eve around ten. Then it finally bit a permanent time, Wednesday evening at eight, the present time. Its first sponsor was the network itself, giving way to a new cigarette sponsor who made "Kentucky Derby, the name of the cig. Then along came Royal Gelatin, and now its Tender Leaf Tea. All through this strife the loyalty of the listening audience has been amazing as well as spectacular, even Crosley gives it top rating. It's worth your while to tune in.

Introducing

By LEN FLINKMAN

THOMAS G. KENNEDY

TAKE your car beyond its accustomed haunts on a journey of exploration. The short stretch of road with its pop-stands, gas-tanks, water-cans, hot dogs, ukeleles, Kewpie dolls and chocolate almond bars to which you are accustomed, and of which you think as something local, is the broad and pulsing artery of a nation. Perhaps you know the road. It begins almost anywhere, at a farmhouse called Ye Willow Inne, climbs a hill and runs willingly between two rows of fences, trees and posts, and runs right into Middlebary Center, Penna. It is there, commencing in a Summer setting, that a country gentleman, Dr. Foster Kennedy and his charming wife, Katherine, raised a son, Thomas G.

Rode A Pony

It was on May 3, 1915, shortly less than a week before Mother's Day, that the country doctor emptied his pockets of cigars.

Thomas had his preliminary education in a small country school, painted green to reflect the summer's heat, to depict an awesome scene in the Winter against a setting of snow. Tom grew, increased his riding ability, and then one day rode a dusty mile further to Wellsboro High Schr l. Before his pony had finished his bag of feed, Tom was elected president of the freshman class. It was now time to shine for our Tom, and shine he did. He joined the Dramatic Club and, strange to mention, was the villain in the outstanding show of the school's history.

And then one day he carried his best girl's books home. Tom was now a full-fledged member of the masculine sex. So it was shortly afterward that a tall and lean boy sauntered into the gym and announced his intention of playing basketball. It was again time to shine for our Tom. From that afternoon until his graduation he amazed the local sport fans with his unerring eye. Not to be denied further glory in his farewell year the student body elected him president of the Athletic Association.

The farmer's son goes to college and becomes a lawyer. The engineer's son goes to college and becomes a scientific farmer. The bank teller takes a night course in admiralty law, the school teacher studies structural drafting after hours, and the butcher's son is learning to be a detective.

Tom this time jumped a mechanical horse via Pennsylvania R. R. and got off at Villanova. With a traveling bag in one hand, his hat in the other, he walked a perspiring pace up the path to Mendel Hall. In a bewildered mood, he quickly got the first Villanova tradition imposed upon a Freshman—the "Hello" habit. It was "Hello" to the right of him and "Hy ya" to the left of him. The boy was in the swing of things.

Was V. C.

This was September, 1934. Like the other embryos, Tom plugged the oil lamp and studied by night, played by day. Summer vacation arrived and hizzoner went home a Sophomore. But he came back in September, 1935. Right off the bat, Father Vrana appointed him to the Vigilance Committee, and to show his appreciation, he has been wearing his V. C., cap ever since. One day he turned around in front of the book store and noticed an engraved plate staring him in the face, "Villanovan Office." For the second time in his life, he sauntered, this time into the publication office and announced his intention of joining the staff. They were looking for a hard worker for the circulation staff. Tom accepted, and he's been there ever since. Now, in his last year, he is Circulation Manager and quite deservingly has received his key of recognition.

Time flies and brings with it all things—to Tom it brought appointment to Student Council in his Junior Year. It also brought him up to his Senior Year and now he has two important positions to glory—the Senior Ball Committee. This is the photo-finish of a fine race down the stretch. Yes sir! it has a high polish.

Hal Kemp, Remembering Own Prom, Says Juniors Will Remember Theirs

Committee Signed "Favorite Villanova Orchestra" According to Poll; Band Features Staccato Style of Syncopation

Villanova Junior Week celebration promises to come to a stirring climax with the Junior Promenade to be held in the local Field House on Saturday evening, May 7. Hal Kemp and his famous orchestra will play for this gala event.

The Junior Prom is the real highlight of the Villanova Junior Week, and it may even be said that it is really the feature of the brilliant series of events which go to make up Junior Week.

Voted "Tops"

To make this event one worth remembering the Junior Prom Committee headed by Thomas Furey secured the "Favorite Villanova Orchestra" when they signed Hal Kemp. The Kemp organization was voted "Tops" by the local collegians in the favorite orchestra poll conducted by the VILLANOVAN. This poll proved the real popularity of the selected orchestra and the Juniors feel they have met the wishes of the student body as a whole in securing the drawling maestro and his orchestra.

Every college student, especially Juniors, remember "Junior Prom" and speak of it years after. The Junior Class wishes to make this an exceptional "Junior Prom." One that Villanova students will remember as the "best" in "Junior Proms."

Kemp Is Collegian

Hal Kemp, who himself is a collegian having first organized his orchestra at the University of North Carolina in 1926, realizes what a Junior Prom is, and should be and can be counted on for his usual excellent performance.

When the Juniors contracted for an orchestra they had the opportunity of meeting Hal personally and he said: "Ah remember my own Junior Prom and ah'll try to make you boys remember yours."

The Kemp orchestra has a style all its own. The staccato style of syncopation combines slow restrait with modulated audaciousness that has captured the fancy of listeners everywhere, especially collegians.

With Hal next Saturday will be Miss Judy Starr, charming blonde songstress, who's both easy on the eyes and the ears. A fitting partner for the local refrains will be found in handsome Bob Allen, a stirring baritone, who's excellent renditions make listening more enjoyable than dancing.

A comic note will also be struck when Saxie Dowell, he of the crazy antics, makes his appearance. This gentleman is one of the original members of Hal Kemp's orchestra and never fails to make a hit. His entertaining antics combined with his cheery voice bring laughs from all. Saxie is especialy famous for his version of "Ole Man of the Mountains" which he will include in his repetoire for next Saturday.

Decorations, which are always one of the most important points of a Junior Prom, have not been forgotten, and the class of '39 promises something new and different in this line. The Junior Prom Decorating Committee are working hand in hand with the Blazer Ball Decorating group and together they expect to reach a new peak in Villanova decorating at the Junior Promenade next Saturday.

SCIENCE GATHERING TO HEAR FR. FARLEY

Eastern Penitentiary Chaplain Addresses Weekly Seminar This Thursday

Rev. Bernard J. Farley, chaplain of the Eastern State Penitentiary in Philadelphia, will return to Villanova College this Thursday when he will again deliver a lecture to the members of the Science School at the weekly seminar in the Mendel Amphitheatre.

Father Farley will be welcomed on his second visit to the Science Seminar by Rev. Joseph M. Dougherty, O. S. A., dean of the School of Science at the college. Father Dougherty has recently been honored with the election into membership in the American Association of Sciences.

In his discourse, the chaplain will address the students on the interesting subject, "The Aspects of Criminology." Having close association with the science of Criminology through intimacy with Federal and State criminal authorities, Father Farley's lecture should prove of great interest to the student audience.

Father Farley may be remembered for his discouse upon the same occasion in 1936. His addresses are delivered in an informal manner, yet carry much weight in educational benefit. The lecture will begin punctually at 10:45 A. M. Students are urged to comply with regulations and be in their seats at the start of the assembly.

Secretary—George J. Flannery, of the C & F School; and Sophomore Student Council Representative Clifford F. Randolph, likewise of the Commerce and Finance School.

President Capable

The popularity and capability of Sinnott, the new Junior president, are already self-evident facts on the Villanova campus. The Class of 1940, having had previous experience in the matter of elections, demonstrated that it desired both an athlete and a scholar to lead it when Sinnott was chosen.

He has featured prominently in varsity basketball though only a Sophomore. Several games would undoubtedly have been lost last season had it not been for his untiring energy and accurate shooting. As a man of some literary ability, he has more than proved his worth. He has been on the Villanovan staff for two years and this year he has been designated to edit the column, "Here and There."

Frosh Head Active

As is well known, the past elections afforded the first year men their initial opportunity of acting officially as a class. Their choice of a president seems to be an excellent one if versatility in extra-curricular activities is to be the standard. Zealor has utilized his uncommon oratorical talents to the best possible advantage in behalf of the yearling Forsenic Society and, as a reward, was made its president.

To his position on the VILLANOVAN staff as a feature writer and his prominent place in the Belle Masque Dramatic Society Zealor has added several others, viz, his active participation in the Study Club, the International Relations Society, and a representative of Villanova at several sociological conventions.

A. S. M. E. NOMINATES FOR ENSUING YEAR

Local Engineers Make Preparation for Annual Smoker Next Week

At a meeting held yesterday under the direction of Emil A. Mathias, the American Society of Mechanical Engineers held its anual official nominations.

Chosen as possible leaders are Raymond MacGregor and Edward Ritti, members of the school of Technology. Anthony J. Cirrito, newly selected president of the Phi Kappa Pi fraternity, declined nomination.

The position of vice-president will be chosen between John Seelaus and Otto Christoph. John Heck, Casimir Kurlk, and Edward Hlubry are the nominees for Treasurer-Secretary.

Monday, May 9, was suggested as the possible date for the society's annual smoker. Committees for refreshments and entertainment were appointed.

The smoker will be held at the Field House where the pool tables, bowling alleys, and similiar games will be accessible. It was planned to send out invitations to all the students of the school, as well as to engineering societies of neighboring colleges. As yet no definite speaker has been decided upon, but it is believed that a leader in the field of engineering will be asked. Tickets were placed at 25 cents.

McNally Rejects "Irish" To Stay With 'Cats

WILDCATS WIN TWO ON ROAD TRIP

Vince Declines Head Post Of Knute Rockne Memorial

Cat Assistant Coach, Who Starred on Notre Dame's Basketball and Football Teams, Seems to Like Villanova Atmosphere and 'Clipper' Smith

McNALLY DECISION DELIGHTS WILDCATS

The "Luck of the Irish" stays with the Villanova Wildcats. Vincent A. ("Shanty") McNally, associate gridiron coach at Villanova, recently rejected a tempting bid to join the athletic staff at Notre Dame, it was learned yesterday.

McNally, Philadelphian, who starred in football and basketball for the "Irish" in '25, '26, '27, was offered the chance to head the Knute Rockne Memorial in charge of intramural athletics at South Bend.

He declined with thanks, in favor of staying at Villanova as co-worker with Head Coach Maurice J. "Clipper" Smith, another brilliant pupil of the immortal "Rock," helping to shape the gridiron destinies of the scrappy 'Cats.

Wildcats Agree With McNally

The work at Villanova seems to agree with McNally. Although his hair is graying up a bit more than somewhat, Vince still preserves that "schoolboy figure." His spare six-foot frame does not carry much more weight today than the 145 pounds that covered it when he was a string-bean quarter barking signals in the "Irish" backfield and a slender flash streaking down the hardwood for Notre Dame to earn ranking as All-Western forward for two successive seasons, '26 and '27.

Vince learned his football and basketball at Roman Catholic High School in Philadelphia and returned there to coach football in '28 and '29, his teams winning 16 and losing three in those two seasons.

BLUE NETMEN SPLIT MATCH WITH LOYOLA

Rain Halts P. M. C. Tilt With Wildcat Racquetmen Out in Front

What promised to be a busy week-end for Villanova tennis men, turned out to be one of almost complete inactivity to the recording of wins and losses to the local record books.

The best the Wildcat netmen could garner was a 3-3 stalemate with Loyola College of Baltimore on Sunday afternoon.

Darkness called a halt to the proceedings on the Rosemont College courts.

Dennis Dunne racked up his fourth consecutive win of the season, when he downed Walt Cummings, lanky Loyola player. The scores were 6-3, 9-7. Cummings was undefeated prior to his meeting with Dunne.

Other wins were recorded by John Leary and the doubles combination of Dunne and Rappleyea. Leary outpointed Jim Russell by scores of 6-2, 10-8.

Loyola wins were turned in by Bill Knell who downed Fred Rap-

MILE RELAY TEAMS LOOK GOOD AT PENN

Guiteras, Bellew Run Fast Quarters; Waad Fails to Place

By HARRY MAZZEI

Journeying down to Franklin Field for their first outdoor test of the season, Villanova's fancy stepping mile relay team came through with a sparkling third place in their event at the Penn Relays. Meanwhile, the Frosh relay team had run sixth in a field of eighteen, but they were not as far behind as one might believe.

Barney Bellew, Tony Petril, Bill Dobbins, and Bill Guiteras carried the baton in that order for the Wildcats. Bellew starting fast, grabbed the lead on the first lap. Petril, following Bellew, was unable to hold the rapid pace, however, and fell to third place. Dobbins and Guiteras put the pressure on for the last two laps, but they were forced to trail Seton Hall, the winner, and Juniata to the tape.

Still smarting from their defeat at the hands of the Temple nine, the baseball team took to the road on Wednesday and when they returned late Saturday night had two victories chalked up in their favor. During their trip the Wildcats found time to knock off Colgate, 11-8, and Penn State, 11-4.

On Thursday the 'Cats visited Hamilton, N. Y., and defeated Colgate U.'s nine in a free-scoring contest. "Quack" Escott was given credit for his second triumph in this encounter which saw the Wildcats hit the ball hard while at bat but look miserable in the field.

Sheftic Poles Homer

Walt Sheftic was the heavy hitter of the afternoon, getting a homer and a two-bagger out of four trips to the plate. "Cowboy" Crawley and Bob Bond also hit for two bases and Lou Wannemacher came through with a triple. Lou was the leading percentage hitter of the game; he got a single on one of his other trips and had only three times at bat. Escott aided his own cause with two bingles.

As for the fielding it seems we have already said enough. Bob Pash was unlucky enough to make three miscues and Pitcher Escott added one. "Quack" gave five walks and struck out eight. If the first four innings had been left off, the game might have been a thrilling pitchers' duel as the game settled down considerably after that point.

RESULTS of sport activities at Villanova last week, on the whole, turned out the way this department likes to record them in the books. "Doc" Jacobs' boys went out there fighting to kinda make up for that Temple loss in administering defeats to the Nittany Lions and the Red Raiders from Colgate.

Villanova's golfers, evidently playing the brand of golf that they are capable of, came through with a win over the Hawks and held a strong Rider team to a draw.

Word has it that "Clipper" Smith has called it "quits" for the regular session of Spring drills; but the boys will most likely continue outside drills in gym suits.

Looks like Father McKee's boys from Austin are doing all right by themselves in intramural activities this season. Frank Castles, Intramural phenomenal hurler, kept right on pitching to win his fifth game of the season on Sunday.

We hear that Harry Mazzei, "the kid with the meat-block legs," hurled a five hitter against the Austin varsity football men. Nice goin', Harry; why don't you try out for the varsity?

YEARLINGS BEAT URSINUS FROSH

Nicholas and O'Leary Turn in Fine Pitching Performances

Inaugurating their season, Villanova's freshmen baseballers swamped Ursinus College on the home turf 8-0, as the "Kittens" impressed spectators with their pitching and batting prowess.

With Nicholas pitching and Murphy catching, Ursinus garnered one hit, a single, in the first three innings. Then, in an effort to learn the calibre of his new men, "Doc" Jacobs replaced Nicholas with O'Leary.

By breezing through the last three innings, O'Leary tied the mark of his predecessor allowing no runs and only one hit. Competent work by Murphy behind the bat accounted in part for the success of the home hurlers.

Villanova made five hits count in scoring eight runs, as Balmore, right fielder, and Pete Naimo, shortstop, accounted for two bingles, each, while "Chic" Morris banged a double.

Sparking the team, Naimo handled all chances at short, while Toma at first and Basca at third proved very competent. Robinson filled out the infield at second. Donahue in center, together with the other blue outfielders, should be great varsity promise.

Pantaleo and Lo Balbo Contribute to Austin's Victory by Hitting Round-Trippers With Men on Bases; Epifanio Clouts Two Homers

MENDEL SUBMERGES FEDIGAN, 12 - 5

Last Sunday the powerful Austin Water Brigade, by virtue of its win over the Alumni Greenies clinched the Intramural Diamond Crown in a bitterly contested game, which, Austin trounced Alumni 9 to 6. With Bill Epifanio, first sacker Thoma and Jack Cleary paving the way with a heavy hitting barrage, the Mendel Penthousers romped over the Fedigan Steamrollers 12 to 5 in the Sunday morning feature.

For the first time this year, Mendel really unleashed its power. They hammered Cavanaugh, the Fedigan twirler, for three innings. He was replaced by Pawlowski but Mendel was not to be denied. Epifanio hit two four baggers scoring two runners. Thoma pounded out a three bagger then came back to hit a home run. Jack Cleary came to bat and he also hit a home run. Two singles by Pitcher Jack Fleming and one baggers by Alsina and Rispoli accounted for the remaining tallies.

Fleming Hurls Well

The Fediganites had a bad day at bat due to the splendid hurling of Jack Fleming. Durkin reached first on a single and he went home on a safety by Carroll. Singles by Murphy and Pawlowski helped to bring two more runners across the plate. In the final frame an error by Rispoli gave the Gigolos two more runs, which ended Fedigan scoring for the day.

The Austinites continued their victory march with Castles doing the hurling. In the first frame Pat Vinciguerra banged out a sizzling single, but he was stranded on the base when his team-mates failed to connect. For the next five innings Castles held the Alumni team scoreless. The Austinites garnered eight runs in the first two innings with Lo Balbo and Pantaleo leading the attack. Lo Balbo hit a homer with two aboard, and Pantaleo made the round trip with one on.

Besides pitching scoreless ball for five innings Frank Castles drove in Pantaleo from second with a well placed single between first and second base.

Austins Fields Poorly

The fielding of the Austinites was definitely below par. Al Woods missed a well aimed ball to second, and a second error was chalked up against Castles in the fifth inning when he did a juggling act with the ball. Although Pantaleo did brilliantly at bat three errors in the field by him cost the Austinites a run.

Al Woods singled in the fourth and a safety by Burlington moved him to second. Lo Balbo singled scoring Woods. Roache batted in Sandor but was left stranded on base.

The Greenies, spurred on by the chatter of Father Dunne came up in the final frame resolving to either "do or die." They nearly "did" but not enough. Father Dunnes homer started a rally. Father Lunney came to bat and was given free transportation. "Chip" Belzner banged out a single and both the runners on base advanced on a safety by Banagan. Timely blows drove in four runs. Frank Castles tightened down and put an end to the rally.

read that Andy Stopper who has played sensational football for the Wildcats will assume duties as assistant coach at Reading High School under his prep school coach at Williamsport. We feel that this is a break that Andy rightly deserves and that he was wise to accept such an offer. There can be no doubt as to the question of whether Andy will make out or not; his past records speak for themselves and Andy is receiving valuable experience in helping "Clipper" with the football Spring drills.

FEDIGAN SETS FAST PACE IN TWILIGHT SOFTBALL LEAGUE

Avid Interest Shown by Residents in Sport; Three Games Held Nightly

FITZMAURICE HITS HOMER

With about 300 spectators in attendance, the Summer sports season was officially inaugurated on the Intramural Softball diamond, Monday evening, April 25, with the Fedigan Gigolos defeating Austin, and Alumni annexing their first try of the year at the expense of the Mendelites.

Beginning the schedule in midseason style Monday, found the West Enders and Austinites staging a nip and tuck battle with the Gigolos emerging triumphant by garnering a single tally in the final canto. Both teams were notably strong in the hurling department with Fedigan boasting of Fred Rappleyea on the slab and Austin batting behind Paul Fitzmaurice.

In Wednesday's games Austin and the undertrodden Mendelites engaged wiht the upperclassmen ending on the long end of a large score. In the following tussle, Fedigan and Alumni played to a standstill, deadlocking at 7 runs apiece. This fracas will be replayed at the end of the campaign if the two involved teams find it necessary for the breaking of a tie in the final statistics.

Thursday evening found the softballers engaging in what is generally believed to be the best played game of the season from both the players' and spectators' standpoint. With Lo Balbo denting the plate with his spike marks in the final bracket to add the winning tally, the Austin Hill contingent romped on to their initial victory of the year at the cost of the once triumphant Alumni hordes. Of the seven runs scored by Austin, Fitzmaurice, the pitcher, accounted for three with a circuit blow, while two teammates resided on the hassocks. It was Boudon who led the Alumni boys to their near victory with his stellar twirling. He previously pitched in an Industrial League in his home town, Port Allegheny.

Softball differs from its affiliated sport, baseball, mostly in the matter of pitching. In the new game no windup is allowed and the ball must be delivered in an underhand motion, while in baseball any delivery is allowed. Also, one must remain on the bags before the ball is pitched and until it passes the batter. Another difference is in the construction of the ball, the softball being larger. This game has become popular in recent years and shows great promise of becoming one of the best attended of the Intramural activities.

club in the field as well as at bat. The error committed by Cliff Choquette was the only one of the game; the Cats handled 41 other chances flawlessly.

'Cats Collect 15 Hits

At bat the Blue nine garnered two more safeties than they did against Colgate, 15. Of these, two were of the home run variety. Both came during a terrific upheaval in the seventh inning and both came with a runner aboard. Incidently they were hit by Captain Ray Stoviak and Pitcher Choquette. Bob Bond was the leading batter; he gathered a triple, two doubles and a single in five trips to the plate. Lenny Merullo had three singles for his five times at bat, Crawley had a three bagger and a single for his five, Garbark got two ones for four, and Pash hit a double. Wannemacher and Rice failed to hit.

Little Cliff Choquette held the Lions to six hits, five coming in the second and third innings. The only State safety after the third was made by Watts in the sixth. It was a single. Escott, too, deserves credit for some nice pitching; Diffenbach, centerfielder for the Red Raidera, was the only one who really could solve "Quack's" slants. He had a perfect day at bat, getting a circuit clout, a double, and two singles out of four times at bat. This week the Jacobsmen will meet Fordham at New York and Lehigh at home.

pleyea 6-4, 7-5. Knell, a former Baltimore Boys champion found trouble with Rappleyea. The local boy held a lead of 4-3 in the first set but faded in the clutch to drop the set. In the second chapter, he maintained leads of 4-2 and 5-4 only to bow to the Loyolan's all-round game.

Captain Harry Devlin and Louis Quinn defeated Villanova's Jim Cousart and "Whitey" Schermerhorn in straight sets respectively. Cousart losing by scores of 6-1, 6-4. Scehemerhorn lost a heart-breaker by scores of 7-5, 7-5.

Rain saved Pennsylvania Military College from a wholesale shellacking on Saturday afternoon. Playing on all six courts, Wildcat netmen holding leads of a set and several games were forced to abandon the Ardmore courts in favor of the club house. Interesting to note was the 6-2 first set score turned in by Rappleyea over Frank Spang of the Cadets. Spang is a perennial South Jersey and Eastern States tournament winner.

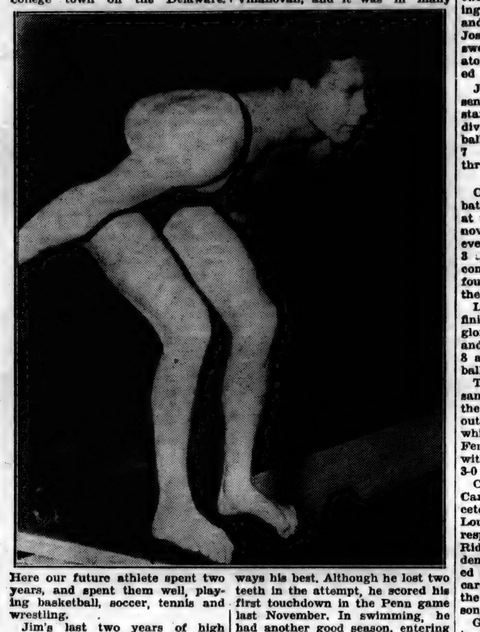
In the Sportlight

By TOM O'MAHONEY

Although he just missed having New Year's Day as his first birthday, Jim Cousart has certainly had his share of excitement in the years that have rolled since January 2, 1916.

As a mere youth, Jim, or James B., if you prefer, attended St. Francis de Sales Grammar School in West Philadelphia which is a region west of the central part of Quakertown, oddly enough. He remembers little of this era, so you'll have to be patient.

When the time for high school rolled around, the Cousarts moved to Easton, Penna., a thriving little college town on the Delaware.



Here our future athlete spent two years, and spent them well, playing basketball, soccer, tennis and wrestling.

Jim's last two years of high school were spent at West Philadelphia Catholic High School, where he played tennis. Here he had a successful season, winning 21 out of 24 matches.

In the Fall of 1934, Jim matriculated and otherwise enrolled in the Science School at Villanova, having been told by friends that the Main Line college was tops in its line. In his freshman year, Jim went out for swimming and tennis, and made varsity berths in both sports, essayed a try at 150-pound football and gained a place at halfback. He had the distinction of running the length of the field twice at Yale for touchdowns which were called back for offsides. Claimed that nothing ever tired him more. Continuing in swimming and tennis, he enjoyed good seasons in both.

As a junior, Jim experienced his most successful swimming season of all, winning many events, and finally beating Bud Hilander of Osteopathy, his favorite rival. It was in this year that he transferred to the Education School.

This year was Jim's last as a Villanovan, and it was in many ways his best. Although he lost two teeth in the attempt, he scored his first touchdown in the Penn game last November. In swimming, he had another good season, entering both the 50 and the 100 yard dash. At present he is busy defending Villanova's prestige on the tennis court, and has won two out of his first four matches.

Upon graduation next month, Jim hopes to secure a teaching appointment somewhere nearby where he can also coach swimming and tennis. A top-ranking student, and winner of 11 minor letters, he has a bright future ahead of him. Here's a lot of luck, Jim!

for they were running with the cream of the nation's trackmen. Seton Hall's winning time was 3 minutes 26.9 seconds, a very brisk pace.

Frosh Cindermen Look Good

Manning Villanova's other relay entry were Schenk, Pete Yankauskas, outstanding gridder, Eppleby, and Johnny Maher, the sensational freshman dash-man. These lads ran in a field of eighteen and had to fight their way through crowded lanes to finish as well as they did. It should be noted that the time established by the winning Holy Cross team was the second fastest of the afternoon; this includes all varsity races. The time was 3 minutes 21.2 seconds and it means that in the very near future Villanova's cinderpathers are going to be very much in the foreground, because the frosh were right up there at the finish of a close race.

WILDCAT LINKSMEN AVENGE HAWK LOSS; SPLIT RIDER MEET

Captain Dwyer and Murcko Shoot 73's to Lead Blue Golfers in Victory

DWYER STILL UNDEFEATED

By HARRY MAZZEI

Villanova's varsity golfers traveled up to the Main Line Golf Course twice during the past week defeating the St. Joseph's Linksmen, 7-2, and tying Rider, 4½-4½. The St. Joseph's victory was especially sweet for the Blue golfers, as it atoned for a previous defeat inflicted by the City Liners.

Jim Dwyer and Frank Murcko sent the Wildcats off to a flying start as they won both of their individual matches and also best ball. Dwyer trounced Jack Burns, 7 and 6, while Murcko swept through Ed O'Malley 5 and 4.

Mills Wins on 19th

Cliff Randolph, after a thrilling battle, went down before Bill Mills at the 19th hole for the first Villanova loss of the afternoon. However, Dave Morse defeated Flymer 3 and 2 to make Villanova's lead comfortable. The best ball of this foursome went to St. Joseph's for their second and final point.

Lou Dubino and Charlie Roche finished the contest in a blaze of glory, as Dubino bested McCalla 5 and 4, and Roche submerged Mille 8 and 7. Villanova also won best ball to cop the tilt, 7-2.

The Blue team started off in the same sensational fashion against the Rider outfit. Jimmy Dwyer outshot Dud Rider to win 7 and 6, while Frank Mucko outplayed John Fenger 6 and 5. Topping this off with the best ball Villanova had a 3-0 advantage.

Coming back strong, however, Carman Seniscalchi and Carlo Accetola dropped Cliff Randolph and Lou Dubino 7 and 6 and 5 and 4, respectively. By winning best ball Rider tied the match at 3-all. Incidentally Seniscalchi, of Rider, turned in a fine score of 72, the lowest card turned in by a collegian on the Radnor course so far this season.

George Davis pushed the Trenton team into the fore by defeating Charlie Roche in a bitter battle 1 up. In the same foursome, Jack Egan, with defeat staring him in the face, rallied while 3 down to halve his match with Joe Viola and save the Blue from defeat. The 'Cats won best ball in this match thus making Egan's victory all the more important.

HERE and THERE

By BILL SINNOTT

No more will Walt Burlington rap out extra-base hits, no more will he score baskets at crucial moments. His inspiration is dead. She died peacefully last Wednesday night in her sleep. Austin Hall was plunged into mourning by the shocking news. The day of sunlight was allowed to desecrate the memory of beloved little "Austina" and bring a ray of cheer where only disconsolation should prevail.

The funeral services, conducted in the crowded foyer of Austin Hall, expressed the profound sorrow of the Austinites. Joe Missar read the service and Burlington himself delivered the eulogy. His voice choked with emotion, Burrington recited the history of "Austina." He told how his "baby," a gift from Harvey Buek, had been sent up to Buek from Florida; how he had carried her home at Easter Vacation. He extolled her virtues; her quietness on the New York subways. Finally, unable to stand the strain any further, Burly collapsed and was removed to the infirmary by his stoical roommate, Mike Garbark.

The burial, too, was a touching scene. Johnny Mellus and Johnny Wysocki clung to each other for support. Len Merullo let tears run down his cheeks unashamedly. "Obie" Obrien was too overcome to attend. He sat in his room, his face buried in his hands, sobbing his lament. Even the trees seemed to droop as the procession left the hall carrying the lifeless little body to the top of the hill, by the seminary, on the site of the old hothouse, to bury it. Solemnly, painfully, they interred her and over her head they placed their last material tribute to the memory of their dear one—a dogwood branch, and it had blossoms on it, too. That had been "Austina's" last request—a grave, in the shadow of Austin Hall, on the hill-top overlooking the campus she loved so much.

She's there now, looking down the long slope to Ithan Ave., surveying the C & P students as they plod their weary way to and from class, and smiling her approbation of the Austinites as they wander in and out. (I don't know about the dogwood blossoms. They were kind a droopy last time I saw them.) Every night, when dusk has cast its mantle of gloom over the campus, you may see the solitary figure of Burlington surreptitiously steal from the hall and ascend the hill to the little grave on the top. There, in his solitude, he calls back some of those moments he had with "Austina."

He remembers those days on the diamond when he had gone hitless, and the dreary returns to his room to be cheered up by the sympathy manifested in "Austinia's" moody, smoldering black eyes. He remembers those nights when the baskets seemed to move and the ball wouldn't go in. Then, too, "Austina" would take him from the doldrums and waft him to airy heights and dreams of future successful nights. Now all Burly has is a memory, but he's not downcast anymore, for he knows that memories make things different and better. Only the nice things come back.

But a hundred hearts still grieve, still cry out their sorrow. For Burlington's pet alligator, "Austina" has passed on—gone, Burly fervently hopes and prays, to a great, grand Alligator's Valhalla.

CHEMICAL STUDENTS HEAR REGULAR TALK

Polarized Light Explained in Lecture by Engineering Professor

Villanova students in the Chemical Engineering department attended a lecture and demonstration on the phenomena of polarized light on April 11. The address was given by Professor Thomas McNee, engineering instructor, who selected as his topic "Photo Eleotric Stress."

Used As Test

This lecture was another of a series of discourses being given to the students of the technology school by the faculty members. The phase of polarized light which was explained by Professor McNee dealt with its use in testing quantitatively stresses in materials.

With the aid of projector the lecturer demonstrated with a few samples how the different stresses, within the members of the material used, may be recognized by distinct color on the projection screen. Professor McNee explained that by the use of a standard, the amounts of stress in any model structure may be accurately calculated.

It was brought to view in the discussion that this polarized light method of determining material stresses is being widely used in industry today.

At the conclusion of the meeting, it was announced that the next lecture in the series will be conducted by the students of the Engineering School.

162 Villanova Students Receive Honorary Awards From College President

John L. Simons, Senior Engineer, Leads Group With Eight Merits for Extra-Curricular Activity; Toland and Lyons Given Six

Merit awards, honorary certificates of worthy participation in extra-curricular activities, were awarded by Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O.S.A., president, to one hundred and sixty-two students of Villanova College, yesterday.

A general asembly of the entire student body was called at 11:30 to witness the presentation of the 294 merit awards. The certificates were given to the students, in good scholastic standing for their participation in the forty-three extra curricular activities.

Several students were outstanding for the number of certificates received. Leading the list was John L. Simons, of Philadelphia, senior in the Engineering School. Simons was the recipient of eight awards, the largest number of credits ever conferred upon one student at the college.

James H. Lyons and Joseph J. Toland were each credited with six awards. Lyons is a senior member of the Commerce and Finance School and a resident of Ardmore. Toland, a senior in the School of Science, resides in Philadelphia.

Mackin Elected As Holy Name Leader For Ensuing Year

Commerce Student Succeeds William Bowker as Society President

Peter C. Mackin, junior in the School of Commerce and Finance, was elected president of the Holy Name Society for the coming year in the annual election meeting held last Thursday evening. The new executive, elected unanimously, succeeds William J. Bowker. Philip Dunn, C. & F. sophomore, and William Delehanty, freshman engineer, were balloted to the posts of vice president and secretary, respectively.

Mackin has been very active in extra-curricular work throughout his three years at Villanova. He is best known as Business Manager of the VILLANOVAN for the past year, being reappointed to that post for the ensuing year. He also served as toastmaster at the recent dinner dance of the school journal, and has been active in Junior Class affairs.

Dunn and Delehanty, the two other officers of the organization, succeeding George Bishop and Claude Van Hook, respectively, have both been active in intramural sports the former participating for Fedigan, and the latter for Mendel. Dunn is also a sports writer on the VILLANOVAN.

JUNIORS NOMINATE

Villanova's Junior classmen will hold their annual nominations in Room 208, Mendel Hall, at one o'clock on Wednesday, May 11. All are urged to be present at this meeting.

Rosemont Girls Assist Thespians in Belle Masque Presentation of Stage and Screen Success Wednesday and Sunday

DANCING FEATURED TOMORROW NIGHT

By JOHN HARRINGTON

"Winterset," the stage and screen success, Maxwell Anderson's high-powered drama of romance in the ashes of injustice, will be unfolded by Belle Masque before the production's initial Villanova audience tomorrow evening in the gymnasium-theatre on the Lincoln Highway.

The strategy of secrecy adopted by the society seems to have worked in arousing interest, at least to the extent that it has caught this gossipy campus flat-footed with the surprising revelation that the leading male role of the prize-catching vehicle will be filled by Thomas F. Haynes, Jr., freshman commerce student. Trouper that he is, he has been working night and day with the rest of the cast and Mr. Anthony J. Frayne, director, to render the creation as a thing of beauty. The newcomer to the Villanova boards, is a graduate of Seton Hall Prep and hails from Glenridge, N. J. His is the role of Mio in which Burgess Meredith won great heights professionally.

Story of Revenge

The curtain will rise at 8:30 again Sunday evening, May 15, to reveal another portrayal by the well-tarined unit of the histrionic conflict between society and the young man whom it has wronged. It is the story of a son struggling against the stigma of his father's being an electrocuted convict. If he cannot prove his father's innocence, his soul will never rest. Under a bridge in the Manhattan slums he meets the judge who condemned his father, the gangster who committed the crime and an eye-witness whose testimony would have reversed the decision. Complicating matters, he falls in love with the sister of the witness. The end is in keeping with the spirit of the play in that the hero and heroine defiantly face a machine gun death. The presentation Sunday will be at no increase in prices.

A packed house is expected for the first performance Wednesday since the student ticket, purchaseable for fifty cents, entitles one to the additional feature of dancing to the music of the popular Villanovans orchestra after the show. Reserved seats, also carrying the privilege of dancing, may be se-

New Officers of Engineering Fraternity Suggest Memorial to Late Dean

Establishment of a scholarship fund, a memorial to Carl T. Humphrey, late dean of the School of Technology, was proposed yesterday at the regular meeting of Phi Kappa Phi, the engineering fraternity, held in the Mendel amphitheatre.

It is the opinion of those who knew him that this establishment would be a fitting tribute to the eminent and respected man who spent so many years of his life at Villanova. The final decision on this proposition was deferred until the next meeting.

Another highlight of the meeting was the inauguration of the officers for the ensuing year. The meeting was called to order by President J. Paul Skelly, who, after the disposal of past business and the reading of the treasurer's report, presented the new president, Anthony Cirrito.

Editorial Board of Alumni Magazine Commended For Unique Publication

"Villanova Alumnus," official publication of the National Alumni Association, made its initial appearance last Friday, General comment labeled the magazine a fast-moving bit of literature, quite removed from the much worn staccato types now prevalent.

As each succeeding page was turned, neutral admiration of the Board of Editors, headed by Edmond P. Reiley, '35, and all others who contributed to the Villanova Alumnus, perceptibly increased. A brief review of this really brilliant Alumnal publication—which, incidentally filled a fundamental need of the college—is in order.

Cleverly arranged, the external features of the "Alumnus" are of such a nature to permit them to share in the laudatory remarks already passed concerning the contents proper. It is a composite photograph showing a greater Villanova campus as it approaches its centenary in 1942. These cuts are in two sections, thus allowing space for the insertion of the title, printed in large blue letters horizontally across the cover.

Governor Sends Greetings

The initial page discloses the table of contents, the names of the Board of Editors and the Board of Governors. In the table there are listed these highlighting articles: the "Governor's Greetings" by Hon. George H. Earle, Governor of Pennsylvania; Messages from the Very Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O.S.A., president of Villanova College, and J. Stanley Smith, '93, president of the Alumni Association; "Blazing The Trail" by Pastrus F. Banmiller, registrar; and an article by Joseph J. Toland, former editor of the VILLANOVAN, entitled "The Pen Is Mightier."

Collegians Make Merry As Juniors Present Hal Kemp At Prom Saturday

Oh Boy!

What a tympanic function! Into a field house that was a captivating spectacle, Hal Kemp and His Orchestra brought a stimulus for rhythm—the response was the dance beat of a college.

There is no need to waste superlatives on the dance. It belongs, now, with memoirs that we never forget. Great things have happened at Villanova and it is only a few days since the Prom has made history; since Judy Starr tantalized the microphone; since Hal Kemp blended the wave-lengths into delightful harmony; since swing, exhortations, perorations, ha-has, and goodnight-alls have been launched into the untiring ether of the field house.

A finer atmosphere could not have been asked for. In the midst of the glass floor a magnificent fountain flooded with soft lights and surrounded by a detailed rock garden presented a setting essentially romantic. The decoration of the field house was an artistic accomplishment.

Kemp Outstanding

Right on the edge of 9:30, Hal Kemp and his boys began to stir. Playing until the last minute of his time, he brought with him all of his neutrodyne craze that has swept the country. His ticklish rhythm made the lads and lassies swing out the honeycomb rage and the spider-web windings. Hal made his audience feel as though they were dancing right in their own parlor, the acoustics seemingly to make the music appear from the center of the fountain.

And then there was "Saxie" Dowell's voice, capable of imitating the heart-beats of a house fly, magnifying them 'till they sounded like

WAKE UP, WORLD

EXERCISING the wisdom and authority gained through many centuries of an unimpeachable existence, the Catholic Church in the past several generations has expressed her view on topics of social and political importance.

Speaking officially through the medium of the Papal Encyclicals, she has time and again warned the world of the impressive evils which confront it. She has issued authoritative pronouncements on matters of a religious, moral, social, political, and economic significance.

Despite these repeated attempts at fore-warning, it is a fact that the influence of the papal writings on the collective activity of modern reaction has been discouragingly small. The evils which were evident years ago have increased alarmingly in our present day.

Deism and atheism have become deeply rooted in the very bases of society; communism and fascism have swayed the peace and harmony of nations until they are about to crumble; persecution and intolerance exist under a pretense of authority; the sanctity of the home is being destroyed and defamed by such infamous practices as birth control, divorce, and free-love. And with all this, religion has been unwillingly forced to the background.

The sufferings of the peoples of the world today can be attributed largely to the neglect of rulers and governments to heed the warnings addressed to them from the Vatican.

Is it, then, in any way a reasonable procedure for us to continue to disregard the importance of the problems which confront us? Should we ignore the sound advice advanced in the Papal Encyclicals and adopt the willy-nilly teachings of some unsound individual who surreptitiously offers us an Utopia without a God?

It remains for us, college students, to recognize the necessity of sound thinking. We should educate ourselves to the fact that world peace and social harmony depend upon both the intellectual and moral condition of society. It would fit us well to familiarize ourselves with the counsels and admonitions of the Holy Fathers.

We should not let the principles and judgments offered us by the Popes fall again on deaf ears. We, and all the world, should awake to the realization that without religion there can be no peace!

THE OLD ARMY GAME

VILLANOVA students are fortunate in having an opportunity of observing from close range the most furious primary battle waged in some time — the Pennsylvania State primary elections. It is a lesson in the workings of American government. The campaign is so heated because to the politicians the primaries are more important than the general elections.

By resorting to personal disparagement in preference to discussion of issues the "wise guys" running the show are exhibiting directly a contempt for the intelligence of the voters. If the present charges by men in responsible office are no more capable of proof than Mayor Wilson's, the imputers are deserving of no confidence on the part of the electorate.

But the catch is that these charges are seldom made in time either to be substantiated or to be revealed as false before the primaries. Such accusations are subject to a peculiar method of disappearing after the voting. Corruption aired in the newspapers before, slip from the publice mind after May 17 when no more is heard of the awful conditions.

It is advisable to save clippings of the alleged conditions to see what happens. It affords the citizens a real chance to see who are trying to delude the people and who are giving the real information. Everyone of the purported abuses should be followed up with a test of its validities by juries. Incidentally, since the courts have shown a disposition to investigate, the diatribes have lessened.

When discord makes the party chiefs tell on each other, the franchised are better able to select an honest man, but what good are honest men with no progressive social philosophy? What has been heard in this campaign about the Philadelphia city-county merger, the poverty and unrest in Pittsburgh, the festering problems up-State caused largely by railroad control of coal, the establishment of a real State civil service system, and the waste in men and resources has been mighty little.

The silence is ominous for our civic system. For their own protection, for the peace of the State, for the avoidance of a labor political party, the governing bodies should have the wisdom to meet the public, not with a sneer, but with reasoning in justice.

CONGRATULATIONS, JUNIORS

CLASS of 1939, congratulations! Your Junior Week program was thoroughly enjoyed by the student body, faculty, and friends of Villanova College.

Perhaps most pleasant, was the wholehearted spirit of good fellowship with which your functions were executed. Your warm friendship was gratefully felt by all who were fortunate to be present at your affairs. May this Villanova friendship persist, and like the ivy which you planted, take root and grow in the rich soil provided by the Augustinian Fathers.

Your presence at Villanova will always be felt. Your class tree will remain a tribute to your effort; a symbol of your ambition. Without a doubt, your social activities were successful. And the success was deserved.

Keeping on the topic of the Ball, we'd like to say that despite all pre-dance propaganda, the local boys must have something there.

JUNIOR WEEK has ended and has left us with memories that will be remembered and treasured throughout our lives. At this time, however, our thoughts must be turned from the delightful events of the past week to the usual routine of scholastic endeavor.

CONGRATULATIONS to Tom Furey his Junior Prom Committee for the tremendous success of last Saturday's affair.

Success of the Prom was assured on the day that the committee first announced that it had secured the Hal Kemp band.

We hope that future Junior and Senior dance committees will benefit by this example, and place insurance upon their ventures — by selecting proven "name" bands.

Blazer Ball dancers wondered whether they were at an ice-skating party,—with-out the skates.

The gym floor was so heavily waxed Wednesday nite that it felt more like an ice rink, than a dance floor.

Congrats however to Blazer Chairman John D'ippolito for a speedy remedy of this condition. About ten-thirty some long water soaked mops were used over the floor, proving an effective remedy.

EDUCATION SENIORS VISIT INSTITUTION

Observation Tour Conducted by Students Through State Mental Hospital

Last Wednesday, May 4, Dr. Leo F. Brown, associate professor of Education, conducted the students of the senior class of the School of Education through the New Jersey Hospital for Mental Diseases at Woodbine.

Mr. Johnson, superintendent of the institution, made the trip possible. When Dr. Brown wrote to him for permission he granted it readily. The group comprised of Edward Arnade, Basil Dobrowolski, Allver Volpe and Charles Cooke was shownw through the entire institution by Mr. Von Bulow, assistant superintendent.

The students were given ample opportunity to ask questions and to study the various cases at close range. Many of the patients were found to be quite skilled in making rugs, mats and baskets. It was explained, however, that the patients would never progress any further and that they would be dependents of the State until their death.

Mr. Von Bulow explained that in many cases the cause of the mental disability was syphilis. He pointed out further that there was no known cure for feebleminedness.

After the tour, the group of seniors went to dinner which had been arranged by the superintendent.

On being interviewed, the students stated that the trip had helped them greatly to co-ordinate the various things they had learned in their Psychology courses.

Back near the middle of your paper the other day you may have noticed a little item — the world-famous St. Bernard dogs have been exiled from the Alps.

These dogs which were saving lives in the Alps before you and I were born have finally been barred because they made a mistake. They made the mistake of thinking a girl was an object of prey.

We wonder what logic was used when the final decree was passed? Maybe it was something like "To err is human. There are dogs. They should not eff." That, of course, may sound pretty good, but it is unpleasantly odoriferous.

The dogs have been punished for their crime, just as a human being would have been. They were given one year in prison. Now they have been taken out of their old home and are exiled in an entirely new environment. A country which will appreciate their great work. They are to continue life-saving in Tibet, where the relief work in the Himalayas will feel their assistance.

Well, we, too, were surprised to find someone on the campus had five dollars. Now, like all other college boys, we were taken in by the "line" the Odd and Ends column handed out. Not that we wish to start a fight so early in the season, but we get peeved very easily.

Like all other college boys, we too were a bit low on cash when Junior Week drew near its end. What did we do? Well, we took Mr. Cailliet's tip, and ambled over to Room 106, Mendel Hall.

Being a faithful reader of Rene's column we trusted him when he said there was someone in that room who, at one time, had five dollars.

We looked on the fourth floor; and no Room 106.

We looked on the third floor; still the same.

We looked on the second and last floor of the Mendel Dorm; no results.

Finally, in desperation, we took the last way out—we went to class . . .and there before us was—Room 106.

Mr. Charles Martin, the gentleman who might have been the one to have had in his possession the "fin," had no five dollars, and his pants were not pressed.

Please, please, Rene, where did you hide the Martin with the five dollars?

Might we mention that "Jersey justice," as slow as it may be, has finally begun to work again.

As many may know, the Socialist presidential candidate charged that two of Hague's "stooges" kidnapped him when he was to appear in a public address that might have caused the "Czar of Jersey City" some uneasiness.

The Hague men "escorted" Mr. Thomas to the Hudson River Ferry and then "deported" him to New York. We think the word "deported" can be here used for New Jersey has been a bit on the fence about the Union of States ever since Napoleon was to escape to there in 1815. This fact, along with the fact that Mr. Hague has now been "Dictator" for 26 years, seems to put Jersey aside as a little country all by itself.

If this trial should ever come up in Jersey courts, it might even follow that the dictatorship of Mr. Hague will be questioned.

We came across a little poem that seems to have been concocted two days prior to the Hal Kemp affair last Saturday night.

Here's Keegan's idea of romance and swing:

Two more days to breathlessy wait
To cross one's fingers—then;
The die is cast—the sun doth shine
My eyes do feast—again.

Of Fate—that rules throughout the world
As rivals for the hand
To sum her up—we call her thus
"The Fairest in the Land."

Her eyes are blue—of sparkling dew,
The cheeks so fair—yet tan,
With dark brown hair—so sweet and soft
To thrill most every man.

But now at last the time is come
And how my heart does sing;
I'll hold her close and whisper low
"My dear—My Sweet—let's swing."

Introducing—

By JOHN L. SIMONS

WILLIAM J. BOWKER

Since the date of his birth on November 22, 1914, Mr. William John Bowker, more familiarly known as "Railroad," "Choo-Choo," and various other nicknames, has had a varied and interesting life. In his time "Railroad" has lived in a good many cities of this fair land, and he has attended so many schools in his early years that he calls himself a tramp scholar.

To get on with the story "Bow-Dow" began his education at St. Paul's Parochial in his home town of Clifton, New Jersey. After he had gone there for two years, the Bowker family treked westward to Cleveland, where they settled in the residential suburban section of Lakewood. Although he has moved back East since, Cleveland still remains one of "Bowk's" favorite home towns. He can be heard at almost anytime extolling the virtues of that city and, in particular, discussing the good points of the Cleveland Indians.

Earned Title in Ohio

It was in the Ohio metropolis that "Choo-Choo" earned his self imposed title of tramp scholar. While residing there he attended the Emerson Junior High, and the Garfield School. Then when the Catholic school was built he transferred to it. Later he claimed St. Ignatius High School as his Alma Mater.

In the middle of his high school days Bill moved back East to Montclair, which thriving community is still his place of residence. St. Benedict's Prep in Newark was where "Battle Axe" Bowker completed his secondary school education. As a student there he was a friend of Benny Geraghty, ex-Villanova and Brooklyn Dodger baseballer.

Then came the time when Mrs. Bowker's son, William, enrolled in Villanova's School of Commerce and Finance. It was a fateful day, inasmuch as it marked the beginning of a great four years' career.

Prominent on Campus

From his first days in Mendel's Penthouse, "Railroad" has been a prominent figure on the campus. His never-ending dissertations on railroading and his ability as a sports cartoonist won him his first fame. And in those days he was well known as the lad who championed the rhythms of Ray Noble and his English orchestra.

After the frosh year, "Bowk" began in earnest, his journalistic endeavors on the sports staff of the VILLANOVAN. Midway through the Sophomore year he began to write an excellent "Here and There" column. From this position he stepped up to the post of Sports Editor, and in the time he held this office he showed himself to be one of the best and most versatile Sports Editors the VILLANOVAN has ever had.

Even in view of his fine record in this capacity, "Railroad's" fame has come largely through his more or less unofficial extra-curricular activities. He is perhaps the greatest campus authority on dance bands, be they swing, sweet, or what have you. At home he has a wonderful collection of phonograph records, and Villanova students have spent many pleasant hours in the Bowker domicile.

When one speaks of the Bowker home, immediately one thinks of those delightful, delectable, juicy steaks for which Bill's mother is so justly famed. In fact "Bowk" has been very good to his friends when it came to extra-curricular eating. Those cakes he used to get from his "favorite niece" (last week's was very good) were especially delicious.

Will Be Missed

Bill Bowker will long be remembered by all those who have known him at Villanova. The good times he has afforded, his liveliness, will never be forgotten. Many an afternoon in the VILLANOVAN office he and his baseball games made life on the staff so much more enjoyable. The Monday afternoons he spent down at the Main Line Times he used to good advantage and did much to bring about the smoother co-operation between the Times and the boys. Yes, Bill and the Times' secretary did get along well.

In spite of the merriment he occasioned by his eccentricities, Bill did shine on the serious side of college life. For four years he has been among the scholastic leaders in the Business School. In addition he has just completed a successful term of office as president of the Holy Name Society. In short he has done a lot for Villanova, and it has been a real pleasure to know him.

cured by students or the general public for seventyfive cents. Inviting notices advertising the attraction have been sent to various other colleges in the vicinity, so that the resulting influx of feminie collegians promises to make the night a social success for all who desire it to be so.

At all these performances the acoustic curtains which have solved the long-standing sound problem so efficiently will be used. The effect these hangings have in expediting voice carriage was experienced last Sunday when the players enacted their whole script in a dress rehearsal. Besides this aid, the speakers have learned in long afternoon and evening practices six days a week how to place their voices and what spots on the stage are most suited to distance articulation.

Donahue Roled

Having a major part in the vehicle is the graduating president of the Belle Masque, John M. Donahue. He is to be Judge Gaunt, bulwark of respectability, the erring interpreter of the law who suffers in anguish to the end of his life in the Esdras apartment room.

The beautiful sister of the close-lipped eye-witness, she who supports Mio in his tragedy and yet is loyal to her brother, is taken by Miss Anita Argentieri, one of the students from Rosemont College, who, by arrangements between the authorities, are enacting the feminie characters. The other girls are the Misses Rita Wolfington and Marion O'Brien. This role of Meriamne was created on the stage and screen by Margo. Incidentally, observers are struck by the personal resemblance between Anita and Margo, and Tommy and Meredith.

Members of the group who have parts recently announced are Furman C. Kane as Carr, and Harry McGrath and Joseph A. Higgins as men in serge.

The program to be distributed was prepared by Joseph Alessandroni and his assistant, Irving L. Folkman.

Lewis guns and then transmitting them to the dancing couples.

"Saxie," the least of his accomplishments being the saxaphone, sang song after song to the delight of the crowd. His wailing voice made sod of the field-house when he went up "The Old Apple Tree" and then as a touch of finesse preserved it with "Ten Little Bottles."

Nor is this all. Little Judy Starr sang havoc. When she sang it was a matter of dancing with enchantment or absorbing her personality just listening to sallies of fun. Judy made real "The Private Life of a Secretary." Diminutive as she was, she sang herself right into the hearts of everyone.

Bob Allen was the star of the evening that made the glorious ending come too soon. Bob put emphasis on "cheek to cheek" songs, making it an evening of sheer joy. His rendition of "Lamplight," with all the orchestra lights extinguished, brought silence to the atmosphere, just the syncopating shuffle of the dancers was audible.

Hal Kemp was much responsible for the success of the prom.

With a southern accent as broad as one of those front lawns of a Dixie mansion, Hal was an attraction in himself. Consequently, when he played the popular piece, "I Want To Marry the Leader of a Swing Band," all the feminine hearts tittered. It was one of the many high spots of the session and it bewildered the masculine morale. Hal very appropriately brought the intermission in by a bit of commercialism, "It's Chesterfield time to shine with Griffin's Allwhite."

staff shall also be given at the dinner.

According to all indications, two former editors-in-chief will likewise attend this affair. These will be Thomas F. Kennedy, last year's editor, and Robert McGrory, director of the Belle Air in 1937. In addition, approximately six members of their respective staffs will share the honors of representing former promoters of the Belle Air.

The snapshot contest sponsored by the Belle Air has been won by Harvey Buek. His entries were of a high quality, both well photographed and quite entertaining. As his award he has been tendered an invitatin to the formal dinner tonight and later will receive a copy of the Belle Air with his name and a notation of his award engraved upon it.

O'Connor has enumerated several new features that promise to do much in making it a success. A few of these include an enlarged intra-mural section; an increase of pictures in the School part; 22 full pages of snapshots; and the fly leaves or opening pages of each section will be adorned with sketches and not the usual pictures.

But over and above these improvements ranks the inclusion of an index in the Belle Air. This index will contain the names of all the students whose names or pictures appear in the book with references to the specific pages on which such pictures are represented.

Campus Engineering Societies Elect Mozzi And McGregor To Key Posts

Electrical and Mechanical Technology Students Named Villanova Chapter Chairman, President in A. I. E. E. and A. S. M. E.

Campus engineering societies closed their elections last week with the elevation to the presidency of Raymond E. MacGregor, president of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, and Francis J. Mozzi, chairman of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers. Their terms are for the coming scholastic year, 1938-39.

President elect MacGregor, Junior in the Engineering School has been a member of the ASME for three years and has served in several positions. The present year found MacGregor vice president of the society. He has also been in the past associated with the Trip Committee, an organization that plans engagements for the society.

The other offices are in the competent hands of John Seelaus, vice president, and John Hack, secretary-treasurer. Each are men of service in the past and each have held positions of trust in the ASME before enabling them to apply their best in their positions of the oncoming year.

John Seelaus has occupied the accompanying position with the president-elect as member of the Trip Committee. John Hack has been of valuable assistance to the ASME for his work and correspondence engaging several exhibits and speakers for the educational activities of the society.

Mozzi, a junior in the Engineering School, elected chairman of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers, has served three years as a member of the AIEE. He has been active in the responsibility connected with the position and has been during the present year associate editor of the "Villanova Engineer."

Elected as secretary of the AIEE t the same time as the president was Thomas Schaedler also a member of the Junior Class. Both officers will take over control of the organization at the meeting to be held this afternoon at 1:00 P. M. in the Amphitheatre. At that time there will be held a technical discussion entitled "Motor Controllers."

The offices of treasurer and vice chairman will be held open until the opening of college in the Fall. It is most likely that these positions will go to students of the present Sophomore Class who manifest some interest in the organization.

Wildcat Cindermen Subdue Rider, Juniata At Home

Captain Buek Paces Teammates in Victories; "Whitey" Urbellis Sweeps Through Dash Events in Both Contests

By HARRY MAZZEI

Success crowned the efforts of Villanova's varsity track team last week as they subdued Rider and Juniata in the initial dual meets of the season held on the Main Line track. Juniata was defeated on Saturday 69⅓ to 56⅔ in a very close meet, while Rider fell on Wednesday 79 to 47.

Starting with a bang the Wildcat runners captured seven out of the eight track events in Saturday's meet to send their team far out in front. Leading the runners, as usual, was Captain Harvey Buek, who captured his two hurdle events with plenty to spare. Harvey also came through with thirds in the pole vault and the broad jump.

Urbellis Gains Double Win

Whitey Urbellis also gained a double victory by winning the 100 and 220-yard dashes. This was Whitey's second double of the week and stamps him as a sure-fire point getter for the Blue tracksters.

Tobe McCabe, running in his specialty, the mile, came through with flying colors to win in 4.44.7, although this strain caused him to drop out of the two-mile run later in the afternoon when Al Carino captured Juniata's only first in the track events.

Bill Guiteras and Barney Bellew grabbed the other Blue firsts in the 440 and 880, respectively. Guiteras once again exhibited his powerful "kick" in the stretch to breeze past his rivals in the fine time of 50.6, considering the slow track. Bellew ran a splendid race in the half-mile to win that event in 2.08.4.

Juniata met with more success in the field events as they broke even with the 'Cats in six events. Jack Sheirer garnered two firsts for the up-staters in the discus and high jump, while Meyers won the javelin after Villanova's ePte Yankauskas pulled a muscle on his first throw. Tiny Tim Waad leaped 20 feet 9¾ inches to lead all the broad jumpers and gain his first win of the year. Brad McManus again won the pole vault with a spring of 11 feet 6 inches, which, incidentally, bettered his vault in the Rider meet and denotes steady improvement. Buzz Buzzalino closed out the Villanova firsts for the day when he tossed the shot 40 feet 9¾ inches.

Buek Wins Three

On Wednesday Rider's silksters were inundated under a flood of Wildcat firsts and went back to Trenton a sadder but wiser group. Once again Harvey Buek set the pace for first places as he came off the field with three of them. The crack timber topper won both hurdles and the broad jump besides placing third in the pole vault.

Whitey Urbellis again won both

DESMOND STARS AS RELIEF PITCHER

By SAUL WALLACH

A tenth-inning Fordham triple combined with a Villanova error broke up a pitching duel between Frank Escott and Hank Boroway, Saturday afternoon on the Fordham diamond. The Rams avenged a 1937 defeat winning by a score of 4-3.

For eight innings it appeared as if Villanova would chalk up her second straight victory over Fordham, as the locals were out in front until the final two frames.

With one out, Al Principe, hard-hitting outfielder, belted a triple to the right field fence. He scored the winning tally when Mike Garbark dropped Bob Pash's peg from third in an attempt to cut off the winning run.

Rams Tie Score

Fordham tied the score in the ninth frame, with a two-ply hit by Krywicki followed by Jim Hearns' single. Escott recovered in time to retire the side in order.

The locals took an early lead, scoring in the first inning. Ray Stoviak dented the rubber on a hit by Lou Wannemacher. They increased the lead to two runs in the third frame, on a run scored by "Cowboy" Crawley. In the same frame Fordham scored their first run of the game. The score remained at 2-1 until the Fordham

VILLANOVA NETMEN DROP CONTESTS TO OUTSTANDING RIVALS

Schermerhorn Hurt in Moravian Match; Lost to Team for Remainder of Season

MEET TEMPLE WEDNESDAY

Villanova's netmen dropped two successive encounters to Moravian and Philadelphia College of Pharmacy last week.

Monday's match at Bethlehem was marred by the absence of Dennis Dunne, number two singles player and the injury of Beatty Schermerhorn, number four singles ace, who received a gash on the right knee trying to make a save. Fourteen stitches were necessary to close the wound. Doctors say Shermerhorn will be lost for the remainder of the season.

Previous to his injury, Schermerhorn had accounted for one of the singles wins and teamed with DaCosta was leading in the third set of the doubles match. Villanova defaulted the match. Jim Cousart chalked up the other point for Villanova in the fourth singles position, winning from Goldenbury, of Moravian by the scores of 6-1, 6-1. The final score of the match was 7-2 for Moravian.

On the Ardmore courts Friday, Pharmacy staged a comeback to outpoint the Blue courtmen 5-4. In the singles, Fred Rappleyea, Villanova's number one ace, shutout Gratz of Pharmacy, 6-0, 6-0, while Dunne was losing to Johnson in an exciting two hour match, 3-6, 6-4, 8-6.

Cousart and Weinfeld took their men in straight sets, but Leary lost a close one to Horn, of Pharmacy, at 7-5, 8-6, to even the count at three apiece. Pharmacy garnered two of the three doubles to take the match. Da Costa and Captain Wallach salvaged the lone Villanova point in this division by defeating Johnson and Cohen 2-6, 6-4, 8-6.

The most redeeming feature to note in the Pharmacy match was the ease with which Fred Rappleyea downed Gratz of Pharmacy in straight sets. Gratz, besides playing number one for the Philadelphia net team, is seeded in the top

100 YARD DASH FEATURE

In the Interscholastics at Villanova, Saturday, Coach "Jumbo" Elliott has promised to run a feature College 100 yard dash, as an added attraction. In this race, Johnny Maher, Frosh "whiz-king" will be pitted against "Whitey" Urbellis, who has been clocked in fast time on the Villanova track, and Tony Petril, recent winner of the Abbey Trophy.

MAHER CLICKS 9.8 IN '100' FOR KITTENS

Johnny Also Places First In 220, But Penn Frosh Win 84 - 32

Making their first start of the year, Villanova's freshmen harriers fell before Pennsylvania's well-entered frosh team, 82-34. Outnumbered in all the events participated in, the Kittens were forced to be content with the individual performances of Johnny Maher, Tom McGinn and Pete Yankauskas, who captured four events between them.

Diminutive Johnny Maher added further to his prestige in Eastern track circles when he negotiated the 100-yard dash in the remarkably fast time of 9.8, and then stepped off the 220 in the exceedingly fine time of 21.6. Maher was pressed all the way by Kroupa in the century run, but had a comparatively easy task in the 220. Add to these performances Maher's second in the road jump, and it can easily be seen that this young man had a very strenuous and successful afternoon.

McGinn Runs 880 in 2.03.7

Tom McGinn stepped off a fast half mile to breast the tape before his other competitors in 2.03.7, and then came back to grab a second place in the mile run, which was won by John Drebinger of Penn in the fairly good time of 4.17.

FROM the results of the two track meets at Villanova last week we cannot help but comment on the splendid work that Coach "Jumbo" Elliott is doing in order to make Track a major sport not only in name but also in practice, here at Villanova. Some may be ironical enough to remark that the victories were over such small colleges as Rider and Juniata and would the Wildcats fare as well against colleges which have more reputable teams? To such a query we are inclined to reply that at the present Villanova's Track team is in an embryonic stage and that for the past several years it has been in a dormant condition.

However, since "Jumbo" has returned to his Alma Mater, where he was often referred to as a "one-man track team," Track has been on the upgrade and gradually is beginning to take the form that any major sport should in a College athletic curriculum. Personally, we we feel that before Villanova can hope to become a leader in Eastern College athletics and

Austin Maintains Lead In Softball League

CLOSE CONTESTS MARK WEEK'S PLAY IN TWILIGHT BALL

Blue Shirts Lose to Fedigan After Beating Mendel, Alumni

SKYTOPPERS LOSE 7TH

The Intramural Softball League continued under full swing on Monday evening, May 2, with the Austin Powerhoues upohlding their winning ways by drubbing Mendel 18-3; while Alumni pulled one "out of the fire" by defeating a strong Fedigan team, 6-5.

Playing a brand of ball that sent the spectators wild, the Austinites gathered a total of 23 hits from Lad Pasciak who pitched for the Penhousers. Lo Balbo and Pantaleo led the attack which gave the Steamrollers eleven runs in the first two frames.

McKeemen Spank Austin

In Wednesday's game the Austinites took on an inspired Alumni team, and in spite of the good hurling done by Pat Persicano the boys from Austin Hill spanked the Greenies in a most exciting contest. The West Enders played host to the Mendelites and nearly lost the close game. Fedigan came through with a run in the final canto to assure them of the victory.

On Thursday evening the most exciting game to date was played with Fedigan and Austin locking horns. The chatter of the spectators died down to a whisper, then finally ceased altogether as the innings rolled by and the score remained deadlocked. Paul Fitzmaurice did a fine job of hurling for the Austinites, but by allowing two hits in the final frame lost to the Gigolos.

A rejuvenated Mendel team engaged the Alumni Horde at the far end of the field. Behind the stellar chucking of Pat Persicano the Greenies clouted their way to a hard fought 14-4 victory over the Penthousers. Lad Pasciak did some effective twirling for the Mendelites but the many errors in the outfield was a deciding factor in the outcome of the game. Many disputes over the decisions of the umpires delayed the game somewhat.

Most of the player are not fully cognizant of the rules of the game as far as base stealing is concerned. As soon as this difficulty is overcome, the players show promise of providing all with some very thrilling contests.

FROSH SHAPING UP IN DAILY WORKOUTS

O'Leary, Nicholas Pitching Prospects; Basco, Naimo Outstanding Infielders

By BILL TOY

Practicing daily with the varsity, the Villanova Frosh tossers are in fine fettle and have already garnered one victory from a strong Ursinus nine. Under the expert tutelage of their noted mentor, "Doc" Jacobs, some of the boys have developed into excellent prospects for future clubs.

Working from the shortstop post, Pete Naimo has showed great promise of developing into varsity timber at this position. He has all the necessary elements essential in a good key man showing both a good arm and the ability to field well coupled with a fine batting eye. Pete connected for two baseblows against the boys from Collegeville in the first game.

Basca Covers Third

Another fine prospect is "Nickels" Basca who is expected to give Pash plenty to think about next Spring when he becomes eligible for the varsity. Basca, not satisfied to be only a good baseball player, has become proficient in football and basketball as well. "Nickels" is a hard-hitting third sacker who gobbles anything that comes his way, in the air or otherwise.

Leading in the pitching department, we find Connie O'Leary and Connie Nicholas who hail from Massachusetts and New York respectively. Both men pitched good ball against Ursinus and are showing enough ability to guarantee Coach Jacobs of repiacements for Escott and Bill McLaughlin, who will be lost by graduation. O'Leary and Nicholas seem to have speed and control, and should help to bolster the pitching staff for the Wildcats next season.

Outfielders Look Good

Other hopefuls of whom much should be heard in the future, are George Balmore in the outfield together with "Chick" Morris and Jack Donahue who also engage in the fly-chasing department. All three of these men were stars in their high school days, and show no signs of having lost the art of hitting the nugget.

Quite a few try-outs are in evidence and are doing their best to gain a berth in the starting line-up. All the members of the squad are trying every minute under the ever watchful eye of their coach and are always running them out.

Efforts are being made to secure engagements for the yearling club and high hopes are held that several games will be scheduled in the near future. This year's turnout for the team indicates the possibility of having ball clubs of the same caliber at Villanova in the future as she has had in the past.

gain National recognition—not that we aren't working in that direction right now—we must put teams out on the gridiron, diamond, basketball court, track, ring and in every sport endeavor, which are able to hold their own against any of those teams that we may compete with.

We have noted such action with our football, basketball and baseball teams and we can safely say that the rest of the athletic teams are following in that direction. We should not worry too much then, now, whether or not our track team would do as well against the better teams in the East. But, what we can and should do right now is to support this impetus which will tend to make Villanova outstanding in this field. With a renewed interest and more attention being paid to this progressive sport we as students and all supporters of the Wildcats must do all in our power to provide for the development and success of the movement which Coach Elliott has inaugurated with his return to Villanova College.

Student interest is necessary for the success of any collegiate event whether it be academic or athletic. From the attendance at the last two meets, it apparently appears as if the students at Villanova show little appreciation in track competition. If we at Villanova do not support our organizations, we can not very well expect support from the outsiders. To guarantee this sport the position that it rightly deserves and since it is making a fine attempt to assume that notch, we must make ourselves present at future track meets and get our friends interested in a group of fellows who will do much to help Villanova gain national reputation in athletic centers.

Villanova linksmen became the second Blue athletic team to go down before Temple this season when the Owl golfers came through with a well earned 7-2 victory over the Wildcat team last Thursday at the Lu Lu Temple Country Club. In this meet Jimmy Dwyer lost his first match in two year of varsity competition. However, Jimmy stayed in the match till the final hole to lose to Jack Faragher one down.

freshman footballer, won the fourth and final event for "Jumbo" Elliot's neophytes when he heaved the javelin 178 feet and four inches to easily beat off his Penn rivals. The four firsts garnered by the "Greenies" were not enough to overcome all the second and third places that Penn came through with, but they did serve as the nucleus of the final Kitten score.

Other point-getters for the frosh were Vic Corbett, who placed third in the high jump; Frank Menard, who gained a second in the shot put, and Voss, whose second was the best Villanova could do in the discus.

half of the sixth, when the New Yorkers tallied a run on Principe's double which scored Metoskie, knotting the ball game at two runs each.

Cats Forge Ahead

The Wildcats stepped out in the seventh on hits by Stoviak and Lou Bond. Stoviak scored on the latter's single, barely beating out a throw from shortstop Coyle.

Villanova found Borowaya slants to their liking, marking up eleven hits. It was fast fielding on the Fordham side aided by faulty Villanova base running that saw the final count go in favor of the Fordham club.

Escott in his ten innings of mound duty allowed nine hits, whiffed seven and walked but three. Principe's hitting marred chances of turning in his second win over the Fordhamites.

Ray Stoviak was the hitting sensation as far as Villanova was concerned. The 'Cat captain slapping out a pair of hits for a single and a double. He scored two of the three runs credited to Villanova. In addition he managed to steal a base.

Statistics reveal that the Wildcats left fifteen men stranded on the base paths, while Fordham was more fortunate leaving but nine to die on the base paths.

Behind the three-hit relief pitching of Jim Desmond, Villanova pounded out a 13-2 win over a hapless Lehigh University nine, on the local baseball pasture, Thursday afternoon.

Bill McLaughlin started on the mound for Villanova but gave way to Desmond in the third, after he had allowed two Lehigh runs to cross the plate in the first inning. McLaughlin found trouble in locating the palte. He walked three in succession, hit several Lehigh men. He was yanked in favor of Desmond before any more damage could be done. Desmond allowed three hits and blanked Lehigh for the rest of the afternoon, while his mates added seven more runs.

By THOMAS J. CARBINE

The handsome lad dressed in the Esquire motif that silently trods the corridors of Mendel Hall deserves to have his birthday, August 1, 1915, marked in red ink in his family's record book. His life has been spent bringing honor and glory to the Greco name. Ever since he left Edgar Allan Poe grammar school in favor of Vare Junior High, he has been using his athletic ability to its fullest advantage.

He easily earned a position on both the tumbling and gym teams. Later when he entered South Philadelphia High School he gave up the latter sport and devoted all his time to swimming. There he mastered the technique that later brought him to fame at Villanova. He captained the swimming team in his last year in High School.

Toby, A Boy Wonder

It is not generally known that Toby had the distinction of being a boy wonder. When he was 15 years old he was Philadelphia boy champion in surf casting. A year later he won the title of National Boy's Casting Champion. The next year he was a member of the Angler's City Trophy. His personal average for fine casts being 401 feet.

After graduating from high school Toby was undecided about his collegiate career so he waited a year before making up his mind. In the meantime he obtained a position of lifeguard in Margate city. When the Summer was over and he entered Villanova as a Commerce and Finance student, it wasn't long before he found the pool and was immediately at home. For four years he swam on the Varsity and was elected captain in his last season.

He swam the free-style events during his Freshman year but in the Summer while working as a guard at the shore he broke his ankle during a rescue. Consequently, he was unable to use the flutter kick successfully during the following campaign so he concentrated on the breast-stroke. His efforts along this line proved worth while because he now holds the 100- and 200-yard college records, as well as swimming the breast-stroke legon. Toby is a member of the 300-yard medley relay team that holds the college record.

Represented Penn A. C.

Toby has also represented the Penn Athletic Club in swimming for the last four years, as well as competing in the National Life Guard swimming and rowing events as a representative of Margate Beach Club for the last four Summers.

Another achievement that Toby has to his credit is the mastery of the art of Terpsichore. Members of the weaker sex who are not aware of his athletic ability are more than favorably impressed by his poise on the dance floor.

After enrolling in the Commerce and Finance School as a Freshman, Toby decided to change to the Pre-Medical course. However, a try at this made him long for the commercial course. Still, he wasn't satisfied as he re-enrolled in the Pre-Medical School. This seems to be his destined field for he has now achieved the distinction of being classed as an honor student in this course and has expressed the intention of matriculating at the Temple Medical School in the Fall.

dash events. The sensational towhead won the 100 in 10.1 and the 220 in 23.4. Bill Guiteras, not to be outdone, snatched two wins in the middle distance events, coming from behind to take both events. The smooth running Guiteras, timing both races with brilliant precision, ran the 440 in 51.2 and the 880 in 2.03.4.

Besides Buck's win in the broad jump, Pete Yankuaskas and Brad McManus also same through with Blue firsts in the field events. The former won the javelin, while the latter garnered a first in the pole vault.

Tom Thorne turned in a fine performance for the Trentonites, winning a pair of long distance runs, the mile and the two mile. Joe Peirson also turned in a double for the Brancs, as he tossed the shot and the discus farther than any of the competitors.

MALASPINA ELECTED SOCIETY PRESIDENT

Villanova chapter of the American Society of Chemical Engineers terminated its reunions for the year by announcing John Malaspina as their president for the coming scholastic period. Malaspina will take over the guiding duties held for the past year by Joseph Beittenmiller.

The remainder of the governing body which will be installed in September is composed of Edward Cierkowski as vice president and George Haluszka as secretary-treasurer. They are both very active in various other activities and their election was met by the unanimous approval of the entire organization.

Graduation is taking many members from the society of which two are present officers. Daniel O'Connor, an active member in his class as well as in the A. S. C. E., will relinquish the vice presidency to Cierkowski, and Beittenmiller will also be lost to the organization after June.

There will be a very important meeting of both the college and sports departments today at 1 o'clock.

REALISTIC SETTING CREATED FOR PLAY

Aiding materially in achieving the proper atmosphere of "Winterset" are the technical accomplishments of the production staff. Besides the construction of the two sets a clever arrangement providing a rain storm has been developed.

The rain apparatus is a pipe with a number of holes extending overhead across the stage. A tin gutter catches the stream on the ground. A rainlight plays on the sheet of water. Quite a bit of time was spent also on the painting of the bridgehead, fence, and tenement house of the exterior and the barrenly furnished basement interior.

Much of the credit for the artistic effects aiding the players as well as the audience may be given to the stage managers, Basil Dobrowolski and Harry McGrath, and the staff artist, Pershing Calabro. The latter is responsible for the huge advertisement of "Winterset" to be seen on the college billboard.

William J. Ward Chosen Senior Class President

Science Student Defeats Peter C. Mackin in Close Election; Quinn, Holl, Laskin Receive Offices For Senior Year

CARBINE, CIRRITO NAMED TO COUNCIL

When the polls in the college dining hall closed yesterday afternoon, Student Council officials announced that William J. Ward, junior in the School of Science, had been chosen by classmates to serve in the presidency during the senior year.

Ward, before his election, was Student Council representative for the Class of 1939, and with his induction into the presidential capacity relinquishes his Council position. Nomination for this vacancy will be conducted at a general meeting of the present junior class today at 1 o'clock in Mendel Hall.

Only other nominee to oppose Ward for the presedential post was Peter C. Mackin, Commerce and Finance student and Business Manager of the VILLANOVAN. Mackin was defeated in an election made exciting by pre-election campaigning.

Quinn Elected

Elected to official capacities in the Class of 1939 were Joseph Quinn, Albert Holl, and Harold Laskin. Quinn, a student in the Technology School, was elected to the vice-presidency, while Holl and Laskin received offices of secretary and treasurer, respectively. Holl is an Arts student and Laskin is a member of the School of Commerce and Finance.

Student Council representatives of the Class of 1939 decided at this recent election were Thomas Carbine, School of Arts and Philosophy, and Anthony Cirrito, Technology School.

Nominees for the vice presidency along with Quinn were: James

ORIENTATION GROUP INCLUDES COUNCIL IN REORGANIZATION

Student Judiciary Body Merges With 15 Sophomore Committeemen

Official adoption of the reorganization program recently proposed by the Villanova Student Council has limited the sophomore membership in the Orientation Committee to 15 members. This announcement came as a joint release from Edward J. Shovlin, council chairman, and Murray P. Zealor, president of the Class of 1941.

As a result of this innovation the members of the judiciary body, composed of upperclassmen and organization heads, will also be included in the committee that is to initiate the incoming Class of 1942 next Fall.

Sophomore Appointees

The Orientation Committee, as released yesterday, will include, in addition to the Council members, the following representatives appointed by the Sophomore Class:

Daniel Keating, Robert Boudon, Francis Abbott, William Epifanio, Cornelius O'Leary, James Haughton, Philip Zitelli, Fred Steller, Robert Schisler, Timothy Brosman, James Collins and James Mulroy. William Deasey. Joseph Norton and George Flannery are the class officers on the committee. Murray Zealor and Clifford Randolph are the Student Council members in the Class of 1941.

Formulating the first official attempt at reorganization, the following decision was rendered by the Student Council and approved by the College Administration:

"After consideration by both the Student Council and the Administrative offices of the College it was decided that the present makeup of the Orientation Committee should be reorganized. The reason

MILLER CHOSEN AS PUBLICATION HEAD

Junior Named Editor of Mendel Bulletin; Magazine Distributed May 27

Bernard J. Miller, junior in the School of Science, has been selected to head the Mendel Bulletin staff for next year, it was announced today by Vincent Ciacci, present editor. Miller, an honor student, has contributed many outstanding articles to the science publication and has been a leading factor in its success. The names of those assisting him have not yet been released but will include many prominent members of the Science School.

The final issue of the current year will be distributed on May 27. Larger than previous issues, the fourth 1938 edition of the Mendel Bulletin represents the best papers of a year's work on experimental problems. The frontispiece features a new, beautiful color plate of the Euglena. Several remarkable X-ray photos showing the circulatory system in the foetal pig add to the fine photographic effects.

Many Features

A new column entitled "Around the World with Science" and containing short excerpts from science periodicals makes its introduction in this issue. Experimental work includes theses on "Contraction of Chick Hearts." "Euglena," and "Psychiatry in Nursing." Several short articles on subjects of every day interest include papers on "Ants," "Plant Growth Without Soil," and "The Effects of Sulphanilamide on the Blood Count."

FR. FARLEY WILL DELIVER SEMINAR TALK ON MAY 19

Eastern Penitentiary Chaplain To Address Science Students at Thursday Meeting

Rev. Bernard J. Farley, chaplain of the Eastern Penitentiary, will address the Seminar on Thursday, May 19, it was announced today by Rev. Joseph J. Dougherty, O.S.A., dean of the Science School.

Father Farley was scheduled to speak here May 5 but was unavoidably detained necessitating a change of date. The chaplain of Cherry Hill, one of the best-liked speakers ever to address the seminar, spoke here during the last school year.

Father Farley's talks are famous both for their humor and for their sincerity. He has made it a point in his life's work not only to counsel the fallen at the penitentiary but also to foster a fraternal spirit among them.

Those students who were unfortunate enough to miss Father Farley's talk last year should surely make it a point to be present at this week's seminar. All will be impressed not only by his quite good humor but by the educational value to be derived from his talk.

Martin, Eldracher, McKane Win Key Positions; Officially Inducted Thursday

Lambda Kappa Delta, pre-medical fraternity, has chosen as next year's president, John C. Urie, junior in the School of Science, in an election held Thursday of last week.

Charles G. Martin, sophomore in the School of Science, was elected to the office of vice president succeeding Italo de Bartolomeis. Other juniors elected were Charles A. Skowron as Student Council representative and Robert G. Howe, as sergeant-at-arms.

Induction Thursday

These officers will be inducted at the final meeting of the year to be held this Thursday, May 19, at 7:45 P. M. At this meeting Alan F. Dowling will preside for the last time and will turn the management of the fraternity to Urie.

Under the present officers the fraternity this year has had one of its most successful seasons.

In being elected president, John Urie defeated Italo de Bartolomeis, Carl Pantaleo, and Bede Howard, all juniors in the School of Science. The other candidate for vice president was Joseph Rossi, a sophomore in the same school. Howe, sergeant-at-arms, was opposed by

JOHN L. SIMONS TO BE VALEDICTORIAN

SIMONS CHOSEN TO GIVE VALEDICTORY AT COMMENCEMENT

Engineering Student Selected to Present Address at Graduation Exercises

John L. Simons, senior engineer, once more has shown his worth by his appointment as Valedictorian of the Class of '38. Simons last week was the recipient of the highest number of merit awards in the history of Villanova College, a total of eight. The position and status he has gained through the year's work places him in the prospect of receiving the Gold Medal for Extara-Curricular Activity, present by Hon. Martin J. McLaughlin, '14.

His appointment was received after a competitive forum of speakers representing all of the schools on the campus. The other students who were in competition for Valedictorian at the open forum last Thursday afternoon were Edward Gornowski also of the Engineering School; Joseph Toland of the Science School; James Lyons of the School of Commerce and Finance; Jordan Olivar and Louis Curtis of the School of Arts. All students were given the subject of Communism to speak upon. The speakers were judged as to their delivery, speech content, poise and pronunciation.

The valedictory address will be given in conjunction with the commencement exercises of Villanova College to be held on Thursday, June 2. John Simons is assuming by his appointment the position of Valedictorian held last year by Anthony L. Differ. The address will be given after an introductory speech by Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O.S. A. The subject of Simons' commencement address has not as yet been named but he will speak in all probability on some phase of Communism or another predominent world problem.

Mass Opens Exercises

Quite appropriately, the Solemn Baccalaureate Mass at 9 o'clock on the morning of graduation will officially open the Commencement Exercises. Father Stanford will celebrate the Mass, while the Rev. Bernard M. Albers, O. S. A., vice president, will act as Deacon, and the Rev. Joseph C. Bartley, O. S. A., dean of the School of Commerce and Finance, will be the sub-Deacon.

The Baccalaureate Sermon will be preached by the Rev. Gerald F. Dunn, O. S. A., and the music is to be presented by the Augustinian Scholastic Choir of Villanova.

COURSES FOR SUMMER SESSION BEGIN JUNE 27

Villanova Faculty To Conduct Classes During Six-Week Scholastic Period

Villanova's Summer Session for the 1938 season will officially open on Monday, June 27. Registrations may be made at Catholic Girls' High School on June 23 or here at the college on June 24 and 25.

Rev. Joseph C. Bartley, O.S.A., dean of the Summer Session, announced that classes will be held at the Girls High School six days a week for five weeks and at Villanova five days a week for a period of six weeks. The faculty of the Summer School includes many members of the regular Villanova teaching staff in addition to several prominent educators in the Philadelphia area.

Graduate courses leading to the Master of Arts or the Master of Science degrees are offered in this session. Among the special fields in which a student may major are Economics, Education, English, History, Latin, Philosophy, French, Biology, Chemistry and Physics. The courses offered are available to both laity and members of religious orders.

M'HENRY APPOINTED BELLE AIR EDITOR

Junior Commerce Student Succeeds Charles O'Connor as Publication Head

Bernard McHenry, junior student in the School of Commerce and Finance, was recently inducted to the editorship of the Belle Air, at a dinner formally conducted by the publication last Tuesday evening.

McHenry will replace Charles O'Connor, senior Commerce and Finance student, at the helm of the Belle Air activities. Through O'Connor's efforts many new features and improvements have been introduced into the year-book. It has been the policy of the editorial board to use more pictures and less printed matter. This is in keeping with the modern trend.

President Speaks

At the banquet the retiring editor thanked the staff members for their co-operation. More especially he thanked Fr. Falvey for the guiding hand which he put to the publication, Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O.S.A., president of Villanova college, spoke next. He commended the staff in its efforts. Of especial interest was the comment he made regarding Fr. Falvey. It seems that the Belle Aire was never issued before graduation. However for three consecutive years it has appeared early. These are the three years Fr. Falvey has been moderator.

This was followed by the presentation of the keys. With characteristic modesty, Fr. Falvey attempted to divert all glory from

PROTECTIVE ACTION

VILLANOVA has at last awakened to the fact that during the past few years student interest in orientation activities has been reduced to almost negligible significance.

During the course of years, the enforcement of the regulations associated with freshman initiation has undergone a gradual and increasing laxity. Each succeeding class has been less severe, less vigorous in the progagation of a fine and essential Villanova tradition.

Assuming its rightful authority, the Student Council has recently adopted a reorganization program embracing the formation of the Orientation Committee of the Class of 1941. By this action, the Student Council has incorporated itself into that committee.

In doing so, the Council is not transgressing upon the rights of the individuals of the Class of 1941 by limiting membership on the committee. Its action is a protective one . . . a precaution against the dissolution of an essential prerogative of proper collegiate training.

If these upperclassmen recognize the need for immediate reorganization, who should question their action? The regulations which they defend have been found and proven basically sound. The means they have adopted are sane and reasonable.

No student organization on the campus is more worthy or able to undertake the task now assumed by the Student Council. Its members are the leaders of the campus . . . presidents, editors, chairman, class representatives. This honorary judiciary body which serves to represent the students and govern their activities deserves your support. The Class of 1941 will do its part . . . will the rest of the student body??

ATTENTION, CATHOLIC COLLEGES

IT is encouraging that American students should unite with strength to study and to support reasonable solutions for present difficulties. However, as the Catholic College Press Association points out, this power is used for evil when the remedies advocated are worse than the conditions to be cured.

The American Student Union is a case in point. It has abandoned the American Genius to apply alien and weakening influences to the problems of national orientation.

Co-operation with the ASU in the flouting of morality is impossible. To let the public know that the ASU is not representative of American youth and, further, to advise the public as to the position of Catholic students a Catholic Press Association is necessary.

The association started in March now is established. To strenghten the organization as a whole, to increase the student representation, to make it function more conveniently, to save hours in riding back and forth to meetings it is advisable for members from this vicinity, La Salle, Rosemont, Villanova, Immaculata, to make preliminary plans for the formation of a Philadelphia chapter.

A JOB WELL DONE

CONGRATULATIONS are again in order for the Belle Masque Dramatic society whose version of "Winterset" last week-end was excellent. Congratulations are also due you students who showed interest and spirit by attending this annual production of your thespians.

In keeping with the tempo established by all of Villanova's activities this year, the Belle Masque's worth was recognized when the Villanova society became the first college organization to obtain permission to produce this very difficult play. Special commendation is due the actors who played their parts in real professional style, to the stage hands who made the scenic effects realistic, and to the production staff who so well directed and organized the show.

This play is an indication of what Villanova can really do in this field. It is almost certain that with more faculty and student backing the Villanova Belle Masque will become one of the foremost collegiate dramatic organizations.
